“Tending the Garden—Our Stewardship of Creation”
177th Annual Diocesan Convention
February 21-23

Clergy and lay delegates from across our diocese will gather at the Sheraton Civic Center in Birmingham on February 21 through 23 for our 177th Annual Diocesan Convention. St. Stephen’s in Birmingham will host the convention, and Bishop Suffragan-Elect Sloan will preach at the convention’s opening service on Thursday evening. On Friday the Rt. Rev. Mark MacDonald, the former Bishop of Alaska who now serves as the Anglican Church of Canada’s National Indigenous Bishop, will give the keynote address on this year’s convention theme, “Tending the Garden—Our Stewardship of Creation.” The delegates will vote on a variety of resolutions and elect lay and clergy people to serve on our Diocesan Council, Standing Committee, and as Judges to the Ecclesiastical Court. The delegates will also elect deputies to General Convention, which will be held in Anaheim, California, in 2009. For current information about the upcoming diocesan convention please visit our diocesan Web site, www.dioala.org.

Bishop Parsley Ordains Four Priests

Bishop Parsley, assisted by Bishop Miller, ordained Jon David Chalmers, Joan Marie Henrick, Eric James Liles, and James Christian von Gal priests on December 11 at the Cathedral Church of the Advent in Birmingham. The Rev. John B. Fritschner, rector of Holy Trinity in Auburn and dean of the East Alabama Convocation, preached at the service. The Rev. Charles Youngson, associate rector of All Saints’ in Birmingham, served as litanist; the Venerable Louise Thibodeaux, Archdeacon, served as deacon and gospeler; and the Cathedral choir, under the direction of Dr. Stephen G. Schaeffer, director of music and organist, provided special music. Jon is serving as associate rector of Canterbury Chapel in Tuscaloosa, Joan as rector of Holy Cross-St. Christopher’s in Huntsville, Eric as rector of Stephen’s in Smith Station, and Chris as associate priest of All Saints’ in Birmingham.

Pat Wingo To Serve as Deputy for Ministry Development

The Rev. Pat Wingo will begin serving as our diocesan Deputy for Ministry Development on February 4. Pat has served as the rector of St. Thomas’ in Birmingham since 1996 and previously served as rector of the Resurrection in Gadsden (1992-96). In addition Pat has served our diocese as president of our diocesan Standing Committee, a deputy to General Convention, chair of the Department of Ministry in Higher Education, director of summer camps, and spiritual director of Cursillo weekends. Pat and his wife, the Rev. Sara-Scott Wingo, have three children.

In announcing Pat’s acceptance of the call to this new position, Bishop Parsley noted that “his excellent ministry in caring for and growing St. Thomas’, one of our newest parishes, as well as his broad diocesan experience commend him for this important diocesan staff position.”

“I am very excited about working on the diocesan team, and I am looking forward to serving parishes and diocesan committees,” Pat says. “Bill King did a marvelous job in this position, and I hope I can further build on his good work.”

Judy Quick Named New ERD Diocesan Coordinator

Bishop Parsley recently announced that Judy Quick will serve as our new Diocesan Coordinator for Episcopal Relief and Development (ERD). Judy has a deep love for the good work of ERD around the world, and her responsibility in her new position is to communicate the ERD needs and appeals to the parishes in our diocese. Judy also serves on our Companion Diocese Commission, which complements the mission of ERD to empower individuals and transform communities.

Judy is a parishioner of St. Andrew’s in Montevallo, where she serves as a Lay Eucharistic Minister. She came to our diocese from Christ Church in Norcross, Georgia, where she served on the vestry as both junior and senior warden, as a youth group leader for Journey to Adulthood, and as a Stephens Minister. Judy also helped launch Christ Church Episcopal School and served as board president. She graduated from the four-year Education for Ministry Program in 2006 and has participated in our diocesan pilgrimages to Italy and Ireland.

ERD is currently providing emergency assistance to communities in the Pacific Northwest that were battered by powerful winter storms in early December and communities in southern California devastated by the recent wildfires, as well as meeting new and ongoing needs of people around the world. If you would like more information or a presentation on the work of ERD please contact Judy at jgquick@bellsouth.net. Also please visit the ERD Web site, www.er-d.org.

Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ:

Your diocesan staff wishes you and those you love a very happy and joyous Christmas. I commend to you the messages our Presiding Bishop (please see the following page) and the Archbishop of Canterbury (please see below) sent to all of us in this season of celebration.

