

Arcangel Michael

Felt cold hooks around my wrist
Again we dance this silent trist Away I stood as you drew nearer Pulling broad and furied fear

Settling in what's about to come Too quickly for my turn to run
The fists fell sharp as electric shocks
The tears welled up, my body slumped

My eyes grow wide and my muscles tense
I pray arcangel Michael, come to my defense

There's a place where sorrow's sleeping
I have a problem, I'm not speaking No one knows who you really are I'll laugh and tell them nothing's wrong

I got that bruise from playing ball
I got that scar from a nasty fall
I just have too much on my mind
But I'll never forget the time

My eyes grow wide and my muscles tense
I pray arcangel Michael, come to my defense

I know who you really are now
A child who needs a toy
Don't expect me to break down
'cause someday
'cause someday
'cause someday my angel will find you so quick to label me crazy don't project your lost self onto me got more gifts for your behavior than all my birthdays put together whatever I say is always wrong whenever I open my mouth, I'm dumb you insist you won the fight but you'll never explain last night

My eyes grow wide and my muscles tense
I pray arcangel Michael, come to my defense
I pray arcangel Michael, come to my defense
