We will also be live streaming our singing for those who are not able to do so and we would like to see it live. You can watch the live broadcast from 7 PM Central Time.GeneralColossians 3:16 says: May the word of Christ dwell on you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing each other in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing gracefully in their hearts to the Lord. Personal use Maybe download and distribute any of the recordings of our songs that you think will be beneficial for your personal growth. In addition to the individual songs below, you also have the option to download zip files containing mp3 collections in the annual singing zip file file. They have been the right copyright licenses to make this a those Christians and churches around the world who enjoy listening to our songs, thank you! During this quarantine time during the coronavirus, we have had several of your requests to use our songs on your website or in your public streaming services. Although we appreciate listening to you, our CCLI license generally prohibits its streaming/ streaming. Our license will allow you to listen privately, but you will not be able to use it publicly in any public way except as seen below. Exception: If a song is in the public domain (it has no copyright attached to the score and was written before 1924) Kleinwood Church of Christ will not enforce its implicit performance copyright that allows you to use the song during this pandemic to publicly praise God. This is the only exception. Judgment on the public domain is your responsibility. Sheet MusicLooking for scores? Many of our songs are by R. J. Stevens Music. If you can't find what you're looking for, send a request with the specific songs and we'll direct you to a source. The Latin term it comes from is literally agreed or in the manner of the church, which was unaccompanied instrumentally. You will be inspired, encouraged and reinforced by these cult songs and praise to God. Also, sign up our other links to a cappella worship. Cult.