May God give you a generous measure of peace and grace in the new year.

A Christmas Message to the Anglican Communion from the Archbishop of Canterbury

One of the strangest yet most moving expressions in the New Testament is a verse in the Letter to the Hebrews (11.16): God “is not ashamed to be called their God.” The writer is talking about the history of God’s people. When they have been faithful to God, faithful in keeping on moving onward in faith rather than settling down in self-satisfaction, when they are true pilgrims, then God is content to be known as their God. He declares himself to be the God of pilgrims, of people who know that their lives are incomplete and that they are still journeying toward the fullness of God’s promises. Visiting refugee camps in the Middle East, as I did this October, brings home so powerfully what it is to be literally and absolutely homeless, not able to be confident in any resources, inner or outer. People in these terrible circumstances will never be complacent; they will always be looking for a future. They are in the most obvious way those whom God is not ashamed to be with, people whose God he is happy to be. He is at home with the homeless. But it is also an image of God’s relationship with all those who are homeless or wandering in other ways.

What an odd expression to say that God is not “ashamed!” It’s as though we are being reassured that God, in spite of everything, doesn’t mind being seen in our company. Most of us know the experience of being embarrassed by someone we are with—children are embarrassed by parents, parents by children; I have sometimes found myself walking down the road with someone who is talking loudly or behaving oddly and wishing I weren’t there. But God is not embarrassed by human company when that company is turning away from self-satisfaction and ready to move on. We might think that God would be “ashamed” of human company that was imperfect, confused, even sinful. But God is happy to be the God of confused and sinful people when they recognize their own confusion and face the truth of their need. That’s what the great parables of Jesus in St Luke’s gospel are so often about, especially the Pharisee and the Tax Collector.

So at Christmas God shows that he is not ashamed to be with us. He has heard our cries of weakness and self-doubt and unhappy longing, he has seen our wanderings and anxieties, and he is not ashamed to be alongside us in this world, walking with us in our pilgrimage. And because he is content to walk with us, we are challenged about whose company we might be ashamed to share. So easily we decide that we would be ashamed to share the company of the sinful, the doubting, or the outcast. But God, it seems, is not ashamed to be seen with such people. If he is ashamed to be called the God of any human group, the text from Hebrews strongly suggests that he is most “embarrassed” by those who think they have arrived at the end of their journey, who think they have already attained perfection (compare St Paul’s angry and scornful words in I Corinthians 4:8: “Already you have become rich!”). And it is clear why God would be ashamed to be the God of such people: they behave and speak as if they didn’t really need God, as if they didn’t really need grace and hope and forgiveness.

God loves the company of those who know their need, and that is why he comes at Christmas to stand with them, to live with them, and to die and rise for them. He is the God who blesses the poor—not only those who are materially poor, but also those who are without the “riches” of self-satisfaction and complacency, those who know all too well how far they fall short of real and full humanity. And so we are to pass on that blessing to the poor of every sort, those who are without material resources and those who are “poor in spirit” because they know their hunger and need. Let us ask ourselves honestly whose company we are ashamed to be seen in—and then ask where God would be. If he has embraced the failing and fragile world of human beings who know their need, then we must be there with him.

May God give us every blessing and joy in the Christmas Season.

+ Rowan Cantuar

A Christmas Message from
Presiding Bishop
Katharine Jefferts Schori

Eyes to see: Finding Immanuel as Immigrant, Wanderer, Child

In what form will you find the Christ child this year? The fact of the Incarnation in a weak and helpless babe says something significant about where we focus our search. I am convinced that it is part of our call to exercise a “preferential option” on behalf of the poor, weak, sick, and marginalized. The long arc of biblical thinking and theologizing has to do with seeing God’s care for those who have no other helper. Indeed, Jesus is understood as that helper for all who fail, by the world’s terms, to save themselves. More accurately, we understand that Jesus is that helper for all.

