Jackson Chapman joined NACVA® and the CTI® in September 2017 for Member/Client Services as the Credentialing Coordinator. Although new to the financial services industry, he brings with him an extensive background in logistics and project management stemming from years coordinating quantitative market research projects and events. Jackson is responsible for directing NACVA's potential designation holders throughout the credentialing process using his ability to concisely communicate with a results driven approach to all tasks, which is evident in the correspondence he shares with all of NACVA's members. In his off time, Jackson enjoys live music, fly fishing, sailing, and sketching. He is a lifelong resident of the Wasatch Front area and currently lives in downtown Salt Lake City with his over-weight cat.
