Students Car Bill Passage Delayed

By CLAY RICHARDS

The Joint Student Legislature car bill may be approved within a week, but will not go into effect this semester, university sources said Wednesday.

The bill, which would allow sophomores with 1.6 averages campus driving privilages and prohibit juniors and seniors on academic or social probation from operating cars, still needs the approval of the university cabinet.

University Vice President Eric H. Faigle said he hoped the cabinet would take action on the bill "within the next week or two, whenever I can get the cabinet together and get it on the agenda."

The bill was first approved by JSL on May 9, 1962, and the next day got the stamp of approval of the University Personnel Committee.

Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford, a member of the committee, told the Daily Orange Wednesday that the bill has been held up by the summer vacation schedule and the need of two additional clarifications.

At present one of the clarifications has been made and the second is being worked on, Clifford said.

The first clarification, made by JSL, concerned the exact number of cars affected by the bill. A survey last spring showed that 250 potential male sophomores had a 1.6 average, while upperclassmen on probation number roughly 350.

The second clarification, which still has to be made, must outline the type of enforcement system to be used under the new bill.

Despite the lack of the second clarification, Clifford said he had advanced the bill to Faigle and the cabinet, with the stipulation that the conditions be forwarded by the student representatives.

Clifford said it would be difficult to assess for certain when the bill would be placed on the cabinet's agenda. Both Clifford and Faigle expressed a desire to see the bill discussed by the cabinet as soon as possible.

"The proposal, in addition to having the full support of student government has the full endorsement of the personnel committee," Clifford commented.

Clifford said, however, that he felt it would be very unfair if the bill were to go into effect this semester, since many juniors and seniors on probation would lose driving privileges without prior notice.

Clifford stressed the fact that until the bill is approved by the cabinet, and goes into effect, that the present policy of cars for juniors and seniors with no restrictions stands, and will be strictly enforced.

While the new bill may be approved in the near future, this policy will probably continue to at least the end of the semester, and quite possibly until next fall.

IRE Meets

The Syracuse chapter of Institute of Radio Engineers (IRE wil hold a meeting at 8 p.m. today in room 9-10 Huntington B. Crouse Hall.

A four-man panel will discuss problems in communication between engineers and patent attorneys.

The meeting is open to university students.

Fieldhouse Registration Offers Lines, Music, Confusion

Despite two extremely long lines, one at the bursar's table and one at language laboratory sign-ups, registration was proceeding smoothly according to Edwin D. Smith, registrar.

At the close of rgeistration Tuesday 2766 students had completed registration. This included 377 freshman, 645 sophomores, 572 juniors, 525 seniors, 629 graduate students and 18 special students.

Smith asked all students not to apply for any changes of schedule until Monday. This includes add, drop and change of section cards. On Monday, those students who wish to add or drop a course should report to the office of their academic dean. Those who wish a change of section should see the head of the department concerned.

The breakdown of the number of students registered in the various schools within the university at the close of registration Tuesday was:

Housing Situation Confused

By DANIEL RITEY

The recent influx of returning students to the Hill has produced the expected housing confusion, but the respective directors of men's and women's housing feel that they will, in time, create order out of chaos.

Bruce D. DeBruhl noted that his office's main concern was to "find a room and a bed for everyone who is supposed to get one." He added that "we've had a harder time finding housing for upperclassmen, because of a rather large number of transfer students."

At this time of the year, he continued, we have transfers and upperclassmen who are trying to get rooms. "Upperclassmen can come to the university anytime up to Friday—because of various registration schedules—and therefore until they're here we cannot state that any particular room is empty. We have about 25 students in scattered rooms and we will try to get them rooms by Friday," he said.

Room Transfers

DeBruhl said that requests for room transfers have been few and mostly handled by the resident advisors. "There will be no changes in rooms for at least two weeks except for reassignments."

Jean Crawford in the women's housing office remarked that housing registration was running "very smoothly so far, but that there are always people who are not satisfied. It happens anywhere."

She noted that the women's

Some Soft Music, And A Dirt Floor

By AUDREY LIPPMAN

The soft music was the best feature of the new registration system according to most students who registered Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in George Leroy Manley Fieldhouse. Broadway tunes kept confused students and faculty members company while they struggled to fill out IBM cards and keep class hours from conflicting.

Most students agreed that the actual registering and receiving of class cards was much easier this year because there was more room to move on the large circular floor of the fieldhouse. However, they seemed to find the checkout line, deferred payment line and the cashier lines as long and slow as those in the Men's Gymnasium in past years.

The information booth paged students, faculty and administration officials throughout the day. One practical joker had Albert Einstein paged.

The dirt floor was a great drawback. One student remarked she felt as though she were attending a horse show. An-

Democratic Tumult-- SU at the Convention

THE CONVENTION at Syracuse. 7,000 delegates, spectators, officials, pages, sargeants-at-arms, hangers-on, demonstrators, organizers, reporters, plus two four-year-old blondes for Samuels. Amid the politicking and bellowing were Syracuse University students and faculty. Some were delegates, pages and sargeants-at-arms. Others just wore the badges. One faculty member addressed the convention. Two Daily Orange reporters covered the convention.

The Students

While New York Democrats worked at the task of nominating candidates for state offices at the New York State Democratic Convention, Syracuse University students were busy too.

SU students acted as convention pages, reporters, assistant sergeant's at arms, demonstrators and spectators. Some even arrived sporting delegate and state committee badges.

Convention pages Richard Callen, Sam Katurzin, George Elvin and Kenneth Albert explained that they attended the convention "to compare it with the SU mock political conventions in 1960." Katzurin said he "found the mock political conventions more controlled and better organized."

In an interview on the convention stage Katzurin said he knew of other SU students at the convention but jokingly added that "most were on the state committee."

The Faculty

Strongly opposed upstate and New York City political leaders in opposite directions eliminated the label of "bossism" from the New York State Democratic Convention, according to a concensus of Maxwellprofessors.

Maxwell political science Prof. Alan K. Campbell described the convention held Monday and Tuesday at the Onondaga County War Memorial as "the most democratic in recent times." Campbell, who was chairman of the State Democratic Advisory Platform Committee was one of the strongest supporters of Howard Samuels in his bid for the gubernatorial nomination.

Maxwell Assistant Professor Howard F. Miller and Instructor Joseph Julian served on the platform committee which held five public hearings prior to the convention.

Julian, one of the sergeants-at-arms at the convention, said "any effective old-time political machine would never have allowed this type of demonstration. He continued, "if this was bossism, it was pretty weak bossism.

Working closely with the Broome County delegation to the convention, Julian, who ran for the United States House of Representatives in 1960, helped John Burns gain the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

While neither Julian nor Campbell consider the Democratic gubernatorial nominee Robert M. Morgenthau a very dynamic speaker, both feel he is a "conscientious and well-informed public servant."

Tower

By TERRENCE HUGHES

A new 90-foot broadcasting tower rising high above the pancake roof of Day Hall on Mount Olympus will herald the opening of a new broadcasting season for campus radio station WAER-FM.

WAER will sign on the air for the coming year at 4 p.m., Oct. 1, after a brief ceremony, when university Vice President Kenneth G. Bartlett is expected to throw a switch sending signals through the new tower for the first time.

Network

Campus radio station WAER announced Wednesday that it will join the Educational Radio Network, enabling it to broadcast to and receive from stations as distant as Washington, D.C.

WAER will become the seventh station in a proposed 35 station non-commercial network, and will carry live broadcasts from six stations in Boston, Mass., Albany, New York City, Amherst, Mass., Washington, D.C. and Philadelphia, Pa.

"The new program sources through the Educational Radio Network will reflect, we believe, the very best programs being done by universities and by non-

A Campus Newspaper And Its New Readers

As the new academic year begins we welcome those students and faculty members who are new to the Syracuse campus as well as greet again those who are returning to familiar surroundings.

Since so much in the lives of our newest additions is confusion and turmoil we want to take some space to acquaint our readers with the aims and purposes of the Daily Orange and to pass on a few words of advice.

In its simplest form, the Daily Orange serves three purposes: It is a bulletin board for the Syracuse campus; a sounding board for the expression of views from students, faculty and administration on issues relating to the campus, and it is a laboratory of journalistic training where student reporters write the news and student editors learn to exercise decision-making independent of faculty supervision.

Accuracy is the main goal of all newspapers yet it is not easily attained. Especially for the college newspaper many stumbling blocks fall in the way of students attempting to gather the news swiftly and accurately. Staff members must fit their working time around classes and homework and often times have their reporting hindered by professors who don't trust the student's ability. In spite of the obstacles we still seek accuracy.

The rage of coverage is also one of our concerns. We try to provide an opportunity for all persons and groups on campus to be recognized in our new pages when they are deserving of our coverage.

Closely related to this is the need for perspective — that is, realizing that not all stories are front page news items. The hardest part is convincing these groups of the fact.

Of course, we cannot please everyone at all times. This is such an impossible task it isn't even seriously thought of. Man, it seems, is quick to take sides and so we expect (and encourage) letters, angry or congratulatory, on many of the stories that will appear through the year.

That which has been mentioned above should hold true for any college newspaper attempting to report to its readers with integrety and with the best interests of their universities in mind.

Our newspapers will be based on these principles but will have to go beyond. We cannot become a channel for the publicity for any one group on campus. We cannot be led around the truth when our readers expect the truth. We will listen to the thoughts of all but not plunge into an issue without facts and a purpose.

That purpos e will be the enlightenment of the campus and the betterment of the university; when this will involve criticism we shall not hestitate to critize; when praise is deserving we shall bestow the praise.

And for the new readers, who read the Daily Orange for the first time today, we welcome your interest in advancing our aims and making Syracuse University better.

While not assuming to be sage teachers, we have just a small bit of advice to our friends of the Class of '66. Since you have so recently left the assembly halls of your high school graduation exercise to enter the "wide beyond" all the graduation orators tell of, we are reminded of one such speaker we heard not long ago, who offered advice from Theodore Roosevelt. Perhaps we all could profit from the words:

"It is not the critic who counts, not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly, who errs and comes short again and again; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and at the worst, if he fails, at least fails greatly so that his place shall never be with these timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat."

BMOC Handbook

By Win Whittaker.

What do these three men have in common: Richard M. Nixon, Estes Kefauver, Theodore Bayer (pronounced, for the uninitiated, Teddy Bear—our leader)?

Before revealing the deep, dark secret let us state that you frosh who are desirous of this column is intended for all gaining campus leader status. The following is a discourse on the various sly methods of BMOC status. For subjects we will use SU's present big campus politicos and trace their ascension to immortality.

All these campus leaders have made several promises to whip up the fighting spirit. They are:

1—They will bring to the Hill "more efficient student government". That is to say, these BMOC's hope to gain a good deal more power and prestige than their predecessor.

2—"Better communication among students, student representatives (a misleading term used to great psychological advantag), and the administration" is a chief goal, i.e., the BMOC's hope the Daily Orange will quote their campus shattering statements in bold headlines. For really effective communication each student leader must make the front page at least twice a week.

3—"An intensive review of the S.U. drinking policy must be made immediately" with the quick addition that "I (the leader speaking) am the one to do it." All of which means Dean Clifford will gladly visit your floor and relate the sound reason why there ain't no booze allowed.

Now for Teddy Bayer (and the significant link with Kefauver and Nixon).

Certainly all you beanie wearers are aware of the indigestable cuisine pushed in front fo you by Food Service. So Teddy, being the active member in Joint Student Legislature last year, decided an investigation (the missing link) was in order. T.B. was appointed head snooper and chief gavel pounder and noise maker.

Witnesses (?) were called. Students were allowed to yell when not downing vast quantities of Tums.

Teddy Bayer made DO headlines.

Teddy and Company even made the local television stations.

Bayer (whether the asprin or the bear might be debated) became dormitory words.

Soon the investigation was over (they ran out of witnesses), but Teddy Bayer's food-for-thought efforts were well remembered by the Nndernourished. We all rallied around the polls and voted Teddy Bear our leader-in-chief.

So Teddy gained power by being a defender of the poor, mistreated ,ill-fed IBM numbers. But to the poltical bosses he was, using the terminology of the racket, a "bread-and-butter" (make that oleo) politician.

And speaking of bosses naturally leads us to our next BMOC, Henry Lee, president of the senior class. We all found out (as did Jim Tallon—the Adlai Stevenson on the Hill) that Henry would not be bossed, he was his own boss. Henry Lee turned Sadler Dorm into the Tammany Hall of SU.

Neither of the two boss-ridden campus party leaders would give Henry the nomination. So Henry during his attacked bossism and got campaign attacked bossism and elected.

Of course, there are BMOC's who push there way up without ever giving the students a chance to cast a ballot against them. And this should give some heart to you freshmen. For our example we will use a person who did this in his frosh year —and in his first semester. His name? Just Call Me Robbie (Stern).

How was this remarkable feat accomplished? Well, Robbie, like Henry Lee, saw something afoul with the nominating proceses. So he made all sorts of accusations and complained bitterly. And what should hapend, but a DO writter quoted him Overnight Robbie Stern became the idol of all the unbossed Freshmen.

The rest of the year Robbie kept his name in the paper by denying that he had anything to do with other kook projects started by his fellow "reformers."

So it's up to you — the Class of '66. Raise a little hell. We upperclassmen will be happy to put you back in your place—under your beanies.

Birthday Week At Syracuse

Three important birthdays passed at SU last week, the 62nd of Chancellor William Pearson Tolley, the 37th Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford, and the 59th of the Daily Orange.

The ink-on-paper dream that materialized as the Syracuse Daily Orange is that of Irving R. Templeton, who on Sept. 13, 1903, wrote, edited, printed, and chiefly paid for the first DO.

In his first editorial Templeton, now a Buffalo attorney, told his 2,000 readers: "The Orange aims to furnish all the college news while it is news, to serve as a bulletin both for the progessors and for the student activities, to give the alumni news and news of other colleges, and in all things, to unify the interests of all the Syracuse colleges into one great and ever growing universiyt."

Through its early years the DO nearly went out of print several times due to financial troubles, but survived each time through strong students support.

During the war years, with a great lack of men at SU the women took oved hte paper, filling every position on the staff in a successful attempt to keep the DO on the streets.

The DO has grown since that first single page, four column issue, with over 2,500 students having worked on the business and editorial staffs.

For 60 years the DO has expanded, always maintaining the motto, "From '03 to eternity!"

New Tower . .

Construction of the $10,000 structure was begun early last summer, and its completion will enable WAER to more than double the output of its signal. The station will now broadcast at 3500 watts as compared to the previous 1000 watts.

The use of the stronger signal is pending final approval of the Federal Communications Commission, expected this month.

With the change in signal power, WAER will move from Channel 201, 88.1 megacycles, to Channel 202, 88.3 m.c.'s on the FM band.

The tower, standing 900 feet above sea level, is the highest spot between campus and Lake Ontario and sports a blinking red light. FAA regulations require any radio tower higher than 150 feet above the average terrain of the area to be capped with a red light.

This year will mark the third power increase for WAER since its completion. WAER was the first university radio station to test the feasibility of low power FM in 1946. With FCC permission, WAER broadcasts a signal of two watts from a tower located on top of the University library.

The FCC, pleased with the results, authorized a new classification of low power FM broadcasting, not to exceed 10 watts.

Later, WAER was the first such station to move from low to higher power signals.

Dr. Eugene H. Foster, chairman of the university's radio-television dept., termed the most recent increase in power a "middle step" in WAER's evolution to a "full power" station.

New Network .

Ruane B. Hill of the university's commercial stations in the major eastern markets," said Prof. Radio-Television Center.
said Miss Judith Ann Barrett, the station's public relations director. "This means we must continually stress improving the quality of our work."

Miss Barrett said that freshmen joining the station this year will be put through an intensive training program before actually taking part in broadcasting.

Programs tentatively scheduled by WAER to be broadcast live over ERN include Sunday concerts in Crouse College auditorium, lectures from Hendricks Chapel, and 'Today's Controversys'. The station also hopes to broadcast several live dramas, which are almost nonexistant in the programming of other non-commercial stations.

Live transmission from WAER to and from other educational stations will be made possible by "off the air" relay, in which stations along the network use their transmitters to relay the signal of the transmitting station to more distant stations.

Most commercial networks operate from wires leased from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., but the cost of such a method to the non-commercial networks is prohibitive.

At present, programs will be transmitted via AT&T "Telco" lines from a relay point at Utica station WIBX. The National Educational Television and Radio Center, with the use of a $200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation, agreed to pay Telco Line costs from Utica to Syracuse until a suitable station at Utica college can be activated for relay purposes.

WAER is also a member of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, which has enabled it to carry taped programs only from other stations.

Station directors estimate that this year they will carry 16 per cent ERN programming without expanding total air time. WAER currently broadcasts from 4 p.m. to midnight on weekdays and from 2 p.m. to midnight weekends.

WAER will receive live ERN programs including presidential press conferences, Kaleidescope, an arts and sciences show, and two Peabody Award winning shows, Louis Lyons and the News, and Ralph Collier Interviews.

"WAER will also contribute a number of its own programs to other stations in the network,"

New Students Invited To See Campus FM Radio Station

If your taste runs to orange pith helmets, 90 foot towers and FM radio, WAER is holding an open house for you, 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, at the radio shack behind the Main Library.

Freshman and transfer students will be ushered through the campus station while WAER staff members will simulate a day of broadcast activity. Refreshments will be served in studio C.

Personnel director Carol Rapp emphasized the need for qualified students to man the 3500 watt station during this, its 16th year of operations.

Because of the new affiliation with the Educational Radio Network, and the recently completed transmitter above Day Hall, Miss Rapp said "this year offers more and more experience in professional radio for Syracuse students."

After touring the station Sunday, interested students will be invited to a general freshman meeting Thursday, Sept. 27. Orientation and training programs for new staff members will begin Oct. 1.

drew Mogish, fieldhouse coordinator, said the dust problem from the dirt floor resulted from the use of trucks to set up the registration tables.

Following Sunday's freshman welcoming speech by Chancellor William P. Tolley, several trucks were moved into the fieldhouse with the equipment for registration. The trucks churned up the dust and there was no time to treat it with oil.

Oil Treatment

Mogish said the oil treatment would have settled the dust if there had been an opportunity to use it. The last time the floor was treated was Tuesday, Sept. 11.

"We are not experts as yet with this type of floor and are feeling our way along," said Mogish. "We are doing everything possible."

Mogish said the entire floor has a dirt base. A special top layer was mixed with peat moss and then treated with oil.

Edwin D. Smith, registrar, said registration proceedings were fine and there were no major problems.

Freshmen and transfer students were free in giving their comments about the registration. Frosh Maureen Amsler, Patricia Blair and Douglas Case said it wasn't too bad. Miss Amsler said the confusion was not too great and the lines were fairly organized for class card registration.

More Confusing

Lana Badertscher, a sophomore transfer student from Harpur College, said it was a little more confusing than Harpur registration because there were more students to register. "This is a good place to have it but it's too far too walk," she added.

A member of the political Science Department said that this registration was "terrible." "Half of the faculty here to register it apparently administratively incompetent. The fieldhouse only enlarges the area in which people can be confused."

Hank Woessner of the Citizenship Dept. said registration was going "moderately well." He added there was less trouble than usual with conflicting schedules.

William Little, '64, said he thought the language laboratory lines were the worst at the registration. "There were about 150 people with the line twisted because there was no room to spread out in a straight line. Some people were sitting on chairs. The frosh were exasperated and the upperclassmen could only tell them registration was worse last year."

Admission Standards Show Rise

The quality of the entering freshman class at Syracuse University continues to improve, according to Lester H. Dye, Director of Admissions.

In a recently completed study, a significant rise in Syracuse admission standards is shown since 1957. During this period the mean Scholastic Aptitude Test score in certain colleges of of the university has risen as much as 100 points.

The university-wide mean on the S.A.T. for last year's freshman class was 542 (verbal) and 549 (math). Preliminary figures on this year's class indicate higher means.

Selected from over 8000 applicants, 89 per cent of this year's frosh ranked in the upper half of their high school graduating classes, Dye said.

Water Study Grant

Syracuse University's civil engineering department has received a $59,545 research contract from the New York State Department of Health for a two-year study of advanced methods of wastewater treatment.

The study will concern removal from wastewater of materials which stimulate excessive growth of algae, the microscopic plants which turn many lakes green every summer.

Army, Oklahoma May Shock Orange

Gloomy Year Awaits Syracuse Eleven

By BERNIE MacCALLUM

"Go west young man go west" is a cliche that Syracuse University football coach Ben Schwartzwalder probably wishes he never heard of.

Schwartzwalder is putting his squad through a final workout today before the young and inexperienced Syracuse team travels to Oklahoma for one of the toughest season openers an Orange team has faced. Today's drills will climax six weeks of spring and late summer practice during which the Orange coaching staff faced its biggest rebuilding problem on the Hill.

The accent had to be put on sophomores with only three returning starters. Jim Nance is the only rookie on the first unit, with upper classmen filling the other vacancies. The second and third units are heavily populated by sophomores.

The Orange attack will be led by All-American end candidate John Mackey. The talented senior will be grabing most of his passes from quarterback Bob Lelli who has been given the starting nod by Schwartzwalder.

Nance will be at fullback with Bill Schoonover and Don King or Gus Giardi at the halfback spots. King is a question mark because of injuries and is slated to see limited action.

The Orangemen will play in three complete units with the first eleven playing both offense and defense. They will be backedup by defensive and offensive units.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's Oklahoma Sooners face a similar problem of youthful inexperience. The Sooners have two returning starters. Like Syracuse the Sooners have a large group of sophomores who have yet to prove themselves under fire.

The outcome of Saturday's opener will go a long way toward deciding the fate of the 1962 Orange football team.

"If by some miracle we get by those first two against Oklahoma and Army there is no telling what they might do," Schwartzwalder said. "On the other hand they could really be shell-shocked."

The consensus of pre-season polls finds the Orange in the second ten if listed at all.

WAA Opens Year With 8 Events At Womens Bldg.

Another aquatic club, Orange Splash, holds sessions during the first semester for those who need to improve their skills.

Numerous other sporting activities are listed on this year's schedule. The coed golf club initiates its season Monday, Sept. 24th at 4:00. Girls are urged to learn the art of fencing on Wednesday, Sept. 26 in Room 112 in the Women's Building. A week from tomorrow, the Tennis and Archery Clubs swing into operation at 3:00 P.M.

The Modern Dance Club sponsors a dance technique group and a production group which presents an annual show. Coed bowling and volleyball tournaments are on tap for the near future. Monday, September 24th, marks the opening of the field hockey club, while those who enjoy horseback riding will find themselves wanted by the riding club.

Intramural Season Opens Next Week With Football

By ART ROSSKY

Twenty-two sports will make up this year's intramural program, which was released recently by Intramural Chairman Milt Howard.

In order to set the program in motion, a meeting of all managers of intramural fall sports teams has been scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 25, at 7:15 p.m. in the Trophy Room of Archbold Gym.

The touch football program, which last year included 68 teams and 3,000 men, will consist of three leagues—fraternity, living center, and independents (commuting students)—and will be run on a single elimination basis.

All football games will be played at Lew Carr Field (the Varsity baseball diamond), which is located at the corner of Comstock and Colvin Avenues, a short distance past Manley Fieldhouse. All games will be played under the lights.

The football program is restricted to a single elimination basis by a shortage of space and time.

The football season, which lasts less than two months, ends before Thanksgiving Day. The season ends after a playoff has been held between the league champions.

Last year Watson West 1 defeated Phi Gamma Delta fraternity to gain the all University championship.

Another fall sport is bowling, whose season extends the length of the year, is conducted at the alleys of the Women's Building two nights a week.

The bowling leagues are conducted on a round robin basis and players are assigned handicaps.

A third fall sport is rifle shooting, whose season is completed in the fall, which is operated under the supervision of the officers of Army ROTC at the rifle range in Archbold Gym.

Weapons and ammunition are furnished by the R.O.T.C.

A fourth team sport is swimming, whose season ends in the fall, which is conducted at Orange Pool in Archbold Gym.

Cross country consists of a meet to be held Saturday morning, November 10 at Drumlins Golf Course, over a distance of two miles.

A team may enter any number of men, although only the top five figure in the scoring.

In 1961 the swimming team of Dell Plain 2, which captured the all University championship, and the rifle team of Dell Plain 4, which gained living center honors, were the only Frosh living centers to break the upperclassmen's monoply.

John Mackey... All-American?

John Mackey, speedy Syracuse University end, was tabbed this week as a potential All-American for 1962.

Mackey, whose 321 yards on pass receptions last season set a Syracuse record, was among 47 top college prospects listed by the members of the association in the current issue of TV Guide Magazine.

The 6'2",

The 6'2", 215 pounder senior from Freeport looms as both a pass-catching standout and defensive ace. Mackey gained his air yardage on 15 catches for an impressive 21.4 average. He took off for a 74-yard reception run against Colgate last year and a 57-yard dash versus Notre Dame

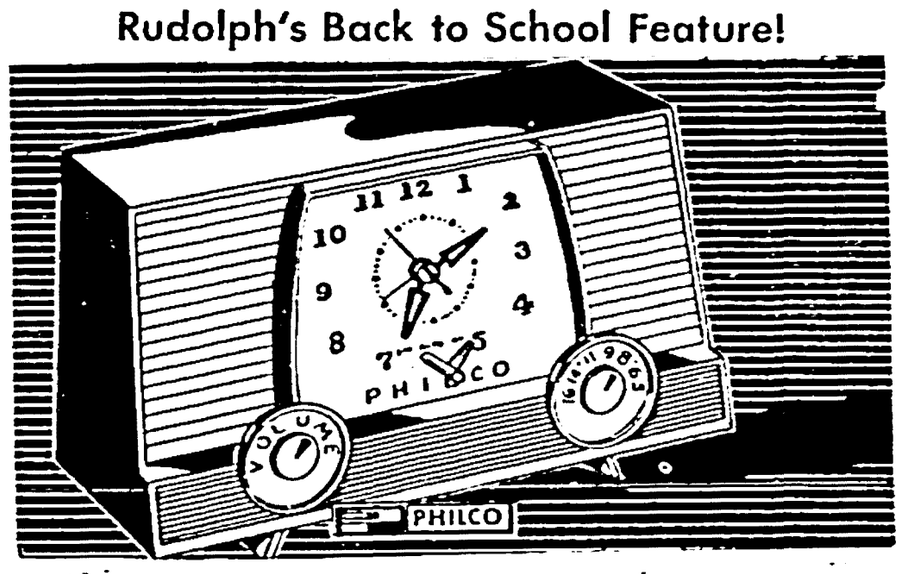
On defense, mackey played brilliantly against the Fighting Irish and was selected to the Notre Dame all-opponent team In the words of Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder," he blocks, tackles, catches passes, runs . . . does everything well."

Also included in the coaches' All-America selections were five players from 1962 opponent teams. Powerful Penn State placed end Dave Robinson and halfback Roger Kochman on the candidate list.

Robinson, a well-proportioned (6'3", 220) flanker from Moorestown, New Jersey, is a brilliant defensive player and a sure blocker. Nittany Lion coach Rip Engle sees his senior end as a top prospect for "Lineman of the Year" honors in 1962.

Kochman, described by Engle as "the best break-away back at Penn State since the days of Lenny Moore," is a hard, dependable runner and a pass-catching threat. The 200 pound senior hails from Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania.

Representing Holy Cross on the All-America roster is quarterback Pat McCarthy, an All-East selection last fall. In 1961, McCarthy ranked number two in the nation in total offense with 1509 yards to his credit. The Haverhill, Mass. senior is noted for his daring type play calling.



The University of West Virginia offers guard Keith Melenyzer as its star in 1962. An All-Southern Conference pick las season, Melenyzer lead his team in tackles. He serves as co-captain of the Mountaineers.

Another top prospect for the coming year is Mike Haffner, 6'2", 187 pounder from UCLA. Picked by the association because of his running ability, the Los Angeles native was an All-Coast selection in 1961.

gainer last fall at tailback. He was the top UCLA ground

In the coaches' pre-season voting for the nation's top college squad, Orange rival Penn State was chosen number four.

DAILY ORANGE PINCH-HITTER

By ALLAN KORT
Sports Editor

Picking a team to win a mythical national championship is a popular pastime, so for our column opener we'll attempt a rundown of Bill Orange's records last year, and our predictions for the coming year.

Overall, the Hill forces moved strongly last year for a combined record of 71-58-2 and all appear to be plagued for graduation losses.

Here are our observations by team. . .

FOOTBALL — Last year Ben Schwartzwalder's charges disappointed many Hill fans with a 7-3 record. The sideline coaches still claim that, barring injuries, the Orange would have made the Top Ten. The first big hurdle (Oregon State) cleared, Ben and his boys headed for Maryland and a 22-21 setback. Recouping Ben marched into Penn State with a 4-1 record and a broken hand brigade of eight. That contest lost, Ben looked forward to an winning streak stopped only by Notre Dame, 17-15, and the infamous call of one F.G. (Field Goal) Skibbey.

BASEBALL — Ted Kleinhans' loaded glovemen amazed fans by falling from a College World Series Spot to a 7-12 record. The pitching didn't come through.

CREW — A highly rated sophomore boat turned out to be a goat. SU's varsity started off winning with a dual meet success over Dartmouth, but faded into oblivion in the big races, sixth in the Easterns and 11th in the IRA regatta. Coach Schoel needs frosh volunteers if SU is to attain its reserved spot among crew greats.

FENCING — '61 was a highly successful year — a 7-3 record and a second in the North Atlantic Championships. However, without Ed Siedlick, the team needs young blood. SU is okay in epee but needs help in other fields.

BASKETBALL — Little need be said about Marc Guley's 2-22 all-time losing record last year, but a lot should be said about Mr. Personality, Fred Lewis. His drive has brought to the Hill one of its tallest frosh teams to play in the new field house, headed by a 6'10" center and a 6'8' transfer. But for the time being (last year's frosh and all), SU will win a half dozen while dropping a dozen.

GYMNASTICS — We're looking for Eastern Champ Corky Voas to lead the Orange into an undefeated season, a slight improvement over last year's 5-1-1.

WRESTLING — Last year, 5-2-1, can better that record. Unfortunately, Bill Orange opens with Lehigh, which is supporting 36 wins in a row.

TRACK — Bob Grieve has the runners to bring relay wins at the new fieldhouse, but is still lacking the strength in field events to bring national recognition.

SWIMMING — Last year's 9-1 record featured the swimming talents of record-breakers Tuck, Pond, and Morrison, all of whom have left SU. Coach Webster's hopes for a good season remain with Duthie, Morse and Watts, but a win against rival Colgate remains an impossibility.

Housing...

housing facilities—both university and non-university—were running full and that there would be no changes in room assignments until next week "when we'll know who's here."

Some girls who have been allowed to move into sororities and some girls who are not coming back did not notify us and, therefore, we won't know until Friday just which rooms will be free, Miss Crawford said.

Rooms For All

"Every girl admitted to the university will receive a room and then we'll worry about transferring people around," she stated.

Both directors noted that the unviersity dining halls have presented no problems except for some confusion in the new Kimmel Hall on Waverly Avenue where a scattered line system has been inaugurated.

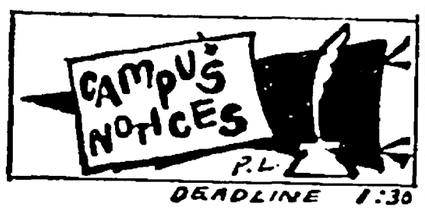
Under this system the students will be able to go to various counters each of which will have part of the meal that is being served. This dining hall opened after orientation week.

Housing Statistics

According to Miss Crawford there are approximately 980 freshmen and 1300 upperclasswomen in university housing. There are an additional 700 in the sororities.

DeBruhl estimated that there are about 1100 freshmen boys in dorms and that there are about 750 men in fraternity houses.

Dorm Grid Rivalry Set



Inter-dormitory football competition will be kicked off this Sunday afternoon at 3:30 with a "grudge match" between the "Beachboys" of Watson West II and the "Penthouse Playboys" of DellPlain VIII at the Women's Building field.

As an outgrowth of dormitory rivalry, the match has blossomed into an important campus event. Both teams have officially acquired cheerleaders, with Flint Hall cheering for Watson and Day Hall for DellPlain. The game itself promises to be well played, with both teams having first string high school vets.

To the winners of this seasons first Freshman tilt goes a Record Hop sponsored by radio station WNDR. WNDR has taken an active interest in the game since the first challenge was offered by Watson several days ago.

The challenge came in answer to a radio message from "Penthouse" residents of DellPlaine who claimed to have the "swingenest floor on campus." This immediately provoked action on the part of Watson West II (the largest floor on campus).

As stated by one member of the Watson team, "all Freshmen and upper-classmen are invited to attend the game and see who really swings on campus."

HILLEL FRESHMAN Supper, 5:30 p.m. Sunday. Please return reservations to the Hillel office in Hendricks Chapel.

The Regent-Community Center for the Arts

THE MISS Syracuse Pagent, a silent film festival, Audubon Wildlife Films and a Fine Arts final examination were all part of the University Regent Theatre's program last year. Once again the Regent, under director Bob Bergeron, will be a community center for public affairs and educational programs. Serving both the city and the campus the Regent will offer plays produced by the University and local theater groups, films, touring companies and lectures. Following are highlights from the Regent's schedule.

* * * *

Shakespeare in the Fieldhouse is the 'main event' of the University Regent Theatre. On March 5, 1963 the George E. Manley Fieldhouse will host Helen Hayes and Maurice Evens in a series of excerpts from the plays of William Shakespeare called "Shakespeare Revisited."

The Fieldhouse is being used instead of the Regent due to the great numbers of Syracusans who are expected to want to see this production.

Some 1900 seats are being reserved for students at $2 a piece.

The Regent Theatre, itself, at 820 E. Genesee St., will be the scene of Shakespeare's "Othello" as performed by Players, Inc. October 6. Some of the other plays set for the Regent are the Cleveland Play House's productions of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Ernest," November 16, and Ibsen's "Ghosts," November 17.

Productions by the Syracuse Little Theatre and the newly formed Civic Theatre are also expected to be given at the Regent.

The Civic Theatre is an outgrowth of drama courses being offered at SU's adult division, University College. In this setting talents from both the city and the campus are to be combined.

"Shakespeare Revisited," "Othello," "The Importance of Being Ernest," "Ghosts," along with the South India Dancers and folksinger Josh White are part of the Regent's "Celebrity Series." Tickets for the entire series are available at a discount of individual show prices.

The Regent also has two film series, the "Tuesday Film Series," in the fall and winter, and the "Silent Screen Series" in the spring.

The Tuesdays Series will include such films as "The World of Apu," the original "Blue Angel," "Boris Codunov," "The Three Penny Opera," and "The Roof."

The Silent Screen Series will feature films of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and Rudolph Valentino.

Another Regent series is the World Adventure tours. Illustrated lectures by authorities on Norway, Britain, the Mediterranean, Eastern Island, Rome and Austria will be presented through April.

The Regent will also house the premiere of Prof. Ernst Bacon's opera "A Tree on the Plain," as produced by the SU Opera Workshop.

The SU Children's Theatre will perform "The Snow Queen and the Goblin," early in December. This is a play for children, as acted by local children.

vention as a spectator, feels that the Democrats nominated a good ticket. However, he commented, "there were not as many vigorous candidates as I would have liked to have seen."

As an organization, Maxwell does not have political leanings, according to Associate Prof. of political science Frank J. Munger. Munger explained that Maxwell is often considered a "Democratic" school because of the "co-action of individuals, most f whom are Democrats."

Syracuse University as a whole is Republican Munger said. He clarified this by stating that although there is a majoriyt of Republicans on the faculty, " the Democrats are more vocal."

Denying that Maxwell is the political core of the campus, Munger said "the greatest activity in local politics on campus comes from the College of Engineering."

Both Munger and Campbell refuted the claim that the Democratic Convention was held in Syracuse to stem the tide of Republican sentiment in the upstate area.

However, Campbell feels that the convention site choice was inpart attributable to the Democrats making considerable inro adsin the Republican majority in upstate New York.

Frosh Exam Set Today

The freshman English exemption examination will be given at 3 p.m. today in Maxwell Auditorium. The essay exam was also given Wednesday.

Freshmen are not required to take the exam. Those who do take it and receive a passing grade will be exempted from the English 1A requirement. Those who pass with honors will be exempted from both the English 1A and 1B requirement.

No academic credit or grades will be given for the course if a student is exempted. He may choose either a more advanced English course or another course in his major field.

Last year the exemption exam was required by the English Department, and the tests were given in individual classes. From the 2100 freshman students in the Class of 1965, only 31 students were exempted from English 1A and 5 others were exempted for the whole year. This is 1.7 percent of that class.

badge was on the platform between New York City Mayor Robert Wagner and ex-Governor Herbert Lehman. Fertik explained to the DO that he was "enjoying the scenery" and added "maybe five years from now something will come of it."

Young People

In a more serious vein, Fertik, who along with SU junior Steven Berman, attended the Kings County pre-convention caucus, said he found the state leaders very interested in young people.

Berman explained that the convention taught him lessons in politics that "cannot be learned from text books" He feels that "all students should be active in politics."

In an interview with the Daily Orange former Governor Averill Harriman said that the way to get into politics is to "join a party, decide which candidate to support, work at party activities and become familiar with all the issues."

"Hullabaloo"

Both Harriman and Lehman agreed that there is too much "hullabaloo" at political conventions. Lehman blamed much of this on "uneeded demonstrations by young people trying to let off steam."

About 70 SU student marched in the hour-long demonstration for Frank O'Connor, gubernatorial hopeful. William Brodsky, sophomore political science major, recruited and headed the SU demonstrators.

Brodsky and demonstrators Arthur Seelenfreund, Jeffrey Miller, Kalmon Dolgin and Neil Eisner agreed "that politics was not a clear-cut thing." Referring to a polling of assembly districts rather than counties, Brodsky said he discovered that traditions can be changed."

The SU Young Democrats had an active part in the convention, according to Young Dem President Vincent Monterosso. They attended a breakfast for all gubernatorial candidates and meetings of the State Young Democrats and demonstrated for the candidates.

Monterosso said "many Young Democrats were quite displeased with the manner in which Morgenthau was chosen."

Several Thefts Reported on Hill

Several thefts and a forced entry were reported last weekend at the University. A $225 dictating machine and about $22 in cash were stolen.

Associate Dean Ralph Watson said the machine was taken from his desk in Smith. His office door and two other doors were forced open and desk drawers and cabinets were ransacked.

Thefts of $14 from the Drama Building and $8 from Maxwell were also reported.

DO Printed At New Plant

Notice something different about today's Daily Orange? You should, if you have perused our paper in past years. Today's DO features a new page size, body type and headline faces.

The DO is now printed at Manlius Publishing Corp., Fayetteville. In recent years the paper had been printed at Syracuse University Press facilities. The typesetting and compositoin had been done at the SU Press Erie Blvd. plant while the actual printing was done in the basement of the old Stadium Pl. Orange Publishing Co. building.

The typesetting, composition and printing are now done under the single roof of Manlius Publishing. The corporation also prints four local weeklies: The Latham News; The Cazenovia Republican; The Easterner; and The Eagle-Bulletin and DeWitt News-Times. The latter paper is also edited by the award winning 75 year old company.

With this issue a tradition between the Daily Orange and Syracuse University Press comes to an end. It will be recalled in a special article about the DO and SU Press on Friday.

Pick a Beanie, Any Beanie

THE CAUSE OF IT ALL—causing the ruckuson Marshall street are these two beanies, the blue and orange one modeled here by CONNIE FEHLING, the plain orange one on the right by LEDA HEGENT. Both are frosh residents of Lima Cottage. Members of the Class of '66 have been seen sporting both types of beanies, the new and the traditional orange, due to a mix-up involved in ordering the frosh headgear.

New Beanies Stir Controversy On M-Street; OK'd on Campus

By SUSAN WEINBERG

Although the change in freshman beanies has the official and unofficial approval of most of the campus, the way in which the change was handled has stirred up much controversy among the Marshall street merchants.

Orange Key, junior mens' honorary, traditionally has the right to sell the beanies and keep the profits for its treasury, said Theodore Bayer, Joint Student Government president and former Orange Key member.

Since it is financially independent, Bayer continued, it needs this source of revenue to finance its various service projects during the year.

It it loses money on the beanies, it does not get subsidized by the University, he noted.

To cut down on competition and thus insure Orange Key of enough profits to carry on its activities during the year, the honorary decided last spring to change the design of the beanies, according to Kenneth Harfenist, treasurer of Orange Key.

Marshall street merchants were notified that a change

Goons, Campus Impress Frosh

What has impressed you most since you arrived in Syracuse?

Richard Fidelman, DellPlain 5—The zealous activities of the Goon Squad impressed me more than anything since I got here. I was amazed at the efficiency of the squad. I also appreciated the copy of the Summer Orange that was sent to my home.

John Jacobs, DellPlain 7—I was surprised at the size of the campus. I was up here in the spring but either the campus has gotten bigger of I have gotten smaller.

William Gold, DellPlain 7—My dormitory was the most impressive individual thing I have seen. I haven't met many upperclassmen but the ones I have met were extraordinarily friendly.

Lynn Suto, Winchell Hall — Many things impressed me. The academic procession was so beautiful I almost couldn't believe it; the buildings and size of the campus are also impressive.

Lynda Ann Trojnar, Syracuse-It's so exciting to be with so many friendly people. The freshmen treat each other as if they were all old friends. The upperclassmen are also friendly and extremely informative.

Ships Page, DellPlain 2 — Everything has been so fantastic since I arrived that it is hard to single out one thing. I'd say that so far the social life seems most impressive. The mixer on Saturday was really great.

Paula Kahn, Flint 4C — I have found Syracuse really terrific. Mount Olympus is so gorgeous that I would say that is the most impressive facet of the university.

Roger Murman, DellPlain 4—The Goons are the most impressive part of the campus. There was another part of the university that has left quite an impression. The food. Ugh.

Ruby Ansendig, Marshall Cottage—The size and friendliness of the campus is most impres-

Hill Fraternity Appraisal Set

By CLAY RICHARDS

National executive secretaries from the 29 fraternities represented at Syracuse University will come here Nov. 26-28 for a conference to evaluate the Hill system, Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford announced Thursday.

The survey, the first of its kind in American college history, is part of SU's program to make its fraternity system the best system in the country, Clifford said.

"We feel we have a really good fraternity system now," Clifford said, "but in keeping with our 'accent on excellence', we aren't going to be satisfied with this; we want to say we have the best in the country."

The university sponsored conference will be held at the Hotel Syracuse and will be run much like an accrediting team for an academic program.

The board of executive secretaries, along with the staff of the dean of men's office and the representatives of the undergraduate and alumni interfraternity council, will spend the three days looking over and discussing the Hill system.

'Top Potential'

"We know we have the potential to have the top system in the country," Clifford stated. "With this group of experts we expect to be able to develop both immediate and long range plans to make us number one."

The move to make the SU system tops was started last year with the appointment of James P. McMurray as full time fraternity administrator, Clifford explained. The fraternity evaluation is the next step in this program.

McMurray told the Daily Orange that national reaction to the SU survey has been "unusually enthusiastic." Of the 29 houses invited, 19 have written their acceptance, with only one refusing because of a previous commitment, McMurray said.

Conference Schedule

The conference will open with a brief introductory session on Nov. 26 at a banquet in Kimmel Dining Hall. A full day of conferences and tours will follow on Nov. 27 with a half day windup session Nov. 28.

The survey will include a tour of the men's dormitory facilities and representative fraternity houses in order to compare the housing conditions on the Hill.

While the primary topic of the survey will be housing, the entire fraternity system including rushing and the university's attitude toward the fraternity system will be discussed.

In preparation for the survey, the dean of men's office is preparing a portfolio of information on the history and present condition of the Hill system.

"We are very optimistic about the results of the survey," Clifford said. "It is difficult to tell just when, but perhaps within three years we hope to be able to say we have the number one fraternity system in the country," he concluded.

Thursday Registration Totals

After the completion of registration Thursday, a total of 9,042 persons had passed through the lines at Manley Fieldhouse and had officially entered the university.

Registration will be continued today for those who did not have the proper cards or have not yet paid their fee.

The breakdown of the number of students registered in the various schools within the university as classes began today was:

School of Architecture	130
School of Art	531
College of Business Administration	740
School of Education	996
College of Engineering	485
Graduate School	1461
College of Home Economics	252
School of Journalism	34
College of Liberal Arts	4190
School of Music	107
School of Nursing	193
Public Health Nursing	39
School of Speech and Dramatic Arts	239
Total	9,042

The breakdown into respective classes for the four days are freshmen, 2229; sophomores, 1853; juniors, 1555; seniors, 1413; graduates students, 1873; and special students, 119.

This year 41 more freshmen have registered in comparison with last year's total.

The registration number is expected to become larger with more than 3000 students scheduled to register through the resident centers in Air Force bases at Rome, Endicott and Poughkeepsie.

Dr. Sheldon Gets Apointment

Dr. William D. Sheldon, director of Syracuse University's Reading Laboratory, has been made a consulting member of the Advisory Board of My Weekly Reader, a national children's classroom newspaper.

Published by Wesleyan University, Connecticut, My Weekly Reader is printed in seven separate editions for kindergarten through sixth grade 32 weeks a year.

Dr. Sheldon has been director of the Reading Lab and chairman of the Improvement of Learning Program here since 1948.

Registration Problem Southern Style

While Syracuse students complain about their IBM packets and the long walk to the fieldhouse and the dirt underfoot and the long lines, a 29-year-old Air Force veteran in Mississippi faces the angry threat of bigotry and court action just because he, a Negro, wants to go to college.

James H. Meredith tried to enter the University of Mississippi Thursday attended by federal marshals whose job it was to protect his rights as interpreted by three federal courts including the United States Supreme Court.

Undaunted by the decrees of the federal government, Mississippi's Governor Ross Barnett kept his battle in the courts going backed by the decision of a state Chancery Court wherein Judge L. B. Porter issued an injunction to prevent Meredith from becoming the first Negro to enter all-white Ole Miss.

The conflict is now a legal one, severely testing the federal government's authority vis-a-vis the states. We thought that previous court decisions had established the authority of the federal government in such educational matters but Gov. Barnett has other ideas.

Although this is basically a legal case, we cannot overlook the individual, a person obviously qualified for a college education but denied the relatively simple access to it that his white counterparts have.

Meredith joins the innumerable Negro students who have faced the cruel experience of hatred and contempt. The little boy who stood alone in a Louisiana schoolyard while his classmates merrily laughed and played together; the high school student who faced verbal slurs and physical assault trying to enter the classroom, and now Meredith, an older person with a desire to learn, is challenged by a governor who is afraid to learn.

We're not sure what they're afraid to learn, but Ross Barnett and others like him seem to be afraid to face the fact that these "second-class citizens" have something to offer his state and the country. (Barnett probably wouldn't call it "his" country.)

The First Hurrah

The air of confusion and political festivity which filled the War Memorial and overflowed to other points in the city has gone almost as quickly as it came. The Liberals in New York City have approved the upstate choices and the slate has already taken to the campaign trail.

Remaining in the city are the numerous students who found themselves, in many different capacities, a part of the political process. In most cases these students managed to stop and appreciate the significance of the democratic process erupting all around them, and thereby they came away that much the better.

For whether they were pulled off the street to demonstrate on the convention floor, or attended merely as spectators, or as one of our editors did, covered the convention for a newspaper back home, the feeling of politics was in the air.

To some who had attended the mock political convention on the SU campus in 1960 there was a means of comparing the model with the real thing, and not many of us were surprised when the campus version turned out more orderly and refined.

The students found that when the politicos play for real there is little room for order and decorum. For better or worse, the much-discussed democratic phenomenon known as the convention is now a vivid memory in the minds of many of SU's young citizens.

And even though they couldn't be in Buffalo, the students should not overlook the orderly show of the Republicans as they surprised no one by standing pat with their vote-getters and avoided confusion and squabbling. Surprisingly enough, that too is politics.

I'M GLAD YOU ASKED

Orientation Daze

By M. H. Weinstein

Once again that bright eyed, bushy tailed, beanie bedecked monster, beaming all over with naive idealism, has assaulted the peaceful battlements of Piety Hill. In other words, the frosh have arrived and the ritual of rebirth has again started at S.U.

There is a kind of wonder about them as they enter this strange new land of higher education and lower morals. Theirs is the youthful exuberance which can only belong to one who has never gone to college.

The goons (somehow that title is all to fitting), arrived a few days early to polish their buttons and to work themselves into the proper state of brainless enthusiasm.

Finally, these joyous storm troopers descended upon the poor frosh to drag them to an endless series of rallies and convocations, that they might learn of the mysteries of higher education.

In former years, the Chancellor would dramatically inform the astonished frosh that at least a third of them would not graduate. This year he dramatically informed them that he would not tell them that a third of them would not graduate. Thus he still managed to tell them what he told them he wasn't going to tell them.

Many of the more daring members of my freshman floor, solved the problem of convocations by not going. We locked ourselves in our rooms and rigged for silent running when the goons came to call. We wouldn't cheer, we wouldn't shout. It was grand. It got so that our goons were afraid to look their fellow goons in the eye.

It must be said however, that Syracuse goonery does offer endless possibilities for persons of good will who wish to help renew the old and cherished school traditions, not the least of which is dirty rushing.

I soon discovered that I looked sufficiently haggard to pass for an upperclassman. So I burned my beanie (you might say I gave it a Viking's funeral) and went dashing about, gleefully telling the other frosh to "tip it."

This year I haven't made one poor frosh uncover. I guess I must be getting old and can no longer enjoy the pleasures of my childhood.

The frosh are always quick to recognize the boundless educational facilities offered by The Orange. There they were, resplendent in their new Syracuse jackets with their beanies tilted manfully to one side.

They spilled onto the sidewalk while screeching their newly learned cheers and anything else that came to mind.

After two beers, they floated back to the dorms with an intense feeling of accomplishment; there to disgorge the consequences of their folly.

On my old floor, those of us who could still see, formed relays to conduct our "joy boys" gently but firmly to the showers. During those days in Watson, it was quite possible to become very dizzy by merely inhaling.

Late last evening I came upon a gaggle of goons putting some bewildered freshman through an orgy of tipping. "All right, let's see you uncover that pointed little head," commanded one.

After a great show of patience, the little fellow finally lost his temper and politely told them to go to blazed. He walked off leaving his tormentors looking a slightly deeper shade of Orange than the buttons they were wearing.

"That's not playing the game," one was heard to whimper as they moved off to find another frosh to pester.

Finally, there's registration to consider. It's rather amazing how a few officials can frustrate thousands of students with a mere pack of I.B.M. cards. I would rather storm the beaches of Normandy with a water pistol than attempt to fill out those cards.

Last year, I broke three pen points trying to write over those holes. Besides, someone will probably lose them and force us to do it all over again.

I have always held the opinion that if the sum total of the personality of an individual can be relegated to the nebulous nomenclature of an I.B.M. card, then why not get rid of the people and keep the cards? It would be much neater that way.

This year they've added a nice little hike to the registration process. Now we can all get to see the new field house. My life is complete. If we're lucky, they may even let us take our finals out there.

I guess someone finally decided that if they couldn't make registration any easier, they coul dat least arrange it so we are too exhausted to complain about it.

THIS WEEKEND

Well gang, here it is, the first Weekend of the semester. Once again the Daily Orange entertainment staff will note as many of the entertainment goodies as possible available in Syracuse each weekend. And on occasion we will offer some comment.

DOWNTOWN THEATRES

RIVIERA-CINEMA — Syracuse's art theatre features the American premiere of a highly received new Japanese film, plus a collection of Peter Seller's shorts. See the review of "Yojimbo" in today's paper for further info.

"Yojimbo" at 7:20 and 9:45. Sellers at 6:45 and 9:10.

ECKEL-Cinerama tells a story. The only trouble with "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm" is that it is the gigantic, wide Eckel screen and not the story offers excitement. "The Wonderful World of Wide Screen" at 8:30.

LOEW'S—"A great, great battle...a great, great victory... a great, great movie!" It just may be that the Hollywood barkers have something to shout about. The Miracle Worker may not be "great, great" but it does take you for an emotional roller coaster ride. Which is o.k. if you like rollercoasters. At 6:15 and 9:42. Co-featured is a British adventure pic with John Mills, "The Valient," at 8:08.

PARAMOUNT — "El Cid" is still here in case you haven't noticed, though now it's playing at "popular prices." If it doesn't leave soon, we're going to tell the plot to everybody that hasn't seen it. Boy, will they laugh. Maybe we'll tell the plot to those who have seen it, and boy, will they laugh. At 8:50.

KEITH'S—It probably took a lot of nerve for Marco to go trapesing all over Asia and Europe. But it took more nerve for Rory Calhoun to play Marco Polo and even more nerve for Keith's to show it. Nerve at 7:04 and 9:58.

SHOPPINGTOWN-In case you missed the play "The Music Man," anl wanted to see it, trot out to DeWitt and catch it. In case you missed the play and don't particularly want to see it, don't see the movie, at 7:05 and 9:35.

OTHER FILMS OF INTEREST

KALLET GENESEE — They took some of the meat out of "Lolita" but none of the chaff. A very funny and satiric picture. Co-featured is a tour de force for Margeret Rutherford, "Murder She Said." "Lolale tolita": 8:32.

WESCOT—The charming little theatre across the park also has this excellent double bill. "Quite frankly, could you blame Humbert Humbert?" at 9, and "I don't know what she said' at 7:30.

PALACE—But maybe you can find out what she said by seeing Maggie Rutherford in "Murder She Said," at the Palace. You may also want to enjoy "Lolita" for a third time. No times available.

HOLLYWOOD—"Lolita" seems to be covering this town, and just when those impressionable young freshmen are here too. Oh, well. "Murder She Said" is also on the Hollywood scene.

ALSO PLAYING

SALINA—This drive in has "It Started With a Kiss" and "Lolita," which didn't start with a kiss.

DEWITT — While this little drive-in has "Operation Petticoat," and "Pillow Talk," Bedroom farces?

LAKESHORE—"Ma and Pa Kettle at Waikiki," "Francis in the Navy," and "Fireman Save My Child," she's at the Lakeshore drive-in.

NORTH — "Bloodlust," "The Devil's Hand," and "Blonde in the White Car."

FRANKLIN — "The Spiral Road," and "Air Patrol."

FILMS

YOJIMBO

Yojimbo means bodyguard. "Yojimbo" also is the name of an excellent new film by Akira Kurosawa, the Japanese director of "Roshamon" and "The Magnificant Seven."

The bodyguard of this wide screen, black and white film is an unemployed samarai, Toshiro Mifune, who is forced to live off the blood of his sword, so to speak.

By mere chance he finds himself in a village that has grown too small for two professional gamblers and their respective entourages. As in all Kurosawa films that we have seen, the villagers are either afraid and do nothing, or have business dealings with the gamblers. The undertaker, for instance, has a thriving shop.

Peace Through Death

Mifune, who seems to have nobler instincts, attempts to end the struggle. This can only be done, he feels, by having the two factions kill each other.

In order to be recognized as a third party in the power struggle Mifune kills three men with ruthless efficiency. (Chop, chop, chop goes the Samarai sword, off go the arms, crack goes the spine, and out the window goes the "Palladin" image.

Kurosawa's theme is indelibly written when Mifune kills those three men. It is continually reinforced by a succession of violence, death by the sword, maiming burning and shooting. All die in agony.

Violent Tool

Again and again Kurosawa sees man only as a tool designed to commit more violence. Life seems created to function best when killing itself.

At worst life is self defeating and men are maimed by the wayside. At best one can crouch in a corner, eat mush and hope not to die.

To us the most telling scene in "Yojimbo" was concerned only with a leaf. The wind tossed it back and forth, knocking it against walls of a room, only to be pinned against the floor by Mifune's knife as it passes through a ray of sunlight.

Suicide

Twice the leaf is blown around the room, passes through the sun-ray and is split by Mifune's blade. It seems as if all the characters of "Yojimbo" are just leaves —blown by the wind—ready targets for the accurate knife of death. Some might say fate throws this knife. But judging by the total effect of "Yojimbo" it is man who kills himself.

Also featured at the Rivera are three shorts including a very funny animated interview with a jazz musician and a bit ridiculous nonsense by the expert Peter Sellers.

SU Records Now On Sale

The fifth and sixth of a series of music festival recordings will be released this November by the School of Music and Summer Sessions.

Professor Arthur Poister will for the second time be featured in a recorded organ recital. The all-Bach program includes the Fantasie and Fugue in G Minor, the Passacaglia and Fugue in C Minor, and three Chorale Preludes.

Also to be released is a recording of the Choral Concert conducted in Crouse College by Dr. Elaine Brown of "Singing City." The record contains selections by Bach, Vaughan Williams, and Brahms.

On the lighter side are Hebrew and American folk songs and spirituals. This record is available in either monaural or stereo.

The earlier records in the series included two organ recitals, one by Andre Marchal and another by Prof. Poister, both released by Westminster 1960. Two more released by Eleanor Steber on ST/AND in 1961 round out the current collection.

The latest discs released by Desto Records are available at record stores or can be ordered direct from Syracuse University Press.

National Powers Eye Opener

Soph-Laden Gridsters Invade OU

By BERNIE MacCALLUM

Two pre-season national football powers will bang helmets at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in Norman Okla. with the winner awarded a spot high in the national polls while the runner up will have pre-fall grid aspirations dealt a severe blow.

Both squads, still young and inexperience, are expected to be winners on their respective campuses.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder is taking a 39-man sophomore-studded team to play the Sooners in Owen Field. The Orangemen are in better shape physically than the Sooners who are minus coach Bud Wilkinson's quarterback choice Tommy Farnell. The sophomore signal caller broke his ankle in a scrimmage.

The Sooners will also be playing without the services of senior halfback Mel Sandersfield. Wilkinson hopes to have the limited services of halfback Charley Mayhue.

The Orange sick list fortunately is less impressive with Jim Mazurek, a 225 - pound tackle, the only regular sidelined by injuries. Halfback Don King will be available for limited action. Tackle Bob Hnat is also sidelined.

