At SEVEN Months in the Womb:

You could recognize and respond to sounds like your mom's voice; you could turn away from or toward stimuli such as light or pain.

You continued to make faces in the womb including sticking a tongue out! You brain was developing rapidly and you could make your own memories.

Child Connection Activity:

Look in the mirror and create faces for different emotions. Think about how God gave us the ability to show our feelings and emotions through our faces.

Family Activity Ideas:

Look at photobooks of trips or memories you made together. You could also use your child's baby album.

Play "Mother, May I?"

At dinner, discuss favorite Bible stories that include babies.
