

2-27-2018

Paste Magazine
By: William June

<https://www.pastemagazine.com/articles/2018/02/the-scientist-final-hi-resmp4.html>

"The Scientist" is the newest single from Jersey's Red Black Red. It's featured on their upcoming release, Resettlement (March 2nd).

The vocals of the song have a Nine Inch Nails vibe under a bed that might sound like numerous video games being played all at once. What may feel like overkill when just listening, sounds glorious when paired with the movement in the video. Suddenly every sound that might feel superfluous on it's own, feels completely necessary. Every blip and bleep has a purpose as the video moves.

But don't sleep on the vocals. They're hard to get to at times. But they tell the story of an immigrant family thrust into an American society they don't understand and likely aren't welcomed in.

Paste Search Paste Paste Studio Radio

Music Movies TV Comedy Games Books

Red Black Red "The Scientist"

Red Black Red "The Scientist"
By William June (Contributor) | February 27, 2018 | 9:01am
MUSIC > VIDEO

"The Scientist" is the newest single from Jersey's Red Black Red. It's featured on their upcoming release, Resettlement (March 2nd).

The vocals of the song have a Nine Inch Nails vibe under a bed that might sound like numerous video games being played all at once. What may feel like overkill when just listening, sounds glorious when paired with the movement in the video. Suddenly every sound that might feel superfluous on it's own, feels completely necessary. Every blip and bleep has a purpose as the video moves.