

You Never Know

How could I have known seen the unforeseen Read between the lines behind your eyes so well disguised at least to me

How could you have seen so far in the past that the dream we had would bloom so fast yet always last and even grow

If I could see then
what's always been true
those lines were blue highways
on the road to you

When you choose a path
Where might that road go
What's the worst that could happen
I guess you never know

If I could see then
what's always been true
those lines were blue highways
all roads led to you

When you choose a path
Where might that road go
What's the worst that could happen
I guess you never know

Somehow you never know
You know you never know
I guess you never know
You never know