To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter in recommendation of Greg Chako and his jazz band trio. Greg and his band performed at one of our very important client receptions in 2006. This was an evening that required perfection and Greg's band was an instrumental part of the evening's success. The band had to be in sync with the entire evening activities and the keynote speakers. I personally found Greg and his band members to be extremely cooperative and easy to work with. I had briefed them on the evening agenda and their vital part in the reception, which they responded very favorable and went out of their way to accommodate our every need. Furthermore, they were very engaging with every guest that approached their band and greeted everyone with a warm smile and handshake. During the evening, I heard many guests comment on how good Greg's band was and the band themselves received many favorable compliments. Also, our client was extremely happy with the band for the nice music that enhanced the entire atmosphere of the evening.

Also, I would like to note that during the break in the music when speeches were taking place, I had asked Greg if they could please resume the music. Immediately and without hesitation they stopped what they were doing and began playing music. Also, at the end of the evening when the band had finished playing and started to pack-up to leave our client suddenly asked if they could play one more song. Again, without hesitation, Greg and his band unloaded their instruments and played one last but very beautiful and entertaining song. The closing song left everyone in the room with a warm feeling and a happy parting memory.

Please know that after the reception I had offered to write this letter of recommendation because I was very impressed by Greg and his band. Not only did they play great music but they were professional, courteous, provided excellent service, and had a great attitude the entire evening. Again, I was very impressed and strongly recommend the group to anyone and for any occasion. If you have any questions or would like to speak with me directly about Greg and his band please feel free to contact me. I have full intentions on using their band again to help ensure our clients happiness.

Thank you.

Best regards,

Gavin Blair
