Telangana election report today

Major Hyderabad civic surveys: What is at stake for NE TRS? Trs swept the Parliamentary elections in December 2018, while in the april 2019 parliamentary elections, the ruling party lost four key Lok Sabha seats to the BJP and another stronghold, Malkajigiri, to the Congress, which won two more seats. On November 10th, in the Dubbak Assembly by-elections, the ruling party, which won seats by a large margin in 2018, lost to the BJP. Disturbed by the defeat in Dubbak, TRS advanced the GHMC elections in January in hopes of catching their opponents off guard. However, the party faces flak for its processing in the recent Hyderabad flood. People blame the municipal government and the government for reacting late, and when they did, it was said to be inadequate and inadequate. Several residential colonies were flooded for several days and their basic resources and drinking water were deprived as authorities could not find enough pumps to remove the water. What opportunity does the BJP see in Hyderabad? Now there are two MLAs and four MPs for the BJP, the civil election is an opportunity to increase the presence of Hyderabad and gain more space in the Hinterland of Telangana. Party leaders also want to prove that the BJP, currently trs's main rival, is not a congress. Outside karnataka, bjp andhra pradesh, telangana, tamil nadu and kerala, regional parties have a tight grip on the four southern states do not have much presence. The BJP sees an opening in Telangana, winning four Lok Sabhas and two Parliamentary seats. That's why Bihar's responsible member Bhupender Yadav, who helped the party win 72 seats, arrived in Hyderabad to come up with a plan for the GHMC elections. BJP leaders are optimistic that the party will replace Congress as TRS's main challenger and is set to become a top contender in the near future. The party plan to collapse the TRS-AIMIM alliance by positioning itself as a reliable and development-oriented alternative, and the GHMC election offers an opportunity to test this strategy and power.