One of the great gifts of the way in which those in our cultural surroundings celebrate Christmas is the focus on children and those who have few human helpers. We delight in the wonder of children as Christmas approaches, and many of us make an extra effort to feed the hungry, shelter the homeless, and care for the needy. The challenge is to let our seasonal “seeing” transform the way we meet our neighbors through the rest of the year and through all the coming years. How might we begin to see that child in those around us: strangers and aliens (both Immanuel and Immigrants); wanderers (Homeless, like Mary and Joseph, for whom there was no room); widows and orphans (Social Outcasts); babe born in Bethlehem (Palestinian and Israeli alike; or the boy babies whom both Pharaoh and Herod sought to kill); divine feeder of thousands (Soup Kitchen worker); and savior of the world (Peacemaker, Bringer of Justice for All, Reconciler, Just and Gracious Lawgiver . . .). If God comes among us as a helpless child, then the divine presence is truly all around us. Where will you meet Jesus this Christmas?

OJOS PARA VER Y DESCUBRIR: ¿DÓNDE ESTÁ EMANUEL? ¿EN EL INMIGRANTE, PEREGRINO, O EN UN NIÑO?

¿Dónde encontraremos este año al Niño Dios en el mundo? Si tenemos en cuenta que la Encarnación se produjo en un niño débil e indefenso, nos podrá ayudar mucho para saber dónde buscarlo. Estoy convencida que esto forma parte de nuestra tarea de tener “una opción preferencial” por los pobres, indefensos, enfermos, y marginalizados. El gran marco de la reflexión bíblica y teológica está relacionado con descubrir que Dios se preocupa por todos aquellos que no tienen quien los ayude. Ciertamente Jesús puede ser comprendido como alguien que auxilia a todos los que, ante los ojos del mundo, no han podido salvarse a sí mismos. En realidad, nosotros creemos que Jesús es el salvador de todos.

Christmas Blessings
By Gail Alsobrook, Holy Cross Episcopal School in Montgomery

The children in the 5th and 6th-grade classes at Holy Cross Episcopal School have adopted John Knox Retirement Home as their outreach project. The children visit the retirement home several times during the year and have come to love the residents—who love their young visitors! Each holiday season the students gather gifts to give each resident, and the 5th and 6th grade chorus also performs for the residents at Easter and Christmas.

This Christmas was no different. The students had a wonderful time putting together their gift bags, loading them up, and delivering them.
El Viñedo Episcopal Hispanic Ministries Hosts Las Posadas

El Viñedo Episcopal Hispanic Ministries in Montgomery hosted the festival of Las Posadas on Sunday evening, December 16, at the Church of the Ascension. Las Posadas, the traditional Mexican reenactment of Mary and Joseph’s search for lodging, includes music, Scripture readings, and a procession. The celebration included the sale of Mexican handcrafts to support the Hispanic ministry and a Hispanic food competition, Sabor Latino. Members of the congregation submitted dishes to be judged, the winner received $100, and everyone enjoyed the wonderful feast. The children also enjoyed a piñata.

McDowell Environmental Center Again Offers Free Teacher “FunShops”

By Margaret Wade Johnston, Director

Close your eyes and think back to when you were a child. Did you ever imagine yourself walking in the footsteps of ancient prehistoric creatures or touching the footprint of a Paleozoic amphibian? Ever wander into a stream and try to catch tiny things that live there hidden under rocks? All of these magical moments and more await you at the three free teacher workshops at McDowell Environmental Center: Lost Worlds in Alabama Rocks (June 2-6), Legacy Summer Institute Level 2 (June 23-27), and Living Streams (October 27-29).

The geological adventure Lost Worlds in Alabama Rocks, sponsored by Legacy, Partners in Environmental Education, is led by Dr. Jim Lacefield, author of the book Lost Worlds in Alabama Rocks. Dr. Lacefield is a remarkable teacher whose passion for rocks radiates. He not only shares his knowledge of geology, but he also provides each teacher with an identified set of rocks he has collected from his travels—the child in each teacher tends to come out when given the opportunity to “play” with all these beautiful specimens. As Dr. Lacefield guides the rock activity, teachers see how they might return to their classroom and use their students’ natural curiosity and interest in rocks to develop a love of science and the natural world. One teacher from the 2006 Lost Worlds in Alabama Rocks workshop reported that this experience has completely changed her perspective on teaching geology—now, instead of dreading this unit, she can’t wait to share her excitement with her students.

