A Moment with Donna... Star Trek - The Next Generation

http://websitesboise.com/wp-content/uploads/2017/03/Projectionholographique1.mp4?_ =1

Star Trek-The Next Generation has been a favorite series of mine for years and so have all of the sub sequential series that have evolved since the original series was produced. Gene Roddenberry was a man of tremendous vision and he aligned himself with physicists and other visionaries to produce what they perceived as future happenings. What a creative experience it must have been for those writers back in the 1960's, and those that followed in their footsteps. I had the privilege of interviewing one of the physicists on The Donna Seebo Show years ago. He was a part of the script writing team for one of the program series. Of course, there were many visionaries before Gene. Jules Verne and H.G. Wells are a couple of well known individuals writing about their visions of the future during their era. How about Arthur C. Clark?

Here we are today...living many of those visions their imaginations produced. The flip phone communicator; the scanning handheld device used by Bones, the acceptance of telepathic and other paranormal phenomena as normal, and so much more. The halo deck where you could experience just about anything imaginable...it was up to you to choose the program you wanted.

While I watched this video and the young people who were experiencing this amazing demonstration, various thoughts ran through my mind how this amazing technology can bring worlds of information to all of us in such an awesome way. Science fiction? Not anymore!

So much exciting information crosses my review desk on a daily basis. Tremendous strides are evolving to helping people beat cancer via stem cells, the regeneration of limbs and organs with this therapy. Helping the body heal itself with its own T-cells is incredible and we have just begun to scratch the surface with other modalities of healing, like sound surgery, colored light, in new applications. We are beginning to see how preventative medicine, DNA testing, and so much more will be enhancing the quality of our lives in phenomenal ways.

Disruptive technologies are evolving at such a rapid rate in just about every industry imaginable that one is hard pressed to keep up with it all. Doomsayers are intensely active telling us that our world is going to end and the earth will be destroyed. Nonsense!

I can tell you with heartfelt assurance that... yes, there are those destructive elements in our environments and life, however, we have millions of people around the world who are working diligently to inform, educate, and illuminate the options we have available to us to repair damages done on many levels of living experience by previous generations and today. Chaos? Well, without it we wouldn't move forward, to grow into deeper and greater dimensions of human experience and accomplishment.

Challenges? What generation hasn't had them? When you study history of just about any location on this planet at any time...wars, pestilence, suffering of millions of people has occurred. Yet, if you read history, you'll also find tremendous strides of achievement were attained because someone somewhere said, 'There has to be a better way to do things.'

At this moment in human history we are taking rigid perspectives and severe attitudes, turning them into rainbows of adaptability, growth, and development. This isn't always easy to do as our cultures, social environments, education, and more may say, 'Beware of the new, the unusual, that which doesn't fit within the boundaries we say are best for you.' That is when you have to wake-up...wake-up and start to think for yourself. That means you have to take responsibility for who and what you are and how you choose your actions for the path of life you wish to live and experience.

Every day I end my show with this statement... "You are the Master of your Fate and the Captain of your Soul'. I mean it when I say it. You have everything within you to best the best you can be and have a life of incredible richness, fulfillment, and happiness. Who knows what phenomenal visions exist within you? Who knows what personal goals you will achieve? Who knows what dynamic journeys of experience can be yours...happenings that may inspire you to reach for that impossible dream?

Remember...you are the creator, designer, engineer, and developer of your personal self and your talents. That should be an exciting piece of awareness for you. This is your journey of a lifetime...how are you going to live it with zest, imagination, hope and passion for the adventures that await you? Only you can answer the question.

Have a magnificent day and enjoy your journey of exploration.