The two undefeated teams are expected to play before close to 53,000 people in 90 degree temperatures. The oddsmakers have rated it a tossup calling it even or giving the Sooners or the Orangemen a one point nod.

This wil be the first regular season meeting of the sectional rivals. The westerners own a 21-6 Orange Bowl win over Syracuse.

The Syracuse attack will be centered around the passing of southpaw Bob Lelli to a pair of talented senior ends Walt Sweenew and All-American candidate John Mackey. The one - two punch on the ground of Bill Schoonover and Jim Nance should open the Sooner defense for the aerial fire works.

A lack of experience and the ends should confine most of the Sooner offense to the ground.

Syracuse will continue to rely upon an unbalanced line T as its main attack formation. Orange observers are quick to admit however, that anything impossible when Schwartwalder takes the raps off his 62 team.

Schwartzwalder plans to use three units. The first team will play both offense and defense. It will be backed up by a defensive and offensive unit.

The starting lineup will include:

BOB LELLI. . .the 5-11 200 pound junior will succeed Dave Sarette at quarterback for the Orange. Lelli, of Roselle Park, N.J., is a lefty who completed 14 of 22 passes last season while seeing part time duty.

BILL SCHOONOVER. . .The number 44 jersey will again be at left half for the Orange with Schoonover in it.

JIM NANCE. . .The 220 pound sophomore is the only rookie in the first unit. Nance is a powerful runner who has the potential to be one of the Orange big guns on offense this season.

DON KING. . .The two-year letterman played behind Ernie Davis last season at left half. In addition to being a good running back, Don is a good receiver.

JOHN MACKEY. . .Almost everyone's pick for All American this year John is one of the top ends in the nation. He is also a brilliant defensive player and blocker. At 6-2, 215 pounds Mackey runs the 100 in 10 sec.

WALT SWEENEY. . .The 6-3 225 pound senior from Cohasset, Mass. is a veteran flanker with excellent power. Walt will be at left end.

DAVE MEGGYESY. . .Dave is one of three returning starters. At left tackle, the 215 pound Meggyesy has good speed and is particularly tough on defense. He will be game captain for the Orangemen.

GENE STANCIN. . .The 185 pound senior at center will help plug a pre-season Orange weakness at center.

HENRY HUETTNER. . .He has been moved to right guard from a reserve center position. At 235 pounds he is 25 pounds lighter than last fall.

LEON CHOLAKIS. . .Leon is the Orange captain along with Meggyesy. The 235 pound inside tackle returned to the Hill this year after two years in the Marines.

JOHN PAGLIO. . .The 6-2, 230 pound outside tackle was sidelined most of last season as a charter member of the broken hand brigade. He got the starting nod when Jim Mazurek injured his shoulder.

John Snider, John Humphreys and Don King should carry most of the defensive backfield assignments for the Orange.

BUD WILKINSON

Sooners' Wilkinson Stresses Advances

By JUDY ADAMS

Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson is again giving his undivided attention to the fitness of youth these days. The special consultant to the President on youth fitness is concerning himself with a group of boys in Norman, Oklahoma, the sight of Saturday's clash between Syracuse and the University of Oklahoma.

Wilkinson's charges this year boast only two returnees from a club that posted a 5-5 record in 1961. But Wilkinson is excited over the progress of his sophomores who this year compose more than half of the starting and alternate elevens.

The spirited youngsters that have the veteran coach a beaming smile this fall are first - year men Glen Condren, and Jim Grisham. Condren, a 6' 2" 220 pound end is considered a good prospect this year. The hard running receiver has been rewarded a starting position due to his improved blocking and tackling.

Grisham, who weighs in at 205, will be holding down the starting fullback postion. The 6' 2" Texan is the first sophomore to win the roll since 1948. Grisham was promoted when senior Melvin Sandersfield, who had been shifted from right half to fullback, was benched with a sprained ankle.

A third sophomore, quarterback Tommy Pannell, was expected to lead the Sooners this season. But the winner of the Bud Wilkinson Trophy as the outstanding back of the 1962 Varsity-Alumni game, fractured his ankle in scrimmage, and will be out indefinately.

Wilkinsen will be fielding a completely new backfield. In addition to Grisham, the Sooners will have Monte Deere at quarter, and Paul Lea and Gary Wylie at left and right half respectively.

Dreere has been working very hard at his new position. A defensive halfback until this year, the 5' 10" senior is considered a "real good one" by Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder.

Lea who stands 5' 10" jumped from obscurity into a starting safety position last fall. The 180-pounder led the Oklahomas in punt returns when he averaged 20.5 yards per runback.

Right half Wylie is a rangy 6' 4" 205 pound senior who made the 1961 all-Big Eight academic eleven. Lea has averaged 4.2 yards a carry in his two years. Wylie has toted for a 3.8 average.

Guard Gilstrap and right end Porterfield are juniors. The rest, with the exception of Condren are seniors. Poterfield was voted the Wilkenson Trophy as the outstanding lineman in this years Varsity-Alumni game and has the makings of a star.

Orange Coaches Discuss Hill Athletic Prospects

By BILL CRONAUER

Four Syracuse coaches will reveale their prospects for the coming athletic season in a talk Tuesday night at 7:30 in Kimmel Hall lounge. All freshmen, as well as upperclassmen, are urged to attend.

Each varsity mentor will address the students for 15 minutes. A question and answer period will follow the talks.

Popular Fred Lewis, new Hill basketball coach, will discuss his squad's chances for 1962-3. Lewis is expected to analyze last year's problems and disclose strategy for the upcoming season. Assistant coach Morris Osbourn and team members will accompany Lewis. Frosh players will be introduced at this time. Also, moves of previous cage campaigns will be shown.

Track and cross-country head Bob Grieve plans to deliver his predictions for the Piety thinclads. Grieve will attempt to interest prospective freshmen in track and field. Frosh cross - country runners are needed for the October 8 opener with Colgate.

Baseball mentor Ted Kleinhans will offer explanations for his club's poor showing in '61. He is expected to reveal his ideas for returning the SU glovemen to the NCAA College World Series. Kleinhans will gladly meet with all frosh prospects and answer any questions.

Completing the evening's discussion will be a talk by crew coach Loren Schoel and assistant Gene Perry. Improvement is necessary in the varsity, junior varsity and freshman divisions and Schoel will disclose new strategy for regaining Pan American status.

Schoel has been holding practice sessions for frosh candidates and is acquainting them with crew procedure. Additional freshmen are urgently needed to assure the Orange of a successful rowing season.

Following the coach's individual talks, the entire sports program at Syracuse University will be summed up.

Bud Wilkinson is counting heavily on his youth, when he says that he is looking forward to the season with "enjoyable anticipation". Syracuse is equally anxious to tangle with the Sooners.

Is this the only reason for using Mennen Skin Bracer?

Skin Bracer's rugged, long-lasting aroma is an obvious attribute. But is it everything?

After all, Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the after-shave lotion that cools rather than burns. It helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Helps prevent blemishes. Conditions your skin.

Aren't these sound, scientific virtues more important than the purely emotional effect Skin Bracer has on women? In that case, buy a bottle. And—have fun.

SU Given Kodak Grant

Syracuse University recently received a grant of $9,000 from the Eastman Kodak Co., it was announced Thursday.

The university received the grant because five Syracuse alumni have each completed five years of employment with the company. Kodak has contributed over $100,000 to the university since 1955.

According to the company, the grants are designed to help school meet expenses, recognizing the role that college graduates are playing in the progress of American industry.

Beanies . . .

would be made, but the exact change was not revealed, Harfenist said.

In order to make this change, it had to be cleared by Traditions Commission. Once this approval was secured, the administration automatically approved because this was a completely student affair.

Beanies were ordered as always through the University Book Store because a better price could be obtained, said Burton I. Fink, director of the book store. We do not sell the beanies. We only acted as an intermediary and kept the design confidential so that Orange Key could have exclusive use of the beanies, he continued.

Also, Fink said, we encouraged Orange Key to notify the Marshall street merchants so that they would know the reason for the change.

Although notified, reactions on Marshall street were bitter.

Sol Siegel of Siegel's Crouse Pharmacy said that the notification was very informal and indefinite. "When I attempted to contact Mr. Fink, he was incommunicado so I decided to go ahead on my own and order the original orange beanies," he said.

"I would have been willing to sell the new beanies free of charge to be accommodating," he added, "but it was impossible to find out anything."

Siegel's has since ordered the official orange and blue striped beanies to replace the old orange "bootleg beanies."

At Manny's on Marshall street owner Emmanuel Slutzker said that the notification was more in the form of a threat. "We were told that we would be stuck if we sold beanies. There was so much secrecy that not even the freshman band could get beanies when they arrived on campus early.

Furthermore, Manny charged that the beanies were of a poorer quality and noted that not enough were ordered and now several hundred frosh are beanieless.

Feeling that Orange Key ought to let people buy beanies wherever they choose, Manny offered to get beanies for any frosh that are now without them.

Harfenist explained the shortage of beanies as the fault of Orange Key. We ordered 1700 which was 400 more than we had ordered last year but still several hundred shy of the number in the freshman class.

He said that Orange Key was afraid it might get stuck if it ordered more and would have to take a loss. Profit on each beanie is not that much, he noted, and we didn't know how reliable the company was. If the company had given out the design to the other merchants we could have been in real financial trouble.

Fortunately, Harfenist continued, the company turned out to be very reliable and produced a beanie of better quality than last year's while respecting the honorary's desire for secrecy.

Next year Orange Key plans to order 2500 beanies to take care of the complete freshman class plus any brothers and sisters of frosh who want the beanies as souvenirs.

Reaction to changing the color of the beanies generally was favorable even though this change broke a tradition of almost 90 years.

Harfenist pointed out that as long as there is some orange in the beanie no tradition has been broken.

Lee Peterson, president of Traditions Commission, reiterated this feeling and felt that in this instance a vacillating tradition is working out quite well.

Logan "Slugs" Sallada, president of the junior class also was enthusiastic. He pointed out that the new beanies would add much color and contrast to the placard cheering section at the football games.

Orange Key uses the profits from the beanies for scholarships, its initiation banquet, and orange keys for its members as well as for other service projects which vary each year.

Freshman beanies were first used in 1874 and have been orange since 1890 when orange was made the official color of Syracuse University.

Goon Squad Presents 'Collegiate Turnabout'

The sixth annual Goon show, featuring 52 members of the Goon Squad and the Traditions Commission, will be presented at 7 and 9 p.m. today and at 8 p.m. Saturday in Crouse Auditorium, Crouse College.

Entitled "Collegiate Turnabout," the show deals humorously and musically, with a sophisticated senior who becomes the victim of a "snow job" by a naive freshman.

Directed by Carol (Schultzie) Lucha and Robert Davis of Traditions, the show has seven songs which were copywrighted in 1957. The script was written by Bernard Shalstman, the lyrics by Bruce Hart and the music by Don Zimmerman and Pat Haggerty.

The songs in the show are: "It's Great," "Men are Such Funny Folk," "Shootin' the Breeze," "Standing on a Star," "Turnabout," "Living a Lovely Life" and "Someone and You."

The senior who gets the "snow job" is being played by Carl Corello. Arlene Alemo is the freshman girl who "snows" the senior and Patricia Auerbach plays the Goon, "Sara," who comes to the rescue of the bewildered freshman.

The 7 p.m. show today is for big and little chums and the 9 p.m. show is for anyone who cares to come. Saturday night is "Boy's Night Out." Men may bring dates to the show.

There are 19 boys and the same number of girls in the show with an additional 14 as dancers. The accompanying drummer is Paul Burns and Norman Berkowitz will be on piano. The players will wear casual "collegiate" costumes.

Tonight in Crouse

ON STAGE in the Crouse Colleg Auditorium are PATRICIA AUERBACH and CARL CORELLO, lead players in the Goon Squad Big Chum- Little Chum show tonight and Saturday night. Goons and Traditions Commission members rehearsed Thursday afternoon in Crouse for the sixth annual performance of the show, enjoyed each year by freshmen and upperclassmen.

sive. I was disappointed with only one aspect of the campus. My cottage is terrible. It is difficult to meet as many people that I would have met if I had roomed on Mount Olympus. The physical makeup of the cottage is really bad. Despite all this, however, we do have a really close-knit group of girls.

Ellen Fleysher, Flint 4C — Everything is so exciting. The Goons are wonderful, everybody is so helpful in all respects. The most individually impressive thing I have seen is the Daily Orange.

Story Behind Latest DO Printer Change

The Syracuse Daily Orange has changed its face again. Operating for thirty years with the Syracuse University Press, the D.O. has moved its printing plant to Fayetteville due to the "inability of the Press to print the large mass of newspaper material and the inadequacy of the equipment avaialable at the plant," stated Dean Wesley C. Clark of the School of Journalism Thursday.

Begun as a private corporation, the Daily Orange first appeared on the Hill Sept. 15, 1903, entirely paid for, equipped and printed by the students. The DO bought and built a plant on Irving avenue and Stadium place with the profits of the first years of publication.

The Stadium Place Orange Publishing Co. housed presses in the basement, with lintoype machines, and large editorial offices on the second floor. "These offices were far superior to the present DO space in the prefabs," Dean Clark said.

Publication Suspended

Due to a slump in subscriptions and the fast-approaching depression, the Daily Orange suspended independent publication and moved under the auspices of the Syracuse University Press early in 1920.

The typesetting and composition for the Daily Orange was then done in the SU Press Erie boulevard plant. Printing continued in the basement of the old DO Corp. building.

Editorial offices moved to the 300 block E. Genesee, then to Hall of Languages room 77½ then to Yates Castle in 1934 until its demolition in 1947 and finally to Prefab 7 in 1950 where they are now. Playing an important part in Hill life during World War II, students overwhelmingly supported the paper and placed the DO on a firm financial basis.

Continuing to remain under the subsidy of the university, but with no prior censorship of its stories, the Daily Orange reflected student opinions and grew to include all facets of Hill life. Its 50th birthday was celebrated in 1953.

The DO has severed all tangible ties with the original corporation this year, moving all printing processes to the Manlius Publishing Co. in Fayetteville.

Story Behind Latest DO Printer Change

The Syracuse Daily Orange has changed its face again. Operating for thirty years with the Syracuse University Press, the D.O. has moved its printing plant to Fayetteville due to the "inability of the Press to print the large mass of newspaper material and the inadequacy of the equipment available at the plant," stated Dean Wesley C. Clark of the School of Journalism Thursday.

Begun as a private corporation, the Daily Orange first appeared on the Hill Sept. 15, 1903, entirely paid for, equipped and printed by the students. The DO bought and built a plant on Irving avenue and Stadium place with the profits of the first years of publication.

The Stadium Place Orange Publishing Co. housed presses in the basement, with linotype machines, and large editorial offices on the second floor. "These offices were far superior to the present DO space in the present," Dean Clark said.

Publication Suspended

Due to a slump in subscriptions and the fast-approaching depression, the Daily Orange suspended independent publication and moved under the auspices of the Syracuse University Press early in 1929.

The typesetting and composition for the Daily Orange was then done in the SU Press Erie boulevard plant. Printing continued in the basement of the old DO Corp. building.

Editorial offices moved to the 300 block E. Genesee, then to Hall of Languages room 77½ then to Yates Castle in 1934 until its demolition in 1947 and finally to Prefab 7 in 1950 where they are now. Playing an important part in Hill life during World War II, students overwhelmingly supported the paper and placed the DO on a firm financial basis.

Continuing to remain under the subsidy of the university, but with no prior censorship of its stories, the Daily Orange reflected student opinions and grew to include all facets of Hill life. Its 50th birthday was celebrated in 1953.

The DO has severed all tangible ties with the original corporation this year, moving all printing processes to the Manlius Publishing Co. in Fayetteville.

Sagamore Meeting Cancelled by IFC

By ADAIR DUFINE

The annual Inter-Fraternity Council conference at Sagamore scheduled for this Friday and Saturday has been cancelled due to conflicting scheduling plans, IFC President Thomas Rigoli told the Daily Orange Friday.

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, falls this weekend. Also, Syracuse plays Army in Yankee Stadium Saturday.

Rigoli also said tentative plans are now in the works for a conference with fraternity councils from other area colleges to be held during Greek Week next April 15-21 at the Sagamore Conference site.

Plans for the regional conference are pending approval of the Hill IFC and acceptance by the other schools. "We hope to get some objective views from other IFC heads and discuss mutual problems for their evntual solution," stated Rigoli.

Definite plans for the conference will be announced later this semester.

(Friday's Daily Orange revealed plans for another conference here Nov. 26-28. National executive secretaries from SU fraternity chapters will evaluate the Hill syatem.)

"The psychology behind the proposed conference," Rigoli said, "is to bind together fraternity men on the Hill, eliminating 30 separate islands." The lack of continuity in the previous fall conference and the repetition of committee discussion has led the IFC officers and James P. McMurray, Hill fraternity administrator, to consider seriously a regional conference, he said.

Questioned on the proposed plans, McMurray affirmed the hope to tie-in the conference with Greek Week by having executive council members attend discussions are week before. "Perhaps they can help us with our unsolved problems and we can get a general run-down on fraternity systems in the region," stated McMurray.

Concentrating on the idea to unite the Greek system, McMurray suggested that these IFC officers be re-invited to attend IFC weekend. "In this way, other Greek systems can see our system at work," he said.

In an effort to make the existing system a "real fraternity system," McMurray urged the concentrated effort of the IFC on the proposed plans.

Art Center Offers Print Rental Plan

Approximately 100 framed prints are available to Hill students on a rental basis in order "to stimulate an interest in student work, especially prints," Dr. Laurence Schmeckebier, director of the School of Art and the Lowe Art Center, announced Friday.

The prints, the majority of which are in color, are the works of leading United States and European artists. A small number of them were done by Hill students.

Schmeckebier said that students interested in renting a print for a semester should drop by Lowe any afternoon this week to choose which print they want. The rental fee is one dollar.

The prints, which are 20 by 20 inches framed, will become the personal responsibility of the student who has rented them, Schmeckebier said. "The prints are like any university property, like furniture. Therefore, they are the students responsibility."

In case of damage to the print, the student will be charged up to the print's value which may run to $75.

Rental Charge

"The one dollar rental is charged so that we can raise money with which to buy more prints done by Hill students," the director said. He added that such well-known U.S. artists as Ben Chahn, Peter Takal and Leonard Baskin are represented in the rental collection. Robert Marx of the School of Art staff has also contributed to the print collection.

The print rental program will also serve to interest student in

Costly Mistakes Hurt Syracuse Grid Attack

NORMAN, Okla. — Saturday's loss to Bud Wilkinson's green Oklahoma squad proved to Orange Coach Ben Schwartzwalder that "we have a lot of fine young running backs, but we need a lot of polish."

Oklahoma staged a demonstration of young depth when third-stringer Joe Looney bufaloed 69 yards around right end to score Oklahoma's lone touchdown in the closing minutes of the game.

Traditions Opens Contest For 'Bill Orange' Trophy

The "Bill Orange" trophy will be presented during Spring Weekend to the living center that best exemplifies the spirit of Syracuse, according to the Traditions Committe.

The winning floor will be judged on four general criteria: participation in cultural activities, participation in university events, participation in athletics and participation in social activities. The judging will be concerned with the time of the first home football game until the week preceding Spring Weekend.

The evaluation of the living center's participation in university events will be on a qualitative and a quantitative basis considering participation and special awards won.

Each living center desiring consideration must submit a resume of participation in the various phases of university activity. For further information contact Jo Leiser ext. 2714 or Burr Cain ext- 2647.

For the Orange, their 7-3 loss proved to them that they will have to take advantage of the other team's mistakes if they expect to win at all this year. Four times Syracuse either intercepted a pass or recovered a fumble but the drives were stopped within the 20 yard line.

"The breaks came our way in the fourth quarter," Schwartzwalder said, "but we couldn't get over the goal line. Our backs moved the ball well but we had to use a rushing offense in the second half because (quarterback Bob) Lelli couldn't hit our ends. But this is his first game and he'll improve."

The Orange lineup will probably shape up the same way for next week's Army battle in the Polo Grounds with Lelli calling signals and Jim Nance, Bill Schoonover and Gus Giardi rounding out the backfield.

Linebacker Ed Conti will probably be lost to the Orangemen for the Army game. He suffered a knee injury on the last play of the first half and did not return to the Syracuse bench.

Schwartzwalder was pleased with the depth of his backfield, any runner seemingly able to grind out the necessary yardage until the ball moved near the goal line.

Defensively, Conti was the mainstay with six tackles in the first half while Gerry Everling had five for the game.

Need Time

"We'll have to shape up our defense," Schwartzwalder said, "but as I said at the beginning of the season, we're a green team and we'll get better as the season progresses. We have several fine running backs and a good-sized line. This loss should show us that we're going to have to click if we're to beat Army."

The general consensus of the Syracuse coaches and players was: "The club didn't take advantage of the breaks and made too many mistakes."

Syracuse had two good scoring opportunities in the first half but could only capitalize on a three-point field goal, the first attempted by a Schwartzwalder team since the 1959 season when Bob Yates was the Orange kicker.

Line Drive

Ton Mingo, Orange kicking specialist, booted a line drive from the 35-yard line after a 50-yard Syracuse march was stymied on the Sooner 25-yard line. The ball barely cleared the upright with 30 seconds remaining in the first half.

In the opening half both offenses were characterized by a possessive game with neither side fumbling. Syracuse played a better secondary game with Schoonover and John Humphreys each nabbing an Oklahoma pass.

Nance's barrelling drives up the middle accounted for 25 yards on four attempts in the Campus Immunity; Scofflaw's Myth

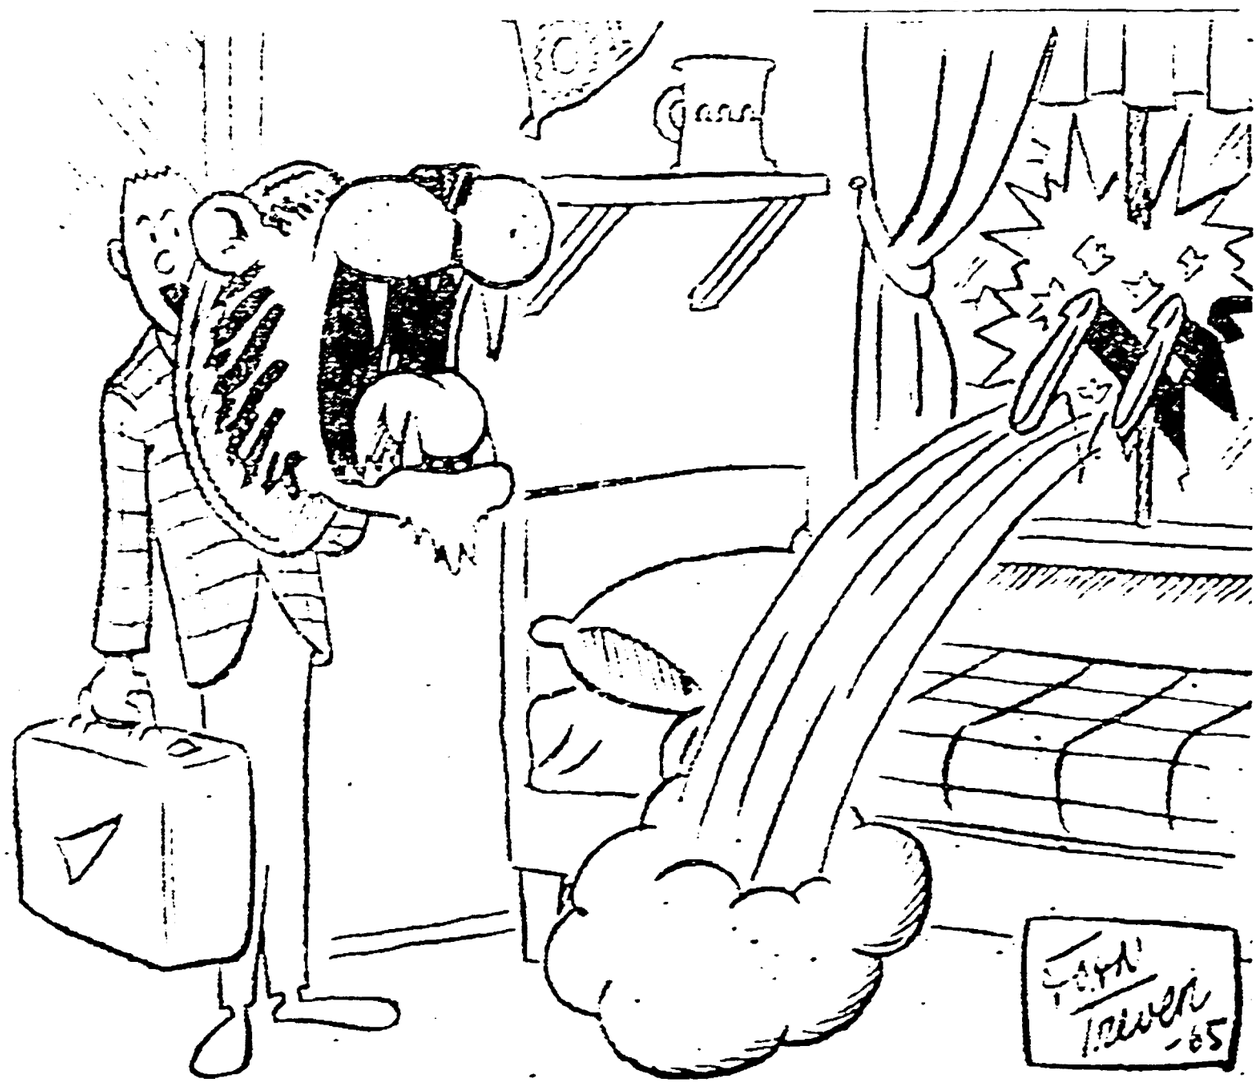
Recently the New York Herald Tribune related the following story:

"Two seniors at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute were fined a total of $400 for ignoring 121 parking tickets. Both pleaded guilty."

We don't know if this is a record; probably it is not, but for some strange reason the college student seems to think that a campus is some kind of neutral territory where the laws of the land don't hold forth.

Thus we find the scofflaws who commit all types of illegal acts behaving as though they have never deviated from the straight and narrow. This story came from RPI but we wonder how many such scofflaws prowl the streets of the local university area violating the law and ignoring the penalty.

Hopefully the number of local scofflaws is not too large. The phenomenon occurs most readily in those students fortunate enough to have an automobile but immature enough not to learn the responsibility involved in operating it.



Thus the sports-car-driving, credit-card-carrying undergraduate living in the myth of campus immunity garners tickets by the tankful and is offended by "the nerve of the police."

In many cases the same drivers who violate so many laws while nowhere near their cars are the same ones who endanger the lives of everyone when they are behind the wheel.

Perhaps there is nothing that can be done for these people short of the type of court action that brought the RPI violators to their knees. For the other drivers who manage to stay within the laws of the city we can only offer the suggestion to heed parking signs and speed limits to prevent injury in the university area and to add at least a drop in the bucket toward straightening out a near disastrous traffic situation on the campus.

"Hey Roomie, guess where I went this summer.."

GARDEN OF EDEN

Registration in Review

By Carol Schlageter

The date was sometime in August. The hour I do not recall. In Schlageter's own hand rested a spineless piece of tissue paper. Upon closer inspection it proved to be the university's bill.

Upon closer inspection still, it proved to be only the room and board bill.

And, hee, hee upon yet closer inspection, it was only the room and board bill for the first semester.

Now by late August, parents are not pleasant people to live with. They are tired and sweaty.

And after receiving that somewhat enigmatic bill from the bursar, mine were UPSET, tired and sweaty. And Schlageter does not find it pleasant to live with upset parents.

So seizing the limp tissue bill firmly in her right hand, Schlageter attempted to decode it. From previous experience with the university, she was able to hypothesize that "F/S" was not an abbreviation for Fatso. Nor did it indicate False Start. But even this aulde hieroglyphic expert, kiddies, was unable to discern whether it meant "Fall Semester" or "Fall/Spring."

The larger problem, however, was the bulk of the bill. Schlageter finally presumed that the bursar, in his own bungling, inefficient way, wished to indicate that my mother should send the mentioned sum for the first semester's room and board. Nowhere, however, had they indicated that the good woman had already forwarded sheckels numbering $100 for a room-holding bribe. All this, I discovered at registration, was incorrect. Schlageter now has some $200 credit. But she still has no concept of how much is owed next semester.

This columnist is not without recommendations:

1. Now even from this writer's not-too-swift point of view, the university could economize considerably by simply sending a single bill to each family for the semester's room, board and tuition. Flush souls could double the amount and pay for two semesters. As in the past, individuals could arrange installment payments.

2. Congratulations to the administration for eliminating the need for each student to wait while a typist chips out a tuition bill. The IBM tuition card was a big help. pleased to repeat, good performance.

3. Now, bursar, seizing that IBM card firmly in fist, make a duplicate and render it unto the parents. Many of them will make out a precise check which their little ones will fork to you at registration.

This will eliminate much of that senseless havoc at table "K." Yes, when this columnist worked on registration, most of those heading in the direction of "K" wanted their parents billed — momma and poppa had not thought to give them blank checks. These students were forced to defer payment, resulting in a madhouse of excess paper work for the bursar.

Now, under recommendation 3 above only those who wish to pay on the installment would have to go through the bursar's line. Others need only to navigate the cashier's cages.

Speaking of registration. While most persons were reduced to snarling, groveling hunks of protoplasm, one pleasant soul bounced from side to side of that blessed fieldhouse. It was the Registrar, Dean Ed Smith. He hastened here — placing a sign to eliminate a bottleneck. He hastened there — asking a student why she had to return the next day, and then he eliminated that problem for the next student.

Checkers' lines continued to drag, but with reason. Only trained personnel from the registrar's office know how to tabulate tuition fees. This situation is perhaps unalterable. But having registered Monday, and having worked throughout registration, this writer saw the realm of other holdups which Dean Smith eliminated.

Joint Student Government's Registration Committee is one to watch. Its chairman, Sharon Yablonsky, attended registration for the duration. She shepherded lost souls and made recommendations which Dean Smith quickly enacted.

Her committee's report will undoubtedly contain much meat.

LETTERS

To the editor:

"Edwin D. Smith, registrar, said registration proceedings were fine and there were no major problems." This sentence, which appeared in the DAILY ORANGE of September 20, 1962 seems a little incredible to me and the three students with whom I registered. The four of us had registered before. We knew exactly what to do. Having filled out the sheaf of IBM cards for the umpteenth time, we proceeded to the fieldhouse in order to register for ONE COURSE each. Three hours later, with aching feet and dust-laden lungs, we emerged into the sunlight. Time of registration: about fifteen minutes; time spent in lines: about two hours and forty-five minutes.

The above complaint is by no means unique. When 2766 students are registered in two days one must expect lines and delays. However, when those delays are needless . . .

There were at least six tables checking IBM cards and preparing bills. Only one of those tables served graduate students yet that line was at least twice as long as any of the others. Station K served both those students seeking deferred tuition payments and those carrying remitted tuition vouchers. Planning a deferred payment program is a complex task requiring individual attention to each student, lines are to be expected. Approving a remitted tuition voucher is a routine procedure requiring less than thirty seconds. It strikes me as grossly unfair to require a student with a remitted tuition voucher to wait forty-five minutes while the students ahead of him are helped to solve complex problems. Of the many clerks at station K, it seems logical to reserve one for the remitted tuition vouchers in order to allow routine matters to be settled routinely.

Attention to these two areas would reduce waiting times appreciably. Problems can be solved. The painful wait for ID cards has been eliminated by initiating a mailing procedure.

our to life by laughing, by not taking himself too seriously, by looking for and welcoming the unexpected, and by surprising people by not doing the expected," Ellen P. Fairchild, Co-director of Syracuse's Student Dean Program.

The literal meaning of the Warrior comes from the fact that Syracuse is the salt city and was also the home of the Six Nations of the Iroquois Confederacy, Chancellor explained.

Another statue of Diana and her dog, is found in the front foyer of Carnegie Library. Rubbing the dog's paw and a brief prayer should insure success in any quiz or examination.

This ritual must be effective, analyzed Chancellor Tolley, because the paw is so shiny.

Before orange was chosen as the official color of the University in 1890, the colors were changed almost every year.

In June 1872 the students chose rose pink and pea green. In 1873 a minority wanted to replace pea green with sky blue. A compromise of rose tint and azure was made.

The first fraternity on campus was Delta Kappa Epsilon (1871) while Alpha Phi was the first sorority (1872).

Caps and gowns were first worn at commencement in 1902. The Fine Arts College and the Maxwell School of Citizenship were the first of their kind, noted Chancellor Tolley.

He further reminisced that in 1909 there were only four telephones on campus. Chancellor James R. Day warned the students about "romancing on the telephone" because it was a party line.

Traditions Commission, the body now responsible for university traditions was established in 1945.

Goon Squad grew out of the commission in the 1948-49 academic year. Jiminy Cricket first appeared on the Goon Squad button in September 1955.

Though traditions are a memorable part of university life, automobile rides cannot replace that walk down Comstock, the chancellor said.

THE MODERN JAZZ QUARTET, pictured above, will appear at Lincoln Auditorium Thursday, October 18, sponsored by the Famous Artists Series. Tickets are available at Olmsted's Record Store, South Crouse Ave.

To Swing At 'CUSE-MJQ

The Modern Jazz Quartet will appear October 18 in Lincoln Auditorium as a special event sponsored by the Famous Artists Series.

The members of the quartet, John Lewis, piano; Percy Heath, bass; Milt Jackson, vibraharp; and Connie Kay, drums, have earned the reputation as the first "pure concert ensemble in jazz."

The quartet's hardest challenge is in concert improvisation. The British critic, Max Harrison, commented, "it seems that Lewis, with his additions and modifications to the language of jazz, has, for the small group at least, succeeded in utilizing more elaborate forms while preserving the soloist's freedom. . .

"To hear the quartet play pieces like "Django" twice in one day with largely different solos on each occasion was to realize that the group is far from stagnation." Harrison noted.

The quartet, we are told, will appear in dark suits, enabling listeners to enjoy the music instead of concentrating on individual personality within the ensemble.

Regular series concerts sponsored by the Famous Artists Series for 1962-63 include a rare appearance by Charles Munch and the French National Orchestra, Oct. 30; Isaac Stern, Famous American violist, Jan. 9; Sviatoslav Richter, Soviet pianist, March 12; and Andres Segovia, Spanish guitarist, April 3.

Another special event not included in the series is Ferrante and Teicher, piano duo, Jan. 26.

Crouse Organ Will Move To Gifford Aud.

The giant Crouse College organ will be moved to Gifford Auditorium, HB Crouse Hall, Wednesday evening for a preview performance of Dr. Frank Morris' Concerto for Seven Instruments, Piano, Percussion and Tape.

The latter "instrument" explains how the organ will be "moved" to Gifford Auditorium. The organ part of the concerto will be taped in advance of the 8:30 p.m. performance by Will Headlee.

The other performers will be members of the Krasner Chamber Music Ensemble. SU Vice President Frank P. Piskor will most the performance which will be followed by an informal reception honoring Dr. Harris.

Premiere

The actual premimere of the concerto will take place 8:30 p.m., Monday, Oct 1, in Gifford Auditorium. It will be the first of five chamber music concerts held by the Syracuse Friends of Chamber Music.

Included in the Friends schedule is a special appearance of the Julliard String Quartet, March 9, 1963 and a chamber orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin, April 6, 1963. These, plus two recitals by the Krasner Ensemble, will take place at the Everson Museum of Art.

The Morris concerto was written especially for Prof. Krasner and the Friends during Dr. Morris' residency at the MacDowell Colony, New Hampshire, June and July of this year.

Not Unusual

Combining tape and live music is not an unusual practice for present-day composers. But this device has never been used at any musical event in Syracuse. The general idea behind such a combination is to increase the complexity of a composition by allowing quite different musical ideas to occur simultaneously.

The composition was influenced by Italian modernist composers, although listeners will tures prominent in Dr. Morris' probably recognize romantic fea-Symphony 1961, presented last season.

The performers in the Concerto will be Louis Krasner, violins; Claude Bortel, viola; Frederick Miller, cello; Evelyn Davis, flute; Marvin Howe, French horn; LeRoy Strickland, trumpet; George Ward and Allan Pabst, percussion; Jerrold Cox, piano; and Will Headlee, organ on tape.

Tickets

The Oct. 1 Friend's concert will feature, in addition to the Morris work, a Boccherini quintet and Beethoven's String Quartet in E Minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Subscription tickets for the entire series of five concerts cost $4 for students, $8 for adults.

Tickets for individual concerts are, for students $1 for each of the first three concerts, $1.50 for the last two. Adult tickets are $2 and $2.50 for the final two concerts.

Syracuse Runners Sport Veteran Squad

With an imposing schedule ahead of them and an unsuccessful season behind them, the Syracuse University harriers are preparing for their October 8 cross country opener with Cornell.

Although Bob Grieve's forces will have a difficult time improving last year's 2-3 record, all is not gloomy on the Orange front.

Pacing the 1962 squad is captain Mike Guzman, a senior from New York City. Guzman, one of several returning SU thinclads, should provide the team leadership necessary for a winning campaign.

Another top veteran is Maurcy Ferguson, a junior from Pittsburgh, Pa. Ferguson registered a 4'1.7 mile last fall to place sixth in the IC4A championships in New York.

Coach Grieve's cinder problems will be solved to a large extent if junior Jack Dailey comes into his own as a distance runner. According to Grieve, Dailey has the potential to become a truly great trackman.

Bolstering this impressive trio is junior Steve Killorin who sat out last season with an injury. Killorin, an Oceanside, New York, native, is a former state cross country champion. With a little more experience, he could become a top point-getter for the Orangemen.

Three speedy sophomores round out the unsettled Piety squad. Mike Schuster of Huntington, Long Island, who dropped out of school last year, returns to provide additional strength.

Tom Higgins and Cal Evans, the top two 1961 freshmen, should do well in their first varsity campaign. Both boys impressed Coach Grieve with their strength and endurance and both figure prominently in this fall's plans.

Grieve, commenting upon the previous season, states that the won 2, lost 3 showing was "the worst in my sixteen years at Syracuse." After opening with victories over Colgate and Buffalo in '61. the SU harriers bowed to Army, Cornell and Fordham and Villanova in a triangular meet.

Students Meet Coaches In Orange Sports Forum

Fred Lewis, Bob Grieve, Ted Kleinhans, and Loren Schoel head the roster in Tuesday night's Sports Forum in the new Kimmel Hall lounge. The session, the intial meeting of the coaches with the students, will kickoff at 7:30.

The talk is designed to introduce the coaches and their respective sports to the student body. The freshmen and new students are particularly urged to attend.

The highlight of the evening will be the unveiling of the new basketball coach, Fred Lewis. The 41-year old coach comes to Syracuse from Mississippi Southern where he complied an impressive 58-18 record. In the 1959-60 season, his squad was ranked third among small colleges. The following year they advanced to the number two positions. Last season in a rebuilding year, he compiled a 13-13 record.

Track and cross country coach Bob Grieve is equally anxious to speak to the incoming freshmen. In this drive to attract more boys to his sports, the veteran coach will present the cross-country schedule and the present members of his squad.

Grieve, who has compiled a 63-11 record in dual meets and cross country and a 27-7-2 record in track, will reveal his future program in the Manley Field House. With the "proper facilities" now available, the weather has become less of a factor. Grieve is planning to schedule indoor meets in the near future.

Loren Schoel, Syracuse's crew coach since 1956, is looking forward to springing his sport upon the incoming Frosh. Schoel, whose 1959 boat was the US representative to the Pan American Games, will discuss the various aspects of his sport. He will cover the history and future of crew at Syracuse.

The fourth coach on the agenda is the skipper of the baseball team, Ted Kleinhans. On the Syracuse staff since 1948, Kleinhans' teams have built up a 111-108 won-loss record. His 1961 squad captured the District 2 NCAA Championship and played in the College Word Series. Kleinhans will similiarly discuss this year's outlook for the Syracuse nine.

FRED LEWIS, appointed Hill basketball coach at Syracuse, last spring, will be one of the speakers at Tuesday night's sports forum. The varsity track, crew and baseball coaches will also be present.

All seats with the exception of end zone seats have been sold for the September 29 Syracuse-Army game scheduled for New York's Polo Grounds, it was announced by Ticket Manager Harold Michaels.

Michaels stated that this represented a sale of 13,000 tickets at Syracuse.

The Navy game scheduled for November 10 at Archbold Stadium will be a sellout, with only low end zone seats left.

The Penn State game scheduled to be played October 20 at Penn State will come close to being a sellout.

The October 13 Boston College game, the Parents' Weekend attraction, will feature 6000 set aside for the parents. These seats will be located between the forty yard lines on the South side of the stadium, where parents will be able to view the placard cheering section.

Arrangements for the sale of tickets for this game have not been completed.

In addition, the BC audience will include 800 high school newspaper editors, who will be meeting Syracuse at that time.

Eight thousand season tickets have been sold so far and it appears that this year's sale will equal last season's total of 8500, according to Michaels.

Orange Intramural Program One of Nation's Largest

Participation in intramural athletics at Syracuse has doubled within the last twenty years, stated Intramural Chairman Milt Howard as he looked forward to the start of another busy season.

Howard said the addition of several new fields in the Manley Feildhouse region would lead to increased interest in intramural football in the future.

He also expressed the hope that lights would eventually be placed on Hendricks Field, which is located behind Sadler Hall, so that more facilities would be available for intramural football.

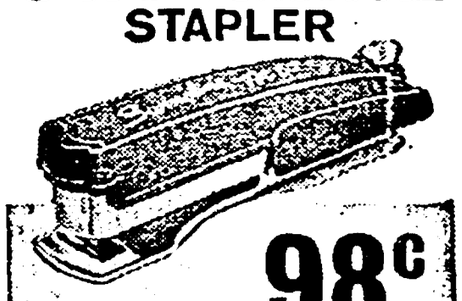
Before the campus building boom began ten years ago, Hendricks Field was the site of several football games every night.

Howard conceded that interest would be greater in football if a round robin schedule could be substituted for the present single elimination tournament.

A lack of suitable fields restricts the touch football enthusiasts to the present setup.

Howard pointed out that players out for Frosh or Varsity teams were barred from intramural sports while their sport's season was in progress.

Howard explained that the intramural program was conducted in order to give as many students as possible a chance for recreation. If Frosh or Varsity players, who do not lack the opportunity for recreation, participated, another student would be deprived of a chance to get recreation.



During the fall individual competition will be held in golf, tennis, and horseshoes.

Arrangements for the sale of tickets for this game have not been completed.

In addition, the BC audience will include 800 high school newspaper editors, who will be meeting Syracuse at that time.

Eight thousand season tickets have been sold so far and it appears that this year's sale will equal last season's total of 8500, according to Michaels.

Orange Intramural Program One of Nation's Largest

Participation in intramural athletics at Syracuse has doubled within the last twenty years, stated Intramural Chairman Milt Howard as he looked forward to the start of another busy season.

Howard said the addition of several new fields in the Manley Feildhouse region would lead to increased interest in intramural football in the future.

He also expressed the hope that lights would eventually be placed on Hendricks Field, which is located behind Sadler Hall, so that more facilities would be available for intramural football.

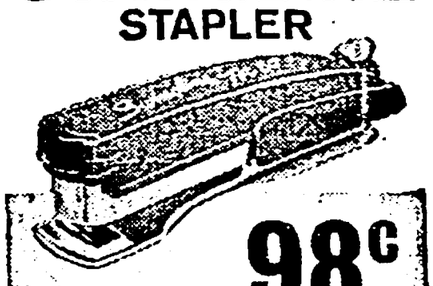
Before the campus building boom began ten years ago, Hendricks Field was the site of several football games every night.

Howard conceded that interest would be greater in football if a round robin schedule could be substituted for the present single elimination tournament.

A lack of suitable fields restricts the touch football enthusiasts to the present setup.

Howard pointed out that players out for Frosh or Varsity teams were barred from intramural sports while their sport's season was in progress.

Howard explained that the intramural program was conducted in order to give as many students as possible a chance for recreation. If Frosh or Varsity players, who do not lack the opportunity for recreation, participated, another student would be deprived of a chance to get recreation.



During the fall individual competition will be held in golf, tennis, and horseshoes.

first half while third-stringer Mike Koski carried four times for 22 yards. Halfback Paul Lea had an 11 and a 10-yard run to lead the Sooners.

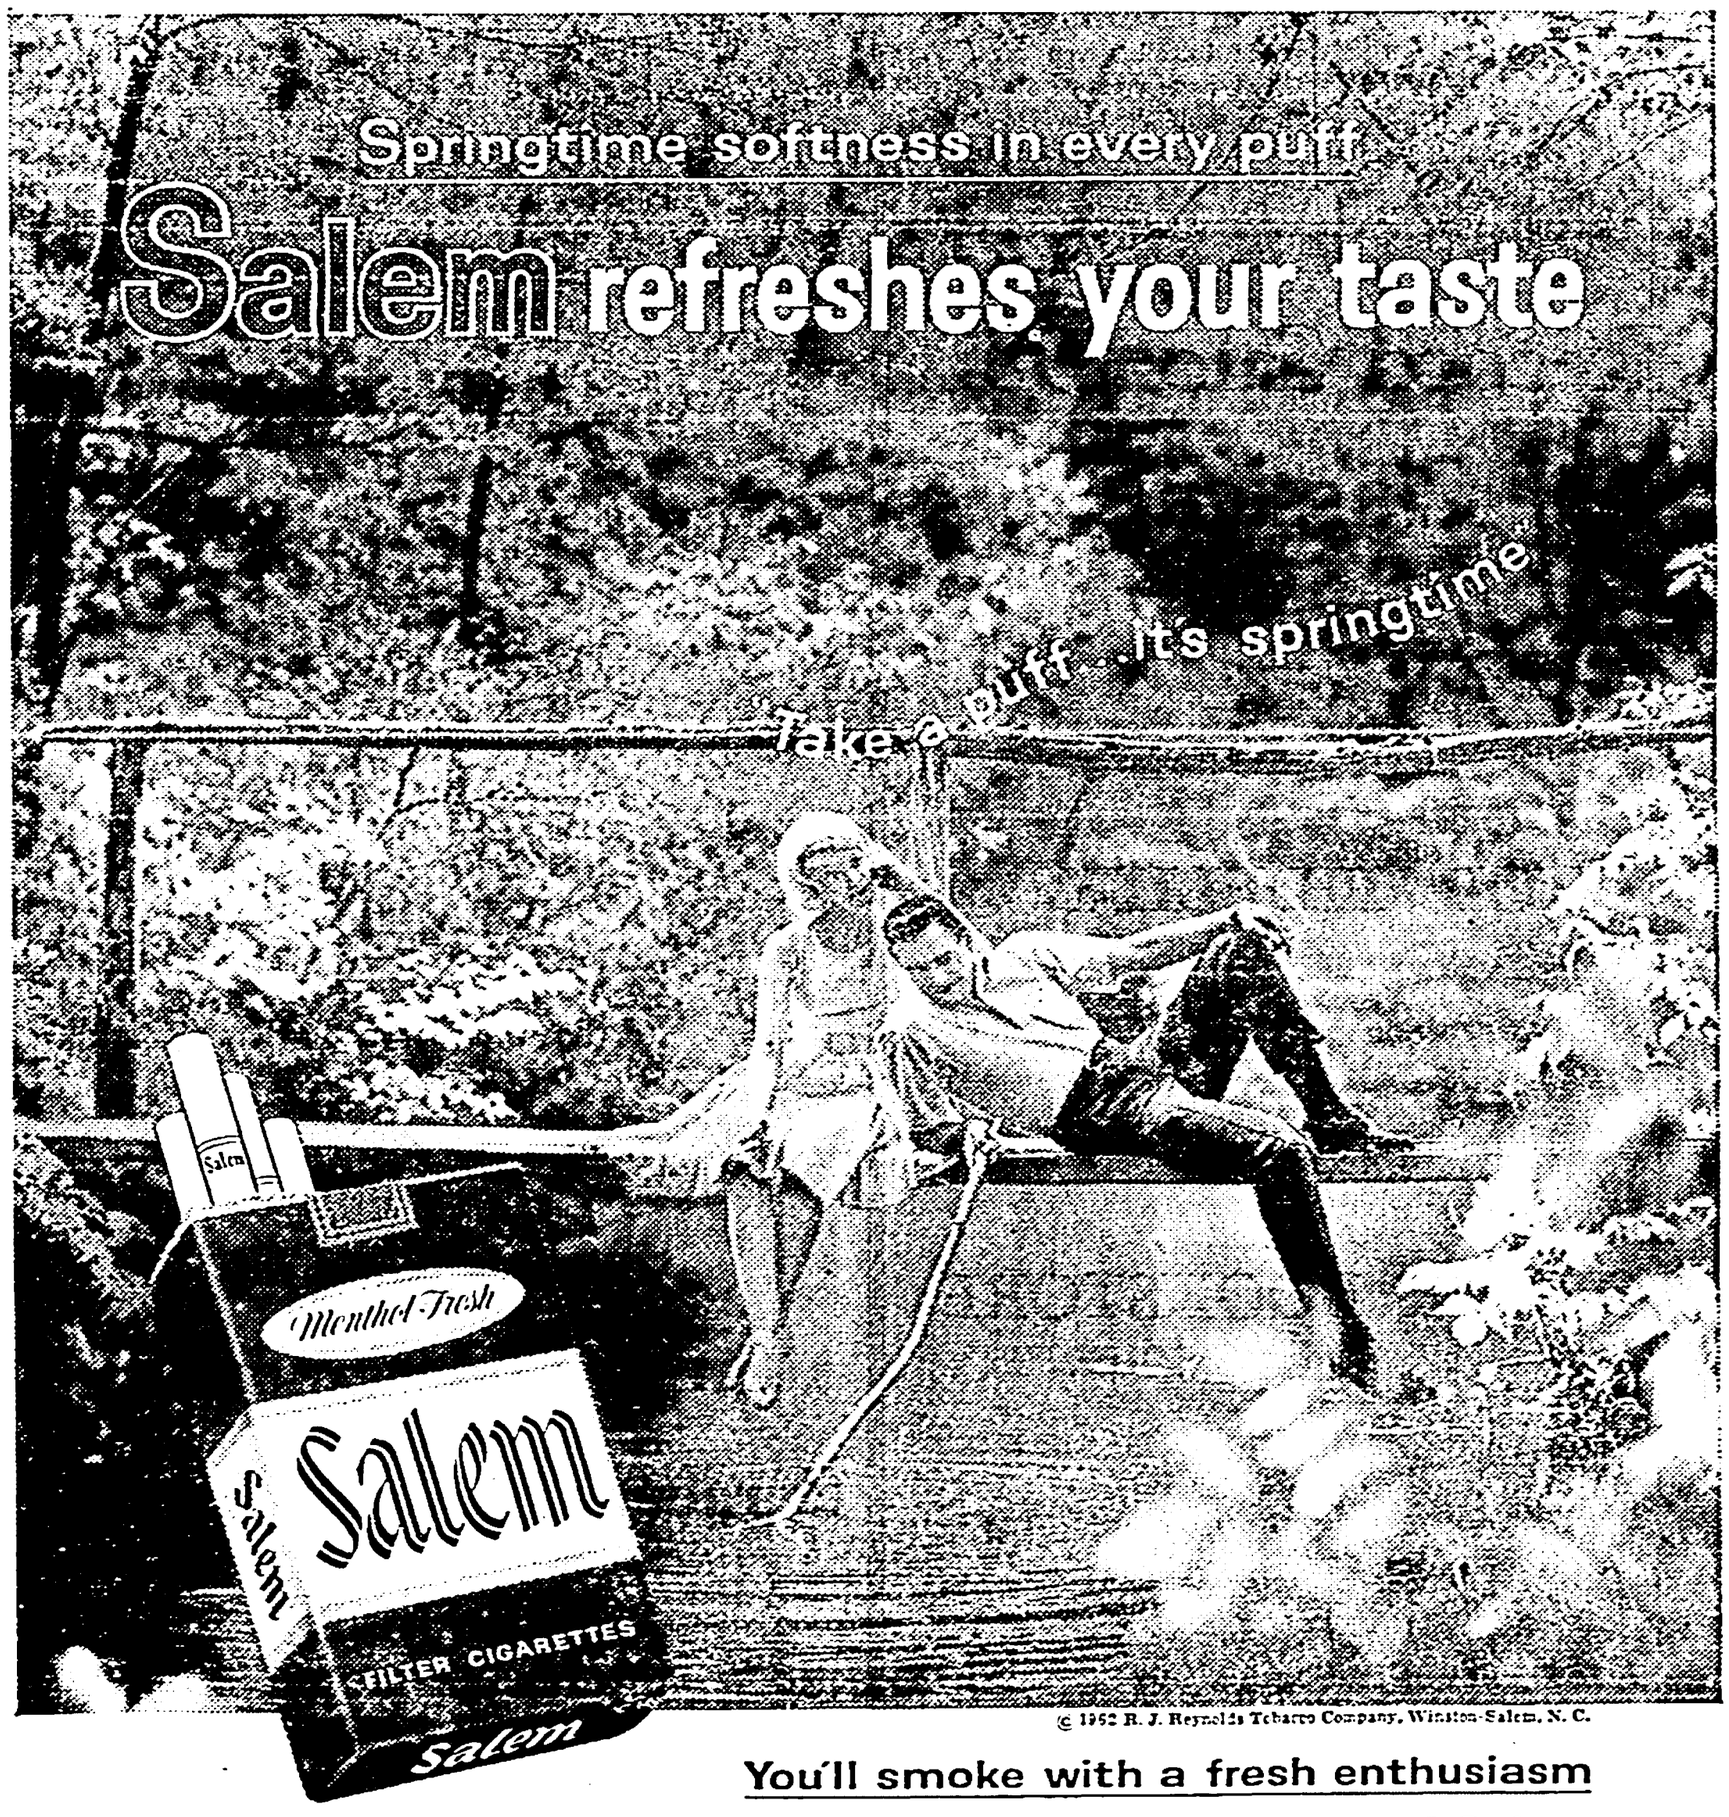
Passing, Lelli was inaccurate as he missed John Mackey in the open three times but he hit three of nine attempts, two for 24 yards to Mackey and once for 17 yards to Walt Sweeney.

In the third period SU's three points held up but the Orangemen missed a great scoring chance when lineman G. P. Houle grabbed a loose ball in the Oklahoma backfield and carried it back to the Sooner 29. But on the next play Nat Duckett fumbled and another scoring chance went by the boards.

The fourth period saw the the Orangemen on their way to wrapping up the game. Thirteen running plays saw Syracuse move to the OU eight yard line but Nance missed a handoff and fumbled.

Looney, a junior college All-American at Cameron College, ran the ball five times for 24 yards while Jack Cowan, another third string back paced the squad with a 47-yard run to the Syracuse 19.

Oklahoma then lost the ball through 25 yards of penalties but Syracuse failed to get an attack mounted to kill the clock. Coach Wilkinson then amazed the 54,000 fans sitting in the 85 degree heat by using his third unit with only 2:57 left in the game.



The stage was set for Looney's run around left end that netted 60 yards and an Oklahoma win. Geogre Jarman kicked the extra point and the final score read 7-3. Neither team gained passing yardage in the second half.

Escape Serious Injury

A SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY sophomore was discharged from Memorial Hospital Sunday morning after treatment for injuries received when the car he was driving west on W. Colvin street hit the curb and overturned about 9:30 Saturday night.

The student, Thomas Donahue of Bronxville, was driving a car owned by Robert Parlon. Parlon, Joseph P. McMurray and Steven Harriman, the other occupants of the car, did not require hospital treatment.

Donahue, who lives in Watson Hall, and McMurray, a sophomore resident of the Delta Kappa Epsilon house, are both Deke pledges.

modern art and in lithograph prints, which were bought by works but are much cheaper.

Schmeckebier explained that the print rental program is four years old and has been very successful since its beginning. The prints, whic hwere bought by Lowe with a grant from the Rockefeler Foundation, have "all been rented out in past years." Last year's rental collection had about 50 prints, and it is hoped that each year will see an increase in the number of prints offered, said Schmeckebier.

"We would sell an original print to a student only in an unusual case," Schmeckebier said, "but if a student likes the the work of a certain artist, I will be glad to advise where to get other works by him."

The rented print can be held by the student until Feb. 1 and then can be kept another term if the student pays an additional one in the collection, also upon payment of a dollar.

Schmeckebier also expressed the hope that "within a couple of years we may be able to set up a rental program with paintings." He added that this program would "depend whether or not we could get a sponsor who will give to us or buy for us the paintings. The aim of the program would would be similar to the aim of the print rental program."

JSL Speaker Ronald Mittleman said Monday that the following topics will be discussed for presentation to JSL at its first session at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday in Maxwell Auditorium.

1. A report on the Student Car Bill, signed by Chancellor William P. Tolley Monday. The bill permits underclassmen on the dean's list to drive cars on campus, and takes driving privileges from upperclassmen on academic and social probation.

2. A report on the student responsibility act, an amended version of the anti-demonstration act. The bill was passed last spring by JSL and was approved with minor changes by the university Personnel Committee. These changes will be presented at the opening session of JSL.

3. Speeches by Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford and Instructor Joseph Julian of the Maxwell School, who is JSL advisor.

Steering committee consists of chairmen of all standing and temporary JSL Committees, JSL Speaker, speaker pro-tempore, and Joint president, vice president and secretary.

Plans to put all Hill sororities on an all-dorm standards council system will be discussed at the season's first meeting of the executive officers of the Association of Women Students at 7:30 p.m. today in the AWS office, Women's Bldg.

AWS President Marilyn Burke said Monday that under the proposed system, which is successfully used in the large women's dorms, sororities would be self-governing, having their own constitutions and standards councils.

An investigation of present women's curfews, with a view towards extending the weekend curfew, will be undertaken by AWS, according to Miss Burke. In an interview with the Daily Orange Miss Burke said that the coed Friday night curfew may be extended to 1 a.m.

