Tuesday Even'g

My Dear Ann

I have this moment read your letter, and hasten to relieve you & our Dear Bea's anxiety about our brother Jo - who has been much more comfortable to day, and I hope is con-siderably better - he has evidently more strength within the last two days - better rest at night has given him this relief - he goes into my room, for change of scene - and tho' nervous & in low spirits I have reasoned hopes of his recovery I write these hasty lines to assist our Dear Brother's movements, if it is inconvenient for him to leave home at present. I told our Brother of his affectionate intention. And he said he should be sorry to have him leave home under circumstances that might be disadvantageous to him.

Should any thing occur to diminish his presence, we will write without hesitation to that effect.

We are send abundance of love - ever your being too late for the mail last evening I add that I had more sleep last night without any dryness and is not so prostrate this morning

I hope this will be in time to prevent Brax's anxious journey
