

Waves

By Scott Wilcox

When I hear you cry, I feel the waves roll by.
When I touch your hand, finally I understand.
Now I know why your momma smiles when she sees the seagulls fly
She remembers to savor today, cause like waves the days go by.

Your hands so small, soon you'll begin to crawl.
Today you are baptised, into the ring of life.
Will you learn to sing songs of love and ask the question why?
Just remember to savor today cause like waves the days go by.

I remember that first day you cried oh how the days go by
Today you join us on a Holy ride, like waves the days roll by
Give me strength to give you all my love until the day I die
I will love you till the end of time, like waves the days roll by
They roll on by

You and I like to pals we ride,
Side by side into a new sunrise.
Me and momma we'll both take care to catch you when you fall,
Just like waves the days roll by but we'll be with you through it all.

I remember that first day you cried oh how the days go by
Today you join us on a Holy ride, like waves the days roll by
Give me strength to give you all my love until the day I die
I will love you till the end of time, like waves the days roll by
They roll on by

(Repeat Chorus)