For large women's dorms AWS is planning a simplified system of weekend signouts.

Campus overnights, which have previously been taken as one of 10 special permissions will now be done on regular signout sheets. Miss Burke explained that AWS is considering using the same system for a city overnights.

AWS plans to work closely with Joint Student Legislature, Miss Burke said. JSL Speaker Ronald Mittleman will address an AWS house assembly this year. Miss Burke also said that the AWS executive board of assembly this year will include a member of each class executive council "to unite the campus and improve student communications."

On Oct. 3 Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith will address the first AWS house president's assembly. Other speakers will be Vice President of Academic Affairs Frank P. Piskor and Director of Social Activities Margaret Stafford.

Chancellor's Cabinet Passes JSG Car Bill; Sophs To Get Cars

By CAROL SCHLAGETER

The chancellor's cabinet Monday passed the Joint Student Legislature Bill, permitting sophomores with 1.6 cumulative averages to own and drive cars on campus. The bill goes into effect after Thanksgiving vacation on Monday, Nov. 26.

Campus driving privileges will be revoked from juniors and seniors on university probation (less than a 1. cumulative average) or on disciplinary probation, also effective after Thanksgiving vacation.

The cabinet offered three time choices for the new bill, to become effective, Joint Student Government Pres. Theodore Bayer said Monday. These were the beginning of second semester, the end of Christmas vacation or the end of Thanksgiving vacation, JSG officers meeting late Monday afternoon selected the earliest date, Bayer said.

Upperclass students whose driving privilges will be revoked receive fair notification from the Thanksgiving date, he said. Upperclassmen on university or disciplinary probation should, plan to leave their cars at home before returning to campus after that holiday, Bayer added.

In Limbo'

The car bill has been in a "state of limbo" over the summer, Bayer said. While JSG originally hoped to have sophomore cars on campus this fall, delays caused by vacationing administrators have been unavoidable, he said.

The car bill emerged from committee and was presented to the final session of JSL last spring. Following passage and it was passed by the university

Car Bill Review Possible -- Olson

When the chancellor's cabinet approved the student car bill, Chancellor William P. Tolley in effect "gave it his approval," Dr. John F. Olson told the Daily Orange yesterday. Olson is executive assistant to the chancellor and university vice president.

The chancellor, acting under the Board of Trustees, "splits up his administartive chores" and works with various advisory bodies, including his cabinet, Olson said.

Olson termed the thought that all bills must be signed by the chancellor "administrative myth."

Earlier in the day, Dean Eric H. Faigle, vice president of student personnel, commented, "We are anxious for the students to try this (project) under their own direction, subject to review." He said the drivers. The cabinet, he said, cabinet had questioned a 1.6 minimum average for sophomore students working with the deans had "given the green light" to of men and women.

The car bill will not be singled out for review, Olson said, but the university is constantly reviewing problems and operations. Parking is one of these, he said. The campus car situation will be reviewed "if the parking problem becomes insoluble except by cutting down the number of cars."

Olson deemed the car bill a "fine idea," saying that the "reward for achievement idea ought to be operative all over campus."

A direct correlation between poor academic work and automobile ownership is generally accepted ,he said, and academic incentive will be provided by the new system.

The method of nominating candidates for the offices will be decided at a meeting at 8 p.m. today at Pi Beta Phi sorority between the elections

Year's First Button Sale

"SCALP ARMY" buttons will be sold for 50 cents on campus this week by senior class executive council members. Proceeds from these sales will go towards supporting other senior class-sponsored activities. Similiar buttons will be sold by the council for the Syracuse-Navy game six weeks later. SU plays Army Saturday in Polo Grounds, New York City.

Traditions Endure Despite Students

The common belief among young people in particular is that colleges are tradition-laden places where the sweet memories of the past linger in hidden corners and romantic landmarks, there to mingle with the present.

The Alma Mater and the college songs stir up these happy thoughts of the days of yore and of good men and true.

Only one thing mars this picture of sweet contentment and that, unfortunately, is reality. Reality, which sticks its foot in the path of man with the consistency of a perpetual motion machine, brings the college student quickly and harshly to the truth that traditions are something to be looked forward to and back on, but cannot really be lived.

Syracuse is far from an exception to this collegiate rule. That this is true was evidenced by the reaction to the story on traditions which appeared in Monday's Daily Orange. The stories told by the Chancellor came from the storybook past to the students of today and the students were surprised.

For upperclassmen the reaction was probably shock and a cynical laugh for they have tasted of the college meal and have gone away hungry for such as these traditions.

For the freshmen perhaps the story of romantic superstitions and mellow traditions revived the glimmering light in their mind's eye that maybe there is more to the ivy than covering up a crumbling building.

Whatever the result or the reaction, we think it is well to remind the students of Syracuse University that there are indeed traditions here and that certain landmarks really do have a story behind them.

We realize, of course, that many will continue to travel the great quadrangle of life with vivid memories of things that never were and happy thoughts of things that never will be. For these people traditions will never exist even though they be thrown in their faces.

For those of the student body who have yet to lose the precious gift of imagination and who, while not really believing in Santa Claus, nevertheless think it is a good idea, the traditions of Syracuse can hold the key to romantic adventure.

Think carefully when you sing the alma mater and picture the tradition abundant in those lyrics; neglect the fact that 357 other student bodies hum the same tune with heartfelt reverence. Learn a couple of our school songs if you can find anyone that knows them.

Brush away the snow from that stone bench near HL and sit there, thinking fondly of the past. And finally, walk gayly to the fieldhouse always keeping in mind the hundreds of couples who gladly made the two-way trip to embark on a future of happiness.

And above all remember that when the traditions of the past don't stir your soul into raptures, perhaps we're making traditions ourselves.

Indian Summer

At 7:35 a.m. Sunday autumn came to Syracuse in a brilliant burst of sunlight and warm temperatures after a week of cold rainy days and nights. This is not uncommon in the Central New York area.

Indian summer, the time of year with the romantic sounding name, is on its way here. This will mean continued sunny skies and warm days with cool nights which turn the trees to their brilliant colors.

Soon snow and cold will blanket the area, so let's enjoy our Indian summer, the nicest season of them all in Syracuse.

THE GADFLY

Monroe versus Monroe

By T. Lee Hughes

While Syracusans lollod away their precious hours at beaches, amusement parks, and all night drinking parties (ah, but those times are gone for another year) this summer, a couple of institutions named Monroe passed into oblivion.

We had our introduction to both in junior high school. One we used to talk about while sneaking a drag in the high school john under the principal's nose.

One of the guys would pull out a copy of "Esquire," (then the "Playboy" of the pinup world) and we'd gawk at the sparsely clad Marilyn with her comely grin beckoning each one of us (and me in particular, I used to think) into her parlor.

The other, well, the other we first read about in Mr. Flappingham's history class. It was sort of dry reading for a bunch of guys interested in the more sumptuous Monroe, as well as her adolescent imitators of whom we were shyly beginning to take notice. (For in those days it was fashionable for the blossoming girl to aspire to the sophisticated naivete of MM rather than the pouting impishness of today's BB.)

We never quite understood how ol' Flappy could stand up in front of class and resound with such forcefulness the words of some President who in 1823 had said that "the American continents are henceforth not to be considered subjects for future colonialization by European powers."

But one afternoon Flappy came into the john and caught me and Jimmy Lunk smoking and admiring a picture of Marilyn's well rounded personality. He snatched the magazine from our quivering fingers and in a rage marched us to the principal's office. But I felt sort of relieved when later Jimmy told me in a confidential whisper that he had seen ol' Flappy himself in the faculty room grinning over the impounded picture. It was good to know Flappy was really one of the guys, after all.

And if ol' Flappy were still around today (I've been told that the rigors of teaching students became too much for him and he took a job in a steel mill) he'd probably be happy to know that his boys are concerned with what he had to say back in those days.

For, while the death of Miss Monroe has been used as a vehicle by many for a condemnation of everything from the Hollywood star system to the way Heinz packages its sardines, the most that can be said is that a thing of beauty has been lost to a world with ever too little beauty in it.

But the apparent passing of the Monroe doctrine lingers with far more serious implications. For the past decade, it has remained a comfortable bulwark in the face of Communist gains in other parts of the globe.

And unfortunately, the Kennedy administration has attempted to lull the American public into believing the Doctrine is still in effect.

For in spite of persistent reports since the end of July that Soviet troops were entering Cuba, John Fitzgerald Kennedy refused to admit to the public that the Soviet influx was more than "large quantities of equipment," and "an increased number of technicians."

"We don't have complete information about what is going on in Cuba," the President hemmed and hawed at an early September press conference. It is difficult to believe that reporters could view firsthand the activities of Soviet troops along the Cuban countryside, while the Central Intelligence Agency could not even inform the President of the presence of such troops.

And Kennedy has continued to insist the Monroe doctrine is still in effect, asserting that as long as Soviet armaments and troops in Cuba remained of a "defensive nature," there is no need for overt action on the part of the United States.

The question, as raised by a reporter at one of the President's recent press conferences, remains: does the Monroe doctrine apply only in the case of foreign powers establishing armament for "offensive" purposes in the Western hemisphere or is it to be relaxed in the case of such powers who choose to establish "defensive" armaments?"

Clearly, James Monroe, when he said, "we should consider ANY attempt on their (foreign powers) part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety," was not distinguishing between defensive and offensive extension.

The question which plagues me is where does Kennedy intend to draw the line between "offensive" and "defensive." It is impossible to believe that Communist intentions in South America are 'defensive.' Castro's influence has already made itself felt, with Communists riots weakening the governments of Venezuela, Panama, Ecuador, and the Dominican Republic.

In spite of belated promises on the part of the President and Congress that military buildup for offensive purposes will not be tolerated, it is obvious that the United States has either been poorly informed as to the extent of Soviet activities in Cuba, or has been stricken with a severe case of indecisiveness.

For under the 1947 Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance, and the 1954 OAS Anti-Communist Charter, the United States could already have taken any number of measures, ranging from a blockade to actual invasion.

There already have been rumblings in Nicaragua, Costa Rico, and Brazil, in favor of military action, but the decision clearly rests with the United States, and in the face of repeated Soviet rocket rattling it is doubtful that the Kennedy administration will do little more than stall.

The venerable Brig. General (Ret.) S. L. A. Marshall hit a salient point when he said two days ago, "People are fooling themselves if they think the Cuban crisis will cure itself. There is no effective counter measure left to the United States but war."

The situation in Cuba is probably more critical than during those memorable days in 1898 when Wild Willie Hearst and his crew invaded the island (with the aid of the United States Marines).

Ah Flappy, why did you leave us in such a state?

THE CUTTING ROOM

Where's the Desert

by John E. Greenwald

THIS IS the first of a series of weekly columns by the Daily Orange Entertainment Editor. His subject is the world of amusements and the art. His opinions are his own. Comment and criticism are invited.

Today we are going to defend what may seem defenseless: the state of Syracuse cultural affairs.

To those of you fresh from a summer near New York, Chicago or San Francisco, your senses filled with pungent memories of symphony orchestras, theatres, movie houses, art galleries, lecture halls, museums, radio and tv stations, Syracuse may surely seem a cultural desert.

A twist of your local radio dial may tune in Dandy Dan Leonard instead of Jacques Frey. Jim Deline may fill your tv screen instead of David Susskind. A rock 'n' roll show may be featured at a local station instead of Leonard Bernstein at the Philharmonic Hall. And "Peyton Place" may be playing at Fayetteville instead of a Bergman film festival in Queens.

All of the above, gloomy as it sounds, is true. Dandy Dan and his WNDR fellows murder the mind 24 hours a day. Jim Deline parades sweetly smiling Brownies across your screen five days a week. Dick Clark will host a teenage orgy at the State Fair grounds Oct. 16 and "Bloodlust" was playing at the North this weekend.

On the other hand there was lots to do this past weekend if your tastes ran beyond the above mentioned mediocrity.

You could have seen an excellent new Japanese film, "Yojimbo," at the Riviera-Cinema or "The Miracle Worker" at Loew's downtown. Then you could have gone to Luigi's for jazz or to the Lively Arts Coffeehouse for some non-beat folk music.

Sunday you could have heard two hours of Wagner on WSYR-FM. WHEN radio and tv carried, at 9 p.m., the Philharmonic broadcast Sunday. And the best is yet to come.

To be quite frank Syracuse does not feed you culture on a silver spoon as does New York or San Francisco. It uses a stainless steel spoon, and you must feed yourself.

A play or concert is not around the corner as it is in New York City. But by checking your local entertainment page and by planning in advance, that play or concert is just down the street.

Your regular a.m. radio dial will not reveal WQXR, but your local f.m. dial will reveal the QXR network on WSYR-FM.

Every Tuesday night the Regent Theatre becomes a revival house, featuring the best of the "oldies but goodies" trade. The Drama Department will present four or five productions of high quality, while more intimate, if not experimental, plays will be shown at the Lively Arts.

The Regent Theatre's Celebrity Series will offer John White, the Cleveland Players, and Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans.

The Famous Artist Series will present Charles Munch, Segovia, Sviatoslav, Richter, and the Modern Jazz Quartet at prices every college student can afford. (When was the last time you could afford a Broadway Show or a Carnegie Hall Concert?)

Highlights of other cultural events in Syracuse could fill two more columns. There are concerts at Crouse College every Sunday, lectures at the Everson Museum of Art, programs sponsored by Civic Morning Musicals, talks at Chapel House sponsored by Hillel. Heck, there's even Dean Noble's Skeptics Corner.

Syracuse may demand you spend 20 cents for a bus or $30 for an f.m. radio to get what was once around the corner or on that $5 transistor radio.

But that's little enough considering the wealth of education, entertainment and enjoyment available at Syracuse.

We hope the cultural cry babies have now stopped their bawling.

Audio - Visual Service Open On Saturday

The Syracuse University Audio-Visual Service will begin operating from 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturday mornings this semester, A-V Director James Smith announced today.

The A-V Service, which supplies motion pictures, filmstrips, records and projection equipment to faculty and student organziations, was established in 1949. Since then, increasing utilizatoin of its facilities has forced it to expand from fifteen to eighteen per cent each year.

Stokowski Concert Slated

Syracuse will welcome a great conductor when Leopold Stokowski leads the Philharmonic Orchestra, in Bach's "Ein Fest Burg," 8:30 p.m. Thursday, at Lincoln Auditorium.

Beethoven's "Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Opus 92," said to be one of the master's most popular symphonies, will be also performed by the orchestra.

The two other works of the evening, Debussy's "La Soiree dans Grenade," and Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," will be conducted with orchestrations by Stokowski.

Stokowski made the news last April when he announced his intention to form a new symphony orchestra. The 75 year old conductor is credited with making the Philadelphia Orchestra a "top-rate organization."

He has also greatly helped the development of the Cincinnati Symphony, the Houston Symphony, the Hollywood Bowl Symphony, and the All-American Youth Orchestra. Recently, he has also conducted the New York Philharmonic and the NBC Symphony.

The next event presented by the Civic Morning Musicals will be Verdi's "La Traviata," staged by the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater, Oct. 10, in Lincoln Auditorium.

This work is based on the famous "Lady of the Camillias" story. Director Boris Goldovsky's company will present the program with sets and costumes especially designed for the opera.

A company of 50 singers and players will use a new projection technique enabling quick change of scenery without loss of dramatic continuity.

Cars...

Personnel Committee the following day.

All sohpomores who now have cars on campus must turn in their car keys to their resident advisors, Joint Student Government Pres. Theodore Bayer said Monday.

Any sophomores who obtained vehicle registration stickers must contact the dean of men's office. Such vehicles are illegal on campus, he said, and sophomore drivers will be subject to university disciplinary action.

Driving regulations do not apply to city students, Bayer said.

Sophomores who returned to campus with cars had no reasons to do so, Bayer said. When the bill passed Personnel Committee, the Daily Orange and other publicity stipulated that it needed approval by the chancellor, he said.

"The car bill is a student- instigated revision which has been met with administrative approval," Bayer commented. It is designed to implement a campus "merit system", he said.

SU Orchestra Rehearsal Set

The Syracuse Symphony Orchestra will begin rehearsals at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Crouse College Auditorium under the leadership of Prof. Louis Krasner.

The orchestra is an all-university organization made up of music students and other interested students from all colleges within the university. Orchestra may be used as a one credit-hour course or as an extracurricular activity.

Rehearsals are held Wednesday evenings and Fridays from 4 to 5:30 p.m., when possible.

Those interested should contact the Student Committee, University Symphony Orchestra,

Audio - Visual Service Open On Saturday

The Syracuse University Audio-Visual Service will begin operating from 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturday mornings this semester, A-V Director James Smith announced today.

The A-V Service, which supplies motion pictures, filmstrips, records and projection equipment to faculty and student organziations, was established in 1949. Since then, increasing utilizatoin of its facilities has forced it to expand from fifteen to eighteen per cent each year.

Stokowski Concert Slated

Syracuse will welcome a great conductor when Leopold Stokowski leads the Philharmonic Orchestra, in Bach's "Ein Fest Burg," 8:30 p.m. Thursday, at Lincoln Auditorium.

Beethoven's "Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Opus 92," said to be one of the master's most popular symphonies, will be also performed by the orchestra.

The two other works of the evening, Debussy's "La Soiree dans Grenade," and Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," will be conducted with orchestrations by Stokowski.

Stokowski made the news last April when he announced his intention to form a new symphony orchestra. The 75 year old conductor is credited with making the Philadelphia Orchestra a "top-rate organization."

He has also greatly helped the development of the Cincinnati Symphony, the Houston Symphony, the Hollywood Bowl Symphony, and the All-American Youth Orchestra. Recently, he has also conducted the New York Philharmonic and the NBC Symphony.

The next event presented by the Civic Morning Musicals will be Verdi's "La Traviata," staged by the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater, Oct. 10, in Lincoln Auditorium.

This work is based on the famous "Lady of the Camillias" story. Director Boris Goldovsky's company will present the program with sets and costumes especially designed for the opera.

A company of 50 singers and players will use a new projection technique enabling quick change of scenery without loss of dramatic continuity.

Personnel Committee the following day.

All sohpomores who now have cars on campus must turn in their car keys to their resident advisors, Joint Student Government Pres. Theodore Bayer said Monday.

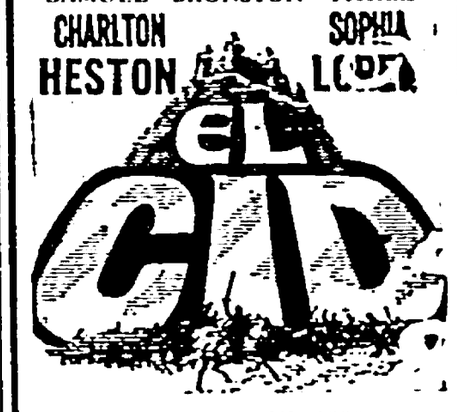
Any sophomores who obtained vehicle registration stickers must contact the dean of men's office. Such vehicles are illegal on campus, he said, and sophomore drivers will be subject to university disciplinary action.

Driving regulations do not apply to city students, Bayer said.

Sophomores who returned to campus with cars had no reasons to do so, Bayer said. When the bill passed Personnel Committee, the Daily Orange and other publicity stipulated that it needed approval by the chancellor, he said.

"The car bill is a student- instigated revision which has been met with administrative approval," Bayer commented. It is designed to implement a campus "merit system", he said.

SU Orchestra Rehearsal Set



The Syracuse Symphony Orchestra will begin rehearsals at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Crouse College Auditorium under the leadership of Prof. Louis Krasner.

The orchestra is an all-university organization made up of music students and other interested students from all colleges within the university. Orchestra may be used as a one credit-hour course or as an extracurricular activity.

Rehearsals are held Wednesday evenings and Fridays from 4 to 5:30 p.m., when possible.

Those interested should contact the Student Committee, University Symphony Orchestra,

Sports Night Tonight At Kimmel-Marion

By BILL CRONAUER

Prospects, problems, programs and players — these are the topics to be discussed by Hill athletic coaches tonight at 7:30 in Kimmel-Marion lounge.

Representatives of four varsity sports will attend the forum and present their activities to the student body. Freshmen will have their first opportunity to meet the Syracuse coaches and athletes.

Speakers for this sports night include Fred Lewis, varsity basketball mentor; Bob Grieve, track and cross country director; Loren Schoel, crew skipper; and baseball head Ted Kleinhans.

Lewis, the new-appointed Orange cage coach, spent his past three years at Mississippi Southern. During his tenure in the south, Lewis compiled an impressive 58-18 ledger. His 1960-61 squad was the second-ranking small college team in the nation.

Assistant coach Morris Osbourn and team members will accompany Lewis to the Sports Forum. The head mentor will introduce the new frosh players at Syracuse.

Grieve plans to stress the Manley Field House in his talk. He will reveal his future indoor track projects. The veteran coach will discuss his idea of bringing to the country's best milers and relay teams to SU for the fieldhouse opening.

Grieve is also anxious to recruit more runners for the 1962 cross country season. Frosh thinclads are needed for the October 8 opener with Colgate.

Short films of crew at Syracuse will feature Loren Schoel's report to the students. Skipper of the Piety crew team for six years. Schoel will offer interesting sidelights on the history and future of crew at SU.

Ted Kleinhans of the baseball club will examine the rebuilding of the Orange glove setup. Kleinhans' 1961 squad played in the College World Series, but last season's plunged to a losing record. With some new pitching prospects, the University ball club could rise.

Following the coaches' comments, a question and answer period will be held. Candidates for positions on Hill squads will be greeted by the athletic heads.

WAA Sponsors Swim Contest

Once again the "Swim to Venice" contest will be held as part of the university's intramural program. Entry blanks with information can be obtained by sororities at Room 202, Women's Building, and by independent dorms at the living center or at the Women's Building. Entry blanks are due Sept. 28 for sororities and Oct. 5 for dorms.

In order to sharpen competition, swimmers can receive special lap swim privilege cards upon submitting the entry blank. These cards enable the contestants to practice without charge.

Competition will be held from Oct. 1-5 for sororities and Oct. 8-12 for independents.

This is part of the WAA fall intramural sports program which includes field hockey and golf which will begin on Sept. 24.

Syracuse Braves Ready For Bruins

By ART ROSSKY

When The Syracuse Braves hockey team faces off on the War Memorial ice Sunday night at 7:30, they will be facing a National Hockey League member, the Boston Bruins, second in a row in their exhibition schedule.

The Braves' intial exhibition game was played Sunday, when they bowed to the world champion Montreal Canadiens 6-3.

Braves' coach Gus Kyle looks for a close game Sunday night, for the Bruins, who finished at the bottom of the standings in the 1961-2 NHL campaign, are a young team.

Led by fiery coach Bill Watson, the Bruins boast such outstanding veterans as center Don McKenney, defenseman-forward Doug Mohns, defenseman Leo Boivan, and goalie Bruce Gamble.

Defenseman Pat Stapleton, who will be one of the smallest players in the NHL, is a highly-touted rookie.

The Braves are also a young team. All of the players are 20-25 years old. Nine of the players on the 17-man roster are playing their first season of professional hockey.

The Braves will play their final exhibition game Oct. 4 against the NHL's Chicago Black Hawks, the Braves' parent club.

Kyle said the Braves were playing several exhibition games with teams from hockey's major league because the NHL plays the "best brand of ball," and the Braves' management wants the people of Syracuse to have an opportunity to see the best players.

The Braves, who will be playing their first season in the Eastern Hockey League, will start their league schedule on Oct. 8 in a clash with the Hull-Ontario Canadiens.

Tickets for the Sunday night tilt with the Bruins are now on sale.

Beachboys Dump Playboys, 38 - 0 In Intramural Grid Rivalry

By ERIC MOWER

A week of intense rivalry ended this past Sunday at Sadler field WHEN the Watson West II "Beachboys" defeated the DellPlain VIII "Playboys" with a score of 38-0 in interdormitory touch football.

The game, which drew a crowd of over 200, was highlighted by several fine players. DellPlain's two ace men, Vic Ianelli, halfback and captain; and Dennis Hrabchek, the quarterback, contributed much to their team's effort although no score was made. From the Watson roster came quarterback Ken Douglas, halfback Kerry Quinn, defensive halfback John Moore, and end Lee Hammer.

After only several minutes of first quarter play the "Beachboys" began to click. With a 35 yard pass from Ken Douglas to Kerry Quinn, Watson racked up their first six points. Top man of the quarter was Vic Ciullo of Watson who stopped a number of DellPlain runners.

Action in the second quarter kicked off when Watson's Quinn intercepted the ball. The next play, a pass off from Douglas to Quinn resulted in a 12 yard gain. Finally, a pass from Douglas to Hammer moved the score up to 12-0.

With two points gained on a safety, the "Beachboys" led towards the end of the second quarter, when "Beethoven" Moore intercepted a DellPlain pass and ran the yardage necessary for an additional six points. At the halftime break, the "Beachboys" led 20-0.

At the start of the third quarter a DellPlain fumble was recovered by Watson's Ken Douglas. The next play, a pass from Douglas to Quinn, resulted in six more points for the Watsonians. With the score standing at 26-0, Watson's Moore again intercepted the ball and made good for 30 yards, just falling short of a touchdown.

In the last minutes of this quarter DellPlain made their best effort for a touchdown when a pass was completed to Dennis Hrabchek for a 30 yard gain. At the end of the third quarter Watson led 26-0.

In the final fourth, a Douglas to Hammer pass moved the score up to 32-0. Final points were then added by Kerry Quinn who intercepted a DellPlain pass and successfully completed his run. Final game score: Watson 38, DellPlain 0.

Orange Concentrate On Passing Game

By JUDY ADAMS

With the dust barely settled on the gridiron in Norman, Oklahoma, Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder is putting Saturday in the past and concentrating on the coming meeting with Army next Saturday at the Polo Grounds.

Schwartzwalder's charges will have their hands full when they tangle with the Cadets. The Black Knights completely overwhelmed Wake Forest in their opening game this week-end, 41-7. With Army employing their new three team system, first year coach Paul Dietzel's squad ran and passed their way to victory.

Hoping to gain from past mistakes, the Syracuse skipper reviewed Saturday's contest. "Our mistakes cost us the game," he put into words what was common knowledge to all. "But we have to say that Bud Wilkinson's boys helped us to make mistakes. They kept the pressure on all the way, and it finally paid off for them."

In answering the Monday morning quarterbacks on Syracuse fourth down punt with seconds to go in the final quarter, Ben explained: "We had some automatics set up, for changing from a punt to a pass, if the Sooners had given us an opening for a pass, but they didn't."

"If they had loosened up their defense on that play," the ex-major continued, "we could have tried to throw, although of course we hadn't had much luck in the air up to that time, and it seemed unlikely that we'd be able to go 75 yards in one play."

"Our only chance, then, was to kick the ball and hope they'd try to field it, with the possibility that we might get possession deep in their territory. But they didn't take any chances on that, and let the ball roll free."

Then with 17 seconds remaining in the game, the Oklahoma quarterback took the ball on his own 20 and sat down until the clock ran out.

Ben admits that the Orange passing had not lived up the advance notices. His main concern this week will the improvement of his passing attack. Bob Lelli, in his debut as starting quarterback completed only three of 11 pass attempts for 41 yards. But Ben expressed confidence in his potential: "This is just his first game, and he'll improve."

Schwartzwalder also revealed that he plans to concentrate on speeding up his secondary defense. The two long gainers ripped off by Oklahoma in the fourth quarter showed the need for greater speed and stronger tackling by the defensive halfbacks. Undoubtedly he will try some personnel changes at those positions during this week's practice.

But for the first day or so, players who failed to see heavy action in Saturday's contest, will be worked the hardest at the practices.

In general, though, Ben was more than satisfied with the Orange overall defense. He cited the fact that his crew had held the Sooners scoreless for 57 minutes of the game.

The grizzled coach also heaped praise on his soph standouts. Fullback Jim "Bo" Nance showed everyone that he belonged on the field. Whenever that yardage was needed, "Bo" was more than happy to oblige.

The other sophs receiving kind words from Schwartzwalder were backs Billy Hunter, Nat Duckett, Mike Koski, and linemen Gerry Everling and Paul Houle. Hunter, Duckett, and Koski performed well in the backfield, while Everling and Houle were outstanding on defense. All are expected to see a lot of action in the Army contest.

The sole casuality in the Oklahoma tilt, was 180 lb. linebacker Ed Conti. The last play of the first half put Conti on the shelf with a sprained knee. It is doubtful whether the top defensive player in the first half will see action against Army.

Another junior, 225 pound Jim Mazurek, has been laid up with a dislocated elbow. It won't be known until mid-week if the big outside tackle can play in New York.

Ben summed up the game when he said, "We played a bettre game this year than we did against Oregon State last year, although we won that game. We just happened to be playing a better team this time."

Next time the team will be Army. Syracuse hopes it will be the better.

Syracuse Opponents Successful In Weekend Football Contests

By JULIAN LOUBE

It was a successful weekend for S.U.'s future 1962 opponents with only two teams, Navy and George Washington, losing Pittsburgh, still recovering from last week's loss to Miami, Holy Cross, and UCLA were idle.

Leading the winners was Paul Dietzel's Army team which premiered its new three-team system, and romped to a 40 - 14 victory over Wake Forest. Penn State made a 41 - 7 joke of Navy's hopes for Eastern supremacy.

In other contests, Boston College rolled over Detroit 27 to 0, and West Virginia shut out Vanderbilt 26 to 0. George Washington was the only loser to a team which isn't on the S.U schedule this year. The Generals lost to Virginia Polytechnical, 15 to 14.

Army proved to be too much for the inexperienced Wake Forest Deacons. The Cadets intercepted three passes and picked up two Wake Forest fumbles while Army backs played errorless football.

The Cadets had little trouble with Wake Forest's ground game. Army outrushed the Deacons by more than 200 yards. In the air, it was a different story. The Army pass defense left much to be desired, and both Wake Forest touchdowns came on pass plays.

Army used its second team for the entire scoreless first period. The first team took over in the second quarter and produced two touchdowns in one minute and 19 seconds. Army then took just nine plays to drive 71 yards for a third touchdown to end the first half.

The Cadets built up a 26-0 lead in the third period, and Wake Forest gave up its ground game and took to the air. The Deacons' new strategy netted them two quick touchdowns early in the final quarter.

In the end, however, it was Army all the way. The Cadets rolled up two more touchdowns late in the game for a final score of 40-14.

In the Penn State game, inexperience was again the deciding factor. The Nittany Lions recovered three Navy fumbles and picked off four passes in a 41 to 7 fiasco.

commissioners and heads of the three campus political parties, Morris said. The parties are United Students Party, Campus Alliance Party, and the Greek-Independent Alliance.

The confusion concerning the nomination of candidates stems from the deferred rushing program now in effect on the Hill. Before Syracuse adopted a deferred rush plan, Greek houses nomniated pledges for the offices through their political parties.

Last fall, the first year under the deferred plan, saw a freshman-organized political party soundly defeat all candidates of the Greek parties.

FRATERNITY RUSH REGISTRATION

Prospective fraternity rushees are urged to register in the dean of men's office today or Wednesday.

Registration hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Freshmen as well as upperclass and transfer men, must register this week.

Upperclass rush will take place Oct. 5-7. Freshman rush will be held in February, but freshmen will receive several benefits by registering early, according to Inter-Fraternity Council officer Lloyd Baskin.

All frosh who register this week will receive their "Meet the Greeks" booklet before the end of October. Those who do not register now will not receive the booklet until February, Baskin said.

Frosh registering this week will also be invited to several Inter-Fraternity Council exchange dinners later in the semester, he explained.

A $2 fee must accompany registration.

SU Press' Latest: Eugene Debs

By DANIEL RITEY

Syracuse University Press' sixth book in its "Men and Movement" series was published Monday and is now on sale in local bookstores.

Entitled, "Eugene V. Debs — Socialist for President," the book focuses upon the presidential campaigns from 1900 to 1920. Its author, H. Wayne Morgan, is a specialist on American history and is on the staff of the University of Texas.

Morgan pictures Debs as a gangling, quixotic individual who champions a humanitarian rather than a theoretical brand of socialism. Debs was not a strict follower of Marxism, but his philosophy — usually homespun — while it may have lacked intellectual realism, was certainly brought home to people through Debs' emotional speeches.

The dedicated, idealistic Socialist leader ran five times for the presidency of the United States. Morgan analyzes and evaluates the campaigns, while also painting a picture of Debs as a man.

The author likens Debs to a "political Pied Piper," one who consistantly lured crowds away from such political notables as William Howard Taft and Senator Chauncey Depew. His fiery speeches drew large crowds, packed great halls and made his name — and the movement he stood for — household names.

Four times he campaigned openly across the country, but his fifth presidnetial try was the most unusual and memorable. Debs was nominated as the Socialist Party's presidential candidate in a federal prison where he was serving a ten year term for sedition. His supporters capitalized on his plight with the campaign slogan of: "From the prison to the White House."

Morgan's book is illustrated with photographs that capture the excitement of campaigning, and cartoons which depict the political climate of that era.

Author's Background

H. Wayne Morgan received his B.A. from Arizona State University, his M.A. from Claremont Graduate School and his Ph.D. from U.C.L.A. A specialist on American history from the Civil War to the First World War, he taught at U.C.L.A. and San Jose State College, California before joining the staff of Texas University.

Other books in the Men and Movements series include: Conscience in Politics: Adlai E. Stevenson in the 1950's; Norman Thomas: Respectable Rebel; Gifford Pinchot: Bull Moose Progressive; Oswald Garrison Villard: Liberal of the 1920's and Henry A. Wallace: Quixotic Crusade 1948.

Willie Named to D.C. Delinquency Project

DR. CHARLES V. WILLIE

By DANIEL. RITEY

The cheerful young man cleared a massive pile of papers from his desk, leaned back in his chair and, with some justified pride, explained his newly-created federal position.

"I've been appointed director of research for a large-scale juvenile delinquency prevention control project in Washington, D. C.," Dr. Charles V. Willie said. "This project is being sponsored by the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime," he added.

Dr. Willie stressed the importance of this control project. "I look at it as a real opportunity for services to the country and experience for my own interest in local community affairs. Working in Washington should really broaden my experience."

Three-Man

"There is to be a three-man planning staff for the project," said Willie, "one for administration, another for community organization and myself for research."

The planning phase of the program is slated to run from 18 months to two years. A quarter of a million dollars has been allocated for the planning budget, but the final budget for the control project's operations will have to be determined after the planning phase.

The university has granted him a two year leave of absence from the sociology and anthropology department, where he is an assistant professor, and from the Youth Development Center, where he is a research associate.

Elaborating further on the project's significance, Willie said, "SU and the Development Center felt that this was a contribution that the university could make—in making me available—because of the project's importance. Recognizing that Washington, D. C., is a center of national and international concern and that the experiences of the D.C.ers have national and international implications, the university, because of the project's significance, decided to let me go."

Preventive

Willie stressed the preventive aspect of the project as opposed to the "cop" attitude. "Our role is not to be one of policemen," he said. "We want to develop a comprehensive plan that will provide appropriate youth ser-

Grad Students Start Training For Overseas

Fifteen graduate students are studying at Syracuse University to prepare for one-year internships without pay at U.S. government agencies in India.

The project, called the Graduate Overseas Training Program, is sponsored by the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship.

Selected from ten universities, the students have been studying Hindi under the direction of Prof. Agehananda Bharati as well as attending daily orientation sessions.

Included in the Hindi instruction are reading and discussion of problems of cultural communication, economic development, foreign policy and American character.

Before beginning their internship assignments next month the group will study Indian history and government policy in New Delhi.

Arriving at New Delhi, the graduate students will be assigned by the American embassy to internships with the U.S. Information Service, the Technical Cooperation Mission and the American consulate.

The program is designed for young men and women possessing advanced degrees in public administration, economics and communications to try out an overseas career with a government agency.

IFC Meeting Slated Tonight At Phi Delt

The Inter-Fraternity Council, meeting at 7:30 tonight at Phi Delta Theta, will discuss plans for participation in a national IFC competition. Lloyd Baskin, public relations chairman, will present a descriptive report to be submitted to council representatives for judgement on inter-fraternity excellence, stated IFC President Thomas Rigoli.

Committee reports will be given by the chairmen of rushing, cooperative food buying, "Meet the Greeks" and judicial board. Preliminary proofs of the "Meet the Greeks" pamphlets will be distributed to delegates.

A special community relations project, still in the planning process, will be brought before the council by Win Wittaker. This project will be in addition to the previous fraternity altruistic endeavors, Rigoli said.

Bailey Citee U. S. Maturity At ISO Convo

In spite of her obvious defects, America's maturity lies in her constitution, Dean Stephen K. Bailey of the Maxwell School told international students and guests Tuesday evening.

Bailey stressed a convocation and reception for international students in Maxwell Auditorium.

"Here, then, is the indictment," Bailey said. He presented the stereotype of a national character of childish idealism coupled with materialism. He referred to "television sets in every bathroom" and "three cars in every breezeway.."

"America is more mature .. . . than her critics realize," Bailey charged He referred to poet T. S. Eliot's portrayal of a world ending "not with a bang, but with a whimper."

Critics

Critics of the system, Bailey said, are not all wrong. Neither he said, are they infallible.

Despite what he termed a "vast agenda of unfinished business," Bailey acclaimed America's 'ability to sustain peacefully alternating political parties."

But "true maturity is not withdrawal and dispassion," he said. "We must not settle for things as they are," he charged; rather, we must act before the benefits of our nation belong to others." From the international students, he said, we hope for an understanding of the U. S.' role as a world leader.

Negro Issue

The nation can not gloss over the Negro issue, "America's greatest shame," he said.

Bailey's speech was accompanied by addresses from Theodore Bayer and Carol (Shultze) Lucha. president and vice president of Joint Student Government; Nally Atallah, president of the International Students Organization; Vincent O'Neill, president of the World Affairs Council of Syracuse and Chancellor William P. Tolley.

Parties Agree: Frosh To Run Own Elections

By ANDY PORTE

This year's freshman class will conduct its own elections.

A plan calling for a freshman nominating convention was approved last night by representatives of the three campus political parties at a meeting Tuesday night at Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

The plan, which will be presented to Joint Student Legislature tonight, calls for each freshman floor and living center to chose delegates to the convention. The convention will then choose three candidates for each office from those who desire to run. Elections will be Oct 17.

JSL Elections Commissioners James Morris and Katherine Antony said that all freshmen wishing to run for class office will have to submit a petition to an elections committee. This group will be formed in the near future, and may partially consist of freshmen.

The convention is planned for Oct. 9-10. Campaigns would open when the candidates are presented to the class at the Activities Exchange Commission convocation on Oct. 14. Wendy Wriston, vice president of the junior class, said the juniors will sponsor a mixer for the frosh on Oct. 16.

The parties issued a joint statement reading:

"The parties all agree that this will stimulate politics on the campus as a whole and that this solution is the best possible for the coming elections and also for the freshman class. "

James Gray represented the Greek - Independent Alliance, Robert Taylor was present for United Students Party, and William Gedalecia represented Campus Alliance Party at the meeting.

Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford also expressed his support for the program, as did JSG head Theodore Bayer. Bayer said, "I feel that this plan will provide the Class of '66 with the utmost freedom in selecting the most capable and enthusiastic officers possible."

Student Cars: A Beginning

The administration took a big step in a good direction Monday when it approved the Joint Student Legislature Car Bill. The most important implication behind this adminstrative green light was the introduction of a type of campus merit system.

By basing car driving privileges on a merit system rather than on an indiscriminate seniority basis, the university may have struck out in a direction that could see other, more important phases of campus, life based on merit.

One of the problems associated with car ownership—poor grades—may be significantly reduced because of the action taken by the chancellor's cabinet in approving the student-supported bill.

The1.6 cumulative average requirement for sophmores can serve as an incentive to freshmen to raise their grades by better studying habits and harder work. If this is accomplished and they can afford the luxury of a car, the student will still have to work to keep their privilege.

For juniors and seniors the new bill will mean the need for a concerted effort to stay off all types of university probation or suffer the loss of driving privileges on campus.

In the long run this bill should reduce the number of drivers on campus or at least assure that those driving have at least attained their permission through some amount of hard work.

There are, of course, other implications to the bill. The fact that students took a large part in adopting this new measure and will take an active role in carrying the measure out is another important consideration.

Often the complaint heard around campus is the lack of decision-making freedom allowed the student body. Now perhaps students will take advantage of this one accomplishment and will do their part to help in other affairs on campus concerning students.

Finally we cannot overlook the role played by members of Joint Student Legislature and in particular Joint Student Government head Theodore Bayer in working for the passage of this bill.

Last week the Car Bill seemed doomed to become entangled in administrative red tape, possibly to die a slow and cruel death, or at least face delay. But Bayer, who remained confident of the bill's passage despite reports of its delay, worked for the earliest effective date—immediately following the Thanksgiving holiday.

All this leads to faint feelings of optimism on campus. Now perhaps the administration and its newfound partners can come up with a few suggestions on the campus parking situation.

Whistle Stop

This past weekend plans were announced in Syracuse for the arrival of two political leaders later in the fall. Thus the city that is still recovering from the Democratic state convention must ready a welcome for the President of the United States and his predecessor.

President Kennedy will stop here on his campaign for the Democratic ticket which is facing a strong group of opponents, largely incumbents, on the Republican side of the ballot.

Speaking for the latter group will be Gen. Eisenhower. world traveler of late and one-time president of the U. S.

We feel it is too bad the paths of the two men couldn't cross here in Syracuse because there would be so many interesting questions that could be asked of the two in a panel discussion.

Obviously. we would like to discuss the Cuban crisis with the nation's leader and former leader. Somewhere there is a story that should be heard.

Unfortunately. they will come at different times and say nearly the same things. The people of New York State will vote. Kennedy will go back to the White House. Eisenhower to Gettysburg and Russians will keep going to Cuba.

I'M GLAD YOU ASKED

More About Beanies

By M. H. Weinstein

We really couldn't care less about how many absurd variations they think up for the frosh beanie. Yet some rather interesting problems seem to have arisen out of all this foolishness.

Orange Key Honorary said it under-ordered its beanie supply by several hundred pieces in order to insure a profit from their sales. Due to a prior agreement, the Marshall Street merchants were not allowed to take up the slack.

Almost every frosh will buy a beanie whether he wears or not. This doesn't include the extra beanies which are always sold as souvenirs to family, friends and upperclassmen.

The frosh are required to wear their beanies at football games, especially if they are to participate in placard cheering. Placard cheering serves as one of the most basic activities of the freshman class, and is almost a must if one wishes to become a goon.

If Orange Key decided it would be the only group to sell the "official" beanie, then it should have also lived up to its obligation to see that the frosh were supplied, regardless of the profit or loss involved.

Surely they did the frosh a great disservice by not doing so.

If Orange Key did benefit from a secret change in the beanie design, it should be noted that the Syracuse University Bookstore may have received even more benefit from being its sole commercial distributor.

The beanie is probably the first item which a frosh will buy upon his arrival. He is almost certain to buy a great deal of other merchandise in the same store. Thus the Bookstore gained an important advantage over its competitors on Marshall Street, although it made no profit on the beanie.

Emmanuel "Manny" Slutzger the right of fair competition on the basis of goods and services, but should the beanie become part of that competitive struggle?

If the beanie is used to support the activities of a non-commercial men's honorary, should it be allowed to become a mere commercial leader at the Bookstore?

Emmuel "Manny" Slutzger of Manny's said he was approached by members of the frosh football squad and also by frosh band members, who had come up early to train and who had not been allowed to buy their beanies ahead of the other masses of frosh.

"These kids", he said with some anger, "whether on the freshman squad or in the band, come up early and work like demons getting ready for the season. But this year the beanie sale was held at the last possible moment to keep the new design a secret. As a result, many of those who had really earned their beanies became victims of the shortage. When they came to me, there was nothing I could do for them."

He further stated that in order to accommodate his customers, he bought beanies from Orange Key at full price, and sold them for the same amount. After the supply at the Bookstore was exhausted, he had a special order made at his own risk, so that the needs of the frosh could be met.

However, he expressed a willingness to cooperate with Orange Key in the future distribution of the beanies.

Discussing the beanie question, Sol Siegel of Siegel's Pharmacy said, "At the time, I would have been happy to sell beanies for the Orange Key, without any profit for myself. The way I feel now, I don't care if I never sell another beanie, whether for them or myself. If they wish to manage their affairs in this manner, then they won't be surprised if Marshall Street is not very willing to go out of its way for them in the future."

Now we are forced to wonder how many more times Orange Key will have to change the beanie in order to protect its income.

After they run out of ideas for varying the present colors, perhaps the University color will also be changed. You may find yourself reading the "Daily Chartreuse" or cheering wildly as our maroon-shirted warriors charge down the field.

Surely there must be a better answer than the methods of distribution which were used this year, and which have already stirred up so much unnecessary bitterness.

It remains now for Orange Key to decide whether the main purpose of the beanies is to help perpetuate an old tradition and to support its own work or whether it is to be a mere commercial leader to help draw business to the Bookstore.

Has Orange Key fully investigated the possibilities of sharing distribution with Marshall Street, which has traditionally sold the beanie?

I would rather see the tradition abandoned now, than face the demoralizing prospect of future "beanie-wars."

Many of us regard that perposterous hunk of cloth with great amusement.

But if we have to have a beanie, then let's keep it a tradition and not a business.

LETTERS

TO THE EDITOR

Orchids to Mr. Weinstein on a job well done. As an apostle of the obvious he may well be unsurpassed. In Friday's D.O. he managed to fill three columns with a rather wordy summary of the major faults and failings of the Old S.U.'s Orientation Week.

Included in this critique were some charming personal touches. The revelation that a feature "writer" for "our" campus newspaper finds it all but impossible to write his name and address on a three by seven card had both thought provoking and entertaining aspects.

Perhaps in his next polysyllabic masterpiece, Mr. Weinstein plans to teach rather than degrade. He could teach the Chancellor how to speak; the freshmen how to drink and hide from convocations; the administration how to run registration:

FILMS

'The Miracle Worker'

The transition from television to the stage to the screen is often a difficult one. What is exciting and telling on the video, like "Judgement at Nuremberg," seems dull and washed out when exended to the wide screen..

"The Miracle Worker" has survived the transition, and may even have become the better for it. Fortunately the most important scenes are visual in content and director Arthur Penn has gotten the most out of them.

He has also gotten the most from his stars, with both Patty Duke and Anne Bancroft turning in exceptional performances.

Outside World

The story concerns Annie Sullivan's efforts to teach the deaf, dumb and blind Helen Keller how to communicate with the outside world.

The young Helen clutches, grabs and slaps at a world that just gets in her way. Out of love for her, her parents spoil Helen, giving her the run of the h ouse.. Miss Sullivan's first job is to let Helen know she has a teacher and a teachers means discipline.

In a beautifully acted and photographed scene Miss Sullivan makes Helen eat, seated at a table, with a spoon and folded napkin. Helen runs away from the table and Miss Sullivan races after her, under the table, around the table, on the table.

Swiftly the camera swings back and forth barely capturing the action, while the editing continues the pace. The result is a graphic image of Helen's dilemma.

Amazing Miss Duke

For the most part though, Penn concentrates on his stars. Anne Bancroft gives warmth and character to what might have been just a portrayal of a disciplinarian. Patty Duke is simply amazing as Helen Keller.

We can only hope that other "Playhouse 90" productions, such as "Requiem for a Heavyweight," and "Days of Wine and Roses" are filmed as expertly as "The Miracle Worker." JEG

ONE NIGHT STAND

'The Steve Allen Show'

By Jeff Zients

"ONE NIGHT Stand" is the Daily Orange entertainment page's "open column." Its contributors consist, not only of the DO's critics and reviewers, but of anyone, student or faculty, on campus or off, who has something worthwhile to say or report on the amusements or the arts. Pieces for "One Night Stand" are now being accepted.

After a six year hiatus Steve Allen has again found his niche in late night television. In a widely syndicated program broadcast locally over WNYS-TV, Steve now presides over one and a half hours of comedy and music, in competition, it should be noted, with his alma mater, "The Tonight Show."

Steve presents the unusual and spices it with his consistently high standard wit. Viewers witness thinks like a full grown elephant accompanying a studio orchestra on a bass drum; a strongman bursting a hot water bottle by blowing it up with his mouth; and wild spontaneous phone calls by Steve ("Hello, 'Big A Cleaners'? . . . I'd like my big A cleaned.").

The show also spotlights some of the best popular music and comedy acts in the country. Recent guests have included June Christy, Steve Lawrence, Louis Nye and Eli Mintz.

Steve also has well known political figures appear. His recent discussion with California Gov. Pat Brown offered great insight into the controversial state leader.

All of Steve's interviews are done with taste and a great deal of intelligence. Here we see the serious side of Steve Allen and he proves to be most well informed and quite well spoken.

The most important factor in "The New Steve Allen Show" is the comedy that comes from Steve himself. He is one of the most endearing, though sharpest, personalities we have found on the home screen.

His sense of humor can best be described as creative. It is always based on the situation in which he finds himself. His interviews with health faddist Gypsy Boot are classics.

There is nothing really "set" on the Allen show. He can be reading a serious poem, then announce the world is being invaded by half inch creatures from another planet. He then insists the only way to stop them is by putting "taffy traps" up and down Hollywood and Vine Streets.

"Are you with me?" he cries. "Yes!" answers the audience, and soon all are ready to invade the Hollywood Hills to stop these beats!

Steve's producers have tried a new idea in showmanship. They just let the show carry itself, without using gaudy overplanning to create the momentum.

They are fortunate indeed to have the comedy genius of Steve Allen at their nightly helm. Steve's new show is just what any entertainment hour should be: unlimited variety and just lots of fun.

Fencing Sessions Start October 1

By BILL CRONAUER

Dr. Alexander Dako, coach of the Syracuse University fencing team, has announced that fencing classes will be held Oct. 1 in Archbold Gymnasium. All interested students can report to the practice gym at 4 p.m. Monday.

Dako, in his fourth year at the helm of the Hill swordsmer, is counting on another winning campaign. The 1961-62 squad compiled an impressive 7-3 record.

Only a few veterans dot the Orange fencing roster this season. All members of the epee team have departed. Last year's epeemen paced by Ed Siedlick won the North Atlantic championships.

In the sabre class, Stu Holander returns for his final campaign. The crack swordsman was a consistent winner for Dako last season.

Dako is banking on two lettermen, Stan Harvey and Les Monostory, to pile up points in the foil division. Both boys ranked highly among the East's top fencers in 1961-62.

Coach Dako expects added strength from a strong sophomore class. The sophs must produce if SU is to repeat last year's successful season.

The Piety fencing team hosts Hobart Dec. 8 in its opening match. Other opponents include Buffalo, Cornell, RIT and Penn State. The Orangemen travel to Buffalo on Feb. 23 for triangular meet with the University of Buffalo and Case Tech.

The sword season climaxes with the North Atlantic championships in March.

Frosh fencers are urged to attend Monday's session. Dako plans to acquaint new candidates with collegiate fencing procedure. Two freshman matches are scheduled with Rochester Institute of Technology.

Smith announced the following hours:

Monday, 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Smith warned students that Monday would be the final opportunity to obtain ID photos or football tickets.

Those who missed Tuesday's intramural meeting must contact Milt Howard in the intramural office. The deadline for entries is Monday.

Sadler Fights Back Against Band

Residents of Sadler Hall have sent a petition to the Dean of Men's office asking for relocation of nightly band practice sessions. The action was inspired by a three hour rehearsal which lasted until 10 Monday night on Hendricks field, adjacent to the dormitory.

The band usually practices in the afternoon between 4-5 p.m. The special rehearsal was called to give the musicians extra time to prepare for Saturday's Army game.

At first, the residents came to their windows and viewed the bandsmen with interest. As the rehearsal wore on, the upperclassmen became increasingly annoyed, and violent threats were yelled at band director, Donald Schmaus.

Finally, the residents were forced to drastic action, and the rehearsal was interrupted for several miuntes while a hi-fi on an upper floor broadcast a slightly more professional version of "On Brave Old Army Team."

Several bandsmen have stated that this type of rehearsal is not a regular practice, and it will probably not be repeated again.

By 1929 a total of 14,942 newspapers were being printed in the United States.

All sports staffers and interested undergraduates should attend the DO Sports Department Organizational meeting, this afternoon at 3.

Ben Changes SU Strategy For Cadets

By HOWIE SCHNEIDER

Two masters of football strategy will bring their opposing squads into the Polo Grounds on Saturday. Coach Ben Schwartzwalder will bring with him a new set of battle tactics in an attempt to down Paul Dietzel's Cadets and even the grid season at 1-1.

At Oklahoma Schwartzwalder substituted an offensive unit of reserves when the Orange had possession of the ball, and used an almost completely different list of substitutes when on defense. Ben said he will not use the same system in New York.

The SU skipper commented, "We've got to get two teams before we try to get three. We are trying to get away from offensive and defensive platooning."

The youthful Army coach employs a three-team substitution system. He bolsters his starting regular eleven consisting of his finest all-around ballplayers, with two specialty squads, the "Go" offensive team and the ballhawking defensive "Chinese Bandits."

A well drilled Army machine clicked and routed Wake Forest, 40-14, in its opener.

Schwartzwalder announced yesterday that Ed Conti, a questionable starter, will play this week. Conti, who was injured in the Sooner game, was the defensive standout in the first half with six tackles. He should be a key man in the Orange defense.

Another defensive player who the coach praised, and who will be in the starting lineup this week is soph Gerry Everling. "Everling could have been our best defensive player," Ben said.

Offensively there is a fine group of sophomore hopefuls. High on the list are Bill Hunter and Jim Nance.

Ben commented, "Hunter hit hard and showed he could take a beating. He added, "Nance looked good, but we have to teach him to run lower."

Tuesday Schwartzwalder and his staff ran long and tedious drills in an effort to make the squad as sharp as possible for the oncoming game, despite the rain.

The coach found some optimism in our opening loss. Ben remarked about the defeat, "Nobody likes to lose, but when you at least show potential it makes it easier."

The Orange mentor indicated the need for picking up the right blocking assignments, better work in the backfield, and a sharper passing attack.

Syracuse Harriers Improving; Open Against Rival Colgate

By MIKE BROWN

The SU cross country team gets the fall season under way Oct. 8 when they meet the Maroon of Colgate at Hamilton.

The Orange harriers have seven meets this year, playing host to Buffalo on Oct. 13, and Army the following week. In addition, the Syracusans journey to Ithaca; East Lansing and Ann Arbor, Michigan; and twice to New York City.

Coach Bob Grieve has high hopes for the team which is sparked by the return of senior captain Mike Guzman, Mouncy Ferguson, Jack Dailey, and Steve Killorin. In addition to these returnes, the squad is bolstered by sophomores. Mike Shuster, Cal Evans, and Tom Higgins.

Last year Syracuse sported a 2-3 mark, but the prospects look bright for a successful season in 1962.

After Army visits the Hill on Oct. 20, the Orangemen travel to Ithaca for a meet with the Big Red of Cornell, and on Nov. 3, the squad meets Fordham in New York City.

The thinclads will also take part in the United States Federation meet in Ann Arbor as well as the N.C.A.A. meet in East Lansing.

If runner Jack Dailey can develop to the fullest potential and Steve Killorin can shake off last year's injury, the Orange cross country squad of 1962 may be a tough one to beat.

The SU Frosh open their fall schedule Oct. 8 at Hamilton against Colgate, and return home on Oct. 13 to meet the Buffalo Frosh.

Demo Candidate On Hill Today

Democratic candidate for United States Congressman from Onondaga County, Lee Alexander, will appear at 4 p.m. today for a rally on the Main Library steps, according to Syracuse University Young Democrats President Vincent Monterosso.

Mr. Alexander expects to base his candidacy on his stand behind school and college aid bills.

When asked if his club would back Mr. Morganthal for Govenor of New York State, President Monterosso's only comment was that there is "definite dissension."

The Young Democrats will have signups Wednesday and Thursday in Maxwell Hall Lobby.

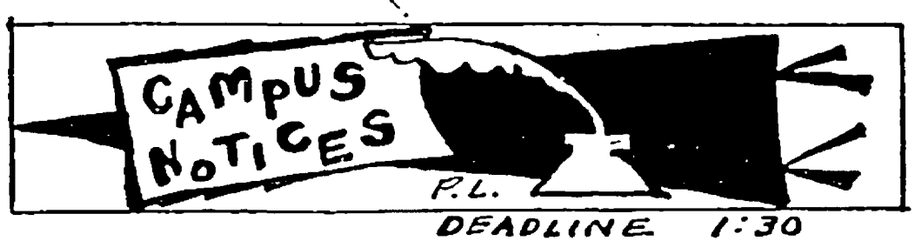
Law School Admission Test Dates Announced



The Law School Admission Test, required of applicants for admission for most American law schools, will be given at more than 100 centers throughout the United States on Nov. 10, 1962, Feb. 9, April 20, and Aug. 3, 1963.

A candidate must make separate applications for admission to each law school of his choice and should inquire of each whether it wishes him to take the Law School Admission Test and when. Many law schools select their freshmen applicants in the preceding spring. Candidates for admission to next year's classes are advised to take either the November or February test if possible.

The exam is prepared and administered by Educational Testing Service. The morning test contains questions measuring verbal aptitudes and reasoning ability rather than acquired information.

The afternoon session includes two tests, one of which provides a measure of writing ability and the other of general background. Sample questions and information regarding registration for and administration of the test are given in a bulletin of information.

The bulletin, which includes an application for the test, should be obtained six weeks in advance of the desired testing date from the Law School Admission Test, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New New Jersey. Applications must reach ETS at least two weeks before the desired test administration date to allow time for completion of necessary testing arrangements for each candidate.

Brown Back from Hawaii

Maxwell School Prof. of American Civilization Stuart Gerry Brown has returned to Syracuse University from a year's leave of absence spent at the East-West Center of the University of Hawaii.

While he plans to remain at SU, Dr., Brown now calls himself an "adopted son of the 50th state," said "I am very fond of Hawaii and intend to return on my next leave of absence."

Dr. Brown and Prof. Renel Denny of the University of Chicago were the first two visiting professors of the educational center operated by the University of Hawaii for the United States State Dept.

