

SIMON LYNGE

AND
the Martial Hearts

Greenlandic-Danish singer songwriter Simon Lyngge draws listeners in with his expert finger style guitar playing, stunning vocals, captivating melodies and a poetic lyricism that is at once beautiful and bold. His lyrics speak candidly, of personal challenges and an astutely observed world. His perception of the beauty of life leads listeners into a magical and joyful space, even amidst sorrows.

“Simon is a fascinating man and an amazing talent all the way from Greenland. He’s an Inuit Scandinavian and he plays beautiful, beautiful music..”
— Sally Taylor, BBC

“Counting Elliott Smith and Nick Drake among his influences, Lyngge’s music is a brand of quite faultless melodic rich pop”— MusicWeek

Simon Lyngge grew up in both Greenland and Denmark, and built his fan base in those countries. He regularly tours those regions, though his home base is in the Pacific Northwest where he lives with his wife and two children.

He performs with his band The Martial Hearts, with members from Copenhagen, Denmark and Bristol, UK. He performs solo shows as well, and can easily captivate an audience with just guitar and voice.

From a review of his recent album Deep Snow –

“Simon Lyngge is a uniquely brilliant talent in terms of his song-writing ability which is worth celebrating alone but his delivery and the way this album has been so beautifully assembled is deserving of a standing ovation.”
