

CIRCLES

And so the Circle was made. It had been arrived to. And now we could form a singularity, bringing the circle closer and closer in, the space within less and less. I played into the keys, the keys played into the computer, the computer played into me, and I played once more into the keys. And so, at a certain point, who is playing to who?

Such is the act of true listening - when you realize that you are the other, as well, listening to yourself.