Holding the title of visiting distinguished professor of American civilization at the center, Dr. Brown taught a course in American Civilization and a graduate seminar on the American presidency. Dr. Brown explained that center's purpose is to bring together Asian and American students for better international relations.

Author

Author of many books including "Conscience in Politics," published by the SU Press. While in Hawaii, Dr. Brown completed a book on Thomas Jefferson. It will be published in 1963 by the Washington Square Press.

Referring to the center as "a very exciting experience," Dr. Brown said, "I was impressed by the quality of students coming from Asian countries and by the leadership of the East-West staff."

Comparing the Asian and American students in the program, Dr. Brown explained that "American undergraduates are not so strongly motivated to learn as are the Asians." However, "the quality of American education is so much better than the quality of Asian education that the performance of Americans and Asians is nearly the same when they are brought together," Brown said.

Myth

"The American idea that Asian and African people are eagerly seeking all the information they can get about the United States is a myth," according to Dr. Brown.

He said he feels Asian students come to the East-West Center to follow a course of study rather than to learn about the United States, while American students are interested in learning about Asia.

Returning from Hawaii by slow boat around the world, Dr. Brown visited 14 countries in Asia, the Middle East and Europe.

vice to strengthen family relationships and mobilize the total community to give assistance to youth."

The fact that the youths alone cannot handle and solve all their problems was pointed out by Willie. "It should be emphasized that adults must willingly help the youths and in take an active part in trying to prevent juvenile delinquency."

"We encourage young 'J. D.'s' to change their behavior before we accept them and try to help them, but in Washington, we'll have to do the reverse, that is, we'll have to accept them first as people and then try to change their behavior and outlook."

Report Submitted

"I have made no preliminary survey of the Washington scene except for the report I submitted in August." Willie said that it was this report, which grew out of a consultation with the President's Committee in August, that led to his appointment.

"After filing the report — which evaluated research facilities in Washington — I was notified three weeks later of their desire to make me research director," he said.

Willie and his wife, an SU Fine Arts graduate, plan to leave for Washington before the first of October—the date he's due to begin work there. Asked if he expects any housing troubles in Washington because of his race, Willie replied, "I've got an apartment in a new housing project with no trouble, and my contacts there told me that I should expect no racial trouble."

"Since Washington is about half white and half Negro, this will be an excellent opportunity to develop reconciliations between the races," Willie said.

Foreign Pics At Midtown

A program and Russian and German films will be presented by the Midtown theater tonight and Thursday night.

Tonight's program includes filmings of Chekhov's "The Anna Cross," and "Jubele," a comedy. The former film begins about 6:15 p.m. The last complete show starts at 7:30 p.m. The films are in Russian with English subtitles.

Thursday night will feature two German films, "Der Koenig—Der Bernina," and "Zwei Bayern St. Pauli" ("Two Boys in St. Paul.") A German newsreel will also be shown. The films are in German without any translation.

The famous Gridiron Club was organized by Washington D. C. correspondents in 1885.

frosh, saying "We feel our proposal for freshman elections to be run by the JSG elections commissioners woull be in the best interests of your class."

She added, "We also see this system as best for independent control of your class elections and future functions such as Freshman Weekend."

Tentative plans call for each floor or living center with 55 or more students to be entitled to three delegates. Living units with from 30 to 54 people would be entitled to two delegates. Cottages with fewer than 30 students would receive one delegate. City students, who are assigned to individual centers, would be counted as living in those centers.

Each candidate would have an opportunity to address the convention, and a single ballot will be taken after the candidates for each office have spoken. The top three vote-getters would then be delegated as final candidates.

sions for late classes must be accompanied by a note from the professor concerned. For activities permissions, students must petition to AWS Standards Board.

Curfews

Extension of coed curfews for cultural events at the Regent Theater was also discussed at the meeting. Extensions would be granted in individual cases.

At a meeting of AWS Standards Boards following the executive officers meeting, coed Friday night and special 2 a.m. curfews were brought up.

A committee was appointed to investigate possible extension of the Friday night curfew. A committee also will determine the number and type of 2 a.m. curfews to be granted.

Standards Board is also planning a system of checking with women's living center presidents to see how many campus overnights are being taken.

dents who are not delegates to volunteer for committee work.

A revamped anti-demonstration act, held in Personnel Committee for over a year, will be presented in tonight's session, Mittleman said. Now known as the Student Responsibility Act, the bill was passed last spring by JSL and was approved with minor changes by the Personnel Committee.

Elections commissioners James Morris and Katherine Antony will present a bill regarding freshman class elections according to Morris. The commissioners were completing the bill as Steering Committee met.

"I want the same type of legislation this year as that car bill," Mittleman instructed the Steering Committee. "This is the way you should be thinking in your committees," he told committee chairmen.

He said student government will attempt to rewrite its constitution this year, seeking what he termed a "good working system." He made further reference to sanctions against senators who are lax in legislature attendance.

Three committee chairmen requested time extensions before presenting reports. Virginia Lederer, advisory system chairman, described an organized student tutoring program on other college campuses. Students from several campuses, she said, have made arrangements to tutor pupils in their area high schools.

IFC Postponement Of Rushing Schedule Due to Low Sign Ups

By ADAIR DUFINE

Due to low registration of upperclass and transfer men for rushing, the Inter-Fraternity Council has passed a recommendation to its Procedural Committee for changing the date of rush. Previously scheduled for Oct. 5 to 7, coordinating with sorority rush. Fraternity rush dates will now be up to the discretion of the committee.

Validating the postponed rushing, Fraternity Administrator James McMurray stated, "A deferred rush will will enable more interested men to register and avoid conflicting with scheduled university and fraternity plans."

The postponement decision was made at an IFC meeting Wednesday night at Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Figures

Rushing registration figures are 400 less than last year's totals. "Only 115 upperclassmen and transfers have registered, stated Michael Steinberg, (Sigma Alpha Mu) co-rushing chairman. Hurt by the new rushing rules it adopted last year and lack of publicity, IFC plans to hold a second rush convocation before the end of the semester.

The council suggested three open rush parties, in which houses may participate in at their disgression. These parties may be held in any sequence, suggested McMurray.

According to this year's rushing rules, no upperclass or transfer student may be pledged before the Final rush session said IFC President Thomas Rigoli (Phi Delta Theta).

Committee

The suggestion for the formation of a committee to investigate legal places for Greek parties was proposed by Alfred (Win) Whittaker (Lambda Chi Alpha). This committee would be represented by individual Greek houses, who would personally check various places in and around Syracuse. "Capacity, location of bar, banquet facilities, and seclusion are the major points of judgement", said Whittaker.

"The committee would be a service of the IFC," said Rigoli. With the approval of the council, the program would be handled by the Judicial Board, with possible jurisdiction by Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford.

Police

"In this way the Greeks could police themselves and gain greater respect for the system by regulating their social events," said Rigoli.

The postponed Sagamore Conference was discussed by the delegates and members were urged to support the proposed regional conference. Schools included in the conference are: Cornell, Colgate, Hamilton, Union, and State University of New York at Buffalo. Rigoli suggested this conference be incorporated in the plans for Greek Week, combining two IFC functions and binding the houses together.

The possibility of the IFC placing for national IFC awards was brought before the conucil. Public relations chairman Lloyd Baskin (Sigma Alpha Mu) stated, "We can place this year. By next year we could win the top award—the Balfour Trophy," added Rigoli.

Greek Week

Plans for Greek Week '63 were reviewed before IFC. Guest possibilities for the weekend are Ray Charles, Johnny Mathais, Peter Paul and Mary and Hendricks and Ross. No plans have been finalized, but the committee is open to suggestions and views from individual houses.

The annual university blood drive was annqunced by Rigoli, who urged fraternity support. The drive will take place Oct. 25, run by Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity. "This could be a tremendous indication of fraternity unity," said Rigoli.

Committee reports on cooperative food buying and judicial board were presented to the council. A review of rushing rules and procedures was suggested by Whittaker, judicial board chariman, before the onslaught of upperclass and transfer rushees.

JSL Amends Frosh Elections Procedure

Joint Student Legislature Wednesday night unanimously passed an amended freshmen elections act after 35 minutes of debate. In a session which lasted nearly three hours, the legislature ground into action at its first session of the year.

The amendment stated that more than three candidates may run for each class office. Additional candidates will be placed on the ballot if they obtain 250 signatures favoring their candidacy.

Fifty signatures are required for the twelve candidates placed on the ballot by the nominating convention.

An amendment to eliminate the services of elections commissioers was defeated. The proposal suggested that a freshman commission alone should handle the elections, then was altered to read "under guidance of the election commissioners."

Under the new act, a freshman elections committee will be appointed by the JSL elections commissioners to run a nominating convention and election.

Delegates to the freshman convention, to be held on or before Oct. 11, will be determined by the living center's population.

In other action, the legislature:

1. Returned to committee a proposed letter regarding the csae of James Meredith and his admission to the University of Mississippi.
2. Passed an amended student responsibility act, superseding a previous act which prohibited campus demonstrations. Orderly demonstrations which do not violate civil law or endanger "life, limb or property" would be permitted by the act.
3. Confirmed that the Government Structures Committee will revamp the present JSG Constitution.
4. Received applications for service on the ten JSL committees.
5. Requested that all male senators wear shirts and ties to the legislative sessions, that senators address each other by title.
6. Received and referred to appropriate commissioners a complaint from the Student Bar Association of the SU Law School complaining of inequitable assignment of football seats.

In a mass oath, all delegates present were sworn in as JSL senators. Over 60 living centers were not represented at the session.

Clifford Defines JSG's Sphere Of Obligation

"Action is the major responsibility of student government," Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford told Wednesday's Joint Student Legislature session.

Clifford received a standing ovation from the group after an address outlining the duties and defects of campus government.

He said, "It is clearly delegate within the limits of university that the student government act policy; that it promote awareness of academic excellence and the purposes of this institution (SU); and that it support a social and cultural program to meet the needs of the student body."

Committed

"Syracuse University has long been committed to the achievement of excellence in student government," Clifford declared.

Communication, a vital link between the student government and the university as a whole, was improved when the 1961 conference at Pinebrook okayed student representation on the university Personnel Board, now composed of faculty, administrators and student government leaders, Clifford said.

However he questioned whether the comments of the students on the board are representative of total student opinion.

The third section of philosophy 1A will have its meeting places posted outside room 23, H. B. Crouse Hall early Friday morning. Dr. Fernando I. Molina announced Wednesday.

Long Search for Quality

By Charles M. Steinberg

"The most important ingredients in a university are the faculty and students," says Lester H. Dye, Syracuse University director of admissions.

Lauding Chancellor William P. Tolley for building an outstanding faculty at Syracuse, Dye accepts the formidable task of supplying the students.

To this end, Director Dye and his staff each fall travel widely throughout the country visiting high schools, contacting guidanace counselors, representing Syracuse University at college night-type programs and interviewing prospective students.

Last year the Admissions Office conducted over 4,000 student interviews. They mailed out better than 100,000 bulletins, and processed more than 8,000 completed applications for admission.

"The volume of our work is tremendous," Dye explained in an interview with the Daily Orange. It shows the strain of the competition for the nation's best high school students, he said:

Expanded Office

Since becoming director of admissions here two years ago, Dye has expanded the activities of the Admissions Office. Three new members were added to his staff this year; Robert S. Phillips, formerly with the English department; Donald F. Sprague from the dean of men's staff; and William G. DeColigny of Trinity College. They join Ronald M. Betz, an assistant director of admissions, and Mrs. Pauline K. Madey, administrative assistant. "This will enable us to greatly expand our high school visits," Dye noted.

The Admissions Office now also employs a full-time statistician.

Publications

A host of new publications are now edited by the Admissions Office, most intended for guidance counselors.

This year an early decision plan has been inaugurated for outstanding candidates.

Among the new admission requirements Dye has instituted are a Feb. 15 application deadline, a more specifically outlined program of preparation, and, slated to take effect next year, required CEEB Achievement Tests.

Studies by the Admissions Office already show a significant improvement in the quality of Syracuse freshman classes. Since 1957, the mean score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test for various colleges in the university has increased by as much as 100 points, Dye said.

Dye believes the quality of entering Syracuse students will continue to accelerate because of the growth of the Hill's "outstanding faculty." While engaged in a job often primarily of public relations, Dye notes that nothing he does "can supplant the recommendation of Syracuse by students, alumni and friends."

Dye listed the university-wide mean for last year's entering class at 542, verbal, and 549, math, clearly above the national average.

A higher mean score is predicted for this year's frosh by the office through the statistics have to be compiled.

Delegates to the freshman convention, to be held on or before Oct. 11, will be determined by the living center's population.

In other action, the iegislature:

1. Returned to committee a proposed letter regarding the csae of James Meredith and his admission to the University of Mississippi.

2. Passed an amended student responsibility act, superseding a previous act which prohibited campus demonstrations. Orderly demonstrations which do not violate civil law or endanger "life, limb or property" would be permitted by the act.

3. Confirmed that the Government Structures Committee will revamp the present JSG Constitution.

4. Received applications for service on the ten JSL committees.

5. Requested that all male senators wear shirts and ties to the legislative sessions, that senators address each other by title.

6. Received and referred to appropriate commissioners a complaint from the Student Bar Association of the SU Law School complaining of inequitable assignment of football seats.

In a mass oath, all delegates present were sworn in as JSL senators. Over 60 living centers were not represented at the session.

Clifford Defines JSG's Sphere Of Obligation

"Action is the major responsibility of student government," Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford told Wednesday's Joint Student Legislature session.

Clifford received a standing ovation from the group after an address outlining the duties and defects of campus government.

He said, "It is clearly delegate within the limits of university that the student government act policy; that it promote awareness of academic excellence and the purposes of this institution (SU); and that it support a social and cultural program to meet the needs of the student body."

Committed

"Syracuse University has long been committed to the achievement of excellence in student government," Clifford declared.

Communication, a vital link between the student government and the university as a whole, was improved when the 1961 conference at Pinebrook okayed student representation on the university Personnel Board, now composed of faculty, administrators and student government leaders, Clifford said.

However he questioned whether the comments of the students on the board are representative of total student opinion.

FROSH NEEDED FOR ELECTIONS

Freshmen who want to serve on the elections committee which will supervise this fall's frosh elections, must submit applications by 5 p.m. Monday.

The applications, which should be turned into the JSG office, 907 University Ave., behind Winchell Hall, must include name, campus address, telephone number, high school activities, college activities and ideas concerning freshman elections.

Post Meeting Places

The third section of philosophy 1A will have its meeting places posted outside room 23, H. B. Crouse Hall early Friday morning. Dr. Fernando I. Molina announced Wednesday.

Long Search for Quality

By Charles M. Steinberg

"The most important ingredients in a university are the faculty and students," says Lester H. Dye, Syracuse University director of admissions.

Lauding Chancellor William P. Tolley for building an outstanding faculty at Syracuse, Dye accepts the formidable task of supplying the students.

To this end, Director Dye and his staff each fall travel widely throughout the country visiting high schools, contacting guidanace counselors, representing Syracuse University at college night-type programs and interviewing prospective students.

Last year the Admissions Office conducted over 4,000 student interviews. They mailed out better than 100,000 bulletins, and processed more than 8,000 completed applications for admission.

"The volume of our work is tremendous," Dye explained in an interview with the Daily Orange. It shows the strain of the competition for the nation's best high school students, he said:

Expanded Office

Since becoming director of admissions here two years ago, Dye has expanded the activities of the Admissions Office. Three new members were added to his staff this year; Robert S. Phillips, formerly with the English department; Donald F. Sprague from the dean of men's staff; and William G. DeColigny of Trinity College. They join Ronald M. Betz, an assistant director of admissions, and Mrs. Pauline K. Madey, administrative assistant. "This will enable us to greatly expand our high school visits," Dye noted.

The Admissions Office now also employs a full-time statistician.

Publications

A host of new publications are now edited by the Admissions Office, most intended for guidance counselors.

This year an early decision plan has been inaugurated for outstanding candidates.

Among the new admission requirements Dye has instituted are a Feb. 15 application deadline, a more specifically outlined program of preparation, and, slated to take effect next year, required CEEB Achievement Tests.

Studies by the Admissions Office already show a significant improvement in the quality of Syracuse freshman classes. Since 1957, the mean score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test for various colleges in the university has increased by as much as 100 points, Dye said.

Dye believes the quality of entering Syracuse students will continue to accelerate because of the growth of the Hill's "outstanding faculty." While engaged in a job often primarily of public relations, Dye notes that nothing he does "can supplant the recommendation of Syracuse by students, alumni and friends."

Dye listed the university-wide mean for last year's entering class at 542, verbal, and 549, math, clearly above the national average.

A higher mean score is predicted for this year's frosh by the office through the statistics have to be compiled..

Another Chance

This weeks marks the beginning of another year for the numerous student organizations on campus. With different leaders than a year ago and some new members in all these groups, they present possibilities of successful seasons to one with an optimistic outlook.

Joint Student Legislature opened its doors Wednesday evening shortly after its car bill received the approval of the administration. With this major accomplishment on the record of JSL we would like to think that more than sound and fury will be forthcoming for the remainder of the year.

Often in the past that has been the sum total of JSL efforts but we hope that one good turn will bring about another.

Another large student organization held its first meeting Wednesday. The Inter-Fraternity Council, composed of delegates from each fraternity on campus, began a new year under its president Thomas Rigoli.

This is the second year under Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford and perhaps IFC is ready to get fraternities to work with him now that they know he means what he says. Last year eight fraternities tested Dean Clifford's word and found exactly that—he meant everyone of them.

With this knowledge and with the upcoming panel on fraternities, IFC can go a long way in setting up not only a better fraternity system (that is imperative) but rather making the Syracuse system one of the best in the nation.

The other student groups such as Association of Women students, Joint Student Court, Panhellenic and the numberless other organizations, small and large, where students gather to discuss affairs common to their interests, would do well to make an extra effort to keep up with the growth of Syracuse University and for the first time make a definite student contribution to the campus.

The King Is Dead

As heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson tumbled toward the canvas in the first round of Tuesday night's title fight, one had the terrible feeling that the always-shaky boxing world was tumbling down with him.

For in the far neutral corner lurked the awesome figure that, at the count of ten, was to become the king of the boxing world. His reign may be long but his realm will not be impressive.

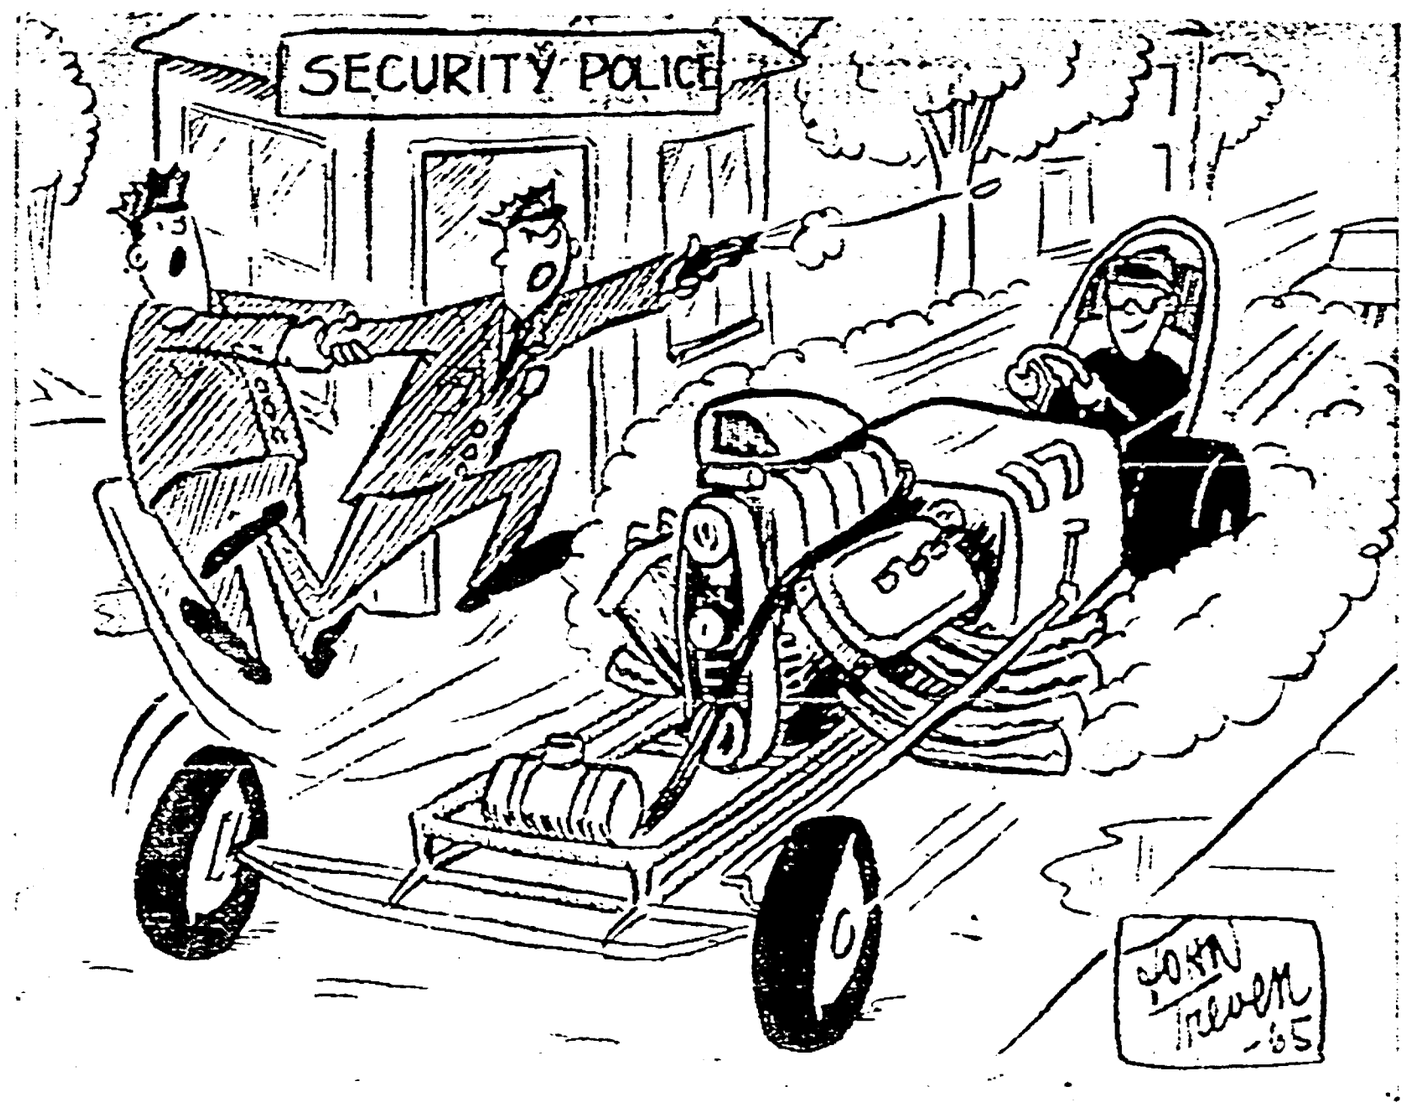
We do not mean to say there is no hope for Sonny Liston as a champion. The three priests who were in his dressing room have faith in him and have done a large amount of work to rehabilitate him.

The fact that he needed rehabilitation and that New York state refused to sanction him because of his criminal record are enough to make us seriously wonder how much longer boxing can continue on its downward plunge.

Somehow it didn't seem so bad when a furor was made over deaths in the ring. This was more an occupational hazard which can be found in other professional sports. The biting tragedy of Liston's easy victory to attain the throne is the ultimate effect this may have on the boxing world, a world which cannot afford much more undermining.

Patterson is an intelligent young man with a dreamy look in his eye and the ability to talk coherently. Liston, who dethroned him, is a fiece, nearly illiterate giant with a tainted police record, to say the least.

He must now represent the boxing world as its reigning king and we wonder how many gangsters and underworld characters will come to his court to pay tribute.



Unlike the fairy tale, the bad guy won and now must undergo the test of champions with everything going against him.

Pebbles and Diamonds

By Joyce Hergenhan

A well-timed quotation can cause one to challenge something formerly accepted as unvarnished truth. Something as unchallenged and solidly American as the value of a college education.

Late this summer, a very attractive job offer posed a lucrative detour to our unquestioned plans to return to Syracuse for a fourth and final year.

While half-heartedly debating the question, we discovered a very interesting quotation.

"Colleges are place where pebbles are polished and diamonds are dimmed," read a newspaper filler attributed to Robert G. Ingersoll.

An interesting sentence, but hardly of the kind given second thought by most of the paper's readers.

For one on the verge of challenging the value of that magic key to the future, the college degree, this observation raised a very serious question.

Namely, is the situation really as bleak as the picture painted by Mr. Ingersoll?

A pebbie is seen as an average student with average intelligence and average ambition. If high school graduates "earn $1000 more per year than non-high school graduates," just think how much more college graduates earn, they reason. Or perhaps their economically-socially minded parents reason this for them.

A large percentage of them are concerned with their being want ads. They use their diploma in college, not with what they are doing while they are there. They view their diploma, not the knowledge they should have acquired, as the prize for their attendance.

Their degree gives them that extra polish. They can now answer the "college graduate" to obtain a job they could have filled on the basis of their high school education if the degree were not a prerequisite.

Four years of sorority living has polished the coed's social graces. She knows how to discuss Salinger, how to arrange a formal reception, how to play a passable hand of bridge.

While this situation is not commendable, neither is it wholly bad. Who is to question the motives of one ostensibly seeking to "further his education."

Mr. Ingersoll's "polished pebbles" certainly are not harmed by four years of academic exposure. Any knowledge, no matter how small, is better than no knowledge at all.

The "dimmed diamond" is by far the sadder case.

This is the bright boy; the high school valedictorian. He may be gifted in several areas and unsure of his eventual occupational choice. Or he may have decided upon a career and wants his college education to prepare him for it.

In either case, several fates can befall this boy. Especially if he enrolls in a school as heterogeneous as Syracuse.

Unaware of the pitfalls ahead, he unquestioningly conforms to the standards set by the academic framework and by his less shining classmates.

If he has already decided upon his goal, he is still faced with the prospect of spending two years fulfilling group requirements. Courses not substantially different from those taken in high school delay for 48 months what he thought would be his reason for being here.

On the other hand, students unsure of their ultimate goal are told they must choose a major by the end of their sophomore year. They are often pressured into a hasty decision; one they later regret but are unable to change.

In either case, a minimal amount of studying earns what his peers consider a respectable average. Unless his intelligence is accompanied by a comparable level of maturity, he may start doing just enough to get by. He may lose his desire for a formal education and begin to view it only as a means to an end.

He then becomes another pebble on the beach. After four years he graduates, another anonymous black-robed figure sitting on the 35 yard line.

Freshmen, fresh from three days of classes and several weeks from their first exams, gasp in horror at the suggestion that college is not the ivy-covered tower they have always pictured. "College weeds out pebbles and polishes rough diamonds," they optimistically maintain.

Ideally, this is what a college should do, but how many are doing it and how well? A random sampling of upperclassmen questioned the freshman's naivete and overwhelmingly supported Mr. Ingersoll.

They point to recent graduates, be they originally of the pebble or diamond variety, who claim they learned "absolutely nothing" during their four years as undergraduates.

Thankfully, not every student completes his education on such an ignominious note. The ever-increasing number of successful college graduates attests to this. There is, however, no denying that the problem exists.

It seems fair to assume that some of these people began college as diamonds. Their early promise transformed itself into an outstanding academic record, and their post graduate work is a continuation of their collegiate achievements.

It's equally fair to assume a large percentage of successful graduates were an unknown quality during their early undergraduate days. Boasting high school records dotted with mediocrity, they surprised those who chose to categorize them as pebbles.

All students, then, are not doomed to be of Mr. Ingersoll's two unreconcilable categories. But why do some fall into them so easily?

Although the academic framework occasionally works to stifle intellectual achievement, the fault can not be wholly with the colleges. If it were, no one would ever succeed, and the institutions would have no reason to justify their existence.

A large part of the responsibility therefore lies with the individual student. He cannot change what he considers a non-academic atmosphere, but he can keep himself from becoming a part of it.

Disallusion upperclassmen will continue to play cynic and say it can't be done. They minimize the achievements of those who succeed and maintain the majority is doomed to mediocrity.

At one time, not too many weeks ago, we were ready to share this opinion. Everyone we knew was suddenly classified as a polished pebble or a dimmed diamond. The thought was frightening.

A more rational and objective approach to the situation has since changed this opinion. Sure, college campuses house students who fit these categories, but so does every segment of society. Everywhere are found representatives of Mr. Ingersoll's two groups.

The campuses can not be blamed for the situation, they are only reflecting the overall picture.

The whole question then reverts to that time-honored adage: one only gets out of something what he puts into it. Although a bit trite, this explanation provides the best rebuttal to Mr. Ingersoll's assertion.

Miles-As Ever

Miles Davis' latest album for Columbia was recorded at his concert at Carnegie Hall in May of last year. This concert won raves from the critics, some of whose comments are printed as liner notes. In several respects this album confirms the fact that is still fresh and inventive.

The concert was unique in that Miles played several numbers with his quintet and was backed on several other numbers by the large orchestra of Gil Evans, who has collaborated successfully with Miles on several previous occasions.

On "So What", the orchestra is used only for the introduction and close. On "Spring Is Here", Evans has written a somber and moody background. On the triptych comprising "The Meaning of the Blues", "Lament" and "New Rhumba", the backgrounds vary from dark and sad to bright and swinging. The remaining three numbers are for the quintet alone.

As I said, this album confirms Miles' excellence. He is positively dazzling on "So What" and "No Blues", darting up to high notes and playing with the fire and lyricism that I associate with Miles at his best. On "Oleo" and "Someday My Prince Will Come", Miles seems to dance around, playing in his familiar muted style. His most meaningful solo is on "The Meaning of the Blues" and recalls some of his earlier work with Gil Evans. He makes great use of space on this slow number, and does not resort to such banal devices as double-timing.

The rest of the group deserves some comment, both positive and negative. The rhythm section is as excellent as I have come to expect it to be. Kelly, Chambers, and Cobb have worked together long enough to be a perfect team to back Miles. Kelly's solo on "So What" is one of his best on record, and his chording in section is quite nearly perfect.

The only member of the group that is not up to par is tenor player Hank Mobley. Comparing his solo work to that of Davis and Kelly, I found him to sound asleep or something like that, because he was not swinging with the rest of the group. Mobley is a well-known and established musician, but he just doesn't make it in this group. The same applies to his work on several other albums with the group. He throws in too many cliches and quotes too much, but most of all, he sounds tired and bored, at least when compared with the others in the group.

I know that others who have worked with Miles have developed and matured stylistically. John Coltrane and Cannonball Adderley are prime examples. After listening to this record, I put on a six year old Horace Silver record with Mobley. He hasn't changed much. Miles, why don't you hire Clifford Jordan or Booker Ervin to replace Mobley? Those cats swing, you know!

Anyhow, go buy this album if you want to hear Miles and Wynton Kelly in top form. One other thing, go to Luigi's this weekend. John Coltrane, who matured in Miles' group will be there with his quartet. He has become a bit controversial in the last year or so, as he has been leading a certain segment of the jazz avant-garde. He is well worth hearing, and I intend to devote one of these columns in the near future to a discography of 'Trane and his early career.

The Four Craftsmen of MJQ

On August 24, 1951 four ex-members of the Dizzy Gillespie band assembled in a New York studio for a recording session. The results of this session proved so gratifying that they decided to keep in close contact with each other, possibly to make more records at a later date, or maybe just for kicks.

Further sessions did take place, and out of this closer contact and frequent playing together came the Modern Jazz Quartet, which will appear here Oct. 18.

First heard in New York clubs in 1952, the MJQ's distinctive sound and "classical" approach to jazz soon aroused interest and gained for them an enthusiastic following.

Lewis

John Lewis, the leader of the group, studied music and anthropology at the University of New Mexico. He decided to make music his career after hearing the Dizzy Gillespie—Charlie Parker group. He served as a pianist and arranger for the first Gillespie orchestra and later worked with the Charlie Parker—Miles Davis Quintet.

Milt Jackson, MJQ's award winning vibraharpist has worked with Gillespie, Howard McGhee, Tadd Dameron, Thelonious Monk, and Coleman Hawkins. He replaced Terry Gibbs in the Woody Herman band in 1949-50.

Jackson played an important role in the early phases of the "modern" movement in jazz. He was the first to adapt "bop" ideas to the vibraharp.

The famous sextet of Gillespie, Jackson, Charlie Parker, Ray Brown, Stan Levy and Al Haig was one of the most influential avant-garde groups of the Forties.

Heath

Percy Heath, bass, played violin in school in Phiiadelphia. He began studying the bass after he left the Air Force. In 1947 Heath joined Howard McGhee's sextet. With McGhee, Heath went to New York and Paris. He has worked with Fats Navarro, Miles Davis and J. J. Johnson. He joined the Gillespie band in 1950.

Though self taught on drums, Connie Kay was good enough to be offered a job with Lester Young. In the late Forties Kay played with Young, Parker, Coleman Hawkins and Miles Davis. He joined MJQ in 1955.

Lewis' original compositions for MJQ form a most important part of the group's repertoire. They include film scores, ballets, and works for quartet and symphony orchestra.

Grad Writes 35th Novel

Richard A. Mullins, Hill Class of 1950, has just had his 35th novel published.

Entitled "Most Valuable Player," it is Mullins' second foray into the teenage fiction field. Two years ago, his present publisher, Funk & Wagnalls, published Mullins' "Swimmer."

Mullins entered Syracuse in 1946 after two years in the infantry. A member of Phi Gamma Delta, he was on the staff of the Daily Orange, served as business manager of the 1950 Onondagan and wrote short stories for the now defunct Syracusan.

Majoring in English and Journalism, Mullins won first and third places in a short story contest sponsored by the Syracusan his senior year.

He reports that he was started "on the right road with the right reading list and the right kind of criticism" while studying under the late Prof. Leonard Brown.

An assistant director of Public Information for the American Red Cross' 16 state Eastern Area, Mullins lives in Alexandria, Va., with his British-born wife, Margaret, and 6-year-old son, Michael. "Most Valuable Player" is dedicated to "Mike" whose other claim to fame, says his father, "is the fact that he was born on the Fourth of July."

JAMES SHREVE

Tangerines Open Season At Penn. St.

By ART ROSSKY

Prospects for future Orange Varsity squads are bright due to an unusually big and fast Frosh team.

Tangerine coach Jim Shreve has a bevy of high school all-americans at his command as he puts his charges through their paces for the October 20 opener with rugged Penn State at the Nittany Lions' home base.

The outstanding backs will probably be halfbacks Rog Smith and Ron Oyer, and quarterback Dick Sutphen, Jr.

Smith, of Harrison, N.Y., was on the New York metropolitan area team for two consecutive years.

Oyer, whose ,lma mater is Schenectady's Linton High School, is an all around athlete. In addition to gaining all-american honors on the gridiron, he captured the state shotput record.

Sutphen, who is 6-3 and 200 pounds, gained all-American honors while playing for his high school in Westport, Conn.

The outstanding linemen will probably be Tom Barter, Dave Bujnicki, and Pat Killorin.

Barter, a 6-0, 210 pound center from Northampton, Mass., gained all-American honors in addition to winning twelve varsity letters.

Bujnicki, a 6-4, 205 pound end from Gardner, Mass., and Killorin, a 6-3, 210 pound center from Watertown, N.Y., gained honorable mention all-American.

Other outstanding players are tackles Ray Paglio and Tom Meggysey.

Paglio, varsity tackle John's "little" brother, is a 6-2, 230 pounder from South Euclid, Ohio who made the state all-scholastic team.

Meggysey, a 6-2, 195-pounder from Solon, Ohio, is the younger brother of Varsity tackle Dave.

Meggysey, another versatile athlete, won 23 of 27 matches as a wrestler.

The Frosh, who will be tryng to better last year's record of 3-1, will face a rugged schedule.

After the invasion of Penn State, the yearlings will face Army and Navy in road contests before playing their home fray with Colgate on November 9 in their lone home game.

The final game will be played November 16 at Buffalo.

Coaches Talk On Spirit At Kimmel Sports Night

By JUDY ADAMS

A Kimmel Lounge full of Freshmen boys went home Tuesday night, feeling a lot closer to four coaches and their respective sports.

A sports forum, the first of its kind this year, put some of the top Syracuse coaches on display. Basketball's Fred Lewis, baseball's skipper Ted Kleinhans, track head Bob Grieve, crew mentor Loren Schoel, made their appearances before an estimated crowd of 100 boys.

Fred Lewis led off for the coaches. The basketball mentor, in his debut year for the Syracuse five, made a big hit with the attending Frosh. He introduced the squad of his incoming freshmen. The crew, which ranged from 6' 9" Rex Trowbridge to "low man" 6' 0" Jay Rettberg, drew a pleasant reaction from the onlooking boys. The group, 12 in number, has an average height of 6' 4".

Following Lewis on the agenda, was the baseball coach, Ted Kleinhans. The director of the nine outlined the prospects for this year. He commented that he was "pleased by the turnout" and that he is especially anxious over his freshman squad whom he termed "a good frosh team."

Bubbling enthusiasm was the track and cross country coach, Bob Grieve. The director of the thinclads told how his better track and faster runners promise and exiciting year on the cinders.

Loren Schoel, the skipper of Syracuse crew completed the evening schedule with his films and talk on his sport. The crowd enjoyed the movies of his 1959 boat which represented the United States in the Pan American games. They exhibited curiosity over this sport whose frosh turnout this year is claimed to be one of the best ever.

The evening was capped by a question and answer period. The boys then doned their jackets and left, much more informed than when they had entered.

Grid Tix

With 8,000 season tickets sold so far this year, Ticket Manager Harold Michaels confidently predicts an eclipse of last year's 8,500 mark.

Only end zone seats remain for the Sept. 29 classic, the Army-Syracuse game at the Polo Grounds. 13,000 tickets have been sold so far on the Hill. The home game against Navy and the contest at Penn State are also sold out.

Oct. 13, when the Orangemen host Boston College 6,000 seats will be set aside in Archbold Stadium for the visiting parents. Located on the South side of the stadium, the seats are between the forty yard lines, where the parents will be able to view the placard cheering section. Arrangements for the sale of tickets for parents weekend have not yet been completed.

In addition to the parents, the audience will include 800 high school newspaper editors and staff members.

End zone seats may still be purchased for the Navy home game and the contest at Penn State, Oct. 20.

Orange Observations

By ALLAN KORT

Sports Editor

It appears frosh athletic expectations for the coming year are high in Orange coaching circles.

Hill mentors are not only pleased with an excellent athlete turnout, but they feel the attitude of this year's freshman class is molding into the finest year of class spirit on the Hill.

Four Syracuse coaches have promised that with frosh suport, this year's frosh teams wil lbe squads the university — and the East — can be proud of.

More than 100 Frosh heard inspiring pledges by this quartet of Coaches Fred Lewis, Bob Grieve, Ted Kleinhans, and Loren Schoel, Tuesday night at the Kimmel Hall Lounge, and if these pledges and the frosh enthusiasm hold up, Syracuse athletic squads will have many surprises for the fans this year.

Dynamic Fred Lewis, a personable and likeable fellow, but a hardworking coach, told the frosh they may not be rooting for a winner at every home basketball game, but they will be watching an always scrapping, hustling group of the East's top recruits. The first year of Fred's recruit harvest has yielded a star-studded as well as a tall group of high school cagers, led by a forward wall averaging 6-7. The whole team, in fact, averages 6-4, about the height of a tall man on last year's "lemon" squad.

Baseball again appears to be on the upclimb with Kleinhans claiming the field house will give his squad a long awaited equalizer — a full session of practices. Previously the SU annual southern Swing was a disasterous way to start off a season—playing well-practiced schools.

Following a season that earned the Orange nine a College World Series booth in 1960, Kleinhans' charges slipped to a losing season last year.

A promising frosh squad, dotted with late-arrival SU frosh, who volunteered services following the speeches, makes 1962 look like a bright year for frosh baseball.

Coach Loren Schoel interested the frosh audience with his reminiscence of the 1959 Orange Crew, which brought the Pan American Cup to the United States and to SU.

After showing films of that great Syracuse eight, Schoel reminded the group the 1959 squad was just a group of tall SU students who just decided to give the sport a try — and ended up loving the sport. This boat, lacking the scholarships of other sports, is rated as one of the top Eastern boats of all time.

"This goes to show," he said, "there are probably a lot of potential greats in this university who just don't give a darn about school sports."

On the track side of things Bob Grieve is looking forward to a good year in all three track areas — cross country, indoor, and outdoor.

But all this depends of the fans. As Lewis puts it, last year's squad could have won more with the fans. "I watched last year's West Virginia game," He said, "and Syracuse could have gotten that little extra needed to win the game if they had a couple thousand fans watching them."

This year's squads will be worth watching — and should draw the crowds. This is a bright note in school spirit, but an even brighter one is that Syracuse coaches are using their spare time at meetings to develop a solid foundation of ever-needed school spirit.

Orangemen Place 25th In National Grid Poll

The Syracuse University football team is starting out at the bottom of the poll pile this fall with a 25th place finish in the first Associated Press poll of the season.

Alabama received the most points from the sports writers poll to remain on top where they finished last season.

Runnerup Ohio State received more first place votes than the Crimson Tide with 919 to 14 edge, but did not have enough total points.

Alabama downed Georgia 35-0 in their opener. Eastern football gained added prestige with Penn State, selected fourth in the country. The 1961 Lambert Trophy winners beat Navy, 41-7. Both teams are Syracuse opponents.

Other foes receiving recognition were UCLA 29th, West Virginia 26th, Army 14th, and Oklahoma 12th. UCLA was idle while West Virginia shut out Vanderbilt, 26-0. Army dumped Wake Forest 40-14.

The Orangemen were one of the few losing teams to finish in the money. Piety poll watchers should not give up hope for Notre Dame was 27th, two notches below the Piety.

The Poll:

1, Alabama 342; 2, Ohio State 298; 3, Texas 261; 4, Penn State 253; 5, Louisiana State 207; 6, Michigan State 160; 7, Mississippi 123; 8, Georgia Tech 103; 9, Southern Cal. 102; 10, Missouri 43.

The employment of "street hawkers," or newsboys, was begun in America in 1754.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "I Was a Teen-age Dwarf," "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis," etc.)

ANOTHER YEAR, ANOTHER DOLLAR

With today's entry I begin my ninth year of writing columns in your school newspaper for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Nine years, I believe you will agree, is a long time. In fact, it took only a little longer than nine years to dig the Suez Canal, and you know what a gigantic undertaking that was! To be sure, the work would have gone more rapidly had the shovel been invented at that time, but, as we all know, the shovel was not invented until 1946 by Walter R. Shovel of Cleveland, Ohio. Before Mr. Shovel's discovery in 1946, all digging was done with sugar tongs—a method unquestionably dainty but hardly what one would call rapid. There were, naturally, many efforts made to speed up digging before Mr. Shovel's breakthrough—notably an attempt in 1912 by the immortal Thomas Alva Edison to dig with the phonograph, but the only thing that happened was that he got his horn full of sand. This so depressed Mr. Edison that he fell into a fit of melancholy from which he did not emerge until two years later when his friend William Wordsworth, the eminent nature poet, cheered him up by imitating a duck for four and a half hours.

But I digress. For nine years, I say, I have been writing this column for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, and for nine years they have been paying me money. You are shocked. You think that anyone who has tasted Marlboro's unparalleled flavor, who has enjoyed Marlboro's filter, who has revelled in Marlboro's jolly red and white pack or box should be more than willing to write about Marlboro without a penny's compensation. You are wrong.

Compensation is the very foundation stone of the American Way of Life. Whether you love your work or hate it, our system absolutely requires that you be paid for it. For example, I have a friend named Rex Glebe, a veterinarian by profession, who simply adores to worm dogs. I mean you can call him up and say, "Hey, Rex, let's go bowl a few lines," or "Hey, Rex, let's go flatten some pennies on the railroad tracks," and he will always reply, "No, thanks. I better stay here in case somebody wants a dog wormed." I mean there is not one thing in the whole world you can name that Rex likes better than worming a dog. But even so, Rex always sends a bill for worming your dog because in his wisdom he knows that to do otherwise would be to rend, possibly irreparably, the fabric of democracy.

It's the same with me and Marlboro Cigarettes. I think Marlboro's flavor represents the pinnacle of the tobacconist's art. I think Marlboro's filter represents the pinnacle of the filter-maker's art. I think Marlboro's pack and box represent the pinnacle of the packager's art. I think Marlboro is a pleasure and a treasure, and I fairly burst with pride that I have been chosen to speak for Marlboro on your campus. All the same, I want my money every week. And the makers of Marlboro understand this full well. They don't like it, but they understand it.

In the columns which follow this opening installment, I will turn the hot white light of truth on the pressing problems of campus life—the many and varied dilemmas which beset the undergraduate—burning questions like "Should Chaucer classrooms be converted to parking garages?" and "Should proctors be given a saliva test?" and "Should foreign exchange students be held for ransom?"

And in these columns, while grappling with the crises that vex campus America, I will make occasional brief mention of Marlboro Cigarettes. If I do not, the makers will not give me any money.

© 1962 Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro will bring you this uncensored, free-style column 26 times throughout the school year. During this period it is not unlikely that Old Max will step on some toes—principally ours—but we think it's all in fun and we hope you will too.

Clifford

Pres. Theodore Bayer, Joint Student Court Chief Justice Robert Dick and Joint Student Legislature Speaker Ronald Mittleman.

He defined apathy as "lack of passion", noting it exemplified by poor JSL attendance and classroom attendance.

Apathy was missing, though, at the SU-Pennsylvania State University game last year, the two panty raids last year and in students reaction to the university liquor policy, Clifford said.

The real issue, Clifford said, is not the existence of apathy, but rather "what we are apathetic about, who is apathetic and if this apathy is good or bad."

Promises fundamental to the function of student government, according to Clifford, are:

1. the need for the preservation of the government's status, prestige and opportunity to get things done.

2. the need for the government to be informed of its responsibilities and to legislate within these responsibilities.

Joseph V. Julian, this year's JSL advisor, told the students, "A free campus, like a free country, cannot have government solely by representatives. The electorate is more than campus organizations; it is made up of individuals."

Julian noted that the Student Car Bill, passed this week by the chancellor's cabinet, is geared to the individual, with focus on individual worth."

"The student who says he stands above politics," Julian said, "stands above the American dream."

WORLD NEWS

Missiles. The United States announced Wednesday that it would sell missiles of the short range Hawk type to the government of Israel in an effort to retain a balance of power in the Middle East. The move is seen as an answer to the recent shipment of Soviet missiles supplied to the United Arab Republic and Iraq.

Argentina

Government officials in strife torn Argentina have barred the Navy from holding down the top police powers in the country. The police power is being exercised by the Army at present and will eventually be turned over to civilian control.

Meredith. For the third time, a Negro, James Meredith, was denied admission to the University of Mississippi. He arrived at the Oxford campus accompanied by federal marshalls, but was barred from the campus by state troopers. Attorney General Robert Kennedy said that federal troops will be used if necessary, to enforce a federal court order which denied the state of Mississippi the right to keep Meredith from registering.

Robert Kennedy said the situation is serious and his office will take whatever steps are necessary to enforce the court order.

Annual ESSPA Conference Planned For Oct. at J-School

The twenty-fifth annual Empire State School Press Association conference will be held at Syracuse University October 12 and 13, according to Gene Gilmore, editor of the ESSPA magazine.

Gilmore expects approximately 700 high school students interested in journalism to attend the conference.

Students will get an opportunity to display their school magazines, newspapers and yearbooks, and discuss them with fellow journalism students.

Scholarship examinations, open only to seniors who wish to study journalism at Syracuse University, will be held following the opening of the conference.

Newswriting and current events contests will be given, with three winners being given tuition-paid scholarships.

Laurance B. Siegfried, professor emeritus of the School of Journalism, will deliver the opening address to the high school students.

The ESSPA banquet Friday night will be presided over by Dean Wesley C. Clark of the School of Journalism. The main speaker at the banquet will be Edgar May, Pulitzer Prize winning reporter.

Prof. Edmund Arnold, chairman of the SU Graphic Arts department, will speak at 2:30 p.m. Friday in Rm. 207 H.L., on "Tips on Layout and Type".

Profs. Murphy and Wollesey of the School of Journalism will speak at 9 a.m. Saturday. Murphy's topic will be "Get the 'Why' in your Stories" and Wollesey's will be "Critical Writing for School Publications".

Laurence Piper, president of ESSPA, will also deliver a lecture at 9 a.m. on "Writing and Editing Sports". Norman Moyes, instructor at the School of Journalism, will speak on "How to take good news pictures", at the same time.

John Trever, cartoonist of the DO, will deliver a lecture on "Cartooning and Lampooning" at 10:15.

SU Grad Pens Song

An SU graduate, Roy Fleischer, is the author of the lyrics for a new song to be released by the Song Hit Music Publishing Company.

Fleischer, Class of 1926, wrote the lyrics for "Give Me An Old Fashioned Christmas," being released to radio and television in December.

Lyrics are based on a poem by Fleischer, published two years ago. Composer Russ Lord liked the poem and saw song possibilities. Changes were made in the original, allowing for vocal arrangement.

While at Syracuse, Fleischer was manager of the debating team, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, Tambourine & Bones and the Debate Union.

In Place of Television

SU's Drama Department is making a concerted, three part effort to bring theater closer to the residents of the city and the state.

G. F. Reidenbaugh, acting chairman of the department, said that people have become used to having entertainment in their living rooms. There is a great interest, he noted, in live theater. The problem, he said, "is one of convenience."

The first step was the signing of Ben Shaktman, SU magna cum laude, as artist-in-residence and instructor.

As a Fulbright scholar, Shaktman has directed plays at London's Royal Court Theater, and had a play he wrote produced by the Bristol Old Vic Co.

A Shakespearean touring company, made up of actors from the Hill and other colleges and universities, is the second portion of the program. The 1963 tour will cover much of the state, including New York City.

The third step involves the continuation of the New Playhouse at the University Regent Theater where students will work on six weeks of American plays, directed by Reidenbaugh and Shaktman.

Forester Meeting

Syracuse University College of Forestry will host the second forest landowner's meeting Oct. 8. The forum, which will be held from 9:45 a.m. to 4:25 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium, is open to the public free of charge.

Featured at the forum will be speeches by Canadian and American forestry experts on the financial value of owning woodlands.

Rosh Hashanah Services Scheduled In Hendricks Chapel

Rosh Hashanah, opening of the Jewish High Holy Days, will be ushered in at 7 p.m. today in Hendricks Chapel.

Rabbi Louis Neimand and Cantor Lionel Croll of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation will conduct the services, and the choir of Cantor Morton Rosenbloom will be guests tonight. Services Saturday and Sunday start at 9:30 p.m.

Rosh Hashanah is the beginning of the Jewish New Year 5,723. Religious observance continues on Yom Kippur, Day of Atonement, Monday, Oct. 8. Jews the world over stop at this time for individual inspection and spiritual self-evaluation.

The traditional sounding of the shofar, a ram's horn, calls worshippers together to offer prayers emphasizing reform and repentance.

Rosh Hashana is observed one day by Reform Jews and two days by Conservative and Orthodox congregations. Cantors and choirs continue the theme of conformity to God's mandates during the remainder of the holidays.

In homes, members of families dip pieces of apple or bread in honey with a prayer asking that the new year may be sweet and blessed.

Yom Kippur begins Sunday evening, Oct. 7, when the Kol Nidre service is held. Prayers and sermons implore men to overcome personal error and derelection and remold the coming year through self-understanding, improvement, and better understanding of family and neighbors.

Theft Made At House

John Shaffer, of Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity, had a rude awakening Thursday morning when he discovered $148 missing from his pants pocket.

The money was in his pocket when he went to bed, Shaffer told Det. Terry Connors of the Syracuse Police Force. The money arrived yesterday from his parents.

Shaffer's roommate, Michael Serman, said he left the room at 12:30 a.m., leaving the door open.

Security Police are still working on the case and believe that hte theft was committed by a sneak-thief.

In another incident Wednesday morning, Richard Snowdon of Phi Delta Theta fraternity fell from the roof of Delta Gamma sorority at 901 Walnut Ave., breaking a wrist.

Snowdon climbed the fire escape of DG at 4:50 a.m., according to the report from Security Police. He then crossed the roof of the house, to reach the balcony. His purpose: to take the big electric blocks mounted on the roof.

Five Houses Still On Probation

Five Hill fraternities remain on probationary status, according to James P. McMurray, fraternity administrator.

Two of the houses, released last spring from suspension; Alpha Epsilon Pi and Sigma Epsilon, are still on limited probation, McMurray said.

This probation which requires that each house submit its social schedule to McMurray's office, will be reviewed again near the end of the semester by the dean of men's office.

Confident

Both of the houses have near-McMurray explained, "but we ly the same probationary status, are very confident of their future."

"I have been very impressed by both houses and the support they have received from their national and alumni chapters," McMurray said.

The two houses were both reinstalled at the end of the spring semester last year, McMurray said.

In the case of Sigma Phi Epsilon, McMurray said each brother was individually reviewed before re-instatement. Everyone who wished was re-installed, McMurray said, but there were some whoh did not apply.

Another

Another house, disclosed by a reliable source outside the dean of men's office as Sigma Alpha Epsilon, was suspended at the end of the spring semester last year.

The ruling has been changed to place the house on the same type of probationary status as Alpha Epsilon Pi and Sigma Phi Epsilon. This probationary status is for one academic year and the progress of the house will be reviewed in May, 1963.

LAST YEAR Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford tightened up enforcement of university regulations affecting fraternities. Nine houses were hit by either suspension or probation penalties, but 30 houses remain on the Hill. The strong policy, coupled with the appointment of James P. McMurray as fraternity administrator and the announcement of a fraternity survey next month, were all part of a program "aimed to prove Syracuse University is interested in the fraternity system." Two of the houses remain on pro; the three suspended ones have been reduced to probationary status.

Academics, effective leadership and social programming will be the major criteria for judgment by the dean of men's office next May. McMurray, while not disclosing the name of the house, said he was "concerned rather than confident," about the future of the house.

Two More

Two other fraternities placed on probation last year, will maintain probationary status for another semester, McMurray told the DO Thursday.

One of the houses was initially placed on probation last fall, was released and then was returned to probation following a hazing violation last spring. The case was reviewed in June, 1962, and the decision placed the house back on probation.

The fifth house, placed on restricted s ocial probation last year, was released in the spring, but re-placed on probation with a review of their social program. Their case will be decided before or during the spring semester.

The Inter-Fraternity Council Judicial Board in a special hearing May 16, 1962 decided two charges of illegal initiation.

The first house was fully vindicated because they were unaware that their initiation was violating the university's intiation regulations.

In the matter of the second illegal intiation, the house was found guilty by the Judicial Board, and placed on probation.

All fraternity offenses now come unde rthe jurisdiction of the Judicial Board. Only individual information wi infractions will be referred to the dean of men.

The Cit Program: A New Face

STEPHEN K. BAILEY

Bailey's Comment

Dean Stephen K. Bailey of the Maxwell School, had this to say about the new Citizenship program for the year:

"The revision of the Citizenship course is, in my estimation, a major landmark in the intellectual development of the social science curriculum of the Maxwell School. Representing as it does, an attempt to identify some of the major continuing problems of public policy, the new syllabus provides for SU undergraduates a key to the understanding of issues which they as mature citizens will have to solve in their own lifetimes.

By DANIEL RITEY

The several hundred-odd freshmen who last year, and preceding years, took the Citizenship lab and programs were exposed to an interesting, thought - provoking course which dealt with the citizen's role in modern society and the development of modern political theories through the ages.

This year's Citizenship program will be guided by the same philosophy as was last year's, but the method of approach to the issues and the emphasis on the particular issues themselves has been substantially altered.

This reporter took Citizenship last year. During the fall semester ,our class used five soft-bound booklets and was giuded by the following philosophy:

"The Citizenshop course concentrates upon problems of public policy which we believe will continue as major concerns to humankind for the next generation."

Booklets

The five booklets dealt with various, but interlocking topics in citizenship. "Man and the State" traced the development of political thinking in Western society from Plato through other classical theorists up to V.I. Lenin.

Another booklet explored the premises of American democracy and contrasted them with the modern society in which we live. "Civil Liberties" dealt with the

DR. MICHAEL O. SAWYER

Sawyer's Comment

Dr. Michael O. Sawyer, chairman of the Citizenship Department, expressed the following views on the new Cit program:

"The nature of the Citizenship course, with its concern for the problems of public policy, is such that it goes through a continual process of revision. The new revision emphasizes specific issues facing this generation of college students now and likely to face them when they leave the university. The course was exciting, I think, in its organization and content last year. I would hope that the freshmen students this year might find it even more so.

Reevaluation Talk Slated On JSG Form

PinebrookWeekend To Follow Theme Of Keynote Talk

Student leaders, faculty and and administration will re-examine and re-evaluate student government in the hopes of gaining a better uderstanding of it at the 13th annual conference at Pinebrook Camp, Oct. 5-7.

The topic of the keynote speaker Dr. Betty Cosby, "Freedom and Responsibility," will be used as the theme of the weekend, according to Lawrence Dana, weekend co-chairman. Dr. Cosby is assistant dean of students at Cornell University, and was formerly with the SU dean of women's office.

It is the hope that the conference this year will help discover whatever obstacles there are to a more effective student government and how to overcome them, said Dana.

Sit Down

With student leaders sitting down with the administration and faculty in a relaxed informal atmosphere, lines of communication will be opened both ways to constructive criticism and positive suggestions from both sides, he said.

Saturday activities will convene at 9 a.m. with a panel discussion of "What are the goals of student government: intermediate and ultimate?" Panelists will be Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford, Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith, Theodore Bayer, Joint Student Government president, and Carol (Shultze) Lucha, JSG vice pres-

Frosh Incite Mount Raid

A small panty raid was staged by SU students marching to Mount Olympus screaming "We want silk," Thursday evening.

