Nativity has entered the 21st century!

By Emily Rodgers

Nativity has upgraded the software system that helps us keep accurate records of our parishioners! The new system is part of the Shelby Next software family, and we will be sharing more about its capabilities very soon. This software will eventually serve as an online directory, calendar and giving tool for our parish. We have been working hard transferring all of our data, and preparing to roll out this wonderful new communication tool for everyone. During this exercise in patience and solemn prayers to the patron Saint of the Cloud, we have discovered outdated contact information. To ensure we have your current, up to date information, please click here or call the church office, 256-533-2455.

What's New This Summer at Nativity

By Rev. Susan Sloan

Summertime and the living is easy! Memorial Day and the end of school signal to us a change of pace. We slow down – simply because it is hot, but mostly because we have permission to take our activities down a notch. When John Claypool left his Baptist roots and became an Episcopal priest, he declared “I love the way this Church takes in all the seasons and observes a Sabbath pace in the summer.”

We are going to do just that—slow down and observe a Sabbath pace. The usual summer services will go on this summer: 7:45 Rite I Eucharist in Bibb Chapel and 10:00 Rite II Eucharist in the Nave, with one addition: at 9:00 am in Bibb Chapel, there will be a less formal Eucharist for all ages. The music and readings will be easily accessible to all ages. You are invited to “come as you are”. The clergy will lead the service but participation from young to old will be encouraged. We hope you will dive or tiptoe into this new offering at your pace. Remember, it is a Sabbath pace and you will be blest when you come to worship the Lord in a different but prayerful way.

Just Mercy, A Story of Justice and Redemption by Bryan Stevenson

Bryan Stevenson is the founder and executive director of the Equal Justice Initiative. The EJI opened the National Memorial for Peace and Justice and the Legacy Museum in Montgomery on April 26, 2018.

Bryan Stevenson was attending Harvard Law School when he first got involved with assisting death row prisoners. For over thirty years, he has worked in the deep south, mainly Alabama, to represent the poor, incarcerated and the condemned. He has won national acclaim for his work challenging bias against the poor and people of color. This memoir tells the story of several of these cases and shows that evil can be overcome, and a difference made.

One case involves a black man unfairly convicted of killing a white woman in Monroeville, AL in the 1980's. This case demonstrates the racial injustice prevalent in the criminal justice system. In addition to his work with death row prisoners, he has worked to change the policy of the death penalty and life sentence to children under 18 years old. He successfully argued a case at the Supreme Court to overturn these sentences.

A Reflection on my trip to Montgomery

By Kana Goldsmith

Spiritual development is a life long learning process, or at least it is for me. I am thankful to Liz Laney for giving me a seat on the bus this past April as I joined the Spiritual Development Committee and guests. We all traveled close to 200 miles to visit the “Legacy Museum: From Enslavement to Mass Incarceration” and then up the hill to “The National Memorial for Peace and Justice.”

Tom Lydon and

Michael Shipley organized this incredible pilgrimage to Montgomery. We met at the church early in the morning and filled the seats of our charter bus. Tom announced the days activities and Michael served a continental breakfast to our hungry crowd. We had all gathered with a purpose. For me, it was a mixture of many things. Though I had not made the trip before, I was familiar with the museum and memorial through my husband

Three large glass jars containing cottonseed samples, labeled 'Jim Cotton', 'Bunk Richardson', and 'Pedigree'. Each jar has a white label with black text. The labels include the name of the sample, the location, and the date. The jars are filled with a dark, granular substance, likely cottonseed, and are placed on a wooden surface.

Stewardship of Creation: Thoughts on Plastic

By Clarissa Sharp

Climate change, pollution, plastic, recycling...always in the news these days. What can we do as a parish, a family, an individual?

Southeast Recycling Development Council, Serd.org, out of Hendersonville, NC, has a mission to unite organizations as well as individuals, foster communication, promote sustainable programs, and coordinate education and awareness regarding recycling. It is worth a browse.

National Geographic Staff Writer, Laura Parker, published an online article in December 2018, with statistics and facts about the global plastic pollution crisis. There are many disturbing stats, one being that only 9 percent of all plastic ever made has likely been recycled. Again, if you want more, it is worth a look. A warning: it may not make you feel great!

After reading, browsing, clicking, I wondered why more focus hasn't been given to reduce use of plastic? Most of us have been using plastic for the convenience, because it is handed to us, without even thinking that there is an alternative.

A few ideas for families, individuals:

- 🌍 Buy a reusable water bottle and a water filter. The Brita pitcher works well for an individual, and a filter for the frig or for tap water would be better for a household.
- 🌍 Bring a basket or reusable bag to the Greene Street Market and grocery store.
- 🌍 Don't accept a plastic bag if you are only buying a few items and can carry them.
- 🌍 Buying items in bulk at Costco and Sam's uses less plastic packaging.

Just a start. If we all buy less, use less, demand less, maybe God's earth will have less plastic to handle!

Greene Street Market

By Lee Hicklen

It's time again to shop for our friends at The Russel Erskine. Did you know this is one of the many ways that you can be involved with outreach through Nativity, and enjoy the Greene Street Market while you are doing it? Nativity Outreach will be providing vegetables from the Greene Street Market from June to September for residents at Russel Erskine Apartments. If you would like to be a "veggie shopper," send an email to Lee Hicklen. anthonyhicklen@knology.net

For more information about the market, to become a volunteer or to sign up for weekly communications about the market vendors please visit greenestreetmarket.com or check us out on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter.

Become a locavore - support our local farmers, chefs and artisans. See you at the market!