Legacy and McDowell Environmental Center are excited to announce the new teacher workshop Legacy Summer Institute Level 2. This general environmental-education course builds on topics taught in the classic Legacy Summer Institute. McDowell Environmental Center (MEC) is the perfect site for such an educational adventure with its miles of trails, many along streams and high sandstone bluffs. These bluffs tell many secrets about Alabama’s past. After a hike into a deep stream cut or a canoe trip into an enchanted sandstone canyon, the teachers return to Camp McDowell’s comfortable lodges and classroom space to discuss their discoveries and how to share them with their students back at home. For more information about this workshop and for an application, please contact Legacy Education Manager Marijean Hadley by logging on to www.legacymecd.org. NOTE: We have applied for AMSTI credit to be given for this workshop, and we expect it to fill up quickly—so please complete and send in your application as soon as possible!

The Living Streams workshop is a collaboration of many qualified sponsoring partners including Legacy, Alabama Water Watch, and Sierra Club. While participants wade the streams and ponds of Camp McDowell, they will study the macro-invertebrates who live in the waters, not only gaining knowledge for themselves, but also learning how to make teaching this information fun and interesting for their students. Alabama Water Watch (www.alabamawatch.org) will certify the participants to do bio-assessments of streams in their local area, and the teachers can use the free materials (Macro Mania games, collection nets, specimen containers, and so much more) with their students.

For more information about the McDowell Environmental Center (MEC) or one of these teacher workshops, please visit www.campmcdowell.com or contact me at maggie@campmcdowell.com or 205/387-1806.
Come Relax and Learn Something New at the Folk School!

By Megan Huston, Director

“What an incredible experience! A weekend away from the cares of the world and totally swept up in creating a masterpiece. Well, to others my mosaic might not appear to be a masterpiece, but to me it is!” emphasizes Maggie Johnston. “I took a mosaics class at the Alabama Folk School at Camp McDowell and can only describe it as spiritual and uplifting. During the introduction as I watched the teacher score and break the glass, my first instinct was to say, ‘No way. I can’t learn this in one weekend!’ But the patient and knowledgeable teacher, Linda Munoz, showed me that I could. We turned simple stepping-stones into colorful works of art and old wine bottles into mosaic vases.”

Maggie was just one of several students to walk into a class at the Folk School unsure of how it would go and walk away more than satisfied and thrilled with how it went. Here’s your chance to have a fun and relaxing getaway—come enjoy one of our many classes! We provide opportunities for people to stay for a week or weekend and engage in a topic of their interest. You will have plenty of class time to learn a new skill or hone an old one, or you can just enjoy a hobby and explore the beautiful surroundings of Camp McDowell.

Our retreat center has modern accommodations surrounded by more than a thousand acres of forests, canyons, and waterfalls. Our spring class schedule offers a wide variety of classes ranging from building and playing musical instruments, bookbinding, journaling, and basketry to chair-making, blacksmithing, and pottery. After dinner each evening, you can enjoy a social hour where you might learn to do a simple activity, go for a hayride, or listen to various bluegrass artists. We hope you will join us!

If you have any questions or comments please contact me at folkschool@campmcdowell.com or 205/387-1806. For a full list of classes and a schedule please visit www.campmcdowell.com/Folk School.

Two New Retreats—Save the Dates!

Camp McDowell is hosting two new retreats in 2008.

Summer Camp Counselor Retreat—March 28-30

Susanna Whitsett, a group fitness instructor who specializes in yoga (for children and adults) and Pilates, will lead participants in exploring incarnation theology and physical and spiritual wellness. All 2007 Summer Camp Staff and Counselors in Training are encouraged to join the 2008 Summer Staff for this exciting new retreat. For more information please contact Michael Goldsmith at 205/387-1806 or michael@campmcdowell.com.

1st-Ever Mother/Daughter Retreat—April 18-20

The Rev. Sara-Scott Wingo, priest associate at St. Luke’s in Birmingham, and her daughter Anna will lead this retreat. Additional information and applications will be available soon.
From the ECW President

From Dee Buzby, ECW President

Happy New Year! May this be a year of many blessings for you and our Church beginning with the ordination and consecration of our new bishop suffragan-elect, the Rev. John McKee Sloan.

Our 2008 Calendar Handbook theme, “Blessed Is She Who Believes,” focuses on faith with the great example of the Virgin Mary who because of her faith answered “yes” to God’s call. It is my hope that all of us consider our own faith as we go through the coming year and know that we are also blessed.