According to reliable sources, the demonstration started at Watson dormitory about 9 p.m. About 50 to 75 frosh encouraged their classmates in DellPlain to join the raid. Upon receiving little response from this source, they recruited more boys from Watson and several from Kimmel.

A large group of cars, indicating the presence of upperclassmen, led the screaming raiders up Comstock Ave. to the Mount.

SU Security Police estimated the crowd contained 300 to 350 students at the height of the raid.

Some girls in Flint and Day Halls encouraged the boys by dropping panties, stockings and other objects from the windows.

Several university officials were on the scene including Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford, Dean of Liberal Arts and University Vice President Eric H. Faigle, Director of Housing Bruce DeBruhl and Assistant Dean of Men for fraternities, James P. McMurray.

A Point in History

At sundown this evening Jewish students on campus will begin the observance of the 10-day High Holy Day period, the most sacred season of the Jewish year.

The observance begins this evening with Rosh Hashanah, the start of the Hebrew New Year and continues through Monday, Oct. 8 with the most solemn of the holidays, Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

During this period of individual inspection and spiritual self-evaluation Jews the world over present a lesson to the world. At this time they exhibit a link with the traditions of the past and display a solemn faith that has served to bind their people together through centuries of persecution.

On the eve of the year 5723, the Jewish people must sadly look around them to find that the persecution continues and the shackles of injustice still make their mark.

In Argentina, neo-Nazi groups composed of young men with hate in their hearts, have brought about a reign of terror for the large Jewish population in and around Buenos Aires.

In Russia the increasing reports of anti-semitism have caused concern throughout the world as the Soviet government deals out cruel and unfair punishments to Jews for trifling "offenses."

In the Middle East the Arab world, with Soviet assistance, tightens its military ring around the state of Israel, the land where the Jews of post war Europe hoped to find peace at last.

And in the democracy of the United States fanatical hate mongers and bigots carry on attacks and bombings that are comparable in their viciousness to most others in the world.

So as Jews stop for a solemn self-evaluation in this busy world, we should all take this time for a self-evaluation of our own lives.

Persecution of Jews is not the only instance of man's inhumanity to man in this world where so many are searching for some way to peace and a better life. Racial hatred in our own country and discrimination against whole classes of citizens is not a happy circumstance but it is a reality in this country.

Many years have passed in history up to the present, whether we call it 1962 or 5723, but how far has man advanced in his relations with his fellow man?

AMIDST THE CLAMOUR
Activities Anonymous

By Win Whittaker

Once again the students are taking their organizations out of summer's moth balls and activity is blossoming forth. All this appears to be fine until you try to understand some of the underlying activities.

Today we will take a look at three bustling groups: the Young Democrats and their counterpart on the hill—Party "X," Joint Student Legislature, and Association of Women Students, SU's counterpart to the D.A.R.

After stumbling over seated students it was possible to reach the doors of the "Marxwell School of Socialism." By fortunate circumstance I happened to run into the head of the card carrying Young Dems on campus, Vincent Monterosso.

As fast as my mind would take me back, I began to see mental pictures of Vinnie's frantics at the recent Democrat State Convention. Vinnie quickly turned into an embarassed kangaroo with a megaphone while bellowing "Fix! Fix!" on the convention floor. But, he went unnoticed because most everyone else was yelling the same thing.

Having heard a vicious rumor that Vince was going to support Gov. Rockefeller for re-election, I felt an interrogation was in order. Well, Vinnie was not too perceptive to my journalistic endeavor. So, all I managed to hear was some sailor-language mumbling about bossism, railroading, and where is Alan Millstein.

Then Vinnie sputtered out something about rich Republicans. He probably figured aggression was the way out of his dilemma. So what happens? Yesterday the campus Dems are demanding three bills to help support Rocky, while the Young Republican fat-cats want only a buck for the same purpose.

Watch out GOPers. It is going to look awful bad when Vinnie and his fellow card carriers are able to give Rocky three times the support that you are.

Once again student senators —what there are of them— are hard at work. And there are no questions about the abilities of Ronald Mittleman, speaker of the Joint Student Legislature.

It is just too bad Ron cannot get the student reps to agree with what he said last spring: "JSL should concern and confine itself to problems of and programs for Syracuse University students."

Last spring JSL sent a letter which is similar to the one proposed this fall on behalf of James Meredith, the Negro who is trying to enter Ole' Miss. Is this something that is a "problem of or a program for" students on the Hill? You can bet your sweet life it is not.

Although the idea may be well intentioned, the fact is, such matters detract from the ultimate purpose of our legislature. As sure as God made little green apples, Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett could not give a hoot what some "damn Yankees" thought—as if he did not have a fair idea already.

This sort of diversion detracts from the goal of effective student government. It puts minds to work just so their efforts might be lost on Bobby's secretary's desk.

It just might be that some night JSL will get a quorum if they stick to Syracuse University problems. Elections, car bills and anti-noise laws are a positive step. But, unfortunately, for each bit of forward progress, we find JSL engaged in some half-cocked scheme that is of interest to a bunch of idealistic do-gooders that are intent on spreading there thoughts across the globe.

And speaking of idealism, let's see what AWS, the Association of Women Students, is up to. In Tuesday's Daily Orange we learned that AWS was going to: 1) simplify sign outs; 2) investigate curfews; and 3) set-up a sorority dorm-council system or some such thing. So, on Wednesday what do we find out they have done? They establish their own peeping-Tomi (feminate) system to make sure all the girls are quiet when they should be.

NEWS FLASH: It's back to the Vincent Monterosso. We just learned that Vinnie is selling "Scalp Army" buttons. Vinnie, have you given up selling Democrats?

Floor Elections

By Marcia Gold

Marcia Gold is a freshman on the Daily Orange editorial staff. Along with 2100 of her classmates, she recently had her first contact with SU politics. The following is her interpretation of the local electoral system.

One of the most common events occurring over the campus these past few days are elections. The most harrowing are the freshman floor elections. These chaotic messes are mixtures of laughter and tears.

Promptly at ten o'clock the madhouse begins. Into the pajama lounge pour some seventy-odd girls en masse. When I say "odd," I mean "ODD." Girls in rollers, creams, sweatshirts, nightgowns, evening dresses, and everything else that you can possibly imagine is only typical of these girls' attire. If only those upperclassmen boys could see them now!

As the constant din is brought to a dull roar, the head resident proudly struts in. Throughout the room silence is maintained, until . . . "ding-a-ling-a-ling." " 'It's for me,' 'No, it's for me, it's got to be,' 'He said that he would call at ten, and now it's almost eleven,' 'Let me out of here, I have homework.' "

Nominations are called for and there are only thirty-five nominations for president. The head resident speaks, "Unfortunately, girls, not everyone can be elected. However, there is a small tie between the following girls: Ellen, Sue, Gail, Carol, Gertrude, Olga, and Bubbles."

Three hours later after successfully completing the elections of vice president, secretary and treasurer, most of the girls are ready to retire when the head resident announces that we MUST elect a food representative. All the girls strongly agree that one is desperately needed immediately. In addition, we must elect a fire captain.

"A what?"

"A fire captain."

"Oh, yeah, sure, huh?"

"I'm a chain smoker."

"I know where an ashtray is."

"Where is the fire extinguisher?"

Strangly enough, included among the nominations for fire captain were all the girls who were rejected candidates of the previous elections.

Once again the girls swooning from three days' hunger, ask to adjourn the meeting.

"But we must still elect AWS, JSL, IFC, ISO, DO and WAA representatives."

As we leave this happy scene, we see the girls struggling through the night and early morning, nominating and electing candidates for DAR, AFL-CIO, WHO, UN and Congress, and now they are proudly announcing the opening of their campaign for the first woman president.

WEEKEND

DOWNTOWN THEATRES

RIVIERA-CINEMA — Terry Thomas romps through a run-of-the mill comedy-mystery, "A Matter of Who." "Who" is really WHO, the World Health Organization. Sounds exciting, doesn't it? KEITH'S—Miss the two-year-old tv show on Desilu Playhouse called "The Untouchables." See "The Scarface Mob." Not an uncut scene from the tv. We hope SU grad Peter Falk comes out unscathed after appearing in "Murder, Inc." "Mob" at 6:25 & 9:21 p.m. "Save our Grads" at 8:07 p.m.

SHOPPINGTOWN—The crowds at DeWitt helped make "The Music Man" the largest grossing film last week. Why not catch "The Music Man" this weekend and help make it the largest grossing film this week. At 7:05 & 9:35 p.m.

Hill Plans New Strategy For Army

By BERNIE MacCALLUM

The Orangemen meet Paul Dietzel and his three team Army at the Polo Grounds in New York City tomorrow in an attempt to regain their winning ways and even their season record.

The Cadets are looking for their second win of the campaign. Last week they trounced Wake Forest 40-14.

Three Teams

Dietzel, in his first year as coach at the Military Academy, uses the three platoon system which he employed so successfully in seven years as head coach at LSU. The three units labeled the regulars, the Go Team and the Chinese Bandits practice, go through pre game drills and sit on the bench as three segregated groups.

The Regulars are the first team which plays both offense and defense. As a unit they scored three touchdown last week with Joe Blackgrove at quarterback.

The Ge Team, an offensive specialty eleven also scored three times with Art Lewis calling signals .

The Chinese Bandits, a name made famous at LSU, is the defensive unit.

Dietzel has 21 lettermen and 13 sophomores spread over the three teams. An inbalance of experience throughout the units appears to be one of the Black Knights few weaknesses. Eighteen cadets saw varsity action for the first time against Wake Forest.

Syracuse Underdog

The Orangemen will go into the game close to a four point underdog.

The two clubs last met in 1960 at Yankee Stadium, with Army winning 9-6 on a field goal by Tommy Blanda.

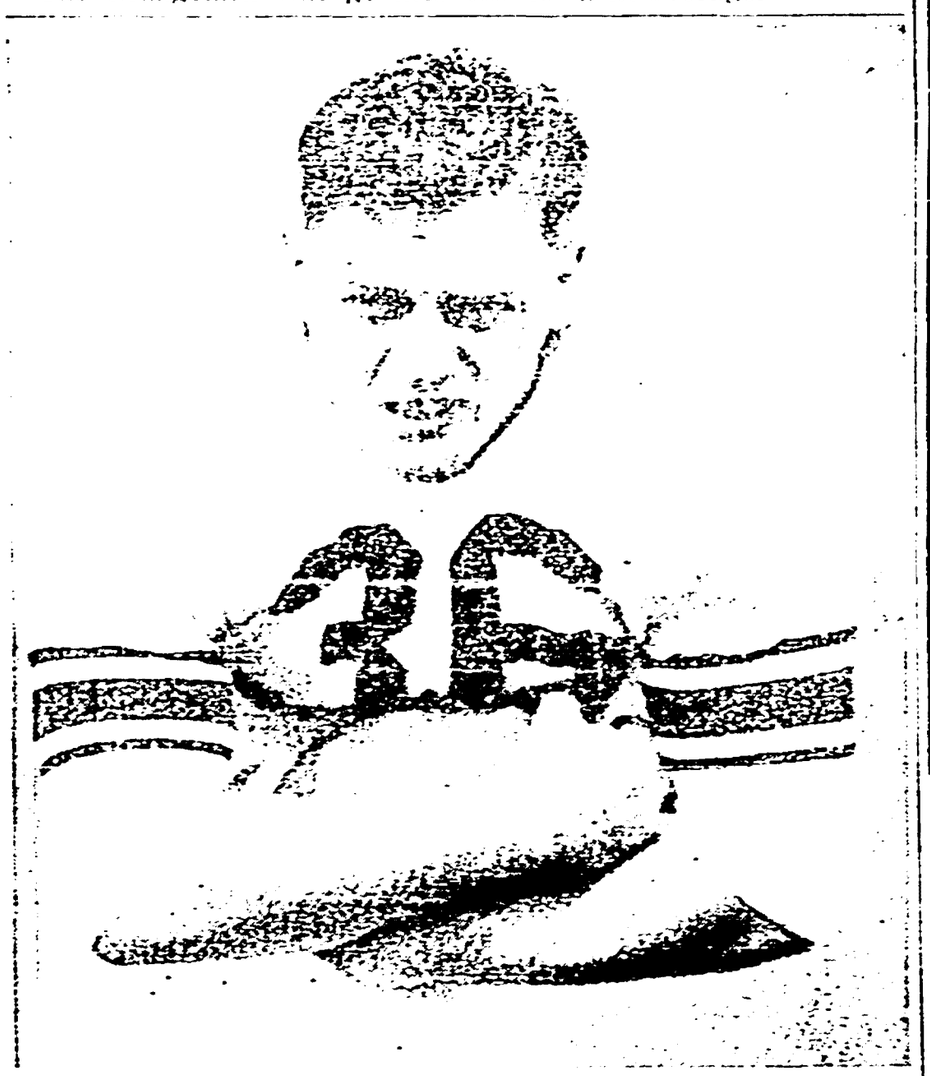
The Army offense will be centered around the passing of Lewis, who completed 7 for 13 last week, and the receiving of John Ellerson. A trio of other cadet backs who will be doing a lot of ball carrying Saturday are Carl Stichweh, Ray Paske and Paul Stanley.

"If we are going to win this one," Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder said, we must be an improved team." Ben was far from disheartened by his team's narrow loss to the Sooners.

"We played a lot of good football," Ben said, "but we stumbled and fumbled at the wrong time. Our defense was pretty good but we had no offense."

If the Syracuse team is to make any kind of a respectable showing Saturday the performances of their quarterbacks will have to be vastly improved.

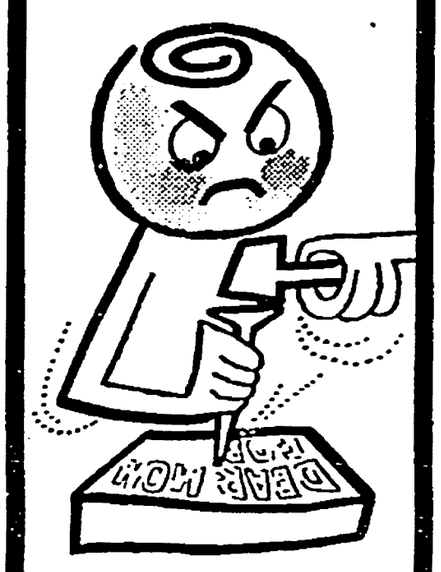
The Orangemen have a very talented group of ends who were literally unused on offense against Oklahoma. Quarterback Bob Lelli could complete only three passes of eleven attempted. The Piety coaching staff has had the team concentrating on passing drills this week.



Their defense and running game appeared sound against the Sooners. Four of the Hill top six ground gainers were sophomores. Jim Nance was the leader with 61 yards in 14 carries for a 4.4 average.

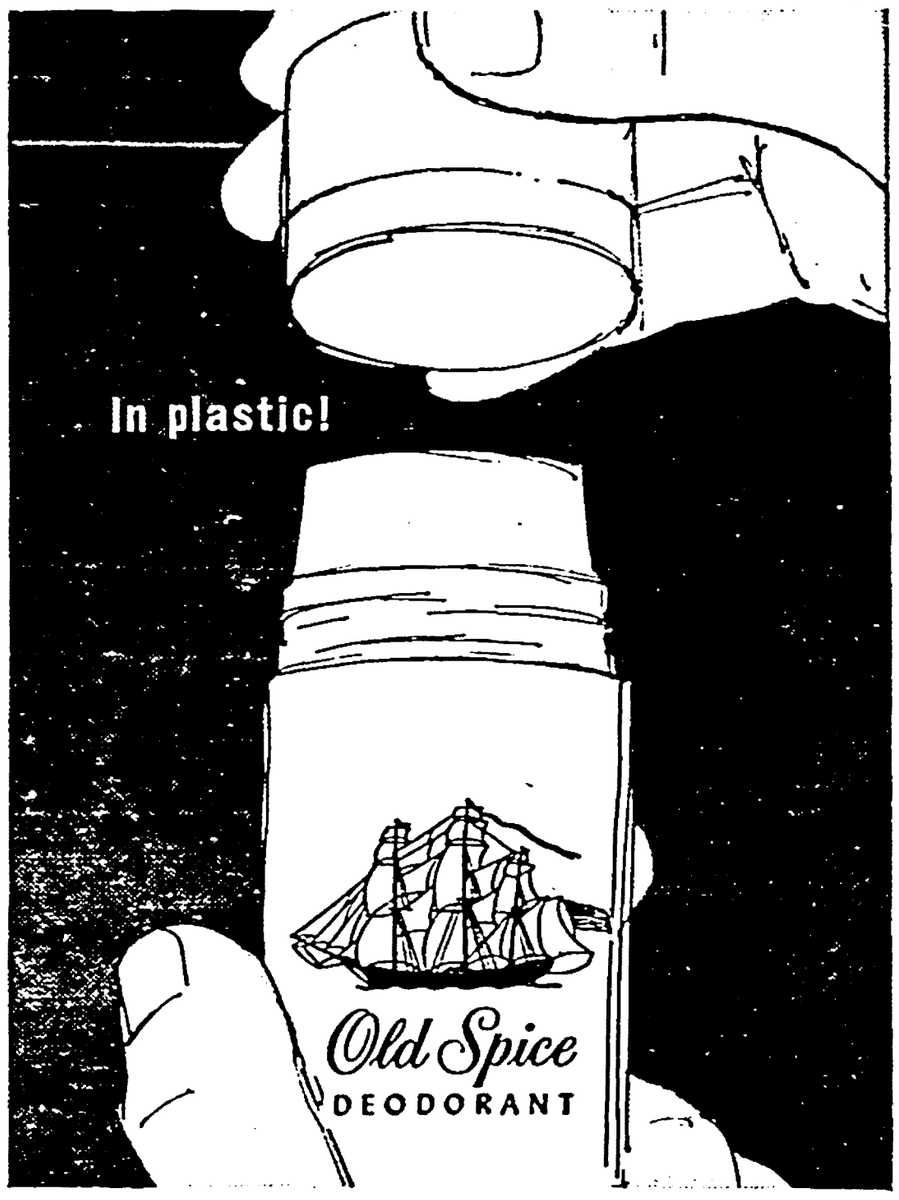
The Orange sick list has Don King only available for partial duty. Linemen Bob Hnat and Jim Mazurek are still sidelined.

Orange skipper Ben calls the cadets an extremely worthy foe. "The Army boys," Ben declared, "know that football is a contact sport."



The Orangemen have a 40-man traveling squad going to the game. Game captain is John Mackey along with Leon Cholakis the Orange season captain.

Over 13,000 Syracusans will make the pilgrimage to the big city.



BILL SCHOONOVER Orange left halfback, is slated to see plenty of action against the cadets of Army at New York's Polo Grounds Saturday. Bill replaced Ernie Davis in the backfield this season. In the Piety opener against Oklahoma he gained 37 yards in seven carries for a 5.3 yard per carry average. Bill was moved to the left half slot by Schwartzwalder from fullback where he played most of last season.

ORANGE PIX

With the football season now in full bloom, the time has come for all good forecasters to sharpen their pencils, oil their IBMs and, in general, make fools of themselves once more.

So we of the Daily Orange sports staff began a tedious study of the important teams this weekend. We examined brochures, skimmed back issues of newspapers, pored over current issues of magazines and reviewed films of the individual teams.

Therefore after much heated debate, with everything to gain and only prestige to lose, the Daily Orange hereby fearfully forecasts the following:

Syracuse over Army
Penn State over Air Force Academy
Boston College over Villanova
Alabama over Tulane
Pittsburgh over Baylor
Notre Dame over Oklahoma
Missouri over Minnesota
Miami (Fla.) over Texas Christian
Southern California over Southern Methodist
Cornell over Colgate
Upset of the week: Rice over L.S.U.

The first French daily newspaper that was successful was the Courier des Etats-Unis which appeared June 10, 1851, in New York City with Paul Arpin as editor..

uses and abuses of the fundamental civil liberties that are guaranteed by the Constitution.

"Conflicting Loyalities" probed the various and often contrasting loyalties that vie for the favor of U.S. citizens. A fifth booklet dealt with our industrial, mechanized society and the issues posed to the premises of U.S. democracy.

his year's lab course will focus upon three main topics, but the approach will vary from previous years. Instead of first stating the basic theories behind various political and governmental moves and then examing the moves, the lab sections will study the examples and then work their way back to the underlying theory behind them. Contemporary books and writing alone will be used.

The first main topic, "Population, Resources and Technology", will explore such issues and questions as: "Is there a population explosion? If so, what can be done? What is the future of our natural resource supplies? Water: an American contemporary problem."

The next topic, "Urbanism," will delve into slums, city government, civil rights in our metropolises, and will also devote some time to hypothetical planning of an "ideal" city.

"Science and Government," the third topic, will ponder issues such as the uses and effects of science and technology, scientists and their loyalty: to science or to humanity?, the problem of governmental contracts and the social consequences of science and and technology.

1B Program

The 1b phase of the program has only the main topics of discussion asigned to it. Details are still being worked out. The topics are: equality, international conflict and cooperation, the space age and democratic decisions.

Hill To Require Entrance Test

Starting next year College Entrance Examination Board achievement tests will be required of all students applying for admission to Syracuse University.

At the present SU applicants are only required to take the CEEB aptitude tests. However. Director of Admissions Lester H. Dye said that about 90 percent of the applicants offer achievement test scores.

The English achievement test will be taken by all applicants and other tests will be determined by the school a prospective student applies to.

According to Dye the achievement tests will offer a standard for judging a student's performance. This is necessary, he added, as all high schools grade differently.

An Early Decision Plan for outstanding students has been started by the Office of Admissions. The new plan will "help raise the quality of students accepted for admittance and eliminate many of the multiple applications," Dye said.

Early decision applications will be reviewed on November 1, and applicants will be notified as soon as a decision is made. This will give students who are refused early admission a chance to apply for regular admission to SU or to other colleges and universities.

An Admissions Newsletter is being sent to high school advisers four times a year to supplement "Academically Speaking", a bulletin which highlights particular schools and programs on campus.

Carnival Date Reset

Campus Chest Carnival committee met Thursday evening at Delta Phi Epsilon sorority. The main order of business was to discuss the date of the Campus Chest Carnival.

After conversing with university officials, the committee decided to postpone the date set originally Oct. 12, which is Friday night of Parents Weekend.

The reason for this change is the scheduled Friday evening Jewish services in Hendicks Chapel, said Patricia Birnbaum.

The group hopes to reschedule the carnival for Oct. 27 or Nov. 3.

Co-chairmen for the committee include: Carnival co-chairmen, Allan Brutten and Miss Birnbaum; booth co-chairmen, Sharon Locker and Norman Begun; tickets co-chairmen, Sherry Saxton and William Hess; publicity co-chairmen, Marjorie Weiner and Geoffry Bob; slave sale co-chairmen, Elaine Weiss and Robert Davis; and clean-up co-chairmen, Marcia Clark and George Choderker.

Sorority Rush Oct.5-7Draws 170 Women

Nine Houses Open; Jewish Houses All Closed

By SUSAN WEINBERG

Approximately 170 upperclasswomen have registered for formal sorority rush which will be held Oct. 5-7, according to Carol Shire, Pan - Hellenic rushing chairman.

Only nine houses in Plan A, Christian tradition houses, will open. None of the Jewish tradition houses in Plan B will open for rush.

Sororites opening are: Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Phi, Kappa Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Lambda Psi, Mu, Sigma Tau Upsilon and Zeta Tau Alpha.

Parties will be held Friday evening and Saturday and Sunday afternoons. All rushees must attend the nine parties Friday which will be 15 minutes each with a five minute break in between starting at 6:30 p.m.

Saturday and Sunday open houses will be held from 1:30-5:30 p.m. Girls may revisit as many of the houses that they receive invitations from for as long as they wish.

They do not have to go back to every house they get invited to, said Miss Shire. If they do accept an invitation, however, they must appear at that house. If they fail to appear, they will be dropped immediately from rush, she continued.

Rushees may pick up their invitations to the Saturday parties at 10 a.m. Saturday in the recreation lounge of the women's building.

Saturday night the sororities will issue personal invitations to the girls they wish to come to the Sunday parties. These will be in the form of notes to the girls who live on campus and telephone calls to the city rushees.

Rushees must reply to these invitations either by note or in person or they will be dropped from rush.

Rushees will file their final preferences Sunday from 7:30-8:30 p.m. in the Recreation of the Women's building.

Monday morning at 8:30 a.m. sororities will submit their final lists of girls to Pan-Hel. The city Inter-Fraternity Council will match preferences with sorority lists Monday and Tuesday.

Tuesday at 5 p.m. bids will be given out in the residence halls of the girls on campus and in the recreation lounge for the city girls.

During formal rush silence period will be in effect. No rushes can speak to a sorority women except to give a greeting, warned Miss Shire.

Informal rush will be held Oct. 15 for houses who still have places to fill and for girls who want to rush in a more informal atmosphere.

This is the only time this fall that upperclass women who want to rush Plan B can rush, observed Miss Shire.

Saturday, Oct. 20 a rushing convocation will be held for all freshman girls who plan to rush second semester.

Funds contributed to the 1961-1962 Syracuse University Annual Giving Program totaled $1,142,837.18, according to Program Director Robert W. Leberman.

13,667 alumni, parents and friends contributed to the program, which reports an increase of $41,153.01 over the 1960-1961 total of $1,101,784.17.

The Giving Program, formerly known as the Alumni Fund, includes gifts for current university operations and projects.

An endowment fund has been started by the class of 1962 from money remaining in the class fund, Leberman also said.

Rather than donating the traditional class gift, '62 graduates signed an agreement to give the university $125,000 at their 25th reunion.

Donations from '62 graduates over the years plus interest on the original sum will comprise the fund.

According to Leberman, a problem faced by the Giving Program is increasing the percent of participation among alumni.

"We feel that students who go out as alumni are more interested in supporting the institution if they have had a good experience at the university and are aware of what it is and what it hopes to be," Leberman concluded.

Panty Raiders to Get Individual Penalties

By CLAY RICHARDS

Disciplinary action will be taken against individuals participating in Thursday night's panty raid, the dean of women and the dean of men said Friday.

Both said they were still receiving reports on the raid and would not take any definite action until the reports are complete.

"What we direct our efforts toward is the identification of individuals who participated in the raid," Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford told the Daily Orange "Any action will be taken on individual rather than a group basis," he said.

Problem

"Whenever a problem of this type arises we have to consider the damage to property and to the university's reputation," Clifford said.

"We have aways been reasonably effective in identifying individuals in the past, when many more participated, so we do not anticipate any problem this time," he said.

Clifford said he had not yet received a report of the damage to property Thursday night. He had received a report however that "ill-advised and over-exuberant participants tried to enter the rear of Day Hall, but were unsuccessful."

While there was "quite a bit of traffic" on the lawns of the Mount Olympus dorms, damage to grass and shrubs did not appear to be as extensive as in last year's raid, Clifford said.

Record

The minimum penalty, according to Clifford, would be the entrance of participation in the raid on the student's record.

Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith, who was not on the campus at the time of the raid, said she had been in contact with the dean of men and would take action when complete reports had been received.

"In some situations the girls made no effort to stop the raid," Dean Smith said. "There were those who wanted no part of it and they should be commended."

Dean Smith said that she too would take disciplinary action on an individual basis.

Both the dean of men and the dean of women said they would take action upon the completion of reports next week.

FRESHMAN NOMINATIONS

Freshmen who wish to try for nominations for class offices of president, vice president, secretary or treasurer must pick up nomination petitions this week between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. in the Joint Student Government office, 906 University Ave., behind Winchell Hall.

Elections Commissioner Katherine Antony said completed petitions must be returned to the office by 5 p.m. Thursday.

Student Court Settles 2 Cases

In First Session Of Semester

Joint Student Court handed down decisions in two cases involving violations of university driving, drinking and gambling regulations during its first session of the semester last Thursday evening at Chapel House.

The first case involved a sophomore with "good academic standing" in the College of Liberal Arts. His offense was a violation of the university's prohibition on sophomore drivers.

He and two other students were returning from Skaneateles when the defendant illegally tried to pass another car on East Colvin street. He saw on coming traffic and tried to return to his own lane. In doing so, the car skidded and overturned. Local police notified SU.

In addition to the charge of breaking the university driving regulation, it was discovered that the student previously had had his driver's license revoked from him at home and that he also had a record of accidents and speeding violations.

Court's Ruling

The court ruled that "the condition upon which this student remains at SU is that he does not drive while at the university for the remainder of his enrollment here." The court also ruled that the student would be subject to

Mondlane Mozambique Front Head

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP)—Hill anthropology Prof. Edouard Mondlane told a public meeting here Saturday that he will give up his SU teaching post to lead the independence movement in his native Mozambique.

Prof. Mondlane presided over a six-day congress of the Mozambique Liberation Front here which ended Saturday after passing resolutions demanding the end to Portugese administration in Mozambique and independence for the territory.

Mondlane has accepted the presidency of the Mozambique Liberation Front whose headquarters are in Dar Es Salaam. He will return here in four months.

Hill Safety Push Enlists City Police, Lighting

Bright lights and a police beef-up are the latest moves in the struggle to quell muggings, attacks, molestings and exposure cases in the university area.

The SU Security Police, worried by threats to coeds on campus-area streets, Friday arranged for coordinating action with the city Police Dept. Security Director Robert D. Flaherty and Police Chief Harold F. Kelly in a ninety minute meeting, decided on a daily exchange of information between their forces regarding suspicious persons and cars in the area.

Kelly said he will assign additional men to patrol the university section, and plainclothesmen may be added to bolster the 20 man University Security Force.

Flaherty said special plainclothesmen will be asigned to guard women's living centers as has been done in the past.

He said mugging and molesting incidents are a continuing campus problem.

Both Flaherty and Kelly urged students to walk in groups in well-lighted areas.

Such well-lit areas will soon be more numerous.

An extensive lighting system will be installed in the university area, Adrian Niesz, comissioner of the city Dept. of Transportation said Friday.

The new lights, 400-watt mercury lamps, which give bright, blue light, were ordered Sept. 19.

Eight lamps will be placed on E. Madison street, from South Crouse avenue to Walnut avenue.

About 50 Hill coeds now living in the Ambassador Apts. at Madison and University have been worried about poor lighting in the section, according to Daily Orange reports.

Another eight lamps will be installed along Irving avenue from University place to East Raynor avenue. University living centers in that area are Sadler

WAER-FM On Air Today For 16th Year

Vice Pres. Bartlett In Station House Ceremonies

The campus radio station, WAER-FM 88.3 mc) signs on for its 16th year of broadcasting today.

University Vice President Kenneth G. Bartlett will preside at brief ceremonies at 3:45 p. m. in the station house behind the Main Library.

First show of the season, "Brand Name Jazz," hosted by Vern Brand, will come on at 4 p. m.

Beaming the WAER signal will be the recently completed 90 foot broadcasting tower atop Day Hall on Mount Olympus. The $10,000 structure boosts the station's wattage from 1,000 to 3,500.

New Network

Also new this year will be Educational Radio Network (ERN) programs. WAER announced Sept. 19 that it had become a member of the new noncommercial network. It will send and receive broadcasts from cities including Washington, D. C.; New York City, Albany, Boston, Mass., and Philadelphia, Pa.

Returning to the WAER air waves after a two-year absence is "Syra-Quiz," a show which resembles television's "College Bowl" quiz show. A trophy will be presented to the highest scoring campus living center at the end of each semester.

Live ERN programs will include presidential press conferences, "Kaleidoscope," an arts and sciences show, and two Peabody Award winning shows, "Louis Lyons and the News" and "Ralph Collier Interviews."

The station also broadcasts Sunday Crouse College concerts, Hendricks Chapel lectures, including Citizenship addresses, and "Today's Controversies," a panel show on current local, national and international issues.

Music

Classical music shows continued this year will be "Contemporary Scene," "Choral Concert," "FM Hi Fi Concert," "Baroque Concert Hall" and "Men of Music."

On-the-air hours for WAER-FM are 4 p. m. to midnight week days and 2 p. m. to midnight weekends.

The student-operated station is headed this year by Program Director Michael Styer.

The Daily Orange carries the WAER program schedule each day on Page 3.

WAER: A Service

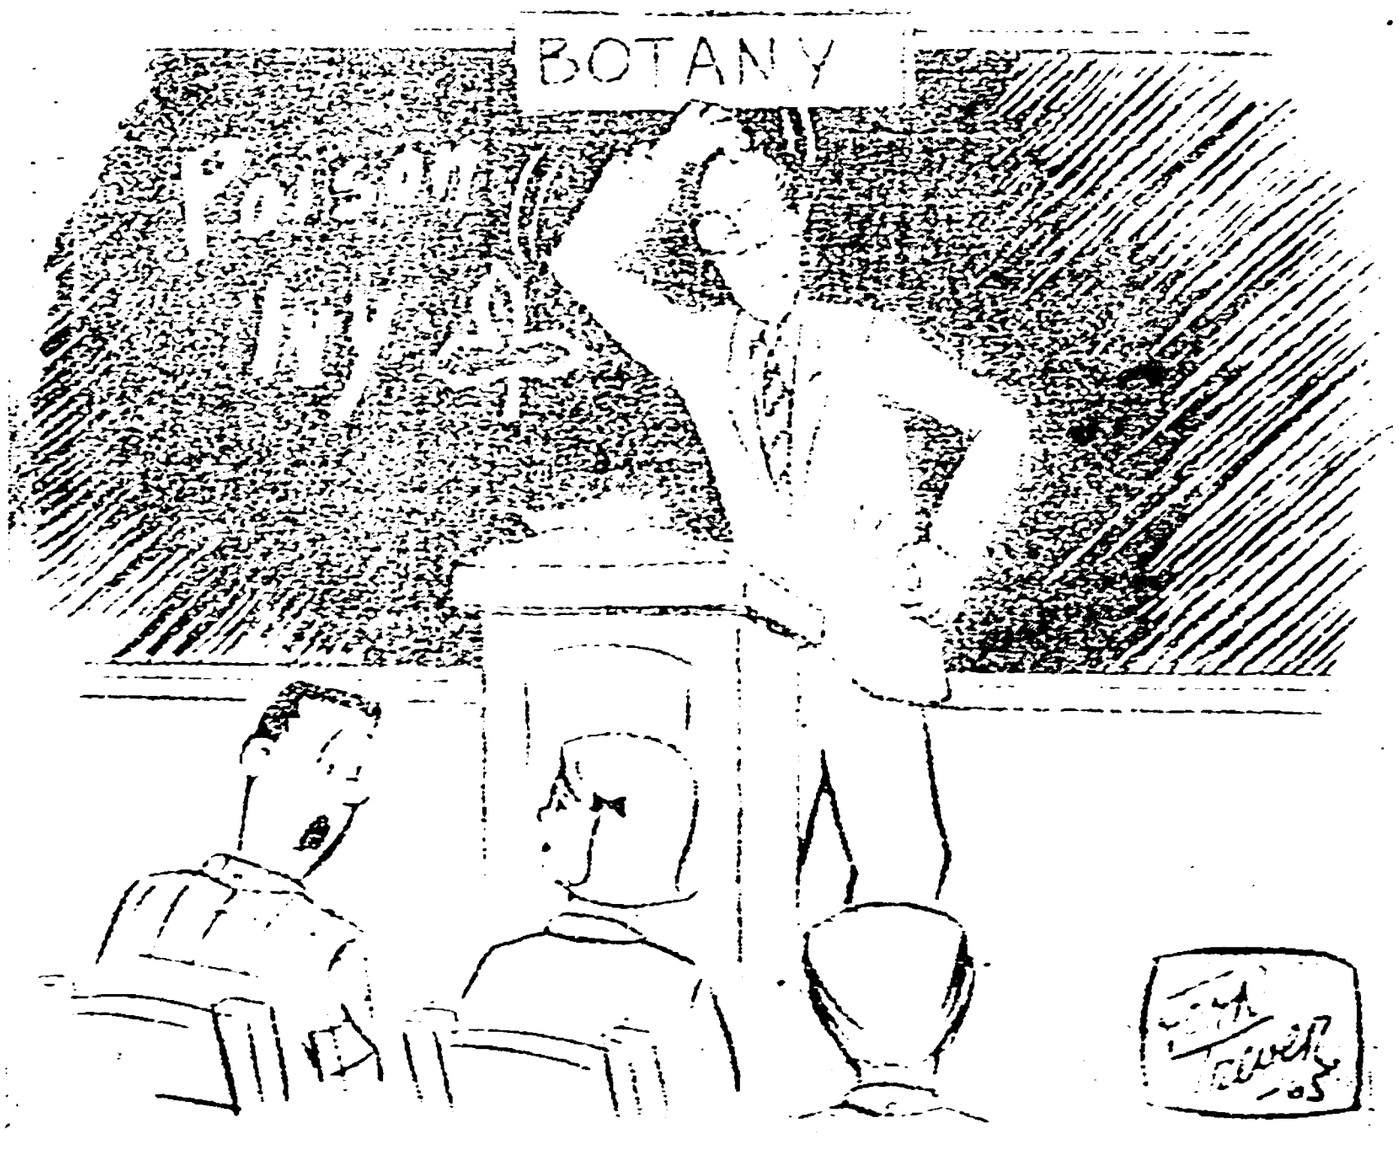
Another step in the continual growth of WAER-FM will be officially noted when the campus radio station sends its first signal of the new school year. This growth is physically represented by the new transmitter atop Day Hall on Mount Olympus.

On the air the new power will be reflected by increased range for the station. Now the so-called fringe areas will be able to receive the station's signal with clarity.

Program Director Michael Styer now has the challenge of performing a real service to the students of the Syracuse campus, which WAER has always done. The programs offered by the station are invariably stimulating and rewarding.

This is where WAER can help nurture the growth of the student body intellectually and culturally. It is not an easy task because students will not let it be an easy task.

Those running the station and working on it are students pursuing a career or participating in a hobby. Because they are students and are still learning, they will and do make mistakes. This must be expected and should be accepted as long as the mistakes are not frequent.



Lacking the advantage of full-time attention to the station which thier professional counterparts enjoy, the staff of WAER must run a professinoal-sounding station nevertheless.

Often the student body, endowed with the comfortable vantage point of the dormitory room and unaware of the complexity involved in such a production, is ready to criticize and condemn, thus undermining the efforts of these students who are trying to perform a service to the campus.

Faced with this obstacle and given the position to have a profund voice in molding the intellectual atmosphere of Syracuse, Styer and his staff must strive for the best possible.

Realizing this, the Daily Orange wishes the staff of WAER the best of luck for a successful year of service to the campus.

Questionable Courses

By Carol Schlageter

La dee dum, la dee dum, la dee dum. Come hither, come hither, my little lambs and into the dragon's mouth you shall fall. La dee dum, la dee dum, la dee dum. . .

Yes, registration's rigors are over once again. And today's Schlageter saga will examine several 'ease course offerings which bear examining.

We at Syracuse have certain courses which outrank the notorious underwater basket-weaving, shoe-typing 1, bean-bag 3 and bullsheoting 12 (upper division).

I speak of Zoology 1 and Sociology 1a and 1b.

Re: the former, there are, of course, the two great kingdoms—plant and animal. The furs and flowers belong to the former; Donald Duck and Schlageter are presumably grouped under the latter.

And how are the mysteries of science, the plant and the animal, introduced to the students at S. U.? Lend an earlobe, amigo.

Many students, fulfilling liberal arts lab science requirements, are duly impressed with the quality of information and instruction in Botany. Dr. Sedgewick for years combined his own slides with meaningful laboratory programs. The student receives thorough and up-to-date knowledge of the subject.

Contrasting, Zoo 1 is of amazing little practical value.

Now obviously a one-semester zoo course does not aim to train students as doctors. But the present course errs too far in the other direction. It deals almost exclusively in a historical rehash of the traumas of anatomists-past.

This writer contends that she drew little useful knowledge from a study of Aristotle's exact theses, misinformation and valid trails. Granted, an overall knowledge of the origins of zoology is one of use. But this columnist feels that such a course should be offered to supplement, not to constitute, the introductry zoo course.

It would have benefited this liberal artists, and, indeed, many others, to know more about how the circulatory system actually does operate, and less about how some dead soul THOUGHT it operated. Better to apply a tourniequet in the right place than to quote Galen at a bleeding man, no?

And then there is Soc. 1. Soc suffers not so much from overall subject matter as from selection and presentation of same. While Zoo 1 has apparently not been altered substantially in four semester (judging from a comparison of my own notes and these from last semester), the Soc Department at least strives to revamp its infant monster.

Soc, in fact, has only a comparative few problems: The lectures are more than occasionally inane. The readings are redundent and verbose. The discussion leaders digress. The tests seize gleefully on obscure points.

This writer would spend far less time on social organization in paramecium and crows, and would devote far more to humans. Indeed, she would spend more time on social problems of man in the country, town and city rather than how he got there.

Soc, however, must at least be given credit for trying. Rallying last Spring, the department was then threatening to overhaul the baby bugaboo.

As for Zoo, the curriculum-planner would do well to climb down from his history-oriented pedestel and take a look at the practical needs of most students.

Letters

LISTON

To the Editor:

Prompted by whatever obscure sources of motivation that compel a man to submit his personal opinions to the security of public opinion, I wish to comment on the DO article of September 27 entitled "The King Is Dead."

I know that one reason for writing this letter is that I became angry when the article appeared and was further incensed that evening when I heard the news that someone in New York proposed that boxing be outlawed because Sonny Liston was the champion.

It would appear that "the king is dead"; can boxing be far behind? It would also appear that greatly articulate public speaking and seven character references from local dignitaries are prerequsites for the championship—at least the writer of the newspaper article would have us believe that. Mr. Liston dispelled that notion with one very solid left hook to the chin.

However, I am skirting the have us believe is that the issue. What the writer would type of man who is champion will affect the entire structure of the boxing world. With a "good" man on the throne, the evildoers will be driven from the kingdom. This, I feel, is carrying an analogy too far. The heavyweight champion is a king in the sense of a child's notion of "king of the mountain"—you reign until you are knocked off. If the writer wants boxing cleaned up let him put pressure on his congressmen to do something, or support some agency which works to curb illegal gambling. The champion is first and foremost a fighter; he is not a crusader or the image of the ideal of American man with which we might all identify.

In another vein there is the implication that a man with a criminal record undergoing rehabilitation (and quite recently, witnessing the three priests in the dressing room) is not the man to have a champion.

Champion is defined in one dictionary as a "person. . .that wins first place in a game or contest." This is Sonny Liston. A second definition is that of a person who fights or speaks for another. This is the champion that the writer would have us look for. He wants a "champion" who will restore to the boxing world the status of a simon-pure sport and this is good. However, to expect a boxer to do this is sheer nonsense. It is my opinion that is its people similar to the author who have impeded the success of liberating mentally ill from chains, who have delayed the enactment of desegregation, who manage to keep books, who treat narcotic addicts as criminals; in short people who would believe that every instance of human failing is postively linked to some basic constitutional defeat of that individual involved.

I do not propose that crime short of murder be over-looked and that people who commit crimes should be the leaders and the buiwarks of our society, as some, who have read the previous paragraphs might submit.

What I ask is that you think of Sonny Liston, who has paid his debt to society as a man who should be given a chance. The chance to wear his mantle of "king of the mountain" he has given himself, the chance to live a normal life and to gain the dignity and stature of his position as a sports leader, is ours to give.

"long live the king!" say I.

Republicans

To the Editor:

In regards to "Win" Whittaker's latest column, I wish to state that his statements about the Young Democrats and their president were made without my knowledge or consent.

"Win" is a highly respected member of my executive committee, but I must now state that I feel his comments about Vince Monterosso were both unkind and, in parts, untrue.

I knew nothing about the Young Democrats supporting Rockefeller, officialy. Indeed, what would be the purpose of having two political clubs on campus if they were both going to support the same man.

Whittaker

To the Editor:

It seems to me that a great deal of Win Whittaker's column on Friday was written in a shroud of darkness and ignorance, and greatly influenced by petty prejudices. He is a staunch Republican (for which I commend him)refusing to see and understand that which goes on in the other party's nominating convention.

I am writing this in defense of Mr. Monterosso, president of the Young Democrats and a member of the senior class executive council and one of my most dependable members. For three years Vince's friends have admired him for his hard work, political perceptibility and frrendliness. What about Mr. Whittaker?

After Two Weeks - -

SU Touchdown Drought Continues

By ALLAN KORT
Sports Editor
Special to the Daily Orange

NEW YORK — For the second week in a row the Syracuse football team has come home without scoring a touchdown. Having held the opposition to a total of 16 points in two games the Orangemen must now start working on their offense for the home opener in two weeks.

"Our defense looked good through most of the game," said Coach Ben Schwartzwalder, "but our quarterbacks just couldn't click with precision on offense."

The 9 - 2 loss to the Cadets of Army before 29,500 fans in the Polo Grounds marked the second time in three years that the Blck Knights were able to beat Syracuse with only nine points. Two years ago they handed the Orange its second loss in a row by a 9 - 6 margin.

Schwartzwalder called this a good Army team, but added that they could have been beaten. "We didn't get the depth from the backfield that we did last week," said the coach.

"We now have two weeks to brush up on our quarterbacking and play calling," he said. The Orange has next week off and then plays Boston College in Archbold Stadium Oct. 13.

The game was played a good distance from the goal lines for the most part. Army punted eight times and Syracuse seven. The Cadets also gained possession on one interception and three fumbles. Once again, it was the fumbling that stalled the Orange attack.

After recovering an Orange fumble in the second period Army marched to the Syracuse three before their drive faltered.. Dick Heydt then booted a field goal from the 10 to give Army all the points it needed.

On the first play after the ensuing kick-off, Billy Hunter fumbled on the Army 32, Army recovered and scored on its first play when Cammy Lewis tossed to Bob Bedell in the end zone. Heydt's extra point attempt hit the goal post and the Army scoring ended, 9 - 0.

The best and only Syracuse threat came at the end of the first half when it moved to the 19 of Army. Then on the last play Bob Lelli had a pass intercepted in the end zone.

Syracuse picked up its two points when Gene Stancin, covering a punt, tackled Ken Waldrop in the end zone for a safety.. Syracuse couldn't get a lift from this scoring play and had to give the ball up to Army after three plays. The Cadets moved the ball with precision and when the game ended they were on the Syracuse eight with a first and goal to go.

In the statistics column, Army had 13 first downs to 10 for Syracuse. The Cadets doubled the SU ground attack 162 to 81 and Syracuse had the edge in the air, 89 - 61. Army completed 3 for 8 and Syracuse had 8 for 22, six by Lelli and two by Walt Sofsian.

Bill Schoonover and Mike Koski were top men in rushing for Syracuse with 29 yards apiece Army's John Seymour carried 12 times for 66 yards. The Cadets completely stopped Jim Nance, the prize SU soph.

Schoonover caught three passes for 51 yards.

No injuries were reported by the Orange and Coach Schwartzwalder hopes that Don King will be ready to go both ways against BC and that lineman Jim Mazurek wil be ready to see action.

Schwartzwalder used 32 of the 40 men who made the trip.

This was the first time since he's been at Syracuse that Schwartzwalder's team went two games without scoring a touchdown.

SU Harriers Sparkle In Pre-season Runs

By HOWIE SCHNEIDER

With his worst season in sixteen years at Syracuse well behind him, harrier coach Bob Grieve and an improved veteran squad look forward to breaking last year's four-meet losing streak with a victory over Colgate Oct. 8.

Last season's dismal 2-3 showing has not dimmed the coach's optimism about the present team. The prospects look bright for a winning 1962 season.

The mentor basis his hopes on a squad which is sparked by senior captain Mike Guzman. Other veterans include: Mouney Ferguson, Steve Killorin, and Jack Dailey.

According to the coach, "Dailey has the potential to become a truly trackman." Grieve further noted that if Killorin can shake off last year's injury, and gain a little more experience, he will be a top scorer for the Orangemen.

A trio of three speedy sopho-Schuster, who dropped out of school last year, returns to join the two top freshmen of 1961, Tom Higgins and Cal Evans.

Both Higgins and Evans impressed Grieve with their strength and endurance, and both figure prominently in this fall's plans.

After the Orange play host to Buffalo on Oct. 12, Army visits the Hill on Oct. 20. Then thinclads meet Cornell at Ithaca and Fordham in New York City.

The squad will also participate in the United States Federation meet in Ann Arbor, Mich. and the N.C.A.A. meet in East Lansing, Mich.

The SU freshmen runners clash with Colgate in their debut and later meet Buffalo

Last year the team got off to a fast start opening with consecutive victories over Colgate and Buffalo but then lost to Army, Cornell, Fordham, and Villanova in a disappointg finish. "The present squad does not want a repeat performance," Grieve said. "They hope to get the momentum and keep it going all fall."

Frosh Grid Hopes High

By JULIAN LOUBE

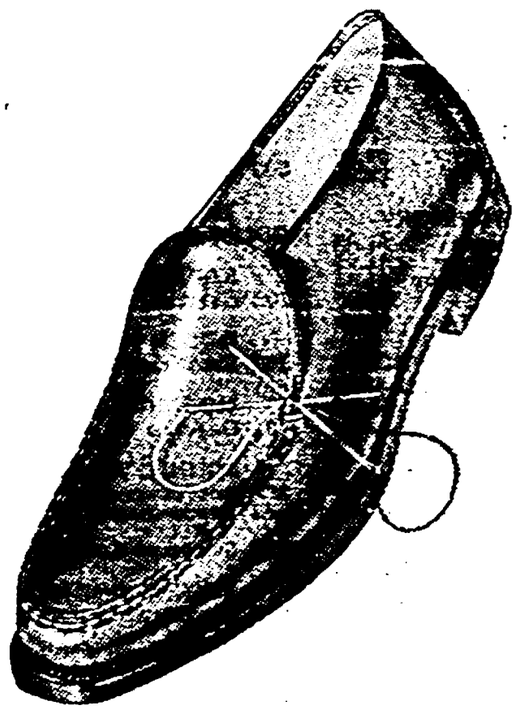
Obscured from public attention by the publicity given t the varsity, the Frosh footbal squad has been working behin the scenes to build what ma be S.U.'s best freshman team i several years.

Although their season doesn' open until Oct. 20, the Tangerines have been practicing sinc before the regular opening o school. The early September sessions ended in a special scrimmage with the varsity. Although the Frosh didn't exactly overpower the Orangemen, they dic manage to score a touchdown.

In subsequent meetings with the Varsity, the freshmen have shown coach Jim Shreve a superior brand of football. The team is bigger and faster than most previous squads, and already many of the players appear to be ready to assume varsity roles.

The Tangerine team is made up of about 30 boys, all of whom were outstanding athletes for their high schools. The players have been divided into two squads, both of which play offense and defense.

Although it is too early for coach Shreve to have picked his starting lineups, several of his charges seem sure to be given regular positions on the club. Two outstanding backs, Rog Smith and Ron Oyer, will be fighting for the halfback slot.



The quarterback starting spot is still a question mark. Dick Sutphen seemed sure of getting the coach's nod, but he injured his leg in a practice a few days ago.

Hal Rooney, Sutphen's backup man, has done so well in his absence that Shreve will probably not be sure of his starting field general until the first game.

The line is one of the team's strongest points, with Tom Barter, Dave Bujnicki, and Pat Killorin, all over 200 pounds, slated for center, end, and guard respectively.

The first newspaper to appear in Michigan was in 1809 in French and English.

SU Graduate Center's First Negro Star

Next Monday Robert Pritchard, a Syracuse University graduate, will be the first Negro artist to give a solo concert at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Pritchard, who studied under Prof. Kirk Ridge, will give all proceeds of the concert to "Welcome House", an internationally known adoption agency that was established 10 years ago by Pearl S. Buck.

Child Prodigy

Prichard's first muscial studies acknowledged him as a child prodigy. During his secondary schooling he was specially chosen by SU for private study with Prof. Ridge.

He obtained his entire education, including his Ph.D., by winning competitive scholarships and special awards. His list of teachers reads like a page from Who's Who in the music world: Carl Friedberg, Robert Goldsand, Dr. Gans Neumann, Arturo Benedetti Michelangeli and the late Edwin Fisher.

"Welcome House" provides permanent family homes and foster homes for American-born children of Asian or part-Asian ancestry. It also aids handicapped Caucasian American-born children.

African Tour

In 1957 Pritchard toured Africa under the State Department's cultural exchange program. He also assisted universities and art centers of new African and Caribbean countries establish musical education programs.

Dr. Pritchard toured Europe in 1960 and had his New York debut at Town Hall in 1961.

"The New York Times" said of Pritchards work abroad: "In a comparatively short time, Pritchard, has accomplished more for the cultural development of Liberia and of West Africa than many Trade and Economic missions that have visited these countries."

His "Isle of Springs" cantata was commissioned by the Jamaica Independence Committee of N. Y. His first record (Spoken Arts 202) was released in Sept.

DR. ROBERT PRITCHARD, an SU grad, will be the first Negro to perform at the new Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, at New York. A child prodigy, Pritchard has aided many new countries in developing music education programs.

All the benefits of Pritchard's concert will go to "Welcome House," an adoption agency that specializes in Asian or part-Asian children.

Organ Piece Set for HBC

The first of five concerts of the Syracuse Friends of Chamber Music will be given 8:30 p. m. today, in Gifford Auditorium, HB Crouse Hall.

Featured will be the Premiere performance of Frank Morris' Concerto for Quartet, Piano, Percussion and Tape. This unique piece involves the use of a tape recording of the organ part of the concerto.

The piece was especially written by Dr. Morris for the Krasner Ensemble.

UP IN THE AIR

WAER Returns

By Michael Styer

TODAY BEGINS a series of weekly columns on radio and television. Through primarily written by those either studying the electronic media, anyone connected with radio and/or tv is invited to contribute to "Up In The Air." Michael Styer is program director of WAER-FM.

Syracuse University Radio takes on a new dimension this afternoon when University Vice-President Kenneth G. Bartlett pulls the switch to sign on another year of WAER broadcasting.

Members of the staff consider this the most significant year in the station's history.

WAER is certainly different from the station that signed off the air in August. New power, a new tower, and a network have been added.

Four times greater power and a higher transmitter locatoin combine to give the station much greater coverage. Unofficial estimates say the station can be heard close to 40 miles from Syracuse.

Pioneer

Again WAER finds itself in the position of a pioneer. The station that first experimented with low power FM in 1946 now joins six other stations in a network which promises to become nationwide in ten years.

The addition of the National Educational Network boosts the station's efforts to present only the best in quality radio.

For the first time WAER will air current events of national significance. President Kennedy's news conferences and many of the National Press Club addresses will be presented.

Mayor Brandt

Specials such as this week's live lectures from Harvard by West Berlin Mayor Willey Brandt will be broadcast through network facilities.

Another first in WAER history will be broadcasts by an internationally known journalist, Louis Lyons, on a daily 15-minute news program.

Up to the minute news analysis from the news centers of this country will be featured on the network's daily "Backgrounds" program.

Network affiliation permits the addition of three literary programs, "International Book Review," "Joseph Conrad by Roberts" and "From My Book."

Talents

Quality and professionalism are the aims of WAER in its service to the campus and community. In the dual capacity of a campus and community station WAER tries to serve as a "voice" for the talents and facilities of the university.

The most exciting local schedule in some time is planned for this year. New programs include "Drama from the Hill," presentations of live drama; "Women of Syracuse," a weekly salute to the women of this community and "Art, the Eye and You," prepared in cooperation with Lowe Art School.

Two programs are being revived this season. Dr. Ray Irwin returns with his readings of literary masterpieces. Once again WAER will provide competition between the living centers on "Syraquiz," broadcast live Thursday nights from HBC.

Crouse Concerts

Complete news, sports and fine music will of course continue in large servings.

Events on campus ranging from Crouse Concerts to sports will continue on WAER.

Space prevents a total listing of the other varied programs, but a well balanced scheduled is promised for the 58 weekly broadcast hours.

DAILY ORANGE PINCH-HITTER

WELL, FOOTBALL FANS, it's World Series time again. I said World Series...baseball...come now, you must remember that one. It's the game that used to have exclusive rights to the summer and early autumn (that would make a good song).

Assuming that you have had time to recall the game played with a little white ball and a big brown stick by men in flannel attire, let us talk about the most glamorous of all sporting events—the World Series.

This was once known as the Fall Classic but since football season now begins some time in August, baseball must struggle to steal back the spotlight for a week each October.

The Yankees and the Dodgers. (When we went to press the Dodgers appeared to have won the pennant.) Nothing strange about that except for the fact that these are West Coast Dodgers who have yet to tangle with the omni-present American League winners since Walter O'Malley headed for his gold mine in Chavez Ravine.

As the season entered its final day and the dust of two pennant races started to settle after the first season of two leagues with ten teams playing 162 games each, we managed to pause and look back on the long road that brought the Yankees home way ahead of the field and saw the Dodgers and the Giants tripping over the line for a photo finish.

For the Yankees, who clinched their pennant over a week ago, the season had its ups and downs. Fortunately for the Bronx Bombers there was no one team strong enough to move into the lead when theYanks faltered.

The Indians put on a typical Cleveland spurt and then fell apart completely leaving poor Dick Donovan standing on the mound like a valiant skipper going down with his ship. The Indians ended below .500 and fell short of the first division.

The first division itself contained two surprise teams that gave the Yanks a real run for their money. That they fell short was no surprise but they made the race interesting.

The Minnesota Twins tried gamely to stick with the Yanks but just didn't have enough for the final push. When the Yankees lost the Twins lost.

Then there were the Cinderella kids themselves—Bill Rigney's Angels, who looked like they were going all the way until they came back down to earth (or wherever angels go when the honeymoon is over).

Perhaps the Tigers, who were a hot team, could have gone all the way if they hadn't lost Al Kaline for seven weeks. Who knows.

Let us turn to the Senior circuit where the outcome was in doubt all season long. Finally the Giants found they couldn't win without Willie Mays. Then they found they couldn't win with him. The Dodgers found they could win without Willie Mays, although they, too, lost their strength as the long hot summer turned to fail in Los Angeles.

