Charlottesville-based alternative rock band [Harli & The House of Juniper](http://Harli & The House of Juniper) will be releasing their first single, “Is This Life...” on August 12th, 2018 in honor of the anniversary of the Unite the Right rally.

The track was originally written by front woman Harli Saxon several years ago, but it took on a different meaning after the events of August 12th, 2017. “I originally wrote it as a criticism of the media,” said Saxon, 19. “After the Unite the Right Rally, I realized it wasn’t as simple as that. I re-wrote the lyrics to try to better describe the sense of anguish, disgust, and frustration that I was feeling. It’s not really a protest song or a tribute, it’s more of a catharsis.”

Despite her age, Saxon is already an experienced songwriter. She won the first Tom Tom Founders Festival Songwriting Contest when she was only 14 years old. Her band, Harli & The House of Juniper, won the Music Resource Center’s Battle of the Bands in 2017, and they also won the WXRK 92.3 Battle of the Bands in January 2018.

“Is This Life...” Is the first single to be released from their upcoming debut album, which is currently being crowdfunded at igg.me/at/harli. The album is slated for release in September 2018. The single will be available on August 12th, 2017 at harliandthehouseofjuniper.com and on streaming and download platforms worldwide.

About Harli & The House of Juniper:

Harli & The House of Juniper is a four-piece rock band from Charlottesville, Virginia.
