BIOGRAPHY

A native of Charleston, West Virginia, Nicci Canada was destined to sing. Born into a family of vocalists, she has been surrounded by music her entire life. Possessing a unique ability to connect with listeners, she uses her voice as a canvas to showcase the truths of the heart and soul. Her warm, sultry vocals are reminiscent of artists such as Ella Fitzgerald, Billie Holiday and Nina Simone, but her amazing sound is unique to the gifts and talents she has been given.

Nicci released her first solo project in 2011 titled "Twenty Twelve", an eclectic mix of melodies that highlighted her unique vocal ability and introduced her to audiences around the world. However, it would be the grace and soulful serenity of Jazz that called to her heart and would deliver her to a world of jazz enthusiasts. She has since gone on to perform with the Charleston Symphony Orchestra and the Tulsa Signature Symphony.

COMMENDATIONS

“Singing on stage with Nicci is as close as I will come to singing with Billie Holiday.”
– Ron Raines, Broadway Legend

“A rich and intimate voice, spanning jazz, funk, soul, R&B and symphonic classical music, Nicci Canada is poised to quickly become a well known name and birth an exciting new genre of symphonic big band soul-jazz. Having worked with hundreds of singers, I am taken with her inventiveness, her breadth of musical vision and a depth of voice that is both focused and cultivated and expressive. Her singing and compositions are certain to capture the attention of musicians and audiences of all kinds.”- Jeremy Kurn, Arranger and Composer

“Nicci Canada, as a jazz vocalist and songwriter, is a breath of fresh air. In a word, she affects. Her scatting, sassy lyrics and vocals, and ability to weave all of the diverse elements found here into one beautiful collage of sound and creativity is a testament to an artist who obviously loves what she does and is most enthused about sharing it all with anyone and everyone.”- Ronald Jackson, The Smooth Jazz Ride
