

I'll See It (When I Believe It)
©1986 by Annabella Wood

I'll see it when I believe it.
It's the law of the land.
I'll see it when I believe it.
It's so simple to understand.

Out in the desert,
The land looks very dry.
Not a drop of water
In the earth nor in the sky.
But still there are trees
That grow in this place.
This put a smile on a
Faithful man's face.

He said if there are trees,
Then water must be near.
So I will dig a well,
Yes I'll dig it right here.
Soon at the bottom,
Water ran through.
If not for this man's faith,
This would not have been true.

I'll see it when I believe it.
It's the law of the land.
I'll see it when I believe it.
It's so simple to understand.

Your life is a reflection
Of what you hold as truth.
Whatever you believe
So it shall be done to you.
So take a look around
And see where your faith lies.
Have a change of heart,
And this will change your life.

'Cause you'll see it when you believe it...
