

The Pat Bianchi Trio

COPY

Grammy nominated organist and winner of Downbeat Magazine's 2016 rising star poll, Pat Bianchi has established himself as one of the premier organists on the international scene today. His command of the instrument, harmonic prowess, rhythmic intensity and versatility are rivaled by few. The dynamic and versatile organist has been described by many of his peers as virtuosic. Bianchi, who has collaborated with many musical icons including: Pat Martino, Lou Donaldson, Chuck Loeb, Joey DeFrancesco and Mark Whitfield continues to contribute to the legacy of the Hammond B3.

Bianchi's exciting trio draws from each members extensive musical background. A collaborative musical experience between three like minded musicians, who consistently explore and embrace a sense of risk on the bandstand. The trio performs standards and original compositions; Continually offering performances that guarantees to transport audiences, leaving them wanting more.

A virtuosic organist ~ Pat Martino

The legacy and tradition of the organ is dependent on the young players of today. Pat Bianchi is one of the voices who will take it into the future. ~ Dr. Lonnie Smith

Bianchi demonstrates that he's both a tradition-minded player and a risk-taker. He's not afraid to go at the music head-on, but he's also willing to peak into the outer limits from time to time, inspiring his band mates to do the same. ~ Dan Bilawsky (All About Jazz)
