

Merchandise

Before Here's to My, I had stickers, posters and t-shirts as merchandise. I was starting to run low and wanted to update my inventory. What better time to do it than at the release of an album?!

I kept my stickers and posters the same, but wanted new shirts. The shirts I had before were black, and screen printed with a photo of me and my name. As punk rock wannabe, black shirts are great, but as a pet owner/fur magnet, I knew I needed options. This time around I went for white shirts, digitally printed with the cover of my album. I had only used screen printing before, I was nervous to switch to direct to garment, but I love it! They're super soft and after a few washes they get a kind of vintage-y look. Perfect!

My store and merchandise suitcase are now fully stocked with stickers, posters, black t-shirts, white t-shirts, limited edition AND normal CDs. If you wanna take a look, check out the store on my website, or come to a show!