We are so fortunate in our diocese to have women who are dedicated and willing to give of their time and talents to the ECW. These women of faith and action have accepted positions on the 2008-09 ECW Board: President-Elect Gethryn Giles of St. Joseph’s in Mentone, Recording Secretary Marilyn Atkins of St. Peter’s in Talladega, United Thank Offering chair Barbara Carpenter of St. Matthew’s in Madison, Treasurer Carolyn Woodson of St. Stephen’s in Birmingham, Parliamentarian Alleen Cater of the Advent in Birmingham, Corresponding Secretary Lisa-Cade Gruner of St. Stephen’s in Huntsville, Church Periodical Club chair Brenda Mayhall of Christ Church in Albertville, Clergy Liaison the Rev. Deacon Katy Smith of St. Stephen’s in Birmingham, Webmaster Sally Sinclair of St. Stephen’s in Birmingham, Daughters of the King chair Andi Silberman of St. John’s in Montgomery, Devotionals chair Anne Kimzey of the Ascension in Montgomery, Events Coordinator Tana Johnson of Grace in Anniston, Missions chair Fran Lowe of St. Michael’s in Fayette, Nominations chair Jane Dickson of St. Paul’s in Lowndesboro, Scholarship chair Nancy Thompson of the Advent in Birmingham, Publicity chair Fiona Watts of St. Stephen’s in Birmingham, Assistant Treasurer Sallie Loue of St. Andrew’s in Birmingham, Archivist Valerie Burnes of St. Wilfrid’s in Marion, Hospitality Alyce Smith of the Nativity in Huntsville, and Women’s Weekend Coordinator Cathy Blackney of the Good Shepherd in Decatur. The Convocation Coordinators who have been elected to serve include Liz Ensey of St. Stephen’s in Birmingham (Birmingham Convocation), Linda George of St. Luke’s in Jacksonville (Cheaha Convocation), Lisa Parrish of the Ascension in Montgomery (Montgomery Convocation), Bea Strong of Christ Church in Tuscaloosa (Black Belt Convocation), Tana Branch of Holy Trinity in Auburn (East Alabama Convocation), Cheri Blair of Epiphany in Guntersville (Mountain Convocation), and Caroline Bright of Grace in Sheffield (Tennessee Valley Convocation). Please thank these ladies and do not hesitate to contact them with your questions or suggestions.

Just a few reminders: Presidents, please review the President’s Checklist found in your Calendar Handbook and also return the Parish ECW President’s Information Sheet you received in your Calendar Handbook or from the ECW Web site, www.alabamaecw.org. Please note that your Parish ECW Annual Contribution is due in January.

Upcoming ECW Events and Deadlines

| January | Annual contributions due from parishes to our diocesan ECW; if you do not plan to make the contribution in January, please notify the ECW Treasurer of the amount and expected date of payment. |
| January | The ECW President of each parish attends the organizational meeting arranged by her Convocation Coordinator |
| April | ECW Scholarship application deadline |

Please update your convocation coordinator and the ECW board when ECW leaders change at your parish. You can complete an online form at www.alabamaecw.org/2008ParishECWInfoSheet.pdf. For details and additional events please see the ECW Calendar Handbook and visit www.alabamaecw.org.

Advent Preaching Series Celebrates 100 Years

By Mary Margaret Hendry, Advent ECW Publicist

The Cathedral Church of the Advent will celebrate 100 years of weekday services during Lent with its 2008 Lenten Preaching Series, which once again features faithful preachers from all over the world including representatives from England, Canada, and Northern Ireland. Each noonday service is immediately followed by the Advent’s famous homemade lunches served at a modest price. The Advent remains
Sharing Our Youth Ministries at the Province IV Meeting

By Leslie B. Manning, Our Diocesan Youth Ministries Assistant

I recently went to Kentucky for the first time. Before then I had never heard the name “Man o’ War,” nor had I seen the rolling acres of beautiful horse farms outside Lexington. The leaves were in their “crunchiest” form filled with the deep hues of golden brown found only in autumn. I wasn’t experiencing these new places and landscapes by myself—my husband, Bentley, who is the assistant director for Episcopal Mission Exchange*, as well as Marquis Taylor, the youth director at Christ Church in Fairfield, diocesan Youth Department representative Jermaine Cole, and Makyia Barber from Christ Church made the trip with me. Thankfully Jesus does not often call us to go alone or without purpose!