Note: They can tell when fall comes to Los Angeles—the smog turns orange.

With Tommy Davis hitting, Maury Wills running and Don Drysdale pitching, the Dodgers were tough. The loss of Sandy Koufax, headed for his best season ever, failed to turn the Dodger tide.

The Giants should have won the pennant easily but they faltered. It is hard to figure. They had good years from Harvey Kuenn, Orlando Cepeda and excellent years from Willie Mays and Felipe Alou. They had top-rate pitching from Jack Sanford, Juan Marichal, Billy O'Dell and Billy Pierce. In the event of a playoff, they will win.

The Redlegs had their one-man wrecking crew in top form. Frank Robinson is his name and he should be MVP. Along with him were Bob Purkey and Joey Jay who both eclipsed the 20-game win mark.

The rest of the league was a series of disappointments although seven of ten teams finished above .500. The Phillies were the happiest story although they weren't high in the standings. Their youngsters played some good ball.

Houston was bad but the Chicago Cubs failed to be moved by expansion. They managed to finish behind the Colts.

Then there was the Mets. Probably in some distant time of the future whole volumes will be written on the Mets. Grad students will study their remains and old men will tell their grandchildren that there really was a Casey Stengel.

The season was one of surprises and routine. Maury Wills did what they said was impossible—surpassed the record of the immortal Ty Cobb.

Warren Spahn failed to win 20 games but he came close with 18 and only needed a little support from the hapless Braves to reach the mark again. All in all the pitchers had a good year. No-hitters were commonplace as Sandy Koufax, Earl Wilson, Bill Monbouquette, Jack Kralick and Bo Belinsky did the trick.

The venerable Willie Mays and the fantastic Stan Musial kept a dignity and class in the game while the antics of Belinsky off the field and Jim Piersall in the bleachers, kept it colorful.

We won't make a World Series prediction because looking back on this year, we see predictions, like comparisons, are odious.

Just lead me to an old TV, point me at the screen, turn on the set and hand me my handy-dandy professional "how-to-make-money-by-starting-your-season-earlier" handbook. The touch of snow is in the air. It looks like a long winter. MLJ

Intramural Deadline Today Program Starts October 8

By BILL CRONAUER

With the fall intramural season just around the corner, floor chairmen are reminded of today's entry deadline. All teams and rosters must be registered in the intramural office by noon today.

This fall's program, under the direction of Milt Howard, includes five team sports and three individual activities. Competition will begin on Oct. 8.

Schedules of the sports are to be mailed to all intramural chairmen. However, floor representatives are urged to check the bulletin board in the men's locker room for dates of opening contests.

The football agenda will consist of three divisions — fraternity, living center and independents. Because of a shortage of time and space, football will be restricted to a single elimination basis. All contests will be played under the lights at Lew Carr Field.

Last fall, Watson West I defeated Phi Gamma Delta fraternity to gain the All-University championship. Sixty-eight teams contended for the title in 1961.

The annual cross country meet is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 10, at 10:30 A.M. Participants will run a distance of 2.1 miles on the Drumlins course. Kappa Phi Delta captured the cross country award in '61.

Top individual harrier last season was Bob Smith of Phi Gamma Delta who covered the circuit in 12:14.8. The record for the course in an even 11 minutes.

A third fall sport is rifle, operated under the supervision of Army ROTC officers. Weapons and ammunition are furnished at the Archbold Gym range. In the championship match last year, Kappa Phi Delta defeated Dell Plain 4.

Bowling, extended throughout the semester, will be conducted two nights a week at the Women's Building alleys. Bowling operates on a round-robin basis with the winner of each division advancing to the quarterfinals. In 1961, Delta Upsilon ousted Sadler 7 for University supremacy.

The final team event is swimming at the Archbold Gymnasium pool. Dell Plain 2 frustrated the Sigma Alpha Mu mermen last fall with a 23-10 victory.

Individual tennis, golf and horseshoes intramurals will be set up in the near future. Boys may register at the intramural office or sign up on their respective floors.

ELECTION COMMITTEE

Freshmen who wish to serve on the elections committee which will supervise nominations and voting, must submit applications by 5 p.m. today in the JSG office. Name, campus address, telephone number, high school and campus activities and election ideas should be submitted.

A nomination convention will be held on or before Monday, Oct. 8. Frosh elections are scheduled for Oct.

A rubbish fire in the basement incinerator room of Graham Dining Hall was extinguished early Saturday morning by the Syracuse Fire Dept. Damage was confined to the room.

A worker in the dining hall discovered the incinerator room full of smoke at about 9 a. m. and called the Fire Dept. The fire was out by 9:45 a. m.

'We Want Silk.....'

HOW ABOUT IT, GIRLS?—Unidentified Syracuse students mill outside first floor of Flint Hall during Thursday's attempt at a panty raid. About 250 Hill men gathered around Watson and DellPlain halls Thursday night and moved up to Mount Olympus with cries of "We want silk," but the girls were mostly uncooperative. The deans of men and women are now studying action to be taken against those involved in the raid. The event was only faintly reminiscent of two larger raids which took place last spring on campus in which close to a thousand men participated.

suspension if he is caught driving while at the university.

Robert Dick, JSC's chief justice, had this to say about the ruling: "In the case of this driving violation, the student claimed ignorance of the university regulation that prohibited him to drive. It is the obligation of the students to know what the rules and regulations of the university are, and it is their responsibility to obey them."

The second case involved four roommates—three juniors and a senior—who were, at the time of their discovery, playing roulette in their living center using pennies and reportedly not having more than 15 cents in the game at any one time. In addition to the gambling violation, a small amount of beer was discovered when the resident advisor investigated the situation.

One defendant, a liberal arts junior, had received the roulette wheel as a Christmas gift. Because of his "clean record" and the reported token nature of the money involved, JSC put him on disciplinary probation until June, 1963. Also, because of a lack of participation in extracurricular activities on his part, the court encouraged him to take part in at least one activity of his choice.

The second student, a senior in forestry with a clean record and a participant in varsity athletics, was put on disciplinary probation until June, 1963. His extra-curricular activities have been limited subject to JSC approval.

The third student, a liberal arts junior on a full tuition athletic grant-in-aid, had been involved in a serious disciplinary violation in his freshman year and had been put on disciplinary probation. He was returned to good status in June, 1961.

Suspensions Withheld

The court ruled that because of his present "good standing," a suspension decision is being withheld until the end of this semester. Minor involvement in any similar university violation will necessitate an automatic suspension decision subject to the approval of the dean of men.

Because of his previous involvement in a violation, in addition to this infraction, JSC put the student on disciplinary probation for three semesters, but allowed him to maintain his grant-in-aid. He was also given a 10 p.m. weekday curfew for one semester.

The last defendant, a junior in the School of Art on the dean's list and also here on an athletic grant-in-aid, was given an 11 p.m. weekday curfew and was warned that any minor involvement would result in an automatic suspension decision and a loss of the grant-in-aid, subject to the approval of the dean of men.

Outstanding Record

Recognizing the nature of both violations, and because of his "clean and outstanding record and contributions to SU," the student was not suspended, but was put on disciplinary probation for three semesters. He will retain his grant-in-aid.

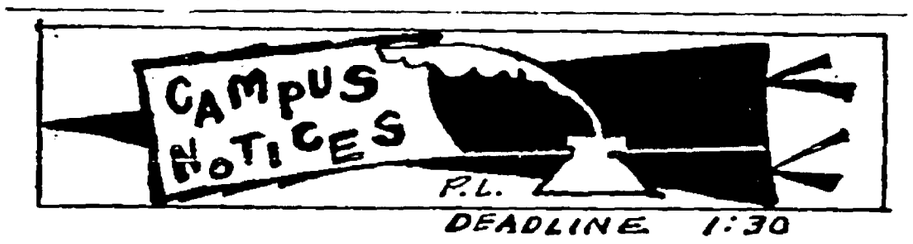
The last two defendants are both on varsity teams.

Chief Justice Dick said, "It should be understood that only because of the nature of the gambling violation and the records of the students involved, that a suspension decision was not given. Each student who comes before the court is considered as an individual and the court's decision applies to him as such.

"It is the obligation of the members of the court," he continued, "to enforce the laws of the university to the best of their abilities. Depending upon the circumstances of the case, a suspension recommendation may be expected in a subsequent drinking or gambling violation."

SIA Will Hear Taiwan Teacher

A Syracuse University graduate recently returned from Taiwan will be guest speaker at the semester's first meeting of Syracuse-in-Asia at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Chapel House panel room.



Miss Carol Eaton, a member of SU's class of 1960, taught English for two years at Tunghai University in Taiwan.

An international relations major while a student on the Hill, Miss Eaton is now executive secretary of SIA and an administrative assistant to Dean Charles C. Noble of Hendricks Chapel.

SIA, a campus tradition for 10 years, promotes Asian studies and cultivates international friendship. Its local activities include showing films on Asia, sponsoring an annual East-West debate, bringing lecturers to campus on Asian culture and holding programs for international students.

Home Game Seating Rules

Student government Football Seating Commissioners David Palmlund and Trish Spear have announced the following regulations to be followed for this year's four home games.

1. All petitions for reserve seating must be submitted in duplicate form to the commissioners on Monday before each home game in the Trophy Room of the Men's Gym from 3:30 to 4 p.m. Petitions must then be approved and group representatives must pick them up at 4:30 p.m., the same day.

2. The petitions must be the regulation JSG form, and may be obtained at the JSG office during office hours, 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

3. A request — if unreasonable — does not necessarily mean that tickets will be given.

4. The number of football tickets stubs must meet the requested number of seats or a penalty of one seat for each missing stub will be inflicted at the next game for which that group petitions. Penalties acquired last season will be carried over and deducted during the first two games of the season.

5. No reserve seat will be issued without the football ticket stub or the married student ticket (which may be obtained at the Manley Fieldhouse ticket window).

6. No ID cards will be used under this system, though they will be necessary at the game, along with the student football ticket and the reserve seat ticket.

7. A limit of 1½ times membership will be used in assigning blocks. (This can be increased at the discretion of the commissioners.) If more than 1½ times the present membership is requested, the petition will not be considered until all meeting this requirement have been fulfilled.

8. The blocks will be rotated for the different games. The quality of the block will vary with the game. If you are under penalty you will not be considered for the best seat groupings.

9. There will be no provision made for parents and guests to sit in the student seating because of the limited number of seats allotted to the student body. Tickets for these people should be obtained at the Manley ticket office.

10. Ushers have complete authority. Any student who refuses to leave a seat that doesn't belong to him can be brought before the Student Court upon recommendation of the commissioners.

11. Any violation of these rules or of the University policy at the game will mean forfeit of your group being able to obtain seating for the next game for which you petition. Students are expected to comply with common rules of courtesy and do as instructed by authorized persons. Any complaints should be filed with the commissioners after the game. If the commissioners find that the students do not comply with the regulations, they reserve the right to discontinue reserve seating.

12. All reserve student seats must be occupied by 1 p.m. Penalties will be inflicted upon any group that does not fill their block by 1 p.m. the day of the game. Students will enter student gates. The student gate under the steel stands will close at 1 p.m.

13. Ticket exchange for block seating will take place Wednesday at 4:30 p.m.

14. Persons not in block seating will exchange tickets as follows:

Wednesday
Married Students-3:30-3:50
Seniors-3:50-4:10
Graduates-4:10-4:30
Thursday
Juniors — 3:30-3:50
Sophomores — 3:50-4:10
Freshmen — 4:10-4:30

15. Office hours of football seating commissioners will be by appointment only. The commissioners desire to please the students with reserve seating and will appreciate suggestions of new systems or additions to the present system.

Troops. The Mississippi National Guard is poised under stand-by orders after being mobilized by President Kennedy. Kennedy mobilized the forces after talks with Gov. Ross Barnett which failed to assure the President that law and order would be maintained.

Meanwhile the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals found Lt. Gov. Paul Johnson in contempt of court for his role in preventing Negro James Meredith from entering the University of Mississippi. He will be fined 5,000 dollars a day unless he shows by Tuesday he is ready to cooperate with a federal court order to enroll Meredith.

The same court has already found Barnett in contempt and fined him 10,000 dollars a day unless he too shows he will cooperate with the government by Tuesday.

Six-Year Program Offered Architects

By ERIC S. BENDERSON

The Syracuse University School of Architecture in cooperation with the College of Liberal Arts, has instituted a new six year program to a Bachelor of Arts degree at the end of five years and a Bachelor of Architecture professional degree at the conclusion of the sixth year.

The regular five year professional degree, Bachelor of Architecture, is still offered. School of Arhcitecture Dean D. Kenneth Sargent said he feels that soon the six year course will be preferred by students.

In Program

This year the program includes over 25 per cent of the Freshman class, 13 members of it, plus four sophomores, four lower juniors, and two seniors. The University of Minnseota is the only other school with such a program, Sargent said.

"Some of the bigger prestige universities," Sargent stated, "offer architecture only on the graduate level after four years of liberal arts. This does not benefit the student as much as our six year program where the student can see the relationship between architecture and other fields such as economics, sociology, business and politics.

Fundamentals

"To help students gain a fundamental knowledge of architecture," Sargent explained, "we usually postpone their electives until the final years."

The School of Architecture is highly selective, choosing only one out of every five applicants, the dean said. The reason for this is the fact that architecture as a field is becoming more and more difficult since it encompasses not only technical considerations but also general concepts of living and of society, Sargent said.

Thus the architect of today must be both a generalist and a specialist, ready to handle problems of utility and economics as well as art, he continued. Architecture is becoming like the fields of medicine and law, said the dean, in that the bachelor degree is only the stepping stone to specialization — first with a graduate degree and then with a period of "internship" with some firm.

"Tomorrow's architect will not be an individual, but a team, each member specializing in a certain aspect of the general field such as art, engineering or city planning in addition to a general knowledge of all fundamentals."

The installations are part of a city lighting campaign that has been started to combat "the growing threat of personal injury from muggers and other criminals."

Greek Grades Stable

Tau Delt Tops List; Ten Houses Rise As Twenty Fall

Although twenty Greek house averages dropped last year, the overall fraternity average, pulled up by significant gains by ten houses, dropped only a fraction of a point.

The all fraternity average this year is 1.291, compared with 1.311 last year, a drop of only 02.

Fraternity Administrator James P. McMurray said this slight drop may be explained by a different grade calculating system used this year, rather than a downward trend in Greek grades.

As has been the case for several years, the Greek average is below the all men's average of 1.348.

Top House

Top house on the Greek pole was Tau Delta Phi, which jumped from seventh last year with a 1.448 average to first this year with a 1.587 average.

FRATERNITY	AVERAGE	ALL FRAT.	AVERAGE
1. Tau Delta Phi	1.587	15. Delta Tau Delta	1.284
2. Phi Sigma Delta	1.500	16. Kappa Phi Delta	1.253
3. Sigma Chi Psi	1.465	17. Sigma Nu	1.242
4. Beta Sigma Rho	1.435	18. Delta Upsilon	1.236
5. Tau Kappa Epsilon Affiliate	1.430	19. Phi Delta Theta	1.232
6. Acacia	1.426	20. Phi Gamma Delta	1.218
7. Tau Epsilon Phi	1.377	21. Zeta Psi	1.212
8. Phi Epsilon Pi	1.372	22. Lambda Chi Alpha	1.206
9. Theta Chi	1.364	23. Beta Theta Pi	1.186
ALL MEN'S AVERAGE	1.348	24. Kappa Sigma	1.185
10. Pi Kappa Alpha	1.338	25. Alpha Tau Omega	1.174
11. Sigma Alpha Mu	1.316	26. Psi Upsilon	1.167
12. Alpha Epsilon Pi	1.311	27. Sigma Phi Epsilon	1.157
13. Zeta Beta Tau	1.298	28. Sigma Alpha Epsilon	1.146
14. Alpha Chi Rho	1.294	29. Phi Kappa Psi	1.100
		30. Delta Kappa Epsilon	1.032

Most improved house on campus is Sigma Chi Psi, which jumped from 14th with a 1.316 average last year to third with a 1.465 average.

In second place for the second year in a row is Phi Sigma Delta, while Beta Sigma Rho, top year slipped to fourth in the ranking.

Delta Tau Delta showed the biggest drop in the fraternity standings, slipping from fifth place to 15th.

Another significant jump in scholastic standing was made by Phi Gamma Delta who jumped from last place in the standings to 20th place this year.

Trophies to the top house and the house showing the most improvement in scholastic standings in the previous year are annually awarded by the Inter-Fraternity Council at their ball during Greek Week spring semester.

Plans are now under consideration to change this system, since the award is nearly one year old by the time of Greek Week.

Next Greek Move: Local Graveyard?

By BEV LURIA

Syracuse University is currently negotiating with the Morningside Cemetery Association to purchase from 11 to 16 acres of land on the east side of Comstock avenue bordering the Collendale-Manley Field House area, SU Real Estate Director William T. Burch told the Daily Orange Monday.

This land would be the relocation site of about 12 Hill fraternities and sorrorities presently occupying the Comstock avenue-College place block now earmarked for a new SU library.

University Vice President and Exec. Asst. to the chancellor John F. Olson said that approximately 14 Greek houses have expressed interest in the relocation plan.

The relocated houses would accommodate from 32 to 64 persons. Two large dormitories, one for men and another for women, are also planned for the new housing site.

Bus Line

If the relocation plan goes through, Olson explained, a bus service may go down Comstock avenue past the proposed housing site to Married Students Housing on Colvin Avenue.

A large mausoleum built at the turn of the century may be holding up negotiations for sale of the land. According to Burch, the university hopes to either move the mausoleum to the west side of Comstock or to build "a structure of like character" on the west side to which bodies could be transferred.

If the mausoleum is moved, 16 acres of land would be available. Otherwise the university would

State Incentive Deadline Now Dec. 1

By CHARLES STEINBERG

Students who have not applied for New York State Scholar Incentive Awards have until Dec. 1 to do so, Jim G. Carleton, director of Financial Aids, announced Monday.

"Hundreds of Syracuse students have not taken advantage of the Scholar Incentive Program though they are perfectly qualified," Carleton told the Daily Orange.

Carleton attributes this neglect to a "cloak of confusion" surrounding the program which distributes to New York State residents attending college in this state outright financial awards of $50, or $150 per semester.

In an effort to clarify the program Carleton outlined the necessary steps to be followed.

Applications

A student must first write to the state for application forms. The address is Regents Examination and Scholarship Center,

Upperclass Men's Rush Oct. 10-17

Upperclass and transfer fraternity rushing, postponed from this weekend, has been rescheduled from 4 to 6 p.m. Oct. 10 and 11, James P. Murray, fraternity administrator has announced.

Rush was postponed from this weekend because of the Jewish holidays, the Pinebrook Conference and the races at Watkins Glen, McMurray said.

"No one will be allowed to be pledged prior to the end of the Oct. 6 rush," McMurray said. "He may pledge then only if he has registered with the dean of men's office, paid the $2 fee and has been cleared for pledging.

Spring Rush

Registration for upperclass and transfer students, and also for freshmen who will rush in the spring, will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 8 and 9 in the dean of men's office.

Over 120 have registered for the upperclass-transfer rush, McMurray told the Daily Orange.

Any house may elect to rush both days, or not at all, according to rushing rules. Houses may also send out invitations to registered rushees prior to next week's rush.

Upperclassmen and transfers may visit a house at any time, but not be pledged until the last planned rush (6 p.m. Oct. 11) McMurray said.

Further discussion of the upperclass rushing procedure will be discussed at the weekly IFC meeting Wednesday night at Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Grad Program

A program for Hill graduate students is scheduled 8:30 p.m. to midnight Friday at the Chapel House, 711 Comstock Ave.

The Graduate Student Club will hold programs every Friday with refreshments, chess, music and dancing.

Government Training Classes Start Thursday

The first session of the student government training program will be held Thursday in Gifford Auditorium in H. B. Crouse Hall for all undergraduate students.

Each of the four sessions will be held twice, at 4 and 7 p.m. Thursdays. Students whose last names begin with A-M should attend Thursday's afternoon session, while those with names N-Z should attend the evening session. Those with class conflicts may attend either session.

Speaking at the first session will be Joint Student Government Pres. Theodore Bayer, JSG Vice Pres. Carol "Shultze" Lucha and Elections Commissioners James Morris and Katherine Antony.

Introduction

The program is designed to introduce students to student government at Syracuse, training program Commissioner Kenneth Harfenist said Monday.

Leland Peterson, president of Traditions Commission, strongly recommends that all freshmen who intend to apply for Goon Squad at the end of this year, and all sophomores applying for Traditions, take the program.

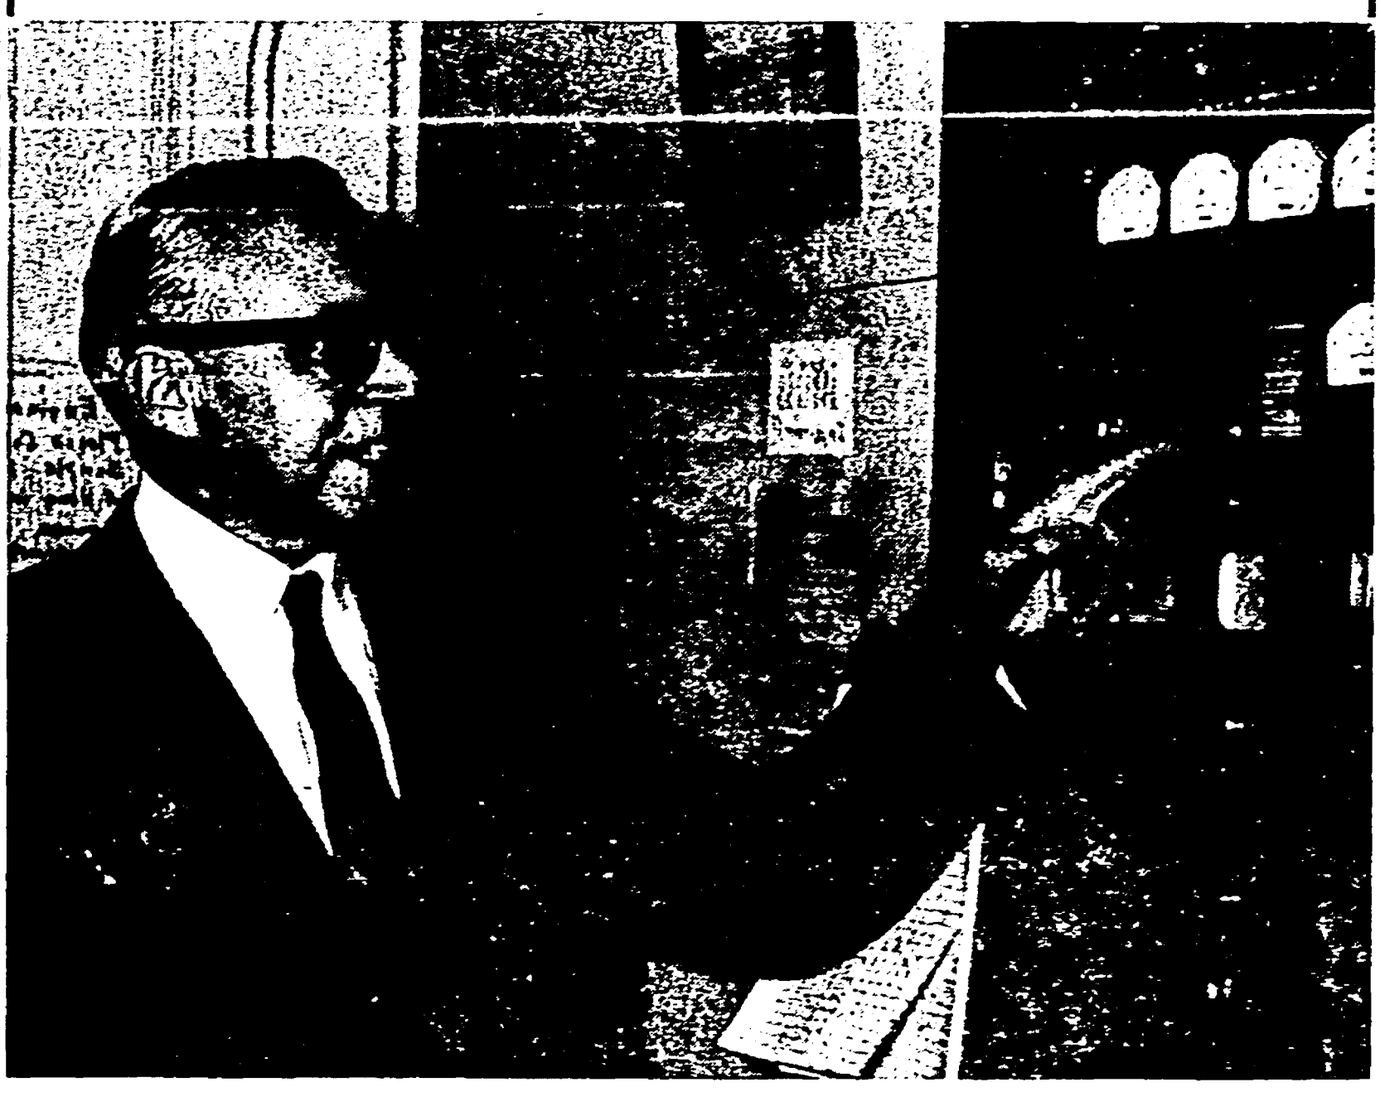
Harfenist said all students interested in any phase of student government should take the program.

The program will continue for four Thursdays, and will end with an examination covering the speakers and a supplementary booklet which will be distributed at the third meeting.

Attendance is required at all sessions and students must receive a passing grade on the examination to receive credit for the program.

Future speakers will include Peterson; JSL Speaker Ronald Mittleman; Robert Dick, student court chief justice; and several class officers.

For further information, students may contact Harfenist at ext. 2984, Susan Chalkin at ext. 2955, or the JSG office, ext. 2650, 3138.



Regents Application

Wednesday is the deadline for applications for the next competition of the Regents Scholarships for professional education in medicine and dentistry.

Applications for this competition, which will be held Oct. 15, can be filed with the Regents Examination and Scholarship Center of the University of the State of New York.

All qualified premedical and predental students who are residents of New York State are urged by the State Education Department to apply for the examination.

RADIO STATION WAER, signed on for its 16th year of broadcasting at 3:50 p.m. Monday. Vice President KENNETH G. BARTLETT pulled the switch which started the new 3500 watt station. "This is an exciting moment for WAER which for a decade, operated on rather modest power and today increases its audience threefold and becomes one of the important members of the North Eastern network. We hope that as the station develops, it will originate as many programs as it receives," stated Bartlett. Present at the ceremony were Dr. Eugene S. Foster, chairman of the Communications Department, Ruane B. Hill, faculty manager, and Michael Styer, program director.

Crime and Punishment

The threat of muggings, molestings, assault and exposure in the university area may or may not be reduced by the plans announced last weekend to beef up the police force in the area and to improve lighting.

Although in the long run they may help a situation which has coeds particularly frightened concerning their personal safety after dark, the added safety measures point out without a doubt that the fears of these girls are warranted. Unless they travel in packs, they must lose access to the library and perhaps miss impotant cultural events held on campus in the evening or risk physical harm.

As the campus continually spreads northward into the area known as the "Fifteenth Ward" the problem of the present will also expand.

The only solution left to the university, met with a serious housing problem, is to get the women's dormitories away from the northern part of campus to locations much closer to campus. We refer to the Ambassador and Washington Arms apartments as well as the cottages strung out on the far end of Walnut as places unsuited for female dwelling.

Despite the long climb, the Mount Olympus dorms provide greater protection for the coeds than do the far-flung living centers elsewhere.

With men's dormitories springing up in locations that would be ideal for women both in access to campus and safety to person, we wonder what the solution can be.

It lies somewhere in the area of meeting problems before they spring up rather than making feeble efforts to patch grave errors.

Humility--East and West

Saturday afternoon in the Polo Grounds and Sunday afternoon in Chavez Ravine. Two days in September separated by 3,000 miles but brought together by the common bond of defeat.

For on that Saturday, with his team unable to get started, Ben Schwartzwalder learned humility and Syracuse tasted defeat.

And in Los Angeles, with his team unable to finish, Walter Alston learned humility that tasted of humiliation. But they both have another chance.

Syracuse must wait two weeks before they can get started on the right foot at home while the Dodgers can win back some face by defeating the Giants in the playoffs. Only time can tell how long Alston and Schwartzwalder will continue on their mutual character-building course.

THE GADFLY

Syracuse Color Line

By T. Lee Hughes

One man, in the name of a "principle" which separates men because of the color of their skin, for two weeks defied John F. Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, the 5th Circuit Court of the United States, 540 United States Marshals, and the United States Army.

The result was a two week rehash of the Civil War, with the chief protagonists identified as:

1) Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett, who twice last week refused to admit Negro James Meredith to "Ole Miss" and who stands in the great Southern tradition of such Constitution flouters as Orval Faubus and Jeff Davis.

2) President John F. Kennedy, who was apparently more willing to send troops into Mississippi than into Cuba.

3) Win Whittaker, Daily Orange columnist, who looking desperately for someone to criticize, settled on well meaning J.S.L. senators who planned a poison pen letter to Barnett.

Sunday night Barnett apparently realized that he couldn't summon the aid of Soviet troops, much less even his own National Guard. So Mississippi was (tentatively, at least) still part of the Union, J.S.L. saved itself a 4c stamp, and James Meredith was to become an undergraduate at "Ole Miss."

But tragedy struck later that evening when a full scale riot erupted among hotheaded Mississippians on campus, resulting in the death of a foreign reporter and injury to several other participants.

Southern sources predicted that Meredith would not live a month past his admittance to the University. For Dixie's flamboyant State's Righters are enraged with the government's "take it or leave it" methods.

"This simply is not the way to promote integration in the South," a Southern (native Mississippian) friend told me recently. "You cannot force it on those people by court orders or with troops. It's got to be done through gradual education, or it will only lead to violence."

But the fact is, the South has had over a century to assimilate the American Negro as a political and cultural equal into its society. And it has failed.

It is only during the past half decade, with the use of "bludgeoning" tactics by the courts, and through mass demonstrations, that the Negro has carved out a small niche in the color wall.

Success, to be sure, is by no means complete. But, for example, there are today many places in the South where a Negro in a formerly all-white washroom is an everyday occurrance. Four years ago the sight would have been unthinkable.

That J.S.L. saw fit to contribute its own moral encouragement to the Negro cause through a proposed letter to Barnett, is heartening. But it is discouraging to read that critic Whittaker labled the proposal a "half cocked scheme that is of interest to a lunch of idealistic do-gooders."

For the Negroes and foreign students, and for the many Caucasians on the Syracuse campus, discrimination in education is a matter of definite concern. For while Messr. Barnett stands out as the current sore, discrimination festers as a disease which is nationwide. And the city of Syracuse itself is not immune to its symptoms.

This past summer, the Congress on Racial Equality, the Syracuse Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the Civil Rights Council of the IUE pleaded with the Syracuse Board of Education to deal with the problem of defacto segregation in city schools.

The Negro ghetto Northwest of the University (commonly labeled "the Fifteenth Ward") is beset by educational difficulties. The two grammar schools which serve students from the area have predominantly Negro enrollment, leading to educational problems which are by no means unique in the big cities of the Northeast.

"Ghetto" schools in Syracuse are attracting teachers who either 1) have only a passing interest in teaching, 2) who are past their prime and cannot find jobs anywhere else, or 3) who are using the "ghetto" job as an experimental stepping stone to greener pastures.

The programs of these schools are necessarily geared to the slower student, and the mental and social retards are often found in the same classes as the mentally agile student.

Because these schools serve areas in which the population is predominantly Negro, students are forced to attend school where psychological adjustment to interracial relations is impossible. They are living in de facto segregation.

When CORE's requests that the Board of Education set up a committee to explore the problem were ignored, CORE set up pickets and organized a one day boycott of the Washington Irving School, in the heart of the ghetto district.

On the first day of classes, Sept. 10, less than 20% of the expected enrollment of the school showed up for classes. And it was only slightly more than a week ago that picketing was halted pending mediation of the conflict by the State Commission for Human Rights.

Many educators assert that attempts to improve "ghetto" education must be made by hiring more male Negro teachers (to gain student respect) and by a more definitive program for mentally gifted and mentally retarded children.

CORE maintains that such suggestions merely support the outmoded "separate but equal" theory. It is pressing for some method of integrating Negro students with white, at least on the fringe of the ghetto areas. Unofficial suggestions have ranged from a plan of redistricting, to an extensive transportation program.

But regardless of who is correct, the problem is caused by the fact that Negroes are forced to live as a group in this squalid area. Part of the reason for this is that the "enlightened" residents of the Syracuse area (some of whom are probably the most vociferous critics of Messr. Barnett) still practice discrimination.

Many of the developments in Syracuse sport an effective "color bar." Thus Negroes are forced to pay exhorbitant fees to landlords in the Fifteenth Ward for the privilege of living in squalid, deteriorating huts.

And the Republican city administration has (1) for years closed its eyes to the fact that most of these houses should have been condemned, while in fact one well known Republican party leader has defended Ward landlords in city condemnation proceedings, and (2) has, under merchant pressure, given reconstruction of the Syracuse shopping district priority over urban redevelopment plans to aid residents of the ward.

In spite of the fact the city adopted a housing anti-discrimination code, discrimination in public housing apparently still flourishes.

I was treated to an enlightening experience at the end of the past semester when I had an opportunity to interview employees of many of the apartment houses in the fashionable James Street area. None of the houses approached had at the time a Negro in residence, nor "had it been several months since one had applied."

Though most employees nervously denied any discrimination, one, acting as a clerk in one of the larger low rent houses south of the area, was more frank.

"No, we don't let Negroes (I will refrain from using the vernacular here) live here. Indians either," she said. "They just cause trouble, and the rest of the tenants don't want trouble."

She said that she had just refused rooms to two Negro students from the University. "It's a shame too," she said. "They looked like nice clean cut kids, but it's just not our policy."

Asked if white residents ever caused "any trouble," she answered dejectedly, "they sure do."

Instead of saying J.S.L. should ignore the problem completely, perhaps student government and the student press should make a real study of the problem. In their own back yard as well as in that of others.

Pot Luck Pics

by John E. Greenwald

Last winter 400 New Yorkers crammed into a sweaty, grubby little theatre on the lower East Side. What they saw that night wasn't written up in any daily paper; none of the daily critics bothered to review the program.

Yet, those three hours of film shorts may have been the start of something radically new for the American motion picture.

What we saw in the overheated theatre that chilly evening was the very first Charles' Filmmakers' Festival. Most of the 400 paid 95c admission. A few were admitted free. They had brought a can of film to be shown that night.

Young

We had taken pot luck with a group of New York's young and experimental filmmakers. Most of the films were bad. Like the usual "avant garde" productions, many of the films were pretentious, obscure, and technically immature.

But even the the worst of these, made by a college fraternity, had spirit, audacity, and above all, a sense of the visual and cinematic that would put most Hollywood productions to shame.

It was not the best evening of movies we have ever seen, but it was one of the most exciting. After about an hour we got the feeling that these young directors and photographers were offering a "no holds barred" program. Neither the film censors nor the film pedants were going to stop these people.

Of course, that was not the case for many of the films. Some were more experiments for the directors than the audience.

Overall Effect

Bu tthe overall effect was not one of story, not one of character, not one of "message.

The films in this and subsequent "festivals" were try ing to communicate a mood, a feeling, an attitude. They did this by combining unre lated strips of film, a hard thing to take for one used to the story film.

Even worse are the "ab stract" films: nothing more than moving patterns of color. Our eyes are used to "real" images, but to derive feelings from moving, abstract patterns is like training the eye to "see" music.

To look at something and try to conceive a "real" connotation is difficult indeed.

Yet these filmmakers persist.

Some, like Herbert Danska in his "The Gift", employ the standard film techniques but make them perform new tricks and, for a moment, cause us to "be" the hero of the film.

The New York Daily Graphic, the first illustrated daily newspaper in the United States, began publication on March 4, 1874.

Tryouts Set

The Drama Department is holding auditions for students interested in appearing in department productions at the Regent, Coronet, and Boar's Head theatres, and the Lively Arts Coffeehouse.

Tryouts are being held 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesday, and 2 to 4 p.m. Thursday at the Drama Building. Students are requested to prepare a two to four minute reading, and bring a small photo of themselves.

Those who cannot attend the above auditions should contact "Shultze," ext. 2641 or 2650.

Syracuse Rivals Show Strength; Oklahoma Only Losing Foe

By JULIAN LOUBE

S.U.'s 1962 opponents continued to enjoy a successful season with every team but Oklahoma scoring victories over the past weekend. Penn State, now ranked as the East's number one team, led the winners with a 20-6 thumping of Air Force.

Boston College, the season's surprise team, continued in its winning ways by topping Villanova 28-13. Pittsburgh had little trouble with Baylor, outscoring the Bears 24-14.

Navy managed to slip past William and Mary 20-16. George Washington was in another squeaker. The Colonials stopped Brigham Young 14-13..

In other games, West Virginia shut-out VPI 14-0, and Holy Cross buffaloed Buffalo 16-6. Oklahoma lost to Notre Dame 13-7, and UCLA remained idle.

Penn State had to depend on its passing attack to defeat a stubborn Air Force team. The Nittany Lions held a narrow 7-6 halftime lead. In the second half, State set up an air attack which the Falcons just couldn't figure out, and quarterback Pete Liske threw two touchdown passes.

Holy Cross lost three scoring chances within the 20 yard line on two fumbles and a pass interception, but the Crusaders still managed to score two touchdowns. Buffalo contributed greatly to the Holy Cross victory by accumulating 86 yards of penalties.

Pittsburgh built up a 24-7 lead early in the third quarter and coasted to an easy victory over Baylor. Rick Lesson was the big man for the Panthers. He scored a touchdown and kicked a field goal and three extra points.

Jack Concannon, B.C.'s rangy quarterback, passed for touchdown of 78 and 58 yards and ran for one more as he directed the Eagles over Villinova. Boston showed a rock-ribbed defense as they stopped Villinova four times within the Eagle 10 yard line.

Jerry Yost scored on a 56 yard run and threw a 28 yard touchdown pass to sophomore end Milt Clegg as he directed West Virginia over Virginia Tech. The victory was the second in a row for the Mountaineers who are looking for their first winning season since 1957.

In Oklahoma, the Sooners were held scoreless after the first quarter by an alert Notre Dame defese. The Irish clock-killing attack ground out two touchdown and gave Oklahoma very few chances with the ball.

Navy had a surprisingly tough time with William and Mary but manged to pull out a 20-16 victory on a fourth quarter touchdown. The game wasn't over until time ran out with the Indians only 12 yards away from the Middies goal line.

SU Fencers Open Drills

Fencing coach Alexander Dako is looking forward to another successful season for the SU swordsmen. Dr. Dako is counting on his returning varsity squad, bolstered by several outstanding sophomores, to make up for the loss of last year's high-scoring seniors.

Coach Dako wants to build up the team and is eager to welcome all interested freshmen. No previous experience is needed or expected. Dako noted that most of the men going out for the team will be on a par, having become acquainted with the sport in college. All candidates should report to the practice gym at 4 p.m. weekdays except Friday.

Returning varsity members include: foilmen Bob Fornaro, Bob Troy and Marty Cohen; Al Rosenburg and Marv Stone, epee; and Stu Hollander, Marty Dako and Dick Dauenhauer on sabre.

In their first year of varsity competition are sophomores Harvey Schuman, Les Monostory, Jim Overgaard, Bill Wandmacher and John Hornbeck. Other newcomers are Duane Harrington, Phil Noble and Steve Goldsmith.

The team is out to better last season's 7-3 record. Last year, after losing opening meets to Buffalo and Cornell, the streaking Orange fencers marked up seven straight wins before losing their final bout to Notre Dame.

The 1962-63 schedule includes both home and away contests with Buffalo and RIT, and away meets with Case Tech and Cornell. The Hillmen will host Hobart and Penn State, with the Nittany Lions seeking revenge for last winter's one point loss to SU.

rosh swordsmen will fence RIT at home and travel with the varsity to Rochester.

Scandura Expects Good Year As Grapplers Start Practices

A tough, seasoned wrestling squad, with the added strength of three All-East sophomores, started formal practice yesterday with prospects for a victorious season in sight.

"But", Coach Joe Scandura says, "depth is still needed, especially in the heavyweight division, to ensure a possible undefeated season." Another weakness noted by the coach is the lack of school support. He hopes, however, it will improve this year.

Gary Sireta, a senior and the team captain, looked impressive in the AAU National Championships last spring and is ready to meet the stiff challenge in the 167 lb. class, as is Sonny Greenhalgh, another senior, in the 130-lb. weight class. Greenhalgh was an outstanding performer last year.

Three juniors, Dick Slutzky, Jimmy Murrin and George Reidner, complete this hard core of veterans. Slutzky, at 147 lbs, defeated a national champion in a season meet last year and is confident of continuing his success with future opponents.

Murrin, who was inactive in his 137-lb. class last year due to a shoulder injury, is anxious to chalk up some wins. At 157 lbs., Reidner will give the matmen experienced wrestling.

Bob Chappell, a senior, wrestles in the 147-lb. class with finesse.

Strong help will come from three sophomores, Terry Haise, Jerry Everling and Jim Nance. Haise, a 123 pounder, has speed and determination that will make him a valuable asset to the team. Everling, at 191 lbs., is ready to give anyone a rough match. Nance combines amazing speed and sandhog strength to make him quite unbeatable.

The two possible candidates for the 177 lb. class are Art Lewis, a senior, and Lew Roberts, a sophomore. Lewis has an injured shoulder that will possibly eliminate him. Roberts has potential that he hopes to realize this season.

In reserve stands Dave McCoy at 123 lbs., a veteran and a letterman, Gene Inch at 130 lbs., George Rogers at 147 lbs., and Tom Wilhelm, a heavyweight..

"A lack of depth could be our weakness and we need more interested men to help build up our ranks", emphasizes Scandura. Anyone interested should report to the wrestling room any afternoon this week between four and six.

Orange Pix

The Daily Orange sports staff got off to a flying start with their football predictions last weekend. The staff hit a very creditable 78%, showing much promise for the future.

The staff correctly picked Penn State, Boston College, Alabama, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame, Miami, and Southern California as victorious collegiate elevens. A tie between Missouri and Minnesota was a black mark on the slate of the DO forecasters.

Contrary to the crystal ball predictions, Army defeated Syracuse 9-2, Colgate upset the Big Red of Cornell, 23-12, and Rice (picked as the spoiler of the week), managed a tie with mighty L.S.U.

This week's contests provide some real work for the fearless forecasters as Notre Dame meets Purdue, UCLA hosts Ohio State, Michigan plays the Cadets of Army, and SMU battles the Air Force Academy in Dallas, Texas.

Sideline Views

By BERNIE MacCALLUM

"We open with two real tough ones in Oklahoma and Army," Ben said last spring. "Our boys could be shell-shocked after those two games."

Army completed the demolition with its three front lines and a corps of cheering cadets at the soon to be demolished Polo Grounds Saturday.

The Orangemen had as much trouble scoring as Kennedy is having registering students. It may be that Army's defense is as strong as the Mississippi governor's.

That white chalk line at the end of the field has yet to be crossed by Syracuse. This is the first time in the 14-years that Schwartzwalder has been coaching here that one of his teams has failed to score a touchdown in two successive games. They have eight more games to try and get one.

The odds are pretty safe that if they do score again it won't be in the air. In their two encounters the passing of Lelli and Sofsian has made fans wonder if the ball was inflated.

Syracuse has, and will continue to go nowhere without a quarterback. It's a long time before we play George Washington. Syracuse has possibly the best group of ends in the nation. Against the Cadets Orange receivers were consistently in the open without the ball. They can only reach so far.

Carrying the ball on the ground was another Syracuse problem Saturday. They fumbled five times setting up the two Army scores.

The Syracusans who made the pilgrimage down the Thruway couldn't help but be impressed with the West Point Cadets who attended the game 2400 strong. Deafening precision cheers bellowed from the cadet section from the time they marched into the park an hour before game time, until the final ten second countdown.

The Syracuse cherleaders followed the "62" trend of no rallies and few cheers as they wondered on the sidelines as if they were embarrassed to cheer.

The university marching band with its new look put on a very impressive pre-game and halftime show in one of the few bright spots of the day for Syracuse.

Coach Paul Dietzel and Army put on a show of pomp and pageantry that would do credit to many Hollywood producers. Each of Army's three units, the Regulars, the Go Team and the Chinese Bandits had special arm insignias on their uniforms.

Three different pennants, one representing each of the three units, were hoisted and lowered throughout the afternoon as the units were substituted in and out of the game. I am sure the fans appreciated being able to tell which of Dietzel's elevens was on the field. The ceremony was performed by a cadet cheerleader perched on the club house roof.

The right centerfield area looked like a zoo with three jackasses grazing there when they weren't plodding around the perimeter of the field carrying black knights. One could also see a jeep and cannon going through field maneuvers.

Dietzel's linemen snapped to attention each time they came out of the huddle. The entrance and exit of the team resembled the Olympic marathon start with the whole squad sprinting between the bench and the centerfield clubhouse with their arrival heralded by a cannon blast.

Not to be outdone by Army's symbol, the Army mule being present, Syracuse was represented symbolicly. A neat pile of 1,000 oranges could be seen on the sidelines with a bright orange cross protruding from the top. That about summed up the game for 13,000 Syracusans present.

Watkins Glen Gets Top Racers And U. S. Stars

Ferrari Team Of Hill, Rodriguez Favored In Classic

Twenty of the world's greatest drivers have entered for the Grand Prix of the United States, a 230-mile event for the Formula I World Championship of Drivers, set for the famed 2.3 mile circuit here on Oct. 5-6-7, at Watkins Glen.

The eighth of nine world point races and America's only competition in the championship series, the Grand Prix, will be run over 100 laps starting at 2 p.m. Sunday, October 7. Practice sessions will be held on Oct. 5 and 6.

The 20 entries to date include 15 team drivers from the European GP circuit and five of America's outstanding sports car drivers who will change to Formula 1 racing for the U.S. GP.

Graham Hill of England, who could clinch the world championship at Watkins, and Richie Ginther of California will compete in BRM cars. Hill, winner of three of the seven GP's run this season, has scored 36 points, 14 more than his nearest rival.

Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, current runner-up and victor in the GP of Monaco, and teammate Tony Maggs of South Africa will run Coopers.

Team Lotus of England has entered two Lotuses which will be raced by Jim Clark and Trevor Taylor, both of England. Clark is the only man who can defeat Hill for the 1962 title. However, he needs to win both the US GP here Oct. 7 and the South African GP on Dec. 29 to gain the crown.

Giants Topple Hapless LA

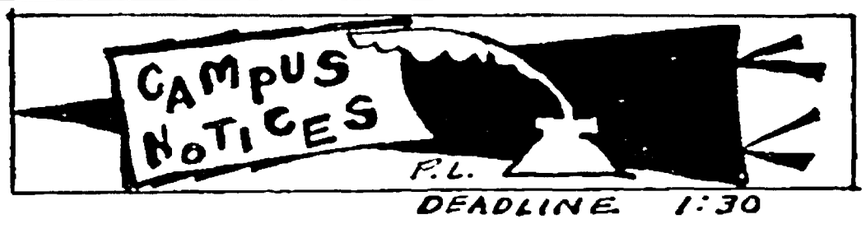
The strong left arm of veteran Billy Pierce and the bat of Willie Mays were all the San Francisco Giants needed Monday to win the first game of their best of three playoff with the hapless Los Angeles Dodgers.

After the 8-0 drubbing the two teams meet today in Los Angeles with Jack Sanford pitching for the Giants and Don Drysdale expected to start for the Dodgers. Today's game will be telecast on WSYR-TV (Channel 3) and broadcast on WSYR radio.

Monday's game was all San Francisco as the Giants thrilled the home town fans in Candlestick Park. Pierce allowed only three hits while going the route for the winners. His shutout stretched the scoreless string for the Dodgers to 30 innings.

Lefty Sandy Koufax, the first of six Dodger hurlers, lasted only two innings and was charged with the loss.

In the first inning a double by Felipe Alou and a home run by Mays with two out were all the Giants needed to win the game. Jim Davenport added a solo blast in the second and Orlando Cepeda hit one in the fifth following Mays' second of the game and 49th of the year. Cepeda's was his 35th.



Mays had a perfect day with two homers, a single and a walk. He also stole a base.

Journalism Banquet Slated November 9

Bernard Kilgore, president of the Wall Street Journal, will speak at the annual School of Journalism banquet Nov. 9, Dr. Wesley C. Clark, J-School dean, has announced.

Kilgore will discuss the nation's economy as he views it in his position on the Journal.

The banquet, usually scheduled for the spring semester, has been moved to the fall to avoid the end of session rush, said Dean Clark.

"It's an experiment," he said, "and if it doesn't work, we will change back to the spring semester."

Guests

The banquet, tentatively set for 7:30 p.m. at Sims Dining Hall, is expected to attract more than 300 guests including editors and publishers from New York and other states.

The J-School may award one or more of its medals for distinguished service to journalism at the dinner.

Kilgore, known as an experimental editor, joined the Journal staff as copy editor after graduation from DePauw University in 1929.

At the age of 32 he was named managing editor and in 1945 became president of the Wall Street Journal Co.

He is also publisher of the prize-winning weekly, The Princeton Packet.

Degree

He was recently awarded an honorary doctor's degree from DePauw, where he was a Phi Beta Kappa as an undergraduate.

Since 1917 he has served as president of the Canadian Dow Jones Ltd. and is a trustee of the Princeton (N. J.) Hospital and of DePauw University.

Tickets for the banquet may be secured from Mrs. Doris Cook, president of the Journalism Alumni Society, or in the dean's office in the Journalism Center.

'Ole Miss' PaperSpeaks

OXFORD, Miss.—The editor of the University of Mississippi student newspaper told her fellow students Monday they are bringing "dishonor and shame" to their university and state by participating in riots.

Sidna Brower, editor of the Mississippian, wrote this editorial for the riot issue of her paper:

"This is an appeal to the entire student body and to anyone concerned with the present situation. Not only do the students chance forfeiting their education by participating in riots, but they are bringing dishonor and shame to the university and to the State of Mississippi.

"This is a battle between the State of Mississippi and the United States government. The university is caught in the middle. The Civil War was fought 100 years ago over almost the same issues and the United States of America prevailed. The Federal government is once again showing its strength and power to uphold the laws of our country.

"No matter what your convictions you should follow the advice of Gov. Ross Barnett by not taking any action for violence. Blood has already been shed and will continue to flow unless people realize the seriousness of the situation."

Senior Class Ballots For Class Symbol, June Speaker Due

Members of the class of 1963 will have a part in selecting their commencement speaker, class president Henry Lee announced Monday.

A ballot listing nine suggested speakers and containing space for write-in nominations appears on page seven of today's Daily Orange.

Seniors are urged to complete the ballot and return it to class executive council members.

Ballots will be collected from 11 to 12:15 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m. today and from 11 to 12:15 a.m. Wednesday in the H. B. Crouse Hall and Main Library lobbies.

A contest to select a class symbol was also announced by Lee. Open to members of the senior class, the contest will run through Friday, Oct. 12.

There are no limitations on the type of symbols that may be submitted, explained Lee. They may be in the form of cartoon characters, animals or inanimate objects, he noted.

The class executive council will select the winner. The chosen symbol will be used in the senior section of the '63 Onondagan and will publicize class-sponsored events.

If it is an animal figure, stuffed versions -- the symbol may be sold to help bolster the class's treasury, said Lee.

State Education Dept., Albany 1, N.Y. Students still have until Dec. 1 to return completed forms. The deadline will ordinarily be in June for awards covering the following year of study.

Upon receipt of the completed forms, the state determines the amount of the grant based on the applicant's financial need. A financial statement need not be filed for a minimum $50 award, Carleton noted. Applicants holding State Regents Scholarships may also receive Scholar Incentive Awards over $150.

The state sends the student a "Notice of Maximum Award," and sends the university a list of students slated to receive awards. This enables the university to deduct the award from the tuition bill in advance, if this is desired by the student. In such case, the student must also file with the university a power of attorney. This secures release of the awards prior to their normal time of issuance which is sometime after the middle of the semester.

Checks

Normally at about the middle of the semester the state will dispatch to the university individual checks made out in each student's name. These are distributed directly to students whose tuition is paid in full. Students in the deferred payment plan who did not execute power of attorney to have the award deducted initially, will have the award apply wholly against their final payment.

Once a student participates in the program he will continue to receive application forms automatically each year. However for the first year the student must take the initiative in securing the forms. One application is made yearly for the separate grants each semester.

World News

Deadline. With the horror of death and rioting still hanging over the Oxford, Miss., campus of Ole Miss, the world awaited Gov. Ross Barnett's move today as the deadline of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals' order against him approached. The court ruled that he must show cause why he should not be held for contempt. The deadline is 11 o'clock this morning and defiance could mean a jail term for Barnett.

The Mississippi incident did mean arrest Monday for former Major Gen. Edwin Walker. The controversial Walker was arrested for rebelling against the government and was taken to a federal hospital in Springfield, Md., for observation.

NAACP officials in New Orleans report a Negro girl will try to enroll in Ole Miss.

only be able to obtain 11 acres surrounding the block occupied by the mausoleum.

Another problem faced by the university is contacting the heirs of persons interred in the mausoleum to receive permission to move bodies from the structure.

Legal Problem

"We will not acquire the property already used as graves," Burch stressed. He added that it is almost a legal impossibility to move bodies.

The executive committee of the SU Board of Trustees in its Sept. 7 meeting "expressed its genuine interest in the relocation problems of fraternities and sororities."

In a report, the committee expressed its confidence in the future of fraternities and sororities as an integral part of SU.

The report stated that the committee "is prepared to give evidence of this confidence by the development of and participation in a sound financial plan for the relocation of the fraternities and sororities on a site approved by the Design Committee."

SU Graduate Views Taiwan at SIA Meeting

Taiwan would have to radically change its economy if the United States withdrew its foreign aid.

Carol Eaton, a Syracuse graduate with the class of 1960 recently returned from a two year teaching assignment in Taiwan, told a group of students in the year's first Syracuse-In-Asia meeting that the island nation would have to chance to a completely industrial society.

As a partial military state, capital spending and savings normally put into investment is being taxed for the army, Miss Eaton said.

She told the group about the island nation with a population density of 725 people per square mile, a total land area of 13,000 miles, about the size of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire combined.

Agricultural

The population of Taiwan, three-fourths agricultural, is being gradually diversified into an industrial working group.

Because of the tremendous hydro-electric power possibilities and other smaller industries, Taiwan can become an important political anl economic force in the far east.

The one big problem in the future will be the food problem. Most all of the possible land area is now under cultivation so the only channel open will be to increase production by fertilizers.

Reforms

Miss Eaton taught English at the Tunghai University but also collected material pertaining to the agricultural reform programs. Reforms started in 1949 broke up the big plantations and put them into the hand of the small farmers and tenants.

Mainly she was interested in home development on the women's point of view. The traditional position on the female in Asia, at home, hasn't been radically changed. There is little government budgeting for women's progress.

Backing

The Syracuse-In-Asia program is financially backed by several campus organziations, the campus chest and the Chapel Fund. They receive part of their funds from the community chest and from their annual Christmas sale.

The primary purpose of the SIA is to better the understanding between Asian peoples and the people of the United States. Begun 40 years ago as a missionary organization it now has no religious affiliations..

Miss Eaton, an international relations major at Syracuse, is now administrative assistant to Dean Charles C. Noble of Hendricks Chapel.

Pan-Hellenic PlanProjects For Year

Council Discusses Formal Upperclass Rush, Service Projec

Plans for the year's activities and projects were considered at the first Panhellenic Council meeting Tuesday in the Women's Building.

Newly appointed chairmen of the Panhellenic Charity Ball Katherine Antony reminded the group that the ball is set for Friday, Nov. 30, in the ballroom of the Hotel Syracuse. Dick Kowell's orchestra will provide the music.

No charity has been decided as the recipient of the proceeds as yet. Charities under consideration are he Boys' Club of Syracuse, Youth Opportunities Unlimited, United Fund, and the SU infirmary.

These charities are not the only ones that can be considered. A committee was formed to check into other charities in the Syracuse area, and the delegates were requested to ask their respective houses for suggestions.

The general feeling at the meeting was that the charity chosen should be a local one since Panhellenic already gives money to an overseas project.

Last year's profits of $950 were given to the infirmary. Miss Antony estimated that profits this year should match those from last year.

Ball

She further urged that all girls interested in working on the ball should contact her at Pi Beta Phi, ext. 2639. Since the original chairman failed to return to school this fall, any help will be especially welcomed, Miss Antony said.

One of the charities under consideration, Youth Opportunities Unlimited, has been chosen as the social service project of Panhel this year.

Formed two years ago, this program works with students in junior and senior high school who live in the Fifteenth Ward.

Panhellenic will supply members who are specialists or majors in fields such as music, art, drama and home economics to act as counselors. They will guide and direct various projects in which boys and girls living in this area can partake.

Food With Efficiency

While hungry, weak-kneed diners shuffle slowly through the chow lines at halls like Sadler and Sims, students eating at new Kimmel Dining Hall zip through their line in no time.

To silence last year's complaints of long lines and cold food, Kimmel, which served its first meal two weeks ago, uses a new system which almost eliminates waiting for food.

The "hollow core," system, as the new system is called, is effective primarily because two complete serving units are located along the "firsts" line. Those that the first unit is unable to feed immediately are easily served by the second unit.

Satisfying food service diners who in the past have waited for thirty minutes to reach the server only to find the pans empty, the new hall offers another improvement.

Rather than run to the kitchen to replenish their pans as in other halls, the servers here need only turn around behind them to get food which has been warming in a heat cabinet.

Instead of pushing his tray along a straight counter to pick up his food, the Kimmel diner carries his tray from the salad station to the main plate station, then to desert, moving in a "U" fashion.

Coffee and milk are picked up last to avoid spilling en route. Paper cups have replaced milk glasses.

