Tribe Royal

From Canada's capital city of Ottawa to the "Hit Recording Capital of the World" in Muscle Shoals, Alabama everything changed in 2018 for the fast-rising eclectic quartet of Canadian 'Americana-Rockers'. In April of 2018, Tribe Royal travelled to Muscle Shoals Alabama to work with legendary producer, Norbert Putnam, famous for recording notable artists such as: Linda Ronstadt, Jimmy Buffett, Dan Fogelberg, Mickey Newbury, to record two new singles "Holding On" & "Good To Me" for a vintage Double-A-Side titled "Road To Muscle Shoals", released internationally on July 1st, 2018. Norbert's presence at the helm of this upcoming LP has inspired the band to new heights with this record sure to capture industry attention, now that the band is making waves in the European market.

Established in late 2013, Tribe Royal is a refreshing take on classic sounds, paying tribute to their roots and hitting the stage in overdrive with an energy reminiscent of the Red Hot Chili Peppers. Comprised of the singer/songwriting partnership of Chris Kerwin & Terry O'Brien, two writer's moored in different, yet complimentary sounds and styles; solidified by the rhythmic tandem of Bram Al-Najjar & Matt Robillard, 'The Tribe' as they call themselves, has quickly grown from four members to the burgeoning international following they've begun to enjoy today. The band has toured across Canada several times, played hundreds of shows at some of the most notorious venues in the country, performed in Europe (Live At Heart Sweden) and opened for established or rising artists in: Sam Roberts Band, Ocean Alley, Quiet Company, Red Wanting Blue and Neon Dreams, to name a few.

2019 is looking to be another very exciting year for Tribe Royal, with several marquee international performances already booked: Summerfest (USA), MIDEM (France), LiveAtHeart (Sweden) with more still to be announced, the fast-rising Tribe Royal handily proves that exhilarating diversity does still exist in contemporary rock.

You just need to know where to look.
