A life long singer and pianist from the age of 7, Steve has been performing professionally for over 25 years. Inspired by all the great singer-songwriters of the 60's, 70's and 80's, particularly Billy Joel and Elton John, Steve has been honing his craft as a player, singer and writer since his adolescence. As a soloist or as part of various ensembles, he has performed at the Greenley CO Jazz Festival, Worlds of Fun in Kansas City, MO, Canadian Wonderland in Toronto, ON (Canada), the White house lawn in Washington, DC and Carnegie Hall in New York City AND was the first ever Cornhusker State Games Talent Competition Gold Medalist in 1995 at the age of 17.

In 2011, “Piano Man Steve” founded LearningMusicISFUN.com, an online piano instruction course, where he has helped thousands of aspiring artists around the world transform their piano playing with his revolutionary “Piano Man Approach”. His students range in skill levels from beginner to advanced and he even coaches professional piano teachers. Steve maintains a busy schedule of live performances every year traveling to multiple states as well as regularly releasing new studio albums of original songs and new educational content for his international student and fan base. Steve has always worked under a simple philosophy that he hopes will be felt by his audiences and students alike:

“If you’re not having fun when you’re making music, you’re doing it wrong!”