The rolling tables in which places are brought from the dishwashing room are equipped with a heating apparatus so that the plates are already warm when the food is put on them. Thus the plates do not rob heat from the food.

Even the dish-washing proceedure has been made more efficient. One supervisor suggests that perhaps four times as many saucers could be washed by an improved machine.

Not only are the diners and the dining hall workers in Kimmel happier, but the Food Service payroll department is pleased to find that these innovations eliminate three workers.

Standardization Principal Purpose Of New Food Lab

By JEFF RADFORD

What's cooking? Last semester Food Service's Ross Moriarty may have had difficulty answering that question for each of the Hill's six dining halls. Not so this year.

Standardizing the recipes and cooking procedures in each hall is the chief task of a new food testing and research laboratory under operation for the first year in the basement of Slocum Hall.

Costing about $4000, Moriarty estimates, the test kitchen has home-sized mixing and cooking apparatus as well as the larger equipment used in dining halls.

"First, using the smaller utensils, we prepare a certain dish from one of the recipes we have,"

Chapel House Theft Scene

A series of thefts from students at the Chapel House was reported Sunday to the Security Police.

Four students discovered their wallets missing after spending some time at the Chapel House, 711 Comstock Ave.

Joan Richardson of Smalley Cottage had her purse taken from the basement of the Chapel House between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. Sunday. It carried her ID card, her meal ticket and $7.

Security is investigating the thefts.

Gretchen Smith, also of 914 So. Crouse Ave., had her wallet taken off a table in the lounge at the Chapel House. She did not see anybody take it and could give no clues to the Security Police.

Ann Cooney and Brenda Gordon, of 914 So. Crouse Ave., had their wallets stolen at the Chapel House Sunday. Both described the thief as a gray-haired, stocky white man, 50-55 years old.

FRATERNITY RUSHING

Registration for upperclass and transfer men's rush and also for freshmen who will rush in the spring, will be held from 8:30 to 5 p.m. Oct. 8 and 9 in the dean of men's office.

Upperclass and transfer rush will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Oct. 10-11. A man may not be pledged until after the last rush session (6 p.m. Oct. 11).

SU Graduate Views Taiwan at SIA Meeting

Taiwan would have to radically change its economy if the United States withdrew its foreign aid.

Carol Eaton, a Syracuse graduate with the class of 1960 recently returned from a two year teaching assignment in Taiwan, told a group of students in the year's first Syracuse-In-Asia meeting that the island nation would have to chance to a completely industrial society.

As a partial military state, capital spending and savings normally put into investment is being taxed for the army, Miss Eaton said.

She told the group about the island nation with a population density of 725 people per square mile, a total land area of 13,000 miles, about the size of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire combined.

Agricultural

The population of Taiwan, three-fourths agricultural, is being gradually diversified into an industrial working group.

Because of the tremendous hydro-electric power possibilities and other smaller industries, Taiwan can become an important political anl economic force in the far east.

The one big problem in the future will be the food problem. Most all of the possible land area is now under cultivation so the only channel open will be to increase production by fertilizers.

Reforms

Miss Eaton taught English at the Tunghai University but also collected material pertaining to the agricultural reform programs. Reforms started in 1949 broke up the big plantations and put them into the hand of the small farmers and tenants.

Mainly she was interested in home development on the women's point of view. The traditional position on the female in Asia, at home, hasn't been radically changed. There is little government budgeting for women's progress.

Backing

The Syracuse-In-Asia program is financially backed by several campus organziations, the campus chest and the Chapel Fund. They receive part of their funds from the community chest and from their annual Christmas sale.

The primary purpose of the SIA is to better the understanding between Asian peoples and the people of the United States. Begun 40 years ago as a missionary organization it now has no religious affiliations..

Miss Eaton, an international relations major at Syracuse, is now administrative assistant to Dean Charles C. Noble of Hendricks Chapel.

Pan-Hellenic PlanProjects For Year

Council Discusses Formal Upperclass Rush, Service Projec

Plans for the year's activities and projects were considered at the first Panhellenic Council meeting Tuesday in the Women's Building.

Newly appointed chairmen of the Panhellenic Charity Ball Katherine Antony reminded the group that the ball is set for Friday, Nov. 30, in the ballroom of the Hotel Syracuse. Dick Kowell's orchestra will provide the music.

No charity has been decided as the recipient of the proceeds as yet. Charities under consideration are he Boys' Club of Syracuse, Youth Opportunities Unlimited, United Fund, and the SU infirmary.

These charities are not the only ones that can be considered. A committee was formed to check into other charities in the Syracuse area, and the delegates were requested to ask their respective houses for suggestions.

The general feeling at the meeting was that the charity chosen should be a local one since Panhellenic already gives money to an overseas project.

Last year's profits of $950 were given to the infirmary. Miss Antony estimated that profits this year should match those from last year.

Pride and Prejudice: Collegians' Shame

There is little pride in being a college student this week.

For if there is a common bond among the students of the many college and universities around the nation, we must all have a sense of shame for the actions of our colleagues at the University of Mississippi.

These students (at least a large percentage of them) were prominent in the Sunday rioting on the Oxford campus which resulted in the death of two persons. For these inhuman actions by young Americans we must all suffer.

Why must we be so affected by the actions of the students on one campus in a little Mississippi town? We must suffer because these southern bigots are supposedly following the same path as we are through an institute of higher learning to take their places in the world of the future.

And what kind of world will this be when our fellow American still view their own lives in terms of racial consciousness and hatred?

In youth, we have always been told, lies the answer to the age old problem of prejudice and bigotry so deeply imbedded in the south. We have been led to believe that tolerance will spring from the enlightened youth who have the advantage to rise above their forebears through higher education.

But when violence, sparked by an inhuman governor and fanned by the blind hatred of youth. Perhaps in time they will realize their ignorance and the magnitude of their misdeeds but until then we will have to lurk in the shadow of shame in the eyes of the world.

And our shame was further increased by the reaction, or lack of it, to the "civil war" in Mississippi. On a warm and sunny Sunday the campus of Syracuse University was unusually quiet while the world focused its eyes on the Oxford campus.

Then came the reports that James Meredith would be admitted to the University of Mississippi. Then followed the reports of the ugly rioting and subsequent murders.

Still Syracuse was quiet. Some listened to the words of President Kennedy, others followed the on-the-scene broadcasts from Mississippi but no student protest was heard, no voice of disapproval came forth from the Syracuse student body.

Probably content that a letter from the Joint Student Legislature would absolve their feelings, the students went along as before, impervious and unaware, unmoved and unsympathetic.

In Mississippi students helped spread the seed of a rebellion against the government and in Syracuse the students were still.

Culture Seekers

Often the complaint among much of the student body at Syracuse is that there is little to do in the city to stimulate cultural interests. As has been pointed out on other pages of the Daily Orange in the past two weeks there are indeed many opportunities open to the culture-seeking student.

Both on campus and in the city there are many outlets for those seeking them. With concerts in Crouse College and now in Gifford Auditorium, students are given an easy opportunity to partake of the arts right on campus.

In the city the Famous Artists Series presents an unusually fine lineup of talent for the coming season which, although giving the appearance of being on a one-night stand circuit, will offfer top-flight presentations to us in the "province."

The opportunities are just around the corner and will be coming one after the other, so the student in search of some rewarding bits of culture should find Syracuse far fom a wasteland.

Politics Can Be Fun

By M. H. Weinstein

Amidst the bravado of blissfully rigged conventions and the painful lamentations of the moralists (who are usually on the losing side), the political picture in New York has finally gained some measure of clarity.

The Democratic Convention finally proved who is running the party: New York Mayor Robert Wagner earned his position by downing the opposition both in his own party and in the Republican camp.

If Mayor Wagner did dictate the candidate, the right became his by political conquest. I guess we must accept the fact that dreams of a free and open convention are somewhat out of keeping with present realities on both sides of the political fence.

You've got to give the Mayor a lot of credit for becoming a real crusader down there in "Bagdad on the Subway." Of course, it took him eight years to learn how. Not even the President gets a chance like that.

It's a shame that Ike couldn't run for a third term, since by now he might finally be ready to handle the job.

"Bashful Bob" has accomplished the unique feat of gaining weight by devouring the hands which once fed him.

If he did have to pick a candidate, why couldn't he have chosen someone who's name is easier to spell?

The question is not whether or not the Democrats will win, but rather how large a booby prize "what's his name" will receive for being the party patsy in a bad year.

This campaign is bound to be a let down after the last. I still recall the absurd sight of "Cocky Rocky" and "Averill the Austere" stuffing themselves with knishes and corned beef on New York's east side. The real race was not in the direction of Albany, but in the direction of the medicine chest.

I don't think that this newcomer will do much in the knish department, but I'll bet he's a wow at flower shows.

So much for the issues.

Rocky's real trouble is that he insists on running for govenor on his 1964 presidential platform. Unfortunately, many voters have difficulty understanding their own sewage problems, let alone the Berlin situation.

At least we won't have to worry about who's wife is spending more on clothes.

Many people have accused the Governor of spending too much time wandering about the country on "good will" trips. But after all, he only agreed to run the state. He said nothing about staying here while he did it.

If he does have the wanderlust, as his critics claim, you really can't blame him. The Republican government must be rather frustrated about having to operate in a fierce Democratic stronghold like Albany. Fact is, the Governor probably doesn't have the influence to fix a parking ticket in his own capital.

Mayor Wagner, meanwhile, has made great strides in killing off much of his city accent. He seems to be attempting to develop a mid-New York twang which will be acceptable to upstaters while not alientating his city supporters.

Things to come?

The more I see of New York State politics, the happier I am that I live in New Jersey. Our biggest worry is whether or not Jersey City will allow us to hold any elections at all.

I recall some years ago when Bob Meyner ran for his second term as governor. One day that sentimental, ginger peachy, first class public image from California, dropped by, carpet bag in hand, to give a few croaks for the Republicans. Naturally, this assured a smashing Democratic victory.

Last year the Kennedy magic came to the rescue of the Jersey Democratic candidate. No one had heard very much about him either, but we Jersey people "figgered" Jack's been a good boy and it would be a shame to hurt his feelings.

Looking around the country, we see the Republicans busily trying to decide which sacrificial lamb will be pitted against "Jack the Gaint Killer" in '64.

Ever notice that the less Kennedy seems to accomplish, the more popular he becomes? But after all, his predecessor left him an excellent example.

Nixon could really gum up the works by getting smashed by Pat Brown, thus upsetting the balance of power in the party.

Gallup poll upon the wall
Is my image best of all?

Then there's that Rambler man from Michigan. No one's quite sure where he fits in, but it's nice to have someone to take up the slack.

Speaking of taking up slack, what about that Merchant Menace from Arizona. Up to now, he has remained silent about his real ambitions. For '64 he will be content to let the competition run the store. But who's to say what new brands he will add to his political bargain basement in '68. For now, he's just sitting around waiting to inherit the earth.

No one can say that the Republicans don't have plenty of leadership.

I won't say anything about the problems of the Democrats since I don't believe it is right to interfere in family affairs.

Many years from now these characters will be viewed as the farsighted leaders of their day. After all, statesman is only a politician who has outlived his critics. And history is usually written by the winners.

We must view the situation without the benefit of hindsight. From here it looks like this year's political campaigns are going to be more fun to watch than a barrelfull of campus leaders.

ABNORMAL—Not conforming to standard. In matters of thought and conduct, to be independent is to be abnormal; to be abnormal is to be detested.

ABORIGINES—Persons of little worth found cumbering the soil of a newly discovered country. They soon cease to cumber; they fertilize.

ABRUPT — Sudden, without ceremony, like the arrival of a cannon-shot and the departure of the soldier whose interests are most affected by it.

ONE NIGHT STAND

The Sphere of Jazz-MJQ

By Larry Ferleger

The Modern Jazz Quartet has been one of the most important groups around for the last decade or so. Each of the members of the group has a certain kind of talent which is brought into a collective setting without clashing. The primary soloist is Milt Jackson, known as "Bags".

He is by far the leading vibes player in jazz, and has influenced almost all the men who have followed him. Writer LeRoi Jones has compared Jackson to Coleman Hawkins, the old man of the tenor sax.

There are definite grounds for comparison between the two. Both are known as superb blues players, both are rhapsodizers on ballads, both use a broad vibrato on their instruments, and both are among the all-time greats of jazz.

Reputation

The "musical director" of the MJQ is pianist John Lewis, holder of a Master's degree in music. Lewis, much underrated as a pianist due to his formidable reputation as a composer, has been one of the leaders of the school of "third stream music." This term refers to music blending modern jazz and classical idioms.

Lewis has often gone beyound the usual jazz forms of blues and popular song, and has written fugues for the quartet. The more recent "third stream" efforts have combined the MJQ with string quartets and orchestras. Lewis has also written several film scores, among them "Odds Against Tomorrow" and "No Sun in Venice."

Percy Heath, of the famous Philadelphia jazz family, is among the most respected bass players in jazz. The only thing I need to say about him is that he has a big tone and a firm beat, and leave it at that.

Drummer

Drummer Connie Kay has a ticklish job. The MJQ needs a drummer who can keep a firm control over his sense of dynamics and not drown out the group. Kay's predecessor in the quartet was Kenny Clarke, one of the most influential drummers of the early modern period. "Klook" felt fettered by the group and left for France in 1955.

The style of the MJQ is familiar to many, but for those who don't know, I will attempt a capsule description. Usually, Milt Jackson is out front on vibes, with Lewis' backing him laconically on piano.

Lewis does not solo as much as he should, but his work behind Jackson is almost exquisite. His piano figures seem to dance, and he often uses phrases that are as old as jazz itself. Heath and Kay are well integrated into the group, although some critics consider Kay's triangle and small cymbals to be an affectation.

The texture of the group is light and they usually stick to slow and medium tempos. On numbers like "Bags' Groove" and "Bluesology" they are soulful, while numbers like Lewis' revered "Django" and his fugue "Vendome" find the group in a classical mood.

The group was among the pioneers of the understated, lyrical, "cool" school, and along with Dave Brubeck and Gerry Mulligan, they are its only survivors. They kept swinging while most of the cool musicians stagnated in counterpoint and excessive writing in place of improvisation. The MJQ is still a rewarding group to hear and they demonstrate the true rapport of kindred souls at work.

I hope some of you got down to Luigi's this past weekend to hear John Coltrane's quartet.

MUSIC

The Morris' Concerto

In his Concerto for Seven Instruments, Piano, Percussion and Tape, Franklin Morris has combined some traditional musical elements with some more controversial ones.

The result is a piece that has appeal alternately for its rhythmic interest and its power. The effect of randomness is never overdone, nor is it forced on the audience merely to shock them into and ignorant acceptance of the music.

The mood varies between light humor and power. The climaxes are hair-raising and convincing. The instrumentation includes enough pieces to allow it to be so and yet is thin enough so that the parts remain clear and the intricate rhythmic figures can be readily distinguished.

The performance itself was extremely competent, and under the direction of Dr. Morris, the musicians always seemed sure of where they were in the score.

The Krasner Quartet joined with percussionists Allan Pabst and George Ward, flutist Evelyn Davis, horn player Marvin Howe and trumpet player Leroy Strickland. Jerrold Cox was at the piano and Will Headlee played the crouse Organ via tape. Stuart Raleigh and Carmen Minnella were at the Ampex.

The opening portion of the concert, which was the first Syracuse Friends of Chamber Music recital of the season, was the Quintet for 2 violins, viola and two cellos, subtitled "Bird Sanctuary," by Boccherini. It's a light-hearted and appealing piece with bird trills echoing throughout.

This was followed, at Gifford Auditorium, HB Crouse Hall, by Beethoven's String Quartet, Opus 59, No. 2. The fourth movement of this was performed with vigor and skill which prompted the most enthusiastic audience reaction in the first half of the program. For this number, the Krasner Quartet consisted of Prof. Krasner and Miss Adrienne Galimir on violin, Mr. Claude Bortel on viola, and Mr. Frederick Miller on the cello. They had been aided during the Boccherini Quintet by cellist George Mulfinger.

SW

'Traviata' Performance Set

An English version of Verdi's "La Traviata" will be presented at 8:20 p.m. Wednesday, October 10th at Lincoln Auditorium, by the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre.

"La Traviata" was translated into colloquial English by Boris Goldovsky, the producer of the company. He is also a radio commentator for the Metropolitan Opera House, as well as a concert pianist.

This is the eighth national tour of the theatre. Previous English language productions have included "Rigoletto," "Don Giovanni' and "The Barber of Seville." The purpose of the group is to demonstrate that opera is living theatre.

Thle purpose of translating "La Traviata," into English, according to Goldovsky, is to enable the audience to be enveloped into the action and nuances of the opera. This opera is not a literal translation of the Italian, but a striving for the English phrases that could have been written by Verdi.

The production has a company of fifty, which includes 11 principals, a chorus and an orchestra.

Nineteenth-century Paris is recreated by means of the Elmer Nagy Multi-Projection System: glass slides project the scenic artists original designs onto plastic sets, thus making it possible to blend one scene into another. The costumes also add to the lavishness of the opera.

"La Traviata" is based on Alexander Dumas' novel "The Lady of the Camelias," the love story of Camille.

Tickets can be purchased at the Clark Music Building for $3, 3.50 and 4.00, or call HA 2-8915 for reservations.

Shifty Concannon to Test Orange Defense

ART ROSKY

When Syracuse's football team takes the field against Boston College October 13, it will have a hard time containing John Concannon, BC's junior quarterback.

Concannon, an unheralded reserve most of last year, nearly sparked BC to an upset victory in last year's game with his fine running and passing.

Concannon, who has gained 392 yards in his team's first two games, ranks ninth in the nation in the total offense tables.

Brigham Young's Eldon Forte, who has gained an amazing 769 yards in his team's first three games, is the national paceseter.

No Syracuse player gained a place in this week's tables, but several players from opposing teams captured positions.

Penn State was the only opponent of the Orangemen to place two players in this week's listings.

Penn State's Chuck Raisig, who has booted five punts at an average of 47.2 per kick, leads the nation's punters.

Another Nittany Lion, Hal Powell, ranks 13th in scoring and 14th in pass receiving.

Powell has scored 20 points, tieing him with Washington State's Hugh Campbell, an All American candidate at end, with three touchdowns and two extra points.

Powell has also snagged nine passes for 102 yards.

Al Snyder of Holy Cross, who has grabbed nine passes for 130 yards, ranks twelfth.

Verne Burke of Oregon State leads the nation's pass receivers with 17, a two game record.

Frank Pazzaglia of George Washington has completed 20 passes out of 28 attempted to gain the 11th spot in the passing tables.

Navy's Ron Klemick has also completed 20 of 35 thrown, to gain the 14th position.

In team statistics the Hill forces rank seventh in pass defense.

The Orange gridders have allowed an average of 43.5 yards per game in the air.

Northwestern paces the nation with a yield of only 10 yards per game.

Three Orange opponents captured places in the team statistical tables.

Army is the only opponent to be mentioned in the defensive tables.

Army has allowed its opponents only 64 yards per game on the ground, good enough for 9th place.

Penn State, which has averaged 184 yards per game through the airlanes, ranks ninth in passing offense.

In rushing offense the ninth spot was captured by West Virginia, which has piled up an average of 272.5 yards per game.

20 Drivers Seek Titles in Glen GP

On Sunday, Oct. 7, the Grand Prix gets under way at Watkins Glen. Twenty of the world's greatest drivers including five Americans are entered in the race. Included in the field are Graham Hill of England, Ritchie Ginther of California, Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, Jim Clark and Trevor Taylor, both of England.

Practice sessions will be held on Oct. 5 and 6. The hundred lap race over a 2.3 mile course will begin on Sunday at 2.

Hill, who has won three of the seven GPs run this year, leads his nearest rival by 22 points. However, the Englishman needs to win both the U.S. Grand Prix as well as the South African G.P. on Dec. 29, in order to gain the world championship.

L. A. Outlasts Giants 8-7

By JAN GILMORE

The Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the San Francisco Giants today by a score of 8 to 7 to send the National League playoff series into the third game.

The game was a four hour and twenty-three minute circus that saw 41 tired players try to give their last ounce. Some did and some did not.

The two clubs' respective aces, Jack Sanford and Don Drysdale faced one another with only two days rest, and for five innings it looked like a pitcher's duel, although the Giants scored in the first on a double by Felipe Alou.

In the fifth ,though, the Dodger's roadtop infield began working against them as the Giants ripped hits that bounced through like golf balls. When Ed Roebuck put a halt to the rally, the Giants had scored four.

Then the Dodgers, after a 35 inning drought, broke into the scoring column in a big way. They riffled through three Giant pitchers for seven runs. With the bases loaded, pinch hitter Andy Carey came through with a clutch hit-by-pitched ball, and a bespectacled veteran named Lee Walls, hitting for Roebuck, bounced one off the left-center field wall for a three run triple. Maury Wills grounded to Orlando Cepeda, who tried for a play at the plate. But Walls was bent on scoring the insurance run, and hit catcher Tom Haller with what might be called a Mafia slide, kicking the ball from his hand. Haller required stitches.

It seemed as if the Dodgers needed more insurance, however, as the Giants were by no means dead yet. Jim Davenport and Willie Mays stroked singles and Strawberry Ed Bailey bashed a single to center scoring Davenport as Mays was cut down at third by Umpire Conlan's call more than Davis's throw, for a controversial play that may have meant the game as far as the Giants were concerned. A fly to the leadfooted Howard meant Cepeda was on first, a walk and a long fly plated the tying run, but the inning ended with three more pitchers showering up.

Then came the proverbial bottom of the ninth and there was Maury Wills with his 101 steals on first by way of a walk. Giant manager Alvin Dark then began a series of complicated moves designed to keep Wills from getting 102. Though these moves were successful, there were soon two more Dodger runners joining Wills in the basepaths. At this moment, Ron Fairly hit a fly ball to medium center field, and it was a race between Wills' speed and Mays arm. Wills won.

And so did the Dodgers. Today it will be John Podres for the Dodgers and Juan Marichal for the Giants.

WSYR radio and television will carry the game starting at 4 p. m.

Piety Idle; Mazurek To Return

With the Orange idle this Saturday, Coach Ben Schwartzwalder has plenty of time to regroup his forces and prepare for the home opener with Boston College on Oct. 13.

Off the injured list is 6' 3" Jim Mazurek. Mazurek, who missed the Army game and the opener with Oklahoma due to an elbow injury, will be back at inside tackle for the Hill forces against Boston College.

Ray Free, who shone in last night's scrimmage may be the starting halfback according to S.U. mentor Schwartzwalder.

During this off week, Schwartwalder has been experimenting with several players at various positions. Prior to the layoff, the backfield had been shifted considerably with Schoonover and Billy Hunter at left half. Lelli and Sofsian at quarterback, Sophs Nat Duckett and Jim Nance at fullback, and Koski and Giardi at right halfback.

The line seems set with Sweeney and Mackey at ends, Meggysey and Huettner at guards, Cholakis and Mazurek at tackles and Gene Stancin at center.

Ex-Gridders Play Sunday

By MERTH JOHANEK

Eight former Syracuse University players will be in the lineup when the Frankfurt Falcons, the New York State entry in the Atlantic Coast Football League, play the NuWay Sweepers of Chelsea, Massachusetts, at MacArthur Stadium, at 6:15, Sunday.

Dick Easterly, 1961 graduate of S.U., recently acquired by the Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Canadian Football League, will play with the Falcons here before returning to Canada to finish the season. While at Syracuse, Dick played halfback and proved to be a good defensive back.

Fred Mautino, All - America end, was a former Orangeman. He played on the team during the '58, '59, and '60 seasons. Mautino was called "the best end I ever coached" by Schwartzwalder, and also gained recognition on the campus as an honor student.

A 1962 graduate of S.U., Gary Fallon, of Watertown, is also expected to make a good showing Sunday. While at Syracuse, Fallon was a fullback.

Dave Applehof, a good blocker on offense with the Orangemen, graduated in 1960. He was also recognized as an excellent tennis player, proving his skill and prowess in competitive sprots.

A 1961 graduate of the University, John Howell, will be playing with the Falcons. He proved an excellent passer during his seasons with the Orange.

A husky forward for the Orange team, George Frankovitch, will be on hand Sunday to aid the Falcons.. He is a 1962 graduate of S.U.

John Seketa, a 6-2, 225 pound forward for the Orange team, will also be with the Frankfurt team. He was on the team during the Oranges '60 and '61 seasons.

The last former Orangeman, but in no way inferior to his teammates, on the Falcon team, is Al Gerlick. While on the University team, Al was strong on defense and a capable reserve place kicker. He was nicknamed "Cannonball" by his teammates during the 1958 and 1959 seasons. He graduated in 1960.

The only former Syracusan on the NuWay Sweepers is Tom Stephens. While on the team he proved to be a great runner with amazing balance. During the 1957 season, he was the leading Orange scorer and second in rushing and pass receiving. Tom proved to be valuable on defense.

Penn State, Army Lead Polls; Orange 6th in Lambert Ratings

Orange opponents Penn State and Army paced Eastern elevens in the second week of college football ratings. Winless Syracuse failed to gain recognition among the top 30 teams.

The Nittany Lions, victorious over Navy and the Air Force Academy in their first two games, hold the fourth spot on both the Associated Press and United Press International polls.

Army, bolstered by its strong showing against the Orangemen last weekend, advanced to ninth in the UPI ratings and tenth on AP.

Other Syracuse opponents receiving votes on the Associated Press chart were West Virginia and U.C.L.A. Navy gained honorable mention on the UPI poll.

Penn State is off and running in its bid for a second straight Lambert Trophy, emblematic of Eastern major college football supremacy. The Lions from University Park earned a perfect 10..0 ratings in the first weekly balloting for the trophy, receiving all eight first-place votes.

Army was a strong second with an 8.9 average. The Cadets possess victories over Wake Forest and Syracuse.

Pittsburgh is the number three Eastern squad, followed in order by Boston College, Princeton, Syracuse, Holy Cross, Navy, Dartmouth and Villanova.

Several Hill adversaries gained recognition on the all-East major college football team selected weekly by sports writers of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference.

Art (Cammy) Lewis, Army's substitute quarterback who led the Black Knights to their 9-2 win over Syracuse, heads a backfield inculding halfbacks Roger Kochman of Penn State and Al Snyder of Holy Cross, and fullback Rick Leeson of Pittsburgh.

End Art Graham of Boston College, who could give the Orange fits on October 13, was the lone opponent lineman listed.

Food...

explained Miss Margaret Gibson, test kitchen administrator, "then after improvements or verification, we cook on a larger scale."

Quantities up to fifty servings can be tested here.

Recipes which are used in the dining halls are obtained from several sources, such as the Army, the Navy and Roman Catholic parochial schools.

"Often recipes that we get from food companies call for extra amounts of that particular company's product, so we check to see how much is really needed," said Miss Gibson, formerly employed by the Borden Foods Co. Research Center.

She operates the test kitchen by herself now, but more assistants are expected in the future.

"Many times the cooks have their own ideas on how to cook certain foods, but actually the Food Service system could be operated more efficiently if each hall put out the same food prepared the same way," she added.

Moriarty stated that the full potential of the test kitchen has not yet been realized. In the future, test cooking of a meal will take place prior to the preparation of the same meal in the dining halls, although this is not done at present.

"All food services of large institutions have experimental kitchens similar to this one," Moriarty said. "We visited similar operations at Penn State and Michigan State while making our plans."

Although the idea for such a project at Syracuse was originated some time ago, active preparation began only last March.

Realizing that the results of a meal cooked in the special conditions of a test kitchen may be different from those in a large and hurried cafeteria kitchen, this program plans to give on-the-spot instructions to dining-hall chefs when needed.

Even though the program is too new to yield many startling results various dining hall supervisors have commented favorably on the new idea.

After Miss Gibson tests new recipes or checks old ones, she sends standardized recipe cards to each hall.

"Last year the recipes that we had were not necessarily tested for the accuracy of their content or instructions," said the Sadler dining hall supervisor, Mr. Denblecker. "The recipe cards that I used last year were here when I got here so I have no idea where they came from."

The major advantages of the new cards sent out by Miss Gibson, he said, are that the chefs can easily break down the recipe measures to fit the number of students to be fed in that hall.

World News

School. James Meredith begins his third day of classes at the University of Mississippi today still under the protection of a half-dozen federal marshals.

Meanwhile the Oxford, Miss., campus was quiet under the eyes of thousands of troops and federal marshalls. Meredith's second day of classes went rather peacefully although he was faced with taunts and jeers on occasion.

He said some classmates talked to him and that he received a hundred telegrams, only one unfriendly. Asked if he is lonely, the 29-year old Air Force veteran said, "I've lived a lonely life for a long time."

Contempt. The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans gave Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul Johnson a 10-day reprieve on their contempt charge. The court gave the two men till Oct. 12 to accept the admission of Meredith.

Old Soldier. Ex Army Major Gen. Edwin Walker was ordered to take psychiatric tests in the Medical Center for Federal Prisoners, Springfield, Mo. Walker was arrested in Oxford Monday for, among other things, insurrection. His lawyers are protesting the order for tests.

Flight. Late Tuesday night plans were still ready for the six orbital flight of Walter Shirra. Weather was still a factor, however, and it was not definite that the launching would take place.

Postage. The postai bill which will mean a raise in pay for a million and a half federal workers as well as a one cent increase in first class, air mail and post cards has now been approved by both the House and Senate.

Explorer. An Explorer satellite was launched Tuesday evening from Cape Canaveral to study radiation in space caused by the sun.

Tests. The 28th nuclear blast of the current Johnston Island tests was set off Tuesday on that Pacific island but a leading scientist on the project said the tests have shown, in his opinion, that we are definitely behind the Russians in nuclear weapons at the present.

Strike. A nationwide strike of British railway workers has virtually crippled downtown London. More than three million people have been affected bythe full scale walkout midnight Monday. London time. Schools have closed and businessmen stayed in the downtown area for the first night of the strike. It is expected to be settled within 24 hours. It is the largest railway strike in the country since 1926.

Vaccine. The Surgeon General has announced that type three of the oral Sabin vaccine should be continued for use among young children of school age. However, he added, the vaccine should not be used by adults.

Negotiations. Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz spent the night in negotiations with representatives of labor and management in the West Coast areo-jet work stoppage. The walkout at the West Coast plant could seriously threaten America's missle research program.

Reception for MJQ Planned by IFC

By ADAIR DUFINE
Junior Editor

The first joint Greek activity at an individual fraternity is planned by the Inter-Fraternity Council for Oct. 18, Pres. Thomas Rigoli has announced.

Delta Upsilon will sponsor a reception for the Modern Jazz Quartet, with all Greeks invited on that date.

Rigoli made it clear at IFC' meeting Wednesday night that non-fraternity men and freshmen will not be able to attend the reception.

"This action (the reception) is of great consequence to the entire Greek system," stated James McMurray, fraternity administrator. "It proves the ability of the fraternities to join together," he continued.

The rushing rules, reviewed at the meeting, were clarified by Alfred Wittaker, head of the Judicial Board. "No freshman is to be with more than two men from one fraternity at the same time," he stated. Association with freshmen after the silence period begins will be considered dirty rushing, he said, and referred to the Judicial Board.

Rush

The dates set for fraternity upperclass and transfer rush have been finalized for Oct. 10-11. McMurray clarified the specified time for rush, not limited to the set hours printed in the DO, and suggested that fraternities rush at the time most convenient to individual houses.

A request for invitations to be sent to transfer men was brought to the council by Rigoli. "This invitation could be before lunch, enabling rushees to make a decision early in the day, and save the houses time in rush hours." he said.

Pledging may officially begin at the end of the final rush session, Oct. 11, said McMurray. Open rush may be permitted any time this week and does not have to be postponed until after the end of upperclass rush, he stated.

Registration

"Another registration for spring rushing will be held this Monday and Tuesday," continued McMurray. This should enable interested freshmen to register who missed the previous registration dates, he stated.

The "Meet the Greeks" manual was reported still at the printers and was expected to be released before the end of the week.

Inter-Fraternity Council representatives have tentatively rented the War Memorial for the Greek Week '63 IFC formal. Members were urged to get individual views from their houses and present them at the next IFC meeting.

Lloyd Baskin, publicity chairman, (Sigma Alpha Mu), presented a news form to all Greeks on the Hill. It is his hope to have these forms completed and write a weekly column about fraternities in the Daily Orange.

(See IFC, Page 7)

FRATERNITY RUSHING

Registration for upperclass and transfer men's rush and also for freshman who will rush in the spring, will be held from 8:30 to 5 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the dean of men's office, Administration Bldg.

AEPi, ATO Share Meals

Alpha Epsilon Pi and Alpha Tau Omega have become the first Hill fraternities to share eating facilities, announced Fraternity Administrator James P. McMurray Wednesday.

ATO with 18 men eating in, needed extra men to complete its serving set-up, said McMurray. The lack of sororities to fill the vacancies gave rise to the suggestion by McMurray of inviting AEPi to eat at the ATO house.

Alpha Epsilon Pi plans to renovate its kitchen, requiring the brothers to eat in university dining halls or other facilities in the meantime. At McMurray's suggestion ATO contacted AEPi and a table was set up between the two houses.

Last Chance For Tickets

The dust and confusion of last month's registration at Manley Field House has settled, leaving many students with neither ID cards nor football tickets or both.

According to Registrar Edwin D. Smith, the last 4,000 ID cards will go ito the mail today. Deliveries may take up to 4 days, Smith warned.

Students without football tickets have a last chance to pick them up from 1 to 4 p.m. this Saturday in the Trophy Room, Men's Gymnasium, said James Decker, assistant director of athletics. Presentation of an ID card or tuition receipt will be necessary.

Panty Raid Policy: 'Fair Though Firm'

Participation to Go On Record; Leaders Sought By Clifford

By CLAY RICHARDS

A policy of "fairness though firmness," will be used in dealing with the participants in last Thursday's panty raid, according to Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford.

While it is apparent that no extensive damage to property occurred in last week's raid, such disciplinary action will be taken because of the dangerous potential of such a raid. A similar raid last year resulted in over $500 worth of damage to sorority houses and grounds around women's dormitories, Clifford told the Daily Orange.

Besides the damage to houses and grounds, the disturbance to area hospitals and private homes, along with damage to the university's reputation also must be considered, Clifford said.

Little Damage

Final reports of damage have not yet been given to the dean of men's office for this year's raid, "but at this point my impression is that there was no extensive damage," Clifford said.

An extensive check is not being made to confirm the identification of various participants in the raid. Minimum penalty for those identified will be the entrance of the participation in the student's record.

Such a record is kept and, in event of further disciplinary action, this participation is taken into account, Clifford said.

Identification

Besides the identification of individual participants, an attempt is also being made to identify the leaders of the raid, and any individuals involved in specific damage of destruction.

In the instance of these students, each case will be individually referred to the Joint Student Court for further action.

The results of the dean of men's office investigation will be released following consultation with the dean of women's office and Joint Student Government officials, Clifford said.

Maxwell Now Offers East Africa Program

A new East-African Studies program has begun this month at Syracuse University by the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs.

Directed by Maxwell prof. of political science Fred C. Burke, the program will feature related graduate courses in political science, economics, sociology-anthropology, geography and history.

Dean of the Maxwell School Stephen K. Bailey said Wednesday that SU is the "only institute in the United States that has a program in East-African studies." He commented that Northwestern and Boston Universities have African programs, but added "they are concerned with all of Africa."

Too Large

In a letter to Prof. Burke, who is currently in East Africa, Dean Bailey noted that "Africa is too large, variegated and complex for effective area and functional concentration."

For this reason, he explained, "Maxwell School determined to focus its academic interests on East Africa with special emphasis upon Kenya, Tangkanyika and Uganda."

Last December, Dean Bailey and Dean Eric H. Faigle of the College of Liberal Arts jointly announced the creation of the special committee on East African studies in the Maxwell Center for the Study of Overseas Operations and Research.

Dean Bailey said that the program is open to SU graduate students and a limited number of East African graduate students. The program offers East Africans "added opportunity to relate their social science graduate work to their own country," said Dean Bailey.

In a letter to the Daily Orange Dean Bailey said that "the program will also be the center for university research and other educational interests in East Africa, with special emphasis on problems of administration and political and economic development."

Negotiation

The Maxwell School is presently in the "last stages of negotiation with the US government on a contract with AID to help staff the Institute of Administration near Nairobi, Kenya," Dean Bailey said.

He stated that Maxwell "is trying to train Africans rapidly for positions as civil servants to avoid another Congo situation."

(See Maxwell, Page 8)

JSG Sets Training Sessions

A record turnout is expected at today's initial sessions of the student government training program, Joint Student Legislature speaker Ronald Mittleman told the Daily Orange Wednesday.

Sessions will be held at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. today in Gilford Auditorium, H. B. Crouse Hall. Students whose last names begin with A-M should attend the afternoon session. The last half of the alphabet should attend the evening meeting.

Students with class conflicts may attend the other session, Mittleman said.

Theodore Bayer and Carol (Shultze) Lucha, JSG president and vice president, will address tonight's meeting. James Morris and Katherine Antony, elections commissioners, will also speak.

The training sessions will be given at two meetings each day for four consecutive Thursdays. Participants must attend all four sessions to receive credit for the program and must pass a final examination at the end of the program.

Recommended

The program is recommended by Traditions Commission President Leland Peterson for all fresmen who plan to apply for Goon Squad at the end of the year. He also recommended the program for sophomore Goons who will apply for Traditions Commission.

Mittleman recommends that all JSL senators who have not taken the program in previous years also attend.

New JSL Constitution Planned

By AUDREY LIPPMAN

One of the first things the Joint Student Legislature Government Structures Committee is going to do in the new constitution is drop the word "joint" from JSL, Joint Student Government, and Joint Student Court.

David Knickerbocker, chairman of the committee, said this form of identifying the three bodies of the government is out of date. It refers to the time when the SU campus had two separate governing bodies, Men's and Women's Student Governments. Without these separate governing bodies, the use of "joint" in reference to campus government is not necessary Knickerbocker said.

The Joint Student Legislature constitution will be revamped this year by the Government Structures Committee. In order to decide what changes are necessary for the new constitution, the committee will discuss their ideas at the Pinebrook Conference this weekend. Although the main purpose of the conference is not to discuss this constitution, ideas exchanged by attending students, faculty and administration may result in a constitution offering the students a better foundation for good government in the future.

The present constitution of the legislature is seriously out of date. Adopted four years ago, its basic terms are not consistent with the ideal of the campus government.

Adapt

JSL Speaker Ronald Mittleman said he wished the future constitution to be adaptable to the university situation. Right now, JSL does not always strictly adhere to the present constitution, he said.

Mittleman referred to section IV of the present constitution, part of which states: "Standing committee chairmen shall be elected from the senators-at-large by the entire senate."

Since competent people are often senators from living centers, as well as senators-at-large, Mittleman said he appointed several committee heads who were not class representatives.

Knickerbocker said he believed only two standing committee heads were senators-at-large this year.

He said he hoped to incorporate in the new constitution the election of officials other than president and vice president of the student government. Possibly, we will be able to elect a secretary and treasurer, he said.

Committees

At the first JSL meeting, Sept. 26, senators were asked to sign up for the committees they preferred. Many signed up for the Government Structures

A policy of "fairness though firmness," will be used in dealing with the participants in last Thursday's panty raid, according to Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford.

While it is apparent that no extensive damage to property occurred in last week's raid, such disciplinary action will be taken because of the dangerous potential of such a raid. A similar raid last year resulted in over $500 worth of damage to sorority houses and grounds around women's dormitories, Clifford told the Daily Orange.

Besides the damage to houses and grounds, the disturbance to area hospitals and private homes, along with damage to the university's reputation also must be considered, Clifford said.

Little Damage

Final reports of damage have not yet been given to the dean of men's office for this year's raid, "but at this point my impression is that there was no extensive damage," Clifford said.

An extensive check is not being made to confirm the identification of various participants in the raid. Minimum penalty for those identified will be the entrance of the participation in the student's record.

Such a record is kept and, in event of further disciplinary action, this participation is taken into account, Clifford said.

Identification

Besides the identification of individual participants, an attempt is also being made to identify the leaders of the raid, and any individuals involved in specific damage of destruction.

In the instance of these students, each case will be individually referred to the Joint Student Court for further action.

The results of the dean of men's office investigation will be released following consultation with the dean of women's office and Joint Student Government officials, Clifford said.

Maxwell Now Offers East Africa Program

A new East-African Studies program has begun this month at Syracuse University by the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs.

Directed by Maxwell prof. of political science Fred C. Burke, the program will feature related graduate courses in political science, economics, sociology-anthropology, geography and history.

Dean of the Maxwell School Stephen K. Bailey said Wednesday that SU is the "only institute in the United States that has a program in East-African studies." He commented that Northwestern and Boston Universities have African programs, but added "they are concerned with all of Africa."

Too Large

In a letter to Prof. Burke, who is currently in East Africa, Dean Bailey noted that "Africa is too large, variegated and complex for effective area and functional concentration."

For this reason, he explained, "Maxwell School determined to focus its academic interests on East Africa with special emphasis upon Kenya, Tangkanyika and Uganda."

Last December, Dean Bailey and Dean Eric H. Faigle of the College of Liberal Arts jointly announced the creation of the special committee on East African studies in the Maxwell Center for the Study of Overseas Operations and Research.

Dean Bailey said that the program is open to SU graduate students and a limited number of East African graduate students. The program offers East Africans "added opportunity to relate their social science graduate work to their own country," said Dean Bailey.

In a letter to the Daily Orange Dean Bailey said that "the program will also be the center for university research and other educational interests in East Africa, with special emphasis on problems of administration and political and economic development."

Negotiation

The Maxwell School is presently in the "last stages of negotiation with the US government on a contract with AID to help staff the Institute of Administration near Nairobi, Kenya," Dean Bailey said.

He stated that Maxwell "is trying to train Africans rapidly for positions as civil servants to avoid another Congo situation."

JSG Sets Training Sessions

A record turnout is expected at today's initial sessions of the student government training program, Joint Student Legislature speaker Ronald Mittleman told the Daily Orange Wednesday.

Sessions will be held at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. today in Gilford Auditorium, H. B. Crouse Hall. Students whose last names begin with A-M should attend the afternoon session. The last half of the alphabet should attend the evening meeting.

Students with class conflicts may attend the other session, Mittleman said.

Theodore Bayer and Carol (Shultze) Lucha, JSG president and vice president, will address tonight's meeting. James Morris and Katherine Antony, elections commissioners, will also speak.

The training sessions will be given at two meetings each day for four consecutive Thursdays. Participants must attend all four sessions to receive credit for the program and must pass a final examination at the end of the program.

Recommended

The program is recommended by Traditions Commission President Leland Peterson for all fresmen who plan to apply for Goon Squad at the end of the year. He also recommended the program for sophomore Goons who will apply for Traditions Commission.

Mittleman recommends that all JSL senators who have not taken the program in previous years also attend.

New JSL Constitution Planned

By AUDREY LIPPMAN

One of the first things the Joint Student Legislature Government Structures Committee is going to do in the new constitution is drop the word "joint" from JSL, Joint Student Government, and Joint Student Court.

David Knickerbocker, chairman of the committee, said this form of identifying the three bodies of the government is out of date. It refers to the time when the SU campus had two separate governing bodies, Men's and Women's Student Governments. Without these separate governing bodies, the use of "joint" in reference to campus government is not necessary Knickerbocker said.

The Joint Student Legislature constitution will be revamped this year by the Government Structures Committee. In order to decide what changes are necessary for the new constitution, the committee will discuss their ideas at the Pinebrook Conference this weekend. Although the main purpose of the conference is not to discuss this constitution, ideas exchanged by attending students, faculty and administration may result in a constitution offering the students a better foundation for good government in the future.

The present constitution of the legislature is seriously out of date. Adopted four years ago, its basic terms are not consistent with the ideal of the campus government.

Adapt

JSL Speaker Ronald Mittleman said he wished the future constitution to be adaptable to the university situation. Right now, JSL does not always strictly adhere to the present constitution, he said.

Mittleman referred to section IV of the present constitution, part of which states: "Standing committee chairmen shall be elected from the senators-at-large by the entire senate."

Since competent people are often senators from living centers, as well as senators-at-large, Mittleman said he appointed several committee heads who were not class representatives.

Knickerbocker said he believed only two standing committee heads were senators-at-large this year.

He said he hoped to incorporate in the new constitution the election of officials other than president and vice president of the student government. Possibly, we will be able to elect a secretary and treasurer, he said.

Committees

At the first JSL meeting, Sept. 26, senators were asked to sign up for the committees they preferred. Many signed up for the Government Structures

JSL Constitution: Another Look

Joint Student Government will begin a revision of its two-year old constitution at this weekend's Pinebrook Student Government Conference. Although some students will interpret this action as "student government Conference. Although some students will interpret this action as "student government for the sake of student government" and question its value to the larger campus community, this move, if properly implimented, cannot help but benefit the entire student body.

In his Joint Student Legislature keynote address, Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford defined action "as the major responsibility of student government." Apathy, he said, was hindering the government in its effects to take proper action.

This apathy was reflected in JSG's continuing use of an outdated and impractical constitution. Rather than following the constitution to the letter, government personnel were forced to circumvent its provisions in their efforts to get something done.

JSL representatives from living centers were appointed as committee heads; the present constitution clearly states only senators-at-large may head committees.

The freshman elections bill was passed without being sent to committee, this constituted an open violation of the existing document.

The unwieldy nature of the candidates has thus forced government officers to play their role by ear. Time which could be spent more profitably in meeting the needs of the student body is wasted experimenting with the governmental machinery.

A revised, workable constitution will enable JSG to fill the role for which it was created. At last year's Pinebrook Conference, Dean Clifford defined this role by describing the areas in which student government should take action.

According to Dean Clifford, an effective student government should organize a structure to represent the student body in the university, should support worthwhile student organizations, should promote an awareness of academic excellence and should support social and cultural programs to meet the needs of the student body.

The proposed constitutional revision marks a forward step in this direction. If the committee continues to consider these premises, it will give the campus a worthwhile student government, not another meaningless piece of paper.

Mississippi

To the Editor:

As an alumnus of the University of Mississippi, I cannot condone, in fact I abhor, the reverberations caused by the admittance of James Meredith to the university.

The admittance of a Negro to this university has been long in coming and an inevitable fact. This is only the beginning. At the end of a long hard road, there will be a more equal, more just and better America.

However, yesterday's DO, while speaking of Ole Miss students, stated, "These students (at least a large percentage of them) were prominent in the Sunday rioting on the Oxford campus."

What does the DO consider a large percentage? The papers reported 200 persons were arrested. Only forty of these were Ole Miss students. Since there are approximately 5000 students enrolled in the university, this means only .8 per cent of the student body was arrested.

The New York Times reported approximately 75 to 100 students were involved in the rioting. This is less than two per cent of the student body. Do not be quick to judge all by the actions of a few.

The majority of the students with whom I came in contact while a student at Ole Miss sincerely wanted to better the standard of the Southern Negro.

It is the uneducated white people of the South, the so-called "white trash," that are against the betterment of the Negro's standard. If the Negro's standard is bettered, these people would lose their only scapegoat.

I firmly believe that if the Negro's financial standard is raised by the institution of a statewide minimum wage law, there would be a more rapid and more concrete move towards equality in the South.

Equality cannot be achieved by education alone. Less than five per cent of the South's Negroes make more than $30 per week. How can they possibly send their children even to high school?

Ole Miss is the hill on which the federal government has made its stand. This hill is but a small part of the entire mountain range of this problem. The actions of a few students, certainly not the entire campus, have served to inflate this stand far beyond its proper proportions.

Panty Raid

To the Editor:

During my three years at Syracuse University I have been little excited by the frenzied "causes" that sweep the campus. I have calmly watched fraternity - reform campaigns, mass antidiscrimination meetings and spontaneous midnight "We're number one!" football rallies.

These periodical passion-raisers are normal on university campuses throughout the country. Youths go to college, they study hard, and the occasionally want to let their hair down.

It seems to me that the S. U. Administration does not understand this axiom of campus life. Dean Earle Clifford and Dean Marjorie Smith, with their holier-than-thou attitudes, have smugly let us know that panty-raids are naughty. The morning after this year's small-scale Freshman raid, the D.O. immediately let us know that Clifford and his staff were on the scene, taking down names of those students acting "unbecoming to the reputation and property" of good old S. U.

Monday morning I read they are directing efforts towards "the identification of individuals who took part in the raid." Does this mean the wide-eyed freshmen who simply wanted to observe a panty-raid first-hand must have a blemish on their collegiate records? To me this appears the epitome of injustice, and would seem far more "unbecoming to the reputation" of a university.

"There were those who wanted no part of it and they should be commended." I personally am disgusted by the type of prudish student that might think it bad or immoral to throw a piece of silk out of her window. She symbolizes the smug condescending stuffiness of the 19th Century.

When will the administration learn to put a panty-raid in its proper perspective? It is simply a bunch of kids out to try a unique type of fun. Little harm is done. Indeed, I would think that panty-raids are considered a common part of campus life by those very people Syracuse wants to impress with its reputation.

Why not let your hair down for once, S.U. administrators?

Cuba

To the Editor:

A word of comment on T. Lee Hughes' discourse concerning Cuba and the United States found in the September 25 issue of the Daily Orange.

I believe that when President Monroe proclaimed the famed Monroe doctrine, he had little intention of having the United States support it. It was only the policy of Great Britain which paralleled Monroe's thinking that gave Monroe the necessary backing to proclaim such a doctrine.

However, today, about a century and a half later, we are faced with different circumstances. No longer are we dependent upon Great Britain to fight our battles for us. We have to face the reality that if any more fighting is to be done, we will have to do it ourselves.

Certainly there must be another solution to the Cuban problem other than war, a war which would create a scene worse than Hungary and have more devastating results if the Russians stand by their promises.

Arnold Taub '66

Monroe

To the Editor:

In his column "Monroe versus Monroe," T. Lee Hughes justly deplores present conditions in Cuba, he has apparently forgotten half of "old Flappy's" lesson. Mr. Hughes apparently believes that the Monroe Doctrine should be enacted at the present time.

This leads me to wonder if many people know what the Monroe Doctrine, the 1947 Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance, and the 1954 Anti-Communist Charter state.

The Doctrine was written by Monroe's Secretary of State, John Adams, primarily to protect American trade with the Latin American countries at a time when Spain threatened to regain her colonies. Even if it were related to the freedom the Cubans seek or in fact the freedom that any Latin Americans desire, we didn't have the power to enforce it.

It was not until the Roosevelt Corollary was added to the doctrine that it inherited its present meaning. With the advent of T.R.'s "big stick policy," we sent troops into Cuba, Haiti, Nicaragua, Venezuela, Panama, and other Latin American nations. This, of course, proved to be the biggest blunder in our relations with other people of this hemisphere. Years of hostility showed that Latin Americans didn't like America's militaristic tactics then, and the the 1957 Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance demonstrates that they don't want it now!

It would amount to little more than "yellow journalism" for the press to ask for a jingoistic settlement to the current problem. Perhaps we could affect a temporary settlement to the problem through our military. We would, however, lose, maybe forever, the friendship and trust of our allies. Without these things, we can never hope to fight communism anywhere in the world.

If the time has come when we must provoke invasion to uphold our beliefs, then the time has long since passed when we should have tossed our beliefs aside. The solution to this problem or any problem of this nature does not lie in the mere use of the military. I am certain Mr. Flappingham would have said that if only Mr. Hughes would have listened.

Democracy

To the Editor:

It always seemed to me that the long hackneyed phrase concerning majority rule coupled with respect for the minority had been accepted as a universal truth and practice. This is not so in Watson West II.

Sunday night, an election conducted originally by secret ballot became a show of hands with the candidates present. One person objected. He was condemned for his belief in democracy. A perversion of democracy is sickening anywhere but more so in a university where the most renowned school is that of citizenship.

If the Watson West II boys are willing to accept laurels for their football sportsmanship they must equally accept the responsibility for what they did to the defeated candidates and to free elections.

Regent to Present 'Othello' Sat.

The University Regent Theatre's Celebrity Series will open its fifth season with the National Players' production of William Shakespeare's "Othello," 8:30 p.m., Saturday.

It will mark the return of the National Players, formerly known as the Players, Inc., for their third year.

David Sabin, a young actor now in his third year of touring for the Players, stars as Othello. A native of Silver Springs, Md., Sabin began acting while in his teens. He enrolled after high school at nearby Catholic University, where the Players come from.

A strong tenor singer, Sabin is equally at home in musicals as he is in classical and contemporary dramas. He has appeared in 'Say, Darling," "Life with Father," "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," and "Richard III."

Desdemona

Desdemona will be played by Halo Wines. She comes to her first season with the National Players with a wealth of theatre experience. She has appeared on television as Celia in "As You Like It." As a child Miss Wines attended the Valerie Ward School of Drama.

After going to Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania, where she majored in psychology and made honorary dramatic and philosophy fraternities, she appeared in "Phaedra" and "Barabbas" at Catholic University.

She has also appeared in the movie, "Advise and Consent."

Child Actor

Playing Iago will be Richard Bauer, a Players' Plan award winning actor from St. Louis where he first set foot on stage in the Children's Theatre of St. Louis University as a child actor.

Since then he has been active in most facets of the theatre—designing, action, directing, construction and costuming. He has appeared professionally in "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Arsenic and Old Lace."

The production is directed by William H. Graham with set and lighting by James D. Waring and costumes by Joseph Lewis.

Also cast are Michael Flanigan as the Duke of Venice, Susan Walker as Bianca, Don Linahan as Cassio, and Anthony Giordano as Roderigo.

The Celebrity Series will continue on Wednesday October 17 with a performance by the Sangeeta Madras (Music of Madras), a program consisting of an unique preproduction of a music festival as it might be presented in India.

MUSIC

Sammy Davis, Jr.

On the strength of his current hit, Reprise Records has brought out an album entitled "Sammy Davis Jr. Sings 'What Kind of Fool Am I' And Other Show Stoppers." Although this was obviously a rush job to cash in on the sales of the single, the album still maintains Davis' quality selection of material and his vocal perfection.

He does four songs from the new Broadway musical "Stop The World-I Want To Get Off" including "What Kind of Fool Am I". This is truly a beautiful treatment and is second only to composer Anthony Newley's version on London Records. The other three from the show are a rousing "Gonna Build A Mountain", a bouncy yet poignant "Once In A Lifetime", and a delightfully different "Someone Like You."

Six of the remaining numbers have been included in other Reprise packages. His "Something's Coming" from "West Side Story" is well done, as is "A Lot Of Livin' To Do" from "Bye Bye Birdie." In "Begin The Beguine" Davis sings accompanied only by drums and the effect is daring and striking.

16 Bars Later

His "Thou Swell" from "A Connecticut Yankee" begins ever so slowly and sentimentally. Sixteen bars later Davis jumps into a swinging lyric. The listener waits for a straight love song and is rewarded with a dreamy "My Romance."

Sammy ends the set with "Lost in the Stars." At first it seems a little out of place in this collection but his dramatic delivery forces us to forget any doubts of its place in this group of songs.

Highest Paid

Sammy Davis remains one of the highest paid and most well liked performers in show business today despite the absence of a real hit record under his belt. Many think "What Kind of Fool Am I" will be his first. It should be and this album should follow it in sales to the top of the charts.

Davis always records with taste and an approach different from most of his fellow record makers. This may be one reason he has never had a real out and out click single.

Although this new album is more or less a collection of past offerings. it is heartily recommended to fellow Davis followers and to anyone who appreciates a new and fresh look at American show music.

Down In Front

By JUDY ADAMS

It's a tried, tired subject, but it deserves one last look before it is buried for good. The subject of today's lecture is . . . . . .Number 44.

To be or not to be. That is the question facing the Syracuse grid big wigs at the end of the 1961 football season. Whether 'twas nobler to retire the honored numeral or to continue its use in hopes that some inheritor would carry on the fine tradition, was the decision that was to be made.

And as in the case with most problems that Syracuse faces, it was approached from the practical point of view.

It was brought up merely as an after thought one afternoon late last fall. A group of big wigs were huddled together in one of their usual Let's-get-more-money sessions.

Mr. Big No. 1 was about to adjourn the meeting when Mr. Little timidly raised his hand and asked, "What about retiring number 44?"

Mr. Big No. 1 glowered at Mr. Little. "All right," he said. "What about it?"

"Well," squeaked Mr. Little, "there have been rumors around campus that it was about to be retired. Most of the students seem to be in favor of it, so I thought. . . . . ."

"Your're not supposed to think," bellowed Mr. Big No. 1. "Well, is there any discussion?"

"We have to look at this practically," said Mr. Big No. 2. "First of all, how many 44 jerseys do we have. You all know that Ernie had more skirts torn off his back than any other player. We simply have too many of them to make it practical. . . . . But, then maybe we could sell them as souveniers. . . . . ."

"Yes," interrupted Mr. Big No.3. "Remember back in 1956 when Jimmy Brown was putting away his Orange helmet and picking up one from the Browns? Everyone was clamoring to retire the number then. But we decided not to since there was always the chance that another player would come along that would be as good or better and we'd have to retire his number too.

"Well another player did come along, one Ernest R. Davis. And now we have this young fellow Nance who looks pretty good. There's no telling who will follow them."

A very bad precedent indeed."

"Yes," boomed Mr. Big No.1. "A bad precedent.

"But it would be such a nice gesture. . . . . ." volunteered Mr. Little.

"A nice gesture, yes." agreed Mr. Big No. 4. "But certainly not the biggest honor that these fine football players have or will receive. Brown would certainly be more proud of his record set in pro ball. And Ernie will probably consider his Heisman Trophy as his greatest thrill."

"And don't forget the jerseys," continued Mr. Big No. 2. "You know each position is assigned a range of numbers. And all the stars are in the backfield. We start retiring numbers and we'll soon run out of them."

"You have to remember, too," added Mr. Big No. 3, that retiring a number in college is a lot different

Giants Win Pennant; Battle Yanks Today

By MIKE BROWN

The San Francisco Giants, in one of the wildest finishes the game has ever seen came on in the ninth inning to score four runs and defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 6-4, thus earning the right to meet the New York Yankees in the World Series, which opens today at 4 p.m. in Candlestick Park.

