The granary at Kot Diji Fort, Khairpur District, has been a source of fascination as a remarkable structure that provided storage in case of a siege of the 18th c. Fort. The structure has been in a highly degraded state and it is vital to save the last surviving cupola of the original 3 structures. Recently, under the direction of Mr. Naheem Shah, tarpaulin cover over a bamboo structure has been provided in order to provide protection from rain and avoid any mishap until funds are procured for emergency assistance.