We were traveling to Cathedral Domain Camp and Conference Center deep in the hills of Kentucky to meet with diocesan youth coordinators, youth leaders, and young people from all over Province IV, which is made up of dioceses in the Southeast. We gathered to share stories, resources, and the joys and sorrows from our various communities. We learned how people are approaching youth ministry in other parts of our Church. We played fun games, learned about “energizers” (songs and dances to get you ready for the day), worshiped together, and reflected on God’s call for our lives and our ministries with young people. We learned new songs and team-building activities to take back to our communities.

We had the opportunity to share all the wonderful things that are happening in the Diocese of Alabama. Jermaine presented a beautiful and concise summary of life in our diocese. We also showed the video the Youth Department made with the help of Louise Griffin so the others could see the many faces and facets of youth ministry in Alabama.

Toward the end of the four-day weekend, we made a trip to Wal-Mart to collect items for Operation Christmas Child through Samaritan’s Purse (www.samaritanspurse.org), a magnificent group that sends shoeboxes packed with gifts to children in desperate situations all over the world. Much to the chagrin of the boys, our group packed a shoebox filled with gifts for a young girl including socks, play dough, a toothbrush, and holiday goodies! We picked out the gifts with love in hopes of sending them out in compassion for those less fortunate than ourselves.

This theme of “spreading joy” wove itself through the entire weekend. I found joy in the young people from our diocese who were willing to participate in this conference. I found joy in once again seeing how diverse and wonderful our Church has become and continues to be. It was a joyful thing to be in a room with others so different than myself—but with the same goal in mind—what a wonderful gift to be able to serve alongside such passionate and faithful people.

As Jesus told his followers in the story of the Good Samaritan in Luke, “Go and do likewise,” we were given the charge to go back to our diocese and share in what we had learned. The weekend also served as a reminder to always share God’s joy, not only with people in our own diocese but also with people around the world . . . to Episcopalians and non-Episcopalians—those different and the same.

We will have the amazing opportunity to host next year’s Province IV Youth Ministries Meeting at Camp McDowell on November 20–23! Please keep this pending conference in your prayers and thanksgivings.

* Episcopal Mission Exchange (EMX), a ministry of the Office of Youth Ministries of the Episcopal Church and Passport Inc., assigns student volunteer mission groups to short-term projects in established ministry settings to create an exchange and reciprocal learning for all involved. God and Me: 365 Daily Devotions by Penny Boshoff

God and Me will help children find out all about God—what he is like, how he cares for them, and how he wants them to live in his world. Familiar situations encourage children to think about Christian values, a short Bible passage for the parent and child to read together supports the day’s message, and a prayer helps children develop their personal relationship with God.

Compass and Stars by Martin L. Smith

This collection of short, informal pieces, which are both theologically substantial and genuinely popular, is aimed at helping us get our bearings in the life of the Spirit today. These essays reveal the staleness and oppressive nature of many of our spiritual practices at a time when, more than ever, we need to stand back and let the fresh winds of the Spirit blow through our lives and surprise us. Whether about the spirituality of shopping or social justice, discernment or channel-surfing, these pieces will delight you and make you think. This book is ideal for retreats as well as a source for sermon ideas, and you can read it in one day or spread over a month or more. The Rev. Martin L. Smith will lead “Sleeper, Awake! Paul and the Renewal of Prayer,” this year’s Lenten retreat sponsored by our diocesan Commission on Spirituality, on March 7-9 at Camp McDowell (please see page 10). His other books include Reconciliation: Preparing for Confession in the Episcopal Church, The Word Is Very Near You: A Guide to Praying with Scripture, and A Season for the Spirit: Readings for the Days of Lent.

I Want to Live These Days with You: A Year of Daily Devotions by Dietrich Bonhoeffer, translated by O. C. Dean Jr.

This collection of inspirational writings is drawn from Bonhoeffer’s many works and presented here as a series of daily meditations that follows the Church year and includes Scripture references for each meditation. Organized by monthly themes, these prayers, sermons, meditations, letters, and notes offer us a new glimpse of how Bonhoeffer understood the meaning of faith and discipleship.

Words to Live By: A Guide for the Merely Christian by C.S. Lewis, edited by Paul F. Ford

C.S. Lewis had the ability to precisely define and explain key issues in the life of faith. This collection of selections from his fiction, nonfiction, and letters shows just how lifegiving his writings can be. The works are presented in selections covering subjects from A to Z, including beauty, character, confession, doubt, family, holiness, and religion.

