

A good time to remember
(taxi driver story)

The colour of my eyes
Won't tell you anything at all
I changed it to fit into
The fashion in control
Our minister believes in television we can see
When she puts on her make up
The light flashes out my memory

On the east side of the city
Heavy traffic in the night
I was waiting for the change
To feel heat from the other side
I was silent like the Eiffel tower waiting to be sold
I turned away from everything
And I visualize the moment when

Everything that you have will change
Everything you need will change
Everything you ever loved will be
A good time to remember
A good time to remember

Your mind is in the fast lane
While I'm looking at the crowds
They remind me of the tales
My father told me as a child
There are beauties in the garden
And they are strolling down the lane
Walking to their temples
And there they will remain

I've looked into the stars the
The planets moved into conjunction
But nothing ever changed
It always turned into dissolution
But then the angel whispered
"The master needs a little hand"
So, I move into position
I move into position when

Everything that you have will change
Everything you need will change
Everything you ever loved will be

A good time to remember
A good time to remember

The flowers they will grow
(They will cover every stone)
Along the streets that you have known
The beauty of the sky will be a
Blessing of the sea
I will repeat until the end until you understand that

Everything you have will change
Everything you need will change
Everything you love will be
Just a
A good time to remember
