

Clement Kichuk
Principal

From his time as a large company CIO to founder and president of a boutique business and software consulting firm to marketing director for the services branch of a large software company, Clement brings years of varied, frontline experience to epiCentrix. His areas of concentration include strategic planning and implementation, business process design, continuous improvement, enterprise performance management, best practices and budgeting / cost control.

Some of his accomplishments:

- For a major southern healthcare system - developed a comprehensive exploratory business plan for the establishment of a new healthcare consulting company
- For a large retail chain - as acting CIO composed and implemented the strategic information systems plan
- Headed up a company providing solutions in business intelligence, business systems integration, network services and e-Commerce.
- Developed and implemented an effective strategy to turn a troubled private school into a thriving charter school
- For a multinational software company - created an Enterprise Performance Management (EPM) vision, and supporting products
- Led the global marketing effort for the repositioning, rebranding and image creation for a multinational professional services group
- As a consulting manager for Cap Gemini / Ernst & Young, developed a go to market product offering and point of view in the Enterprise Performance Management segment.

In all of these positions and accomplishments a common thread has been creativity and innovation combined with effective execution.

He holds a masters degree in business from Columbia University.