A Year with Jesus: Daily Readings and Meditations by Eugene Peterson

In this book’s Introduction and daily meditations taken directly from the Gospels, Eugene Peterson emphasizes the importance of spending time with Jesus in order to learn how to pray.

For information about these and other books or to have a staff member research and special order a particular book, please contact the Episcopal Book Store, 2015 Sixth Avenue North, Birmingham, AL 35203; 205/323-2959; e-mail: ebsinfo@episcobooks.com. You can also visit the bookstore online at www.episcobooks.com. The bookstore is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 9:30 to 1 p.m.
Learning About and From Our Brothers and Sisters in Haiti

By Mary Balfour Van Zandt, a Member of St. Mary's on-the-Highlands in Birmingham

In February 2007 I attended our diocesan annual convention as a delegate from St. Mary’s on-the-Highlands, and I heard a priest named Per Val and his wife, Carmel, from the Diocese of Haiti speak about their country and specifically St. Simeon’s parish. They spoke about the hardships their country, the people, and their church face—no water, no money, no medical attention, and no books. As I sat there and listened, God spoke to me saying: You need to help. You need to do whatever you can to do make life better for these people who have so little. So I came back to St. Mary’s with much enthusiasm about this idea and was embraced by many people. Everyone listened and everyone talked about what we could do. We dedicated November 4 as Haiti Sunday when we would learn about the country of Haiti and its culture, donate money toward the much-needed Nutrition Clinic, and pray for our brothers and sisters who live in Haiti. It was a wonderful day, and the people of St. Mary’s have opened their hearts to the people of Haiti.

I also decided that I really wanted to go to Haiti to see for myself how our brothers and sisters live and what they are all about. I called my dad, the Rev. Polk Van Zandt, and pleaded with him to go with me. He immediately said yes, and we became a part of the diocesan team led by Dave Drachlis that visited Haiti in October. I can honestly say that those eight days in Haiti changed my life—changed my perspective on how I look at everything. I was so overwhelmed with how the people live, how they manage, and most importantly how they continue to love one another and Christ even in the harshest conditions. The people of St. Simeon’s parish are strong Christians, and they made me want to be a better Christian.

These people have very little, yet people like Per Val and Carmel want to make this part of the world a better place. They are building better schools, churches, and a Nutrition Clinic. Malnourishment is a huge problem in Haiti, and they are trying to address it with food supplements, vitamins, and a clinic that can help those who have nowhere else to turn. During our time in Haiti I saw many people who need help, but most importantly I made lifelong friendships and came back excited about doing all that I can to help with their many needs. I encourage you to be a part of our companion diocesan relationship with Haiti by learning more about the country, giving a donation, or even visiting them. Thanks be to God for our brothers and sisters in Haiti!

St. Mark’s in Prattville welcomed Dr. Maureen Fiedler, the host of Public Radio’s Interfaith Voices, as a guest speaker on Sunday, November 11, thanks to a request by her friend and St. Mark’s member, Kathy Quinn. Maureen spoke about the role of faith and religion in relation to peacemaking. “This was a wonderful opportunity to have someone like Dr. Fiedler come speak with us,” says the Rev. Scott Arnold, rector of St. Mark’s. “It isn’t often that we have the opportunity to host a nationally known speaker, much less someone who is seriously reporting on faith issues.” Interfaith Voices, which debuted in 2002, has covered many interesting topics in recent weeks including Misquoting Jesus, Hindu Surgeons and Buddhist Coworkers: The Changing Face of Religious America, Barbara Brown Taylor: From the Pulpit to the Pew, Confronting Congress with Hunter, and A Woman’s Commentary on the Torah.

Spreading Good Cheer and Good News!

The Rev. Deacon Clyde Pearce and the Rev. John Mark Ford, rector of Chelsea Episcopal Church, helped spread the good cheer of Christmas and the good news about our diocese’s newest congregation at the holiday parade in Chelsea on December 15.

St. Paul’s in Selma is offering the parish’s “2008 Lenten Meditation Booklet” for a nominal charge. St. Paulians age 8 to 80 wrote the meditations, which provide a “powerful Lenten resource based on the daily lectionary.” For more information please e-mail parish@stpaulselma.org or call the parish office, 334/874-8421.