April's Thuckle

On a wintry day, my 90-year-old father was in the supermarket trying to pay for his groceries. Bundled up against the cold, his gloved hands were having trouble retrieving and counting the exact change. The transaction evidently took too long for the man behind him in line, who muttered a curse. Dad stopped counting, turned around, and warned, "Be quiet or I'll write a check!" ~ J.S, California

I am in the process of putting together a publication "Stories People Tell Me". I have had a number of submissions and I am looking for an additional 25 stories about paranormal experiences, UFO's, aura's and the unique and unusual not logical happenings that make us aware that life is anything but boring. Please send submissions to donnaseebo@comcast.net. Do send your contact information as well (phone number, etc.) Thank you.

Golden Nuggets True Stories about Real People

Seems like cars have always had radios, but they didn't.

Here's the story: One evening, in 1929, two young men named William Lear and Elmer Wavering drove their girlfriends to a lookout point high above the Mississippi River town of Quincy, Illinois, to watch the sunset. It was a romantic night to be sure, but one of the women observed that it would be even nicer if they could listen to music in the car.

Lear and Wavering liked the idea. Both men had tinkered with radios (Lear served as a radio operator in the U.S. Navy during World War I) and it wasn't long before they were taking apart a home radio and trying to get it to work in a car. But it wasn't easy: automobiles have ignition switches, generators, spark plugs, and other electrical equipment that generate noisy static interference, making it nearly impossible to listen to the radio when the engine was running.

One by one, Lear and Wavering identified and eliminated each source of electrical interference. When they finally got their radio to work, they took it to a radio convention in Chicago. There they met Paul Galvin, owner of Galvin Manufacturing Corporation. He made a product called a "battery eliminator", a device that allowed battery-powered radios to run on household AC current. But as more homes were wired for electricity, more radio manufacturers made AC-powered radios. Galvin needed a new product to manufacture. When he met Lear and Wavering at the radio convention, he found it. He believed that mass-produced, affordable car radios had the potential to become a huge business.

Lear and Wavering set up shop in Galvin's factory, and when they perfected their first radio, they installed it in his Studebaker. Then Galvin went to a local banker to apply for a loan. Thinking it might sweeten the deal, he had his men install a radio in the banker's Packard. Good idea, but it didn't work. Half an hour after the installation, the banker's Packard caught on fire. (They didn't get the loan.)

Galvin didn't give up. He drove his Studebaker nearly 800 miles to Atlantic City to show off the radio at the 1930 Radio Manufacturers Association convention. Too broke to afford a booth, he parked the car outside the convention hall and cranked up the radio so that passing conventioners could hear it. That idea worked -- He got enough orders to put the radio into production.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? That first production model was called the 5T71. Galvin decided he needed to come up with something a little catchier. In those days many companies in the phonograph and radio businesses used the suffix "ola" for their names - Radiola, Columbiola, and Victrola were three of the biggest. Galvin decided to do the same thing, and since his radio was intended for use in a motor vehicle, he decided to call it the Motorola.

But even with the name change, the radio still had problems: When Motorola went on sale in 1930, it cost about $110 uninstalled, at a time when you could buy a brand-new car for $650, and the country was sliding into the Great Depression. (By that measure, a radio for a new car would cost about $3,000 today.)

In 1930, it took two men several days to put in a car radio --The dashboard had to be taken apart so that the receiver and a single speaker could be installed, and the ceiling had to be cut open to install the antenna. These early radios ran on their own batteries, not on the car battery, so holes had to be cut into the floorboard to accommodate them. The installation manual had eight complete diagrams and 28 pages of instructions. Selling complicated car radios that cost 20 percent of the price of a brand-new car wouldn't have been easy in the best of times, let alone during the Great Depression.

Galvin lost money in 1930 and struggled for a couple of years after that. But things picked up in 1933 when Ford began offering Motorola's pre-installed at the factory. In 1934 they got another boost when Galvin struck a deal with B.F. Goodrich tire company to sell and install them in its chain of tire stores.

By then the price of the radio, with installation included, had dropped to $55. The Motorola car radio was off and running. (The name of the company would be officially changed from Galvin Manufacturing to "Motorola" in 1947.)

