Deceuninck North America to Highlight Latest Innovations, Add a Splash of Color to GlassBuild America

Company Will Also Host Hospitality Event near Convention in Atlanta this September

Deceuninck North America, a leading designer and manufacturer of high-quality systems for windows, doors, and outdoor living, will showcase a wide range of innovations and new products when it participates as an exhibitor at GlassBuild America – The Glass, Window and Door Expo. The industry-wide event is being held from September 10 to 12 at the Atlanta World Congress in Atlanta, Ga.

“Innovation is part of our DNA at Deceuninck North America, and to be truly innovative, you need to meet the demands of the day and anticipate the needs of tomorrow all at the same time,” said Filip Geeraert, president and CEO of Deceuninck North America. “Our customers and the industry at large have become accustomed to our company making its mark at GlassBuild – through the introduction of new products and advancements, and with engaging events that allow them direct access to Deceuninck’s key stakeholders. This year will be no exception.”

Developers, builders, architects and fabricators who visit Deceuninck’s booth at the event (Booth #1301) will have the opportunity to see the company’s new vinyl window systems that are specifically engineered for commercial and light commercial construction projects and systems that offer advanced thermal and structural performance. The company will also be highlighting a pultrusion technology that has the potential to further empower the industry in “Building the Sustainable Home.”

On Wednesday, September 11, Deceuninck will light up the night sky near the convention center with a hospitality event at Ventanas Rooftop (275 Baker Street, Atlanta, GA), which overlooks Centennial Park. The event begins at 5:30 p.m. Invited guests will enjoy cocktails, hors d’oeuvres, plenty of conversation and a closer look at Deceuninck’s products.

Now in its eleventh year, GlassBuild America is the gathering place for the glass, window and door industries in North America. Organized by the National Glass Association, GlassBuild America showcases glass processing equipment, window and door manufacturing equipment, and the latest technologies for all types of glass and fenestration products in North America.
