Meet filmmaker and racial reconciliation facilitator, Katrina Browne, whose documentary Traces of the Trade: A Story from the Deep North explores the discovery that her New England ancestors were the largest slave-trading family in American history. She and nine of her cousins navigate the Triangle Trade and attain an unforgettable medley of powerful perspectives of the black/white divide.

Meet Dr. Felicia LaBoy, the Associate Dean of Black Church Studies and Advanced Learning and the Associate Professor of Black Church Studies at the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. She will present materials regarding racial reconciliation and also co-facilitate with Browne on Saturday, March 4.

St. Andrew’s Church • 2233 Woodbourne Ave. • Louisville, KY

Friday, March 3, 7-9 p.m.
Screening of “Traces of the Trade”
{conversational response with Browne}

Saturday, March 4, 9-2:30 p.m.
Screening of “Repairing the Breach”
{Dr. LaBoy presentation and co-facilitation}

Following both screenings, Katrina Browne will host an interactive discussion.

BEHIND THE CAMERA: Browne has produced and directed “Traces of the Trade” (Sundance, 2008; PBS/POV, 2008; Emmy Award nomination, 2009), and she founded the Tracing Center on Histories and Legacies of Slavery. She has an M.A. in Theology from the Pacific School of Religion.

A far-reaching personal documentary examination of the slave trade. The implications of the film are devastating.

Visit tracesofthetrade.org or episcopalky.org for more details.