

BOBBY

Bobby was a boy in an old man's suit
Working so hard to fill his daddy's shoes
He never knew the man to his dying day
Went on his life with a price to pay

Said I'll catch a ride far away from here
There's a girl out west calling baby come near
With the setting sun she ran away
He came back home with a price to pay

Life can change your time and you'd never know
How you can change the ones you love with the love you show
Stand up and say

It's my love I won't let it go to waste
It's my heart and dreams that keep me from walking down your path

He'd never tell you what you wanted to know
Like why he goes fast when you want to go slow
Then he took a turn too sharp to steal
Leaving all the answers at the bottom of the hill

Who can be so cruel who can blame the son
For what he's conditioned to learn when he is young
Stand up and say

It's my love I won't let it go to waste
It's my heart and dreams that keep me from walking down your path

Open my heart
I'll open my soul
Just take your love
Never let go
Make this life worth living
For all the world to see
That the path you walked ends here with me

Bobby never knew where he wanted to go