In the meantime, Galvin continued to develop new uses for car radios. In 1936, the same year that it introduced push-button tuning; it also introduced the Motorola Police Cruiser, a standard car radio that was factory preset to a single frequency to pick up police broadcasts. In 1940 he developed the first handheld two-way radio-- The Handy-Talkie-- for the U. S. Army.

A lot of the communications technologies that we take for granted today were born in Motorola labs in the years that followed World War II. In 1947 they came out with the first television for under $200. In 1956 the company introduced the world's first pager; in 1969 came the radio and television equipment that was used to televise Neil Armstrong's first steps on the Moon. In 1973 it invented the world's first handheld cellular phone. Today Motorola is one of the largest cell phone manufacturers in the world. And it all started with the car radio.

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO the two men who installed the first radio in Paul Galvin's car? Elmer Wavering and William Lear ended up taking very different paths in life.

Wavering stayed with Motorola. In the 1950's he helped change the automobile experience again when he developed the first automotive alternator, replacing inefficient and unreliable generators. The invention lead to such luxuries as power windows, power seats, and, eventually, air-conditioning.

Lear also continued inventing. He holds more than 150 patents. Remember eight-track tape players? Lear invented that. But what he's really famous for are his contributions to the field of aviation. He invented radio direction finders for planes, aided in the invention of the autopilot, designed the first fully automatic aircraft landing system, and in 1963 introduced his most famous invention of all, the Lear Jet, the world's first mass-produced, affordable business jet.(Not bad for a guy who dropped out of school after the eighth grade.)

Sometimes it is fun to find out how some of the many things that we take for granted actually came into being! ~~Author Unknown

The Recipe Box....Chocolate Bran Muffins

How many times do we hear via media and otherwise...eat healthy, eat healthy! Well, if you are wanting to add fiber to your daily diet, why not have something that is healthy, tastes good and you can fix it at home! This basic bran muffin recipe can be adapted in so many wonderful ways and is delicious. Here is the original recipe and then I'll share my Donna tips with you as well.

Ingredients: 1/3 cup shortening (liquid or butter), 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar (or you can use white sugar), 1 egg, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 tsp. baking powder, 1/2 tsp. baking soda, 1 tsp. salt, 3 cups shredded bran cereal (or 3 cups raw wheat bran) and 1 cup buttermilk (or regular milk, half & half or evaporated milk)..

Directions: Beat together shortening, sugar, and egg. Sift flour, baking powder, soda, and salt into mixing bowl. Add bran and mix well. Mix dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk into shortening mixture. Fill greased muffin pans 2/3 full. Bake in pre-heated hot oven (400 degrees F.), for about 20 minutes, or until done. Serve hot with butter and jam.

Donna Tips: I add raisins, chopped walnuts, almonds, pecans, and mix them into the batter. To create a chocolate muffin... add 1-2 Tbls. of powdered chocolate to your flour mixture and mix well. You could also add a cup of chocolate chips if you like. I also like to add cinnamon or allspice, grated orange zest (terrific with the chocolate flavor). I typically use olive oil for my shortening as I use the raw bran and it soaks up a lot of liquid. Have fun with this recipe. It is one of our family favorites.

Special Comments

A special 'thank you' to the many people who join me weekdays to hear 'The Donna Seebo Show' and 'Warriors for Peace' from around the country and the world. Your emails, calls and wonderful letters make my day. It is always a joy to share the talents and information from people and other sources that can make our lives better. Should you have recipes, ideas and/or information you think my listeners might be interested in, please email the information to me. Due to the tremendous amount of material received, I cannot promise that I will use it on my show but I do review everything that is sent.

For authors who are interested in being interviewed on my program, please send a copy of your book/CD/DVD publication along with your press kit to the address noted below. All materials are reviewed for content and if accepted, you will be called to schedule a date for an interview. Currently my interviews are booked two to three months in advance. It is always advisable to follow up with a phone call to be sure that your materials are received by my office.