In a patented miracle finish, somewhat similar to their third game playoff victory in 1951, the Giants took advantage of four walks, a sacrifice fly, a wild pitch, and an error to gain the victory.

The winners jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the third inning when Jose Pagan singled to start the fireworks. Frisco hurler Juan Marichal, attempting to move Pagan to second, bunted back to the mound. Dodger pitcher Johnny Podres fired to second hoping to get the lead runner, but his throw went into center field allowing Pagan to advance to third. Harvey Kuenn then singled scoring Pagan and sending Marichal to second. The throw was cut off by LA backstop John Roseboro who threw to second trying to get Marichal who rounded the bag wide. His throw also went into center field and Marichal went to third. The throw to the infield was cut off by Junior Gilliam who tried to get Kuenn sliding back into first. The throw hit Kuenn in the back as Marichal scored from third.

The Dodgers came back for one run in the fourth when Duke Snider doubled, went to third on a single by Tommy Davis, and scored as Frank Howard forced Davis at second.

In the home half of the sixth, the crowd of 45,000 had something to cheer about as Tommy Davis belted a long drive into the centerfield bleachers with Snider aboard to put the home team out in front, 3-2.

The Dodgers added an insurance run in the eighth as speedster Maury Wills cracked his fourth hit of the day, stole second and third, and scored when Ed Bailey threw wild into left field.

With the stage set, the Giants made one last bid for the pennant. To open the ninth, Matty Alou, pinch-hitting for reliever Don Larsen, singled. Kuenn forced Alou at second but pinch hitter Willie McCovey drew a walk. Felipe Alou, also drew a free pass loading the bases and Willie Mays singled off Ed Roebuck's glove to make it, 4-3. Orlando Cepeda's fly ball scored Bowman, running for McCovey with thetying run, and after walks to Bailey and Davenport, Roebuck was lifted for Ron Perranoski. Pagan was safe on an error by Larry Burright, but Bob Nieman struck out to end the scoring.

Billy Pierce came on in the last of the ninth to set the Dodgers down in order and bring San Francisco its first pennant.

Today's Sports

Sonny Liston and Blinky Palermo have been linked by Cortez Stewart in a New York state legislative committee testimony. Stewart, an aspiring heavyweight with a 15-2 record, stated that he was hired indirectly by the underworld sports enthusiast Palermo. Palermo was previously believed to have been an "unsavory character" in Liston's less than pure past. The New York State Athletic Commission is still deliberating on recognizing Liston's championship.

Ben Shuffles Hill Lineup

The gridiron Vesuvius that has been erupting has now come to an earth shaking finale and the flames may still not be out. Coach Ben Schwartzwalder announced changes yesterday that came as a great surprise to many enthusiasts.

Bill Schoonover, the present halfback, has been switched to fullback, the position he played last year. Don King, who has played defense for the Hill forces this year, has been shifted to the right halfback slot and is backed up by Ed Conti. Gus Giardi, the previous starter now has been dropped to third string.

John Humphreys now occupies the starting left halfback position and is backed up by Jim Gaskins and Billy Hunter, the previous starter.

One of the biggest changes and probably the most expected is that of a new quarterback. At the present time, Walt Mahle now occupies the head signal caller's position and is backed up by Rich King. Walt Sofsian and Bob Lelli have been dropped to the third and fourth strings respectively. Soph hopeful Jim Nance has also been dropped to the fourth squad.

The only significant change in the line moves Jim Wilson to right guard and Henry Huettner drops to the third spot.

In the words of the S.U. mentor, "We're just shaking the bush to look at all the boys that we may have overlooked in fall practice."

Schwartzwalder indicated that these changes were not permanent and were not even necessarily correct for the starting lineup against Boston College on Oct. 13.

These changes are based on the showing that the boys have made in practice during the week.

Almost everyone expected something would be done after Schwartzwalder's charges dropped successive contests to Oklahoma and Army and failed to cross the goal line in the process. The only scores the Orange could muster were a 35-yard field goal at Norman, Oklahoma by Tom Mingo and a safety in Yankee Stadium by Gene Stancin.

Lelli has not played up to expectations so far and his passing leaves much to be desired. Jim Nance performed well at Norman, but was stopped cold by the Cadets. Both Giardi and Schoonover have also had a sub-par year for the Orange.

No Miracle Team Towers Over 1951 N. Y. Giants

Whenever miracle teams are mentioned in sports, among the first name mentioned is that of the New York Giants of 1951. To be sure the Boston Braves, the Baltimore Colts, the Montreal Canadiens, and the New York Yankees are most prominent in the minds of sports enthusiasts all over the nation, but the '51 Giants hold the top spot. Thirteen and a half games behind the leaders in late August, they caught the Dodgers on the final day of the regular season and beat them in a playoff.

In the opener, the Giants were victorious and perhaps over confident, for on the following day, the Brooks shelled Giant starter Sheldon Jones, 10-0.

With the Polo Grounds filled to capacity Don Newcombe took the mound to oppose Sal Maglie. The visitors jumped off to a quick lead and added more on a sixth inning error by Giant third baseman, Bobby Thomson.

The last half of the ninth rolled around and the stage was set for the Polo Grounders last bid for the pennant. Trailing 4-1, the Giants sent Al Dark up to lead off. Dark cracked a single to right and was quickly followed by another hit by Don Mueller. Slugger Monte Irvin popped out and Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen breathed easier, but Giant first sacker Whitey Lockman doubled scoring Dark, and Mueller in a great slide pulled up at third base. At this moment Dressen made a historic decision and called Ralph Branca in to pitch to Bobby Thomson. Branca fired a strike to Thomson and then came back with the same pitch. Thomson connected and sent a line drive towards left field. Andy Pafko watched in vain as the ball landed in the first row of the left field seats and the Polo Grounds went wild.

The miracle of Coogan's Bluff had happened and the fans swarmed around Thomson and his teammates who had proven that a team that wouldn't give up couldn't be beaten.

The first newspaper printed in Ireland was the Dublin News Letter, published in 1865.

"Dark Day"

By PETE WATCHMAKER

The locale of play was smoggy LA,
The star of the day was
from across the bay.
It all took place at O'Malley's park,
The leading man's name was
Alvin Dark
Ten times he appeared on the TV set,
How ridiculous can a manager get?
Eight different pitchers he sent to the hill,
Giving the Dodgers a wonderful thrill.
A very Dark day
On Frisco Bay,
Why didn't Dark
Stay at Candlestick Park?
For the Giants Sanford started,
But in the sixth he departed.
At that point they led by five,
Then the Dodgers came alive.
First little Alvin put in Miller,
Later on he took out Hiller.
When LA continued to hit,
Manager Dark no longer could sit.
The mound came Bill O'Dell,
But the man did not pitch
well.
He undoubtedly tried his best.
But who can work with one day's rest.
A very Dark day
On Frisco Bay,
Why didn't Dark
Stay at Candlestick
Park?
As the Dodgers won the game,
Manager Dark must take some blame.
Yet, he need not feel ashamed,
He is on the path to TV fame.

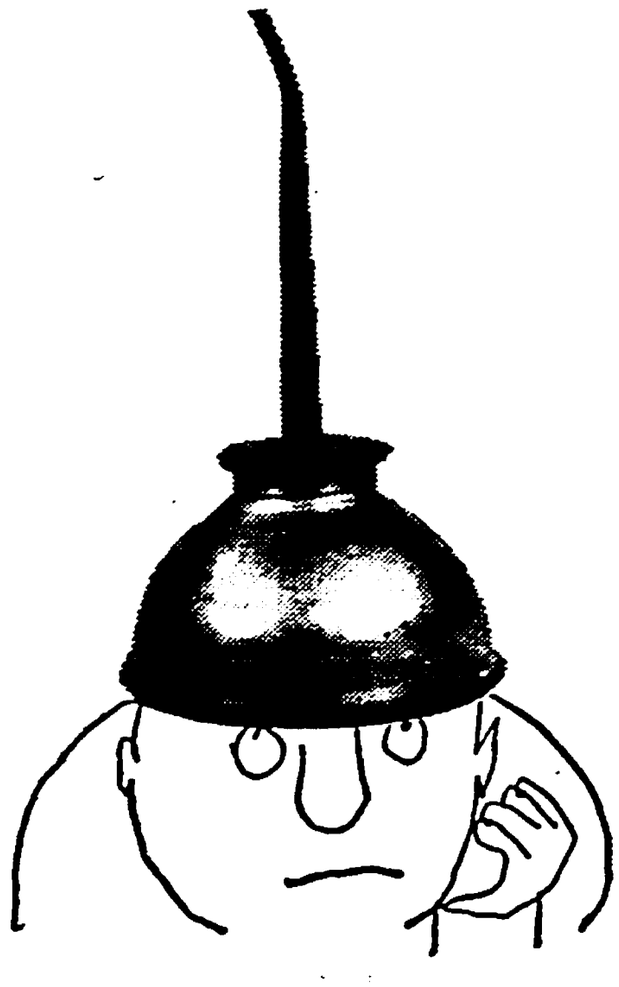
"Those men will be remembered as greats for generations to come. But in college the stars are great to a much smaller number of people. Every four years there is a new turnover. And so now, even our oldest class were only seniors in high school during Brown's last year.



"In a few years these classes will be gone too. And number 44 will have only a distant meaning to the classes then. It simply isn't worth it."

"No," said Mr. Big No. 1. "It just isn't practical."

"No," they agreed in unison. "Not practical at all."

The vote was taken. It was unamously decided to continue using number 44 (Mr. Little isn't allowed to vote).

So today, nearly one year later, we find Mr. William Schoonover attired in the coveted jersey. We wish Mr. Schoonover sucess. He certainly has a "number" of things to live up to.

WRITE? YOU'RE WRONG

In the recent furor over the assassination of President McKinley, it may have escaped your notice that a nationwide study of the writing ability of American college students has just been published.

The survey reveals an astonishing fact: that when students have completed their freshman year and are no longer required to take English, their writing skill progressively declines until we come to the fantastic situation where graduating seniors actually are poorer writers of English than incoming freshmen!

Many theories have been offered to account for this incredible fact. Some say that seniors know less English than freshmen because all seniors major in French. This is not true. No more than 94 percent of seniors major in French. How about the other six percent?

Well sir, of the other six percent, half—or three percent—take physics, and it is not hard to understand how these poor souls grow rusty in English when all they ever say is "E equals MC squared."

Of the remaining three percent, two-thirds—or two percent—major in whaling, and their English too grows feeble with disuse. Whalers, as we all know, do not speak at all except to shout, "Thar she blows!" maybe twice a year.

Of the one percent remaining, it cannot be fairly said that they are poor writers. The fact is, we don't know what kind of writers they are. Why not? Because they never write. And why don't they ever write? Because this remaining one percent of American college students are enrolled at the University of Alaska, and never take their mittens off.

(Incidentally, I received quite a surprise upon first visiting Alaska two years ago when I was invited to Juneau to crown the Queen of the Annual Date Palm Festival. Frankly I expected to find a surly and morose populace. After all, going through life with your mittens on all the time is hardly calculated to make you merry as a cricket. Not only can't you write, but you miss out on all kinds of other fun things—like three card monte, making shadow pictures on the wall, and lint picking. However, to my astonishment, I discovered Alaskans to be a hale and gregarious group, mittens notwithstanding, and I soon found out why: because mittens notwithstanding, they could still smoke Marlboro Cigarettes, still enjoy that rich mellow flavor, that fine, clean Selectrate filter, that truly soft soft pack, that truly flip-top flip-top box—and that, friends, will make anybody happy, mittens notwithstanding. In fact, Alaskans are the happiest people I have ever met in the whole United States—except, of course, for the Alaskan vendors of Marlboro Cigarettes, who have not been paid in many years—indeed, never—because how can anybody dig out coins to pay for cigarettes when he is wearing mittens?)

But I digress. What are we going to do about this deplorable condition where college students, having completed Freshman English, become steadily less proficient in the use of the language? The answer is simple. We will make them take Freshman English all through college. In fact, we won't let them take anything else! This solution, besides producing a nation of graceful writers, will also solve another harrowing problem: where to park on campus. If everybody takes nothing but Freshman English, we can tear down all the schools of law, medicine, engineering, and whaling, and turn them into parking lots. Can't we?

PiKA Picks Dream Girls

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity this week is distributing copies of its first annual "Dream Girl" calender. Twelve monthly "dream girls" were chosen last spring from candidates sent from 20 of the Hill's 25 sororities.

Nancy Wyckoff of Alpha Phi has been chosen "Dream Girl". Other finalists were Chris Sedziak of Alpha Gamma Delta and Sandra Sibson of Kappa Alpha Theta. Miss Sibson did not pose for a picture.

Monthly dream girls were October, Donna Nusbickel of Kappa Delta; November, Linda Metzger of Alpha Delta Pi; December, Letty Halpern of Sigma Delta Tau; January, Marilyn Mager of Delta Phi Epsilon; February, Nancy Wyckoff.

March, Chris Sedziak; April, Linda Gellis of Iota Alpha Pi; May, Claire Christian of Sigma Tau Upsilon; June, Diane Kessler of Chi Omega; July, Lynne Daly of Phi Mu; August, Cathy Balash of Kappa Kappa Gamma and September, Sue McGreivey of Delta Gamma.

The contest is the first of its kind on campus, according to PiKA president David Knapp. "We plan to make this a tradition on campus," Knapp said.

World News

"I feel fine!" Naval Commander Walter Shirra should. He just boosted the moral of the free world by orbiting the Earth six times in a little over nine hours. His trip was twice as long as any other U.S. astronaut though hardly as impressive as the recent Soviet three and four day orbits.

Sigma 7—the name Shirra gave his space capsule—was lifted off its Cape Canaveral pad at exactly 8:15 a.m. yesterday morning. A nation of televisions were tuned in as the giant rocket boosted the 39-year old Shirra to an orbit between 100 and 177 miles from the Earth. Part of the world watched the launching as the Telstar satellite relayed the Florida broadcasts.

Each orbit lasted 88 minutes and five seconds, with only the first offering Shirra any problems—his space suit became a bit overheated. The entire trip covered 165,000 miles, landing Sigma 7 some 275 miles northeast of Midway Island. A bullseye in the Pacific.

"Wait till next year," says NASA. Then they'll attempt a 24 hour solo orbitting.

Tightening the Screws. The Federal Government will block entry into any U.S. port any ship bearing a foreign flag that has just dropped cargo at Cuba. This applies to foreign ships and U.S. owned ships that fly foreign flags. The government had to take such action because our allies were in no position to stop their merchant marine from dealing with the Soviet-ized island.

Committee, but the great majority were primarly interested in the Student Conduct and Welfare Committee.

Knickerbocker said as the constitution stands now, most of the articles should be placed in executive by-laws. If there should be the need for changes in the future, this would involve only the student government and a referendum to the students. A constitution change involves the university personnel board and other high official channels, after passing through the student government and a student referendum.

Mittleman expressed hope that with the adoption of a new constitution within the current academic year, future student government presidents and speakers of the legislature would not have to experiment as they went along. Instead of "playing it by ear" they would have an official guide to better government.

At the Pinebrook Conference this weekend members of the student government will discuss the constitution in committee meetings. Following the conference, Knickerbocker hopes to have a better idea of the constitutional changes that will be made.

Leading Critic Here for Talk

One of the nation's foremost observers of the government's role in broadcasting addresses a Syracuse University radio-television graduate seminar today.

Prof. Charles Siepmann of New York University will talk at 7:30 p.m. in room 309 of the Women's Building. Topic of the seminar is "Broadcasting in a Free Society."

Prof. Siepmann, who teaches communications, is a former official of the British Broadcasting Corp.

He played an important role in writing the 1946 Federal Communications Commission memorandum "Public Service and Responsibilities." That monograph is known in broadcasting circles as the "blue book."

The visiting lecturer has been critical in the past of FCC policies on licensing broadcast stations.

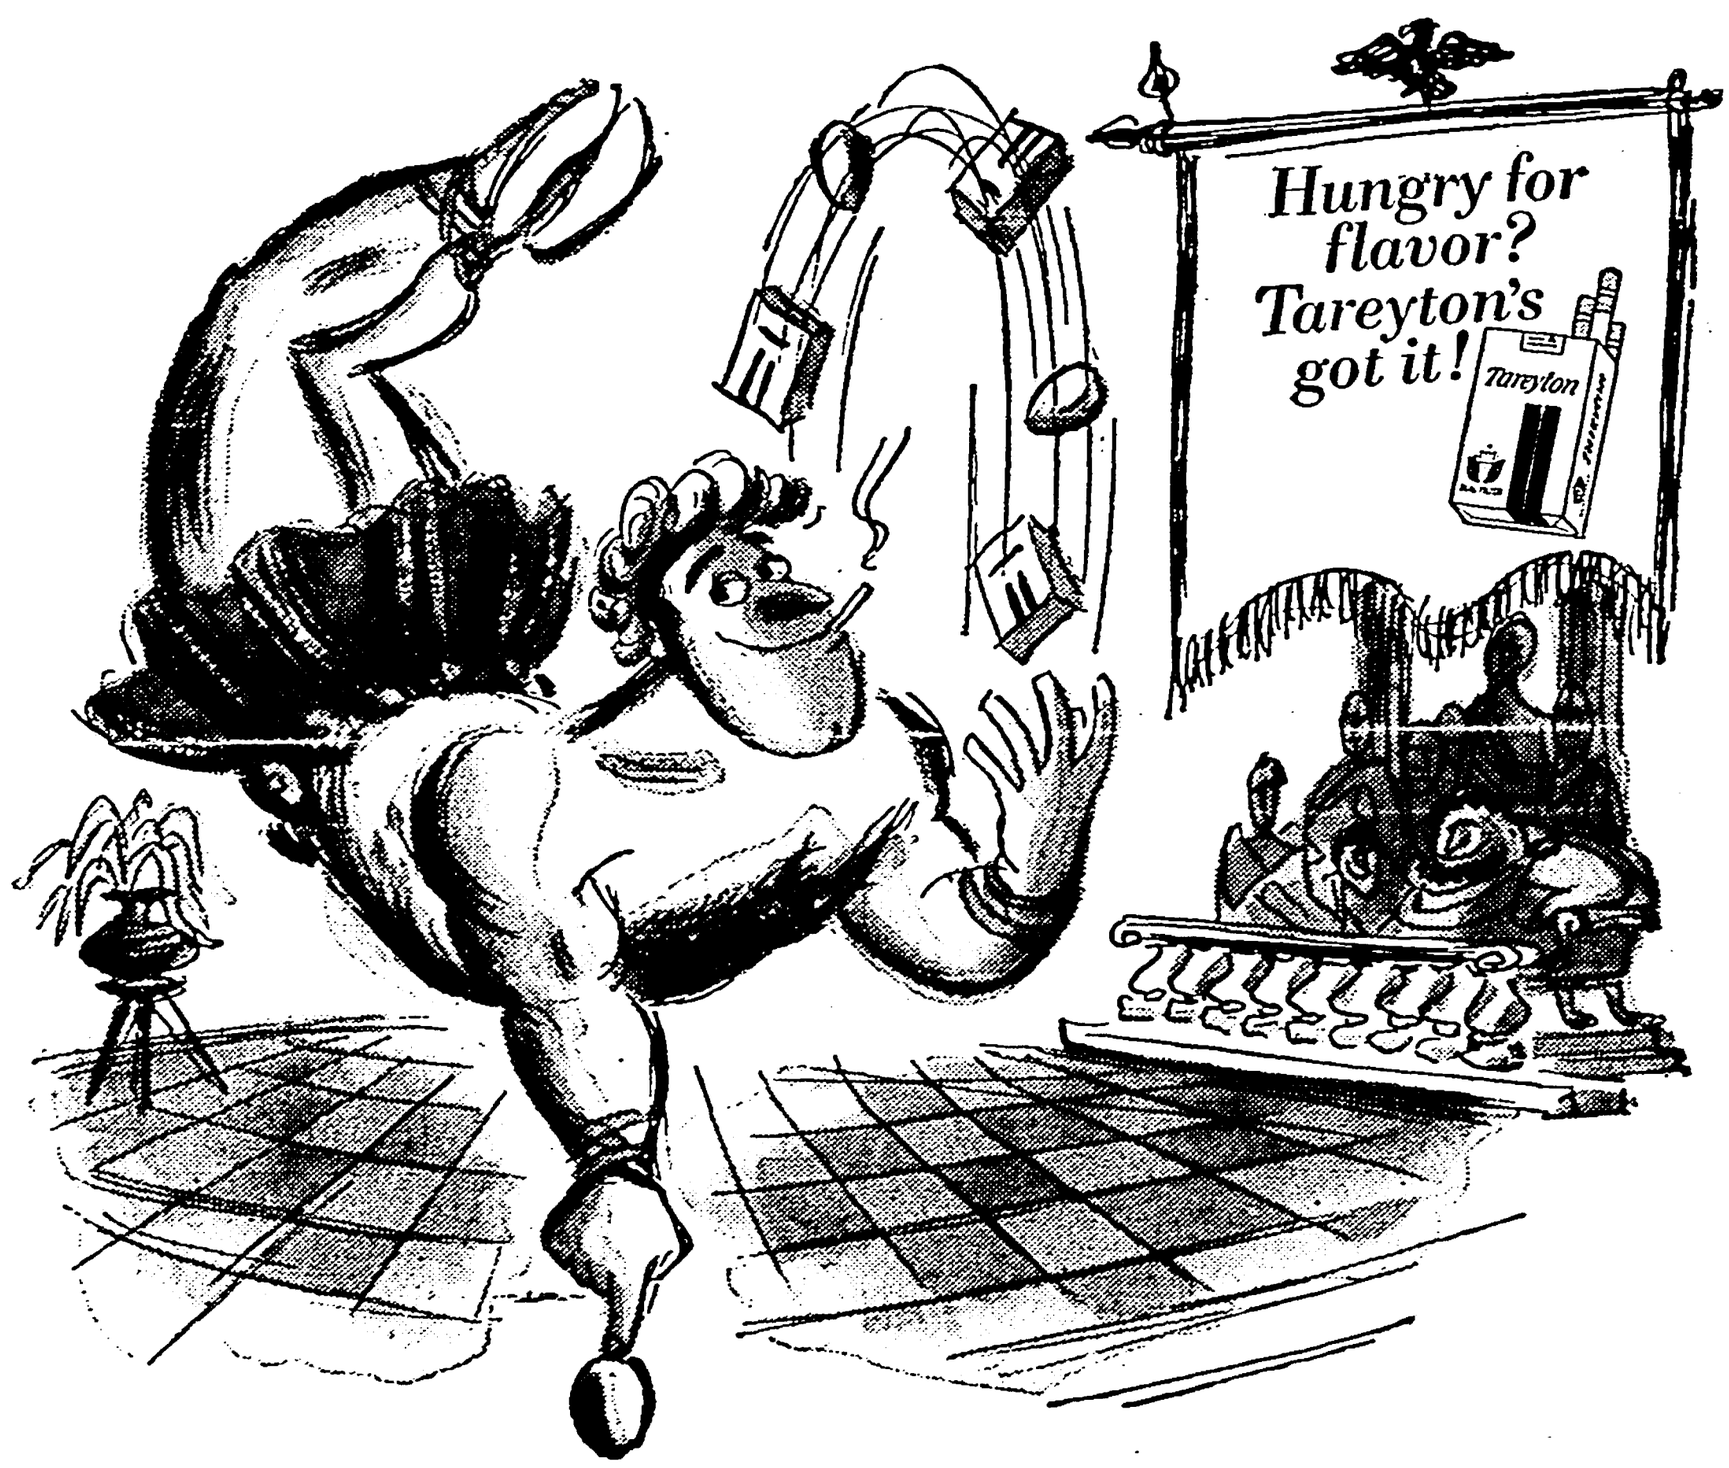
The Maxwell School is also helping run the Pakistan Administrative Staff College. This institute, Dean Bailey said, "is designed to train advanced civil servants in the Pakistan government in administrative and economic problems of modernization."

He added that Prof. Guthrie Birkhead, formerly head of the SU political science department, is currently at the Pakistan Institute. Maxwell Prof. Karl Schmitt has just returned from two years at this Institute, Dean Bailey said.

PETITIONS DUE



Elections Commissioner James Morris has announced today is the final day for freshman nomination petitions to be returned.

Petitions from all freshmen wishing to run for class president, vice president, secretary or treasurer must be returned by 5 p.m. to the student government office, 906 University Ave., behind Winchell Hall.

Hill Press Gets $39,000 Ford Grant

The Syracuse University Press has received a $39,000 grant from the Ford Foundation. It will be used for a publishing program over a five-year period.

In a letter to the SU press, the foundation noted: "The purpose of the grant is to stimulate the increase—on a permanent basis—of the outlets for humanistic scholarship through the expanded number of books published annually by university presses."

Mrs. Arpena Mesrobian, assistant director and executive editor (publishing division) of SU Press, said the grant is designed to give impetus to medium sized presses to enlarge their publishing lists.

SU Press is one of 10 university presses to receive grants for this purpose. Total funds allocated in this program amounted to $366,000.

"This is really an incentive grant," Mrs. Mesrobian said. "The funds are for our growth in general—not especially earmarked for any purpose such as manuscripts, staff or machinery."

IFC Judicial Board Raps PiKA Calendar

By CLAY RICHARDS

The Inter-Fraternity Council procedural committee Wednesday released a statement censoring Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity for publishing its "Dream Girl" calendar, out this week, but is permitting the house to continue distribution of the publication.

The calendar is a violation of the new fraternity rushing rules, forbidding the distribution of any material that bears a single fraternity's, or group of fraternities' names to the exclusion of the rest of the houses on the Hill.

In its official statement the committee said, "With great reluctance, the IFC Judicial Board and the executive committee of the IFC has seen fit to permit the passing of these calendars which bear but a single fraternity's name."

Dorms

The committee forbid the fraternity to distribute the publication to any freshmen men in dormitory housing.

The IFC gave two reasons for its action. "First," the statement reads, "the project was planned and financial commitments were made before the present rushing rules were put into effect. Thus, prosecution would be ex post facto."

In view of this first reason, a possible damage suit might be pressed against the IFC and/or the university if either refused to allow distribution, the statement said.

Exception

In closing his statement, Alfred Winchell Whittake, chief justice of the Inter-fraternity Council Judicial Board, stated that "it is a shame a single exception must be granted" to the rule. If another house planned a similar project the IFC would take action to prevent distribution, Whittaker said.

In their possible suit, action Pi Kappa Alpha Pres. David Knapp told the Daily Orange that twelve advertising contracts and a distribution agreement with a Marshall street Drug Store had to be honored.

JSG to Meet At Pinebrook

Roughly 50 students, administrators and faculty members will board buses at noon today for the annual student government conference in Pinebrook Camp at Saranac Lake.

Dr. Betty Cosby, assistant dean of students at Cornell University and former assistant dean of women here, will deliver the keynote address at 7:45 p.m. today. Open discussion will follow the address.

The three-day conference offers an exchange of ideas regarding Joint Student Government operations.

Saturday morning Dr. Michael O. Sawyer of the Maxwell School will moderate a panel discussing "Goals of Student Government - Immediate and Ultimate." Panelists will review possible student government control of all student organization budgets and will debate the sources of student government power, whether from the students or administration.

Panelists include Earle W. Clifford, dean of men; Marjorie C. Smith, dean of women; Theodore Bayer, JSG president; and Carol "Shultze" Lucha, JSG vice president.

Saturday workshops will center about union of class and student government and communications among the administration, faculty, student government and student body.

Upperclass Coed Rush Tonight

Upperclass coeds planning to formal rush should meet at 6 p.m. today in the recreation lounge of Women's Building, Carol Shire, Panhellenic Council rush chairman, said Thursday.

At this time the 170 girls registered will be divided alphabetically into groups of about 20. Two rush counselors will be assigned to each group.

The counselors will take the rushes to each of the nine parties which begin at 6:30 p.m. today.

Dress for these parties and the open houses on Saturday will be casual-skirts and sweaters, shoes and socks—no sneakers.

For the Sunday open houses, coeds should wear dresses and heels.

Rushes can pick up their invitations for the Saturday parties at 10:30 a.m. in the recreation lounge. Invitations for Sunday will be placed in the rushes' mailboxes.

Parties

Girls will go to these afternoon parties by themselves and may stay as long as they wish at whichever houses they want—provided they have received an invitation to return to the house.

FRATERNITY RUSHING

Registration for upperclass and transfer men's rush and also for freshman who will rush in the spring, will be held from 8:30 to 5 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the dean of men's office, Administration Bldg.

No Excused Yom Kippur Absences

Jewish students who do not attend classes Monday because of Yom Kippur will not be given excused absences.

Registrar Edwin Smith told the Daily Orange there are no excused cuts in the College of Liberal Arts, though there are explained and unexplained absences.

Yom Kippur is the day of atonement for those of the Jewish faith. Rabbi Louis Neimand, Hill Jewish chaplain, will conduct Kol Nidre services at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Hendricks Chapel. Monday services will begin at 9:30 a.m., concluding with an evening break-the-fast.

'Voice of America' Thrills Coed

By SANDY MYERS

Talks with Edward R. Murrow and meetings with John and Bobby Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk were "part of the job" for senior Carol Jane Rapp this summer.

sonnel director, was one of nine college students participating in the Washington, D.C. Voice of America summer internship program, sponsored by the United States Information Agency.

Her main job was writing radio news and doing research on such topics as the independence of emergent African nations and Pres. Kennedy's trade bills—"anything they felt they needed background material for."

Everything she wrote was translated into the 37 languages in which the Voice of America broadcasts.

As part of her work, Miss Rapp monitored United Nations debates and wrote commentaries about editorials in American newspapers.

News

"Because the people of the world are primarily interested in news, the first 15 minutes of every hour are devoted to newscasts." The Voice of America newsroom is the center of the organization, Miss Rapp said.

The remaining time is taken up with live programming—features, music, and other shows which aid in the Voice of America's goal of "disseminating information about the West and Western ideas to the rest of the world."

Information programs, including explanations of American actions, are taped and "placed" on local stations in foreign cities. These programs are geared to a particular area or country, Miss Rapp said.

Soviet

The Voice of America broadcasts to the Soviet bloc, despite their attempts at wire jamming. Because jamming is a very difficult and expensive operation, involving surrounding a city with jamming stations, the Soviets concentrate on this only in the large cities.

"But they do have selective jamming," Miss Rapp explained. "This is when they jam words or occasional sentences with intermittent signals, even when they allow the show itself to go through."

About half the people who work for the Voice of America are foreign nationals, she said. Not only must the broadcasters be able to speak the foreign language fluently, but they must sound "real." "People are more apt to believe a newscaster if he's from their own country," Miss Rapp said.

Education

"It was a great education in people and personal relations—a chance to meet people from all over the world in a very informal, but working, atmosphere," Miss Rapp told the Daily Orange.

With approximately 5,000 others, mostly college students, Miss Rapp participated in Pres. Kennedy's first "White House Seminar" this summer.

One of the most amusing highlights of the summer was standing on the White House lawn while the tourists outside the gates stared, she said.

Miss Rapp also enjoyed attending a reception at the National Press Club, customarily "off-limits" for women, and meeting Murrow personally.

Dedicated

"He's sincerely dedicated to his job—he has put the USIA on the map and made Americans more aware of its operations. He has also given the people in the agency someone to respect and work for," she said of USIA Director Murrow.

One stipulation in the USIA's charter, she explained, is that none of the government-allocated funds can be used for publicity in the United States.

The agency's operations include preparing motion pictures

Pinebrook: The Time and Place

Pinebrook—the place that sounds like a summer camp—this weekend becomes the scene of the most important event of the scholastic year.

In this university-owned lodge in the Adirondacks, students and administrators will gather for discussion of problems confronting the two groups. And for some reason, here at Pinebrook these problems are discussed fully and often are resolved.

For 12 years now Pinebrook has served as the leading forum for student-administration rapport. Each year valuable steps are taken to bring the students and administration closer together on the road which they too often fail to share.

Somehow Pinebrook, nestled in the Adirondacks, far from the Syracuse campus, sets an atmosphere where the student leaders see the university hierarchy more as human beings, sympathetic and understanding, rather than titles on some oaken door which, though always unlocked, never manages to open.

With the knowledge that this is the weekend that can determine the complexion of the whole school year, the students who will be at Pinebrook must realize that they are representing the entire student body of Syracuse and must not fail to make use of this singular opportunity for accomplishment.

For if the students fail to communicate clearly with the administration here, little hope will remain for them if they should try to improve student-administration back on the campus.

We are optimistic in this regard. We hope this weekend will not pass without a broadening of knowledge on the part of the students, an understanding of the students by the administrators, and a closer tie between the men in the red brick building and the throng passing by on the quad.

Success in Space

The six-orbit flight of Walter Shirra Jr., should serve to boost United States space hopes to some degree. While the flight seemed like nothing more than a cross-country trip compared to the recent Russian twin cosmonauts, the accuracy of the flight and the smooth operation of the American team gave us some reason to cheer.

While our scientists on Johnston Island find it necessary to suggest we are falling way behind the Russians in nuclear weapons, the men of Project Mercury, and now Shirra in particular, continue to do their part to keep American morale above water.

The fact that once again our space shot was televised not only in this country but also in part via Telstar, points to another factor in our program—our willingness to keep the world informed despite the chance of failure. Russia, while reaching for the moon, has yet to acquire this virtue.

AMIDST THE CLAMOR

Classmate's Advice

By Win Whittaker

All the hullabaloo about Oxford, Mississippi, reminded me of a conversation this summer. While dining with a gentleman, who happened to have graduated with J.F.K. from Harvard, the discussion turned to the topic of leadership.

Relating this man's ideas about leadership to the recent events in Oxford, I must say that one could not be impressed by President Kennedy's leadership, or lack of it. His very lack of quick, effective guidance points up a very serious problem facing people in a commanding position; whether they be campus, business, union, or national leaders.

Let me present my dinner companion's theory on good leadership. See if you do not feel it is a more effective approach than all the dilly-dallying we have witnessed in the past and are seeing now.

Committees of prominent, qualified Americans were appointed by both Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy to discover what America's goals ought to be. About a year ago J.F.K. made some statement to the effect that American people lacked a national purpose—a goal to strive for—that they could see.

He also said, "Ask not what this country can do for you, but rather what you could do for your country." So far our President has not told us what we can do—with the possible exception of putting more Democrats in office.

Recently we have been hearing about the formation of ultra-left and extreme right wing organizations. Why? Maybe the lack of leadership has blinded people from the American goals and the American ideals. These groups wander aimlessly hoping for direction, and they are not getting any at the national level.

To demonstrate what he meant by this, my host took a plate and a cooked noodle. Holding the plate perpendicular to the table, he tried to push the soggy noodle up the plate's surface. Needless to say he was not very successful.

Snapping his fingers he said, "But, if we do it this way—the problem of moving the wet noodle is easy. What did he do to make it so easy? He placed his finger on top of the same noodle and pulled it up.

He continued, "The role of leadership is not to push, shove, or prod from the rear flank, but to move to the front to pull and direct."

Committees can gather facts and deliberate. They can argue and report. Programs and goals can be set down in black and white. They can be discussed in the newspapers and on television. Prominent figures can endorse them, make speeches for them.

BUT, there will not be much in the way of progress towards the goal(s) unless there is a leader—a person who has his mind and methods set toward achieving the desired result. If they are not what the people want, then this person will be rejected at the polls. If this person expresses the wishes of a major portion of our citizens, America will have found a long awaited leader.

However, if no one accepts the burden of leadership, or a leader acts indecisively or timidly, then only confusion and violent disagreement can result. And if you do not believe this, just look around. You will find people like former Major General Edwin Walker and Alger Hiss of a few years ago. The Americans for Democratic Action and the John Birch Society are the products of non-leadership, non-direction.

So ended the discussion, but not the problem. For where are we to find our needed leaders? It could be President Kennedy, but then again it could be you. But, this leader cannot be simply a "whip-cracker." With the national apathy of today, we need a person to direct us. Someone who will tell us what the goal is that we are striving for. Someone who will not push us toward the goal, but pull us there.

Football Seating

To the Editor:

I guess David Palmlund must be a very tired boy these days. After all, he must have had to stay up nights just trying to dream up those ridiculous rules for football home games.

We who pay to go to this university are being treated like cattle; being herded here and there, during this time and after that time. All over the place—just to see four games one of which was conveniently scheduled during Thanksgiving vacation.

I don't think Mr. Palmlund will be a very popular young man. I certainly hope that he has taken the time from his many "appointments" (as per rule #15) to read this.

Disgruntled senior

Jazz Quartet

To the Editor:

The Greeks have done it again! This time they have scooped the cultural field with their planned reception for the Modern Jazz Quartet, after its concert on October 18.

Upon first glance it sounds like a fine idea and a real service to members of the community with more than a fleeting interest in modern American music—a chance for them to meet and talk with the members of one of the most important groups on the contemporary jazz scene.

But, the third paragraph of the Daily Orange article raises some doubts: "Rigoli made it clear at IFC meeting Wednesday night that non-fraternity men and freshmen will not be able to attend the reception."

Reading this one wonders whether the Greeks are interested in music or the celebrity value of their guests? If the fraternities are really interested in presenting a worthwhile cultural experience to the campus, why is the reception closed to non-fraternity people? Are all Greeks jazz fans? Are no non-Greeks jazz fans?

The possibilities of this event, to be held at Delta Upsilon, bring to mind a perhaps similar reception held for the MJQ at an S.U. sorority the last time they appeared in town.

The picture was a grotesque one. John Lewis, Percy Heath, Milt Jackson and Connie Kay each backed into a separate corner of the room by eager young ladies and gentlemen brandishing dainty teacups, sophisticated smiles and sparkling conversation: "Oh, Mr. Lewis, I just L-O-V-E your records" and, "Isn't it a coincidence Mr. Heath, I live in New York City, too."

It was a memorable social event but, a strange coincidence that all four musicians became tired and had to leave so early in the proceedings.

Will this year's reception be any different? How can it be when the criterion for invitation is being a fraternity member rather than being a lover of jazz?

I wonder if the members of the Modern Jazz Quartet know what they are in for.

ID Cards

To the Editor:

I quote to you from the catalogue of the College of Liberal Arts: "Photographs for student identification cards will be taken on the day on which the student registers. Identification cards will be mailed to the student at his Syracuse address within 72 hours of the date of his registration."

By most estimations 72 hours equals three days, but as of this writing it has been two weeks since I had my picture taken. Without my card I have no identity; I feel naked, and when people ask me who I am I can only mutter my IBM registration number.

I've got to have an ID card pretty soon or I'm going to crack. The left-hand side of my clear plastic holder is still barren. Where is my card?

FILMS

'Best of Enemies'

Despite the wide screen, technicolor, impressive locations and photograph, and a large cast "Best of Enemies" which opened at the Riviera remains a small British comedy at heart.

This is most fortunate. If the combination English—Italian production had taken its point as seriously as it filmed "Best of Enemies" expensively, it might have become a self-conscious, moralistic treatise on the evil of war.

The producers have realized that one of the most forceful kind of criticism is ridicule. This story of two rather incompetent officers, one British, the other Italian, does make war seem rather foolish.

David Niven plays the typically blase Britisher who gets shot down by a retreating Italian forces in the African desert.

New to these eyes, the Italian comic Sordi is the somewhat cowardly yet always realistic enemy officer. His broad style and exaggerated mannerisms give "Best of Enemies" an "earthy" style.

Niven is adequate. But the real stars are a collection of misfit English and Italian soldiers. Each side captures the other a few times, until all are captured by the African desert. These boys, with humor and zest, captivate the film with their slovenly attitude and basic disinterest in the war.

The result is a ironic, partially slapstick take-off on the foolishness of fighting. With humor, pathos, widescreen and color "The Best of Enemies" becomes an enjoyable romp through World War II.

EATON'S ERASABLE CORRĀSABLE
new social edition for modern letter writers

Once Paris took Helen, there was no way out. Today it's easy to correct your errors—at the typewriter, anyway—when you use Eaton's erasable Corrāsable Bond. It erases with just a flick of an ordinary pencil eraser! That's why it is such a boon to busy college people. Since etiquette authorities agree that it's correct to type personal letters, Eaton now makes Corrāsable available in a new, handsome (laid patterned) social edition. In carefully edited colors: White, Grey, Blue; in letter sizes correct for men and women. Only Eaton makes erasable Corrāsable.

Aging Whitey Ford Pitches Yankees to Series Victory

By MIKE BROWN

The New York Yankees, behind the fine pitching of lefty Whitey Ford defeated the San Francisco Giants in the 1962 World Series opener at Candlestick Park Thursday.

Ford was in complete command scattering eleven hits as he went the distance. The "Old Reliable" of the New York pitching staff got out of trouble several times as he got the Giants to hit the ball on the ground.

The Yanks scored first in the opening frame when Roger Maris cracked a double to right field after Giant starter Billy O'Dell had given up singles to Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh.. Felipe Alou, Giant outfielder, saved a home run on Maris' blow when he barely got his glove on the long fly and managed to bat it back onto the playing field. Both Richardson and Tresh scored on the hit by the Yankee slugger.

The Giants came back in the second when Willie Mays singled, went to third on a base hit by Jim Davenport, and scored on a bunt single by Jose Pagan.

In the third, the Giants got Ford in hot water when Chuck Hiller doubled with one out. Alou followed with a single sending Hiller to third and the Giant second baseman scored on Mays' second hit of the day. With the score tied and men on first and second it seemed that the Giants might gain the lead, but Ford got Orlando Cepeda to ground into a double play.

The Giants threatened again in the fourth when Jim Davenport led off with a base on balls. Ed Bailey and Jose Pagan popped out but O'Dell kept the rally alive by lining a single up the middle. All was in vain, however, as Harvey Kuenn grounded out to end the inning.

In the seventh, the Yankees finally broke the tie with a home run by Cleté Boyer which barely cleared the left field fence.

In the eighth, the New Yorkers broke the ball game open. With one out, Maris singled and advanced to second moments later when Elston Howard was hit by a pitch. Dale Long, who had gone in defensively for Skowron in the seventh, then singled to right scoring Maris and sending Howard to third. Frisco manager Al Dark then lifted O'Dell, who had struck out eight men in as many innings, in favor of Don Larsen. Larsen then put out the fire, getting Boyer to fly out and Tony Kubek to ground out ending the Yankee threat. Howard, however, managed to score on Boyer's short fly, thus giving the Easterners a 5-2 bulge.

The New Yorkers added their final tally in the ninth when Tom Tresh singled, stole second, and scored on Howard's base hit to right field.

The second game of the Series will be played today in Candlestick Park and the teams will travel on Saturday to New York. The scene will shift to Yankee Stadium on Sunday and Monday for games three and four. Game five if necessary will be played in New York, and then back to San Francisco if games six or seven are required.

Sights on Campus

Things have been popping up all over campus the past year: buildings; construction sights; even statues. Daily Orange photographer Judith S. Buck surveyed some of the new acquisitions on the SU campus.

In the last row are: the uncompleted biology research lab; Huntington B. Crouse Hall; and a view of Kimmel dorm itself.

the Voice of America and a television service. "It's a communications organization," Miss Rapp said.

Compete

The summer internship is competitive, designed to "interest college students in working for the government and to give them enough background to intelligently discuss or explain American government," she said.

"I was very much intrigued by the summer. I'm seriously considering working for the USIA, either here or abroad," she noted.

After she was accepted for the program she went through a three month security clearance. "They were even more thorough than I expected. They checked everything — with neighbors, friends, acquaintances — everyone," Miss Rapp said.

She estimated that 27 or 28 college students worked for the USIA this summer. Her group at the Voice of America included five graduate students and three other undergraduates.

WEEKEND

DOWNTOWN THEATRES

RIVIERA-CINEMA—"The Best of Enemies" is a pretty funny ridiculing of war, with both the British and Italian troops looking quite silly. It's nice to have an anti-war flick that that makes its point without being super serious. Also playing is the Israeli "then there were 10" type historical thing. "Enemies" at 6:45 & 10:15. "10" at 8:30.

PARAMOUNT—Hey, regression fans, here's one that will bring you back to those carefree days of yesteryear. The Paramount, Syracuse's Disneyland annex, presents "Lady and the Tramp" and "Almost Angels." The former doesn't really sound like a children's film. It starts slowly and by the end of the film it's gone completely to the dogs. "Almost Angels" sounds like the story of the American League pennant race, but it's really only another Disney money-maker. The dogs at 7:20 and 10:15 p.m., the angels at 8:35 p.m.

LOEW'S—The answer: "Two Weeks in Another Town." The question: Where did you feel like going after you saw this film? No times available, but plenty of seats.

KOEL—"The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm" is big. It's really big. The screen is big, the stars are big, the admission is big. And that's it. Grin and bear it at 8:30 p.m.

SHOPPINGTOWN — Syracuse's finest underground theater is continuing the highly entertaining "Music Man." The story is nothing but you can't beat the music, man. So put on your mining helmet and head out for DeWitt. M & M melts on the screen at 7:05 and 9:35 p.m.

OTHER FILMS OF INTEREST

WESCOT—Excellent top of the bill this week: "Scream of Fear," a Britisher screamer. The ordinary, though very colorful and animalful "Hatari" co-features. "Screamy" at 7:30 p.m. "Hatari" at 9 p.m.

HOLLYWOOD — Remember those Road Runner cartoons and the Bugs Bunny TVer, magic box fans? Well, it's a full length cartoon short now, or rather he's a full length full color short now. Very funny. "Hatari" is very nothing much in particular. "Road Runner" at 7:15. "No Runner" at 7:45.

ON STAGE

REGENT—The National Players present Shakespear's "Othello," 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

LIVELY ARTS—Stu Dillon will appear in two shows, 8:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. today with the regular folk singers.

Distributed

Knapp said that 1,000 copies of the calendar had been printed and nearly 850 had been distributed by Wednesday night.

Copies were taken to every Greek house, all women's living centers, and all upperclass men's living centers on campus.

"We are fully cooperating with the IFC ruling." Knapp concluded' "No copies are being taken to freshman living centers.

Fraternity Administrator James P. McMurray, in commenting on the issue, said the publication was "an error in judgment, in that PiKA did not contact this office (the dean of men) or the IFC. SYRACUSE Daily Orange

Volume 60, No. 13 | Syracuse, N. Y., Monday, October 8, 1962 | 8 Pages, 5 cents

Nov. 9-10: Homecoming

Plans for Homecoming Weekend were announced Friday by Penny Shapiro, weekend chairman. Homecoming, which replaces Colgate Weekend on the social calendar, is Nov. 9-10, coinciding with the SU-Navy football game.

Highlighting the Friday schedule will be a twister, featuring the Lettermen, a vocal group, and the Herb "Ebb Tide" Nelson trio. The Lettermen have had several hit records, including "When I Fall in Love," and "The Way You Look Tonight." The Nelson group frequently appears in Syracuse night spots

Pep Rally

The location of the twister has not been decided. Miss Shapiro assured that it will be held on campus. A pep rally will precede the dance.

Friday night has been closed to all social activities by the university social committee. The reason for the change from Saturday to Friday, as described by Mrs. Margaret Stafford, director of social activities, is that many fraternities had previously expressed a desire to hold social functions on Saturday night. The sophomore class wanted to offer the student body the best program possible, and therefore asked that Friday be closed.

Decoration

Saturday morning will feature a house decorating contest, in which all living centers and Greek houses may compete. The contest replaces the Colgate Weekend poster contest. A reasonable amount of noise and movable parts will be permitted. Details will be mailed to all living centers.

The football game against Navy tops the afternoon program. Preceding the game, the Naval Academy band will parade at the stadium, and a weekend queen will be announced at halftime. The queen contest is being sponsored by Orange Key, junior men's honorary.

A semi-formal dance in the Women's Building is scheduled for Saturday night. The dance,

Pinebrook: Student Union Fund Plans

By CAROL SCHLAGETER
Special to the Daily Orange

SARANAC LAKE—Proceeds from the Nove. 30 Panhellenic Charity Ball may be the basis for a student union building fund. Ball Chairman Katherine Antony will make this proposal at the Panhellenic Council meeting Tuesday.

Joint Student Legislature Speaker Ronald Mittleman will present within a week a "rigid attendance policy" for the legisla-ture.

These are two of several proposals to come out of this weekend's thirteenth annual student government conference at the university's Pinebrook Conference site on Saranac Lake. Attending were about 50 Hill administrators, faculty and student activity leaders.

The following proposals were also made:

1. Student government shall initiate a drive toward student union activities. It shall encourage group donations to a student union building fund and sponsor athletic, social and cultural events on occasion open to the community. Efforts will be made to secure "big name" entertainment for student union activities.

2. The number of JSL senators-at-large, presently six from each class, shall be decreased by a number still to be determined. The conference did not endorse a decrease in the number of JSL dormitory and house representatibes. The latter suggestion was referred to the post-Pinebrook discussion, at a date to be announced.

(See story on Dr. Betty Cosby's keynote address to the conference, Page 7.

3. An "idea group" of administrators and students will meet monthly for lunch. It will include Chancellor William P. Tolley or his Executive Asst. John F. Olson, Vice Pres. Eric H. Faigle or Vice Pres. John S. Hafer, Vice Pres. Frank P. Piskor, Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford, Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith, and the head of the faculty senate student welfare committee.

Students will be represented at the luncheon meetings by the heads of student government, Joint Student Legislature, Association of Women Students, Inter-fraternity and Pan-hellenic Councils, the Daily Orange, WAER-FM, Hendricks Chapel Board and Traditions Commission.

This will not be an action group, but rather will serve as

Davis Returns to Gridiron

The cheers that followed Ernie Davis throughout his career as an All-American at Syracuse may be heard again—No. 44 is back in uniform. .

There were those who saw Davis's chance to prove his greatness in professional ranks slipping down the drain late in July when the Cleveland Browns announced Ernie had a "blood disorder."

But the Browns and Ernie announced over the weekend that the former SU star is resuming practices. Davis said he was told five days ago that he was cured of the blood disease.

Dr. Austin S. Weisberger, professor of medicine at Western Reserve University and a noted leukemia specialist said: "Ernie Davis has had a form of leukemia, but at the present time his blood findings are completely normal.

"As long as he stays in this perfect state of remission, I see no reason why he cannot play professional ball."

Sports fans throughout the country had felt Ernie would fall into the same boat

Javits to Replace Douglas for Cit

Sen. Paul H. Doug'as (D-Ill.), the scheduled speaker at the Citizenship la lecture Wednesday, has notified the Hill citizenship department that he will be unable to speak here due to pressing engagements in his home state.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (R-N. Y.), a leading member of his party's liberal wing, will address the freshman cit sections at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in Hendricks Chapel.

Edward G. McGrath, assistant director of the citizenship program, said that Douglas, who was supposed to lecture on the topic, "Creation of Wealth for the Future of America," wired the citizenship department late Wednesday night about his change of plans.

Same Topic

"Sen. Javits has kindly consented to speak on the same topic on short notice," McGrath said, "He will lecture for an hour and then there will be a question and answer period."

Freshmen women attending the lecture will be given 10 p.m. blanket permissions.

Other scheduled evening citizenship speakers are expected to be at SU as planned, McGrath said.

Freshmen are advised not to enter the Chapel before 8:20 p.m. so that choir rehearsal will not be interrupted.

The public in invited to hear the New York lawmaker, who also spoke on the Hill last Feb. 13.

Javits, born on New York's lower East Side in 1902, is currently waging a battle for reelection against James R. Donovan. Javits was admitted to the bar in 1927 and was elected to the House of Representatives in 1945. In 1954 he was elected attorney general of New York State and in 1956 became the Empire State's senior U. S. senator.

Javits is one of the Republican Party's liberals with a record of being pro-civil rights. He is married and the father of two daughters and a son.

GOON SQUAD

Goon Squad members must drop off four of their football stubs to Nancy Booth at Kappa Alpha Theta as soon as possible, preferably today, Traditions Commission Pres. Leland Peterson said Thursday.

Blood Drive Names Noble Chairman

Hendricks Chapel Dean Charles C. Noble has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the campus Blood Drive.

"It is too bad that I am too old for them to accept my blood, but I will do everything I can to help the drive," Dean Noble said.

The bloodmobile will be on campus from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 25.

Richard Kuzmack, of service fraternity Alpha Phi Omega, and Barbara Currey, representing the Women's Athletic Association, are co-chairmen of the drive.

At the campus Blood Drive Council's organziatonal meeting last Thursday, Paul Pacter, Claire Wexelblatt, Paul Berman and Bette Leitman were announced as co-ordinators of campus living centers for the drive. Townsend Southard was named public relations director.

Student organization leaders have expressed their support of the drive. Theodore Bayer and Carol (Shultze) Lucha, Joint Student Government president and vice president, said, "The blood drive will be one of the most worthwhile student projects for the university and the community this year. Student government wholeheartedly endorses it and encourages student support for it."

The Inter-fraternity and Panhellenic Councils have also endorsed it.

Ugandan Celebration At Drumlins

East African students from Syracuse University and other upstate New York colleges will gather at SU today to celebrate the independence of Uganda.

A protectorate of Great Britain since the turn of the century, Uganda became independent at midnight today. The celebration, consisting of a dinner and party, is sponsored by the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship Program of East African Studies Program.

A dinner will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Drumlins Country Club for East African students, staff and members of the East African Program and representatives of programs at SU concerned with East Africa.

Speakers at the dinner will be Maxwell Dean Stephen K. Bailey, acting program director Victor Thompson, and the First Counselor Uganda delegate to the United Nations, Emmanuel Ndaula.

Peace Corps at SU

Fifty-five Peace Corps candidates will begin an intensive eight and a half week training program Oct. 25 on the Hill, Peace Corps officials in Washington announced Friday.

The SU - trained volunteers will be the first corps members to be sent to Nyasaland, Central Africa. They will undergo a nine weeks of; instruction on Nyasaland's language, culture, and government.

This endeavor will be Syracuse's second Peace Corps training project. This summer an all-female contingent of 27 registered nurses and medical technicians were trained for service in Tanganyika, a neighboring republic of Nyasaland.

Trainees will live in the downtown Hotel Onondaga because of "no vacancy" conditions on the campus, the university said.

Peace Corps headquarters said the volunteers—from all over the U. S.—will take over actual classroom teaching in Africa and assist local teachers in their work—both men and women.

The program here is administered by University College under the supervision of Clifford L. Winters Jr.

The university said the trainees will eat at the hotel. Most of the classes will be held at U. C.

When the trainees arrive in the city ,they will be whisked to the university's Sagamore retreat in the Adirondacks for a weekend of "physical preconditioning."

The vigorous training program here will keep volunteers busy 60 hours a week. This includes 15 hours of technical trianing, 100 hours of history and culture of the African nation and 48 hours of the native language.

The teachers leave here Dec. 22 on a two -week leave. They are scheduled to arrive in Nyasaland Jan. 5 and will then undergo additional training for three weeks.

Nyasaland I, as it is designated, will return to the U. S. in the fall of 1964.

Pinebrook: Spirit and Hope

The leaders were there and the spirit was there yet the Pinebrook Conference cannot be called a total success. True, there were many fine recommendations which came out of the committees; and the discussion, though often emotional and superfluous, showed that most of those attending the conference were ready, willing and able to do a job.

The question now is how much of a job did they really do. On other pages of today's Daily Orange, one can find the reports of the conference. They reflect the work of many people who are truly concerned with getting student government on its feet and making it a respected and effective representative body of the Syracuse students.

The proposals and suggestions presented may very well set the student governing bodies off on the right foot if the attitudes of those present is a true indication of the future.

However, the danger lies in the facts of the past. Too often student leaders have attended such conferences and have been swept up by the "hail fellow well met" spirit of that woodland haven so far away from the university campus. Here the barriers tumble and student and administrator communicate informally throughout the weekend. A vice president serves dinner to a student senator and the chancellor sings for the group.

Taken into this atmosphere the students can't help feeling excited and impatient to get back and instill this spirit in the student body.

We only hope this spirit can be instilled in the students who were many miles away from Pinebrook this weekend. If it can and if the student government has taken this opportunity to examine itself honestly and work seriously for vast improvement, the conference will be the best ever. (Vice President Hafer said that the positive attitude shown during the conference does make it the best ever.)

If this spirit cannot be carried over and if the suggestions given to student government aren't used effectively, we will have to wallow in another year of "non-student government" and general student apathy.

For the students who participated in the meeting the challenge lies in retaining the spirit of Pinebrook to attain present goals and to strike out on new horizons.

GARDEN OF EDEN

AWS--A Closer Look

By Carol Schlageter

Among the most sacred of 'cuse campus cows is the Association of Women Students (AWS). Today's Schlageter saga seeks not to reduce that cow to hash. Rather, let us examine the fat that interefers with the work of some vital parts.

This writer will beat only slightly the already dead dog of coed dress standards. For those unfamiliar with the fabled standard, it goes like so:

A trenchcoat makes anything legal, i.e. while slacks and bermuda shorts are not proper apparrel for coeds on campus or in downtown Syracuse, a trenchcoat worn over bermudas, a bikini or pajamas presumably purges the wearer of any guilt incurred.

Perhaps this writer is but overly aged and embittered. They say the standards is not a rule. They say dress is left to the individual's discretion. But they also say that rule-breakers may be handled before AWS Standards Council.

Now the thought of someone watching, watching, watching like a gestapo agent seems rather outmoded. It seems, in fact, downright assinine when the writer has seen at least one prominent AWS officer romp the quaint paths of "M" Street with trenchless slacks.

And now leave us remember the year. For any misguided souls it is 1962. It is not 1900. Slacks, worn on casual occasions, are socially accepted. The first lady of the land wears them at the proper time and place.

But the time and place are not determined for her by a Congressional Order. Nor presumably by JFK himself. The determining the proper occasion without benefit of a band of bullies to inform her.

Now if the living center—the home that is a man's (and presumably a women's) castle—is not the proper place to do what one likes and wear what one pleases, where is that place? This writer does not agitate for slacks on campus, at university formals or on the streets of Syracuse. She does suggest that such casual