Deceuninck North America Honored for 45 years of Membership in American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA)

CEO Filip Geeraert Accepted Award at Convention on February 27th in Naples, FL.

Deceuninck North America, a leading designer and manufacturer of high-quality systems for windows, doors, and outdoor living, received special recognition for 45 years of continuous membership in the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA) during the organization's 75th annual conference this week. Filip Geeraert, president and CEO of Deceuninck North America, accepted the award at a banquet on Monday, February 27, 2012 at the Naples Grande Beach Hotel in Naples, FL.

"AAMA has a firmly established reputation as a critical player in the fenestration industry. The association has led the charge to establish and maintain performance standards for products, materials and components, which set the benchmark for all manufacturers," Geeraert said. "At Deceuninck North America, we are proud to be celebrating our 45th year as a continuous member, and we are honored that AAMA is recognizing us for this milestone as they mark the 75th anniversary of their annual conference."

AAMA is the leading trade association representing window, door, skylight, curtain wall and storefront manufacturers and their suppliers. Members address issues of critical importance, share experience and knowledge, and participate in efforts to shape the future for the industry.

Membership of AAMA includes almost 300 fenestration product manufacturers and their material and component suppliers as well as more than 100 professional and technical consultant members. AAMA supports its members with technical forums, certification programs, market research and marketing programs.
