

PAUL GREEN creativity

"Paul Green is a well-established award-winning blues singer and harmonica player who reveals another side in this great collection of his vocalise on great jazz tunes mostly from the rich jazz vein of the 50s and 60s. Most jazz lovers are delighted with vocalise, the art of writing and singing new lyrics to classic jazz tunes and solos. Originated by Eddie Jefferson, King Pleasure and Jon Hendricks, carried forward by Mark Murphy, Sheila Jordan, Kurt Elling, and now Paul Green, vocalise requires a great sense of pitch and rhythm as a vocalist sings complex instrumental jazz lines and negotiates the twists and turns of improvised solos.

These are all new lyrics by Paul Green to the music and solos of Dexter Gordon, Joe Henderson, Horace Silver, Lee Morgan, Tad Dameron, Lucky Thompson, McCoy Tyner, Chick Corea and Fats Navarro. The imaginative lyrics deal with personal relationships, social responsibilities, environmentalism, the creative process, mutual respect and regard for each other. Great arrangements for the horns and rhythm carry these classic tunes into the present day and give them a contemporary feel. The excellent band includes some of Seattle's best players and the lyrics, singing and harmonica of Paul Green bring it all home today!"
