

LEXIE GREEN is a singer/songwriter, farmer and self-confessed proud Mum from the fenlands in Cambridgeshire. Her influences are described as Vintage Blues, Americana & Country Rock 'n' Roll.

Becoming a singer and songwriter and performer later than some, Lexie penned her first song after leaving a career in the city of London to settle down as a Mum and to run the family farming business.

It has not always been easy juggling a young family, a business and her passion for music but her hard work has gained her a few tasty International song writing awards (including both semi-finalist and commended entries for The International Songwriting Contest), multiple album releases to critical success, BBC Radio airplay, the chance to meet and perform for her idol and legend 'Bob Harris' and getting to gig around England with her band of friends 'The Indigo Blue'

After being chosen by Bob Harris, the BBC Radio 2 production team and The Long Road Festival organisers, Lexie recently performed on the BBC Introducing stage at The Long Road Festival. Lexie has built up a strong reputation for her live performances being recognised and respected by venues, promoters, radio presenters and audiences as a crowd loving and excellent live act.

"Lexie's music is fun, uplifting and at times very emotive. Her vocal delivery is exceptional and I can imagine that live, she would be even more powerful."
