

Christian Questions

TALK RADIO WITH A PURPOSE

You will seek Me and find Me when you search for Me with all your heart. Jeremiah 29:13

Dear Tanya,

Thank you for writing us at Christian Questions Radio. You asked if the laws in the Torah were appropriate for Christians to practice. You wondered if Christians should be going back to the Law of Moses. You asked, "Did not Christ come to fulfill the Law and set us free?"

The Law of Moses was given to the Jews to keep them pure and separate from the nations around them. The Jews were God's special people from which Messiah was to come. The Law acted as a schoolmaster in order to bring the Jews to Christ. "So the law was put in charge to lead us to Christ that we might be justified by faith. Now that faith has come, we are no longer under the supervision of the law." (Galatians 3: 24-25) Once Jesus came and fulfilled the Law by his sacrifice unto death, the Law was no longer binding to the Jew providing he accepted Jesus. The Apostle Paul further explains this thought by commenting, "that a man is not justified by observing the law, but by faith in Jesus Christ." (Galatians 2: 15) Christians, be they Jew or Gentile, are not required to follow the 300 plus laws stated in Leviticus or to celebrate the Jewish Sabbath or holy days, but are required to follow the Ten Commandments. In fact, as Jesus taught us in the Sermon on the Mount, these commandments should be taken to a higher level than had ever been taught and now be written on our hearts.

In the Sermon, Jesus gave his followers the high principles that they and we, as Christians today, are to live by. Jesus said, "You have heard it said, 'Love your neighbor and hate your enemy, 'but I tell you: Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be sons of your Father in heaven.'" (Matthew 5:43-45). In these verses, Jesus is showing his followers the importance of the law of love, a law that is far greater than the Old Law Covenant that He completed upon His death on the cross. Are Christians required to keep the Law of Moses? From the scriptures above, we see that we are not.

We hope we have answered your question. Be sure to sign up for CQ Rewind at www.christianquestions.net. The service is free without obligation and will provide you with scriptural perspective on many questions and topics.

Sincerely,

Christian Questions Radio

