The established rapper from Woodbridge, VA, has been recording music since he was just seventeen years old. He has been inspired to record music from his childhood idols Bone Thugs N' Harmony. He had a strong desire to create music for other people to enjoy and after writing his first track "Future Shock" has been hooked ever since. The artist fell into bad times financially and in his personal life, so had to take a break from the music scene for some time. It was a difficult part of his life where he wasn't sure if he'd be able to continue pursuing a career in music. Around the end of 2019 his passion for the craft reignited and he decided to start releasing music. This comes after many years of working on his craft and perfecting his sound. He's highly versatile and able to rap in a dazzling range of different styles.
