

This I Vow

Lost in a cruel world
With no escape
But I long to be free from it all
Getting over this wall
There's surely somewhere
Where I belong
For too long I've been looked down upon
And these men wish me gone

One good morning, one good night
It's a small dream, but it still burns so bright

I vow to find a place
Where the wind will set you free
A new home I will embrace
I will row, every ocean and sea

My father left me
With nothing but dreams
Ever long I've dreamt he would return
But a cold truth I'd learn

One adventure, one respite
With my Father, never leaving my side

I vow to find a place
Where the wind will set me free
A new home I will embrace
I will row, every ocean and sea

I vow Copernicus will row the oceans and seas
Prove my worthiness, to those who've struck me down
I'll take my eyes off the ground, be as brave as I can be
Till my place has been found,
I will finally be free
I will row every ocean and sea

I vow Copernicus will row the oceans and seas
Prove my worthiness, to those who – no
To me

This I Vow
