

DON'T KNOW WHO YOU ARE

*The shutters are closed and the room grows dark
Shadows are dancing across the wall like art
When I lean over to stare deep in your heart
I've seen all the scars, but don't know who you are*

*So I step away silent to get a view of the stars
Trees make the music of the night for my heart
When I turn, I meet your eyes and fall into your arms Somehow I feel safe, but don't know who you are*

*How did we get this way?
Lose enough of ourselves to no longer want to stay
There's no turning back after the words that have been said
You were mine, I was yours, but now it's dead*

DON'T KNOW WHO YOU ARE

*So I go back to sleep on my side of the bed
Memories come sweeping and rushing through my head
When I wake to chase after, you've gone so far
And I just watch you leave, cause I don't know who you are*

*How did we get this way?
Lose enough of ourselves to no longer want to stay
There's no turning back after the words that have been said
You were mine
I was yours
but now it's dead*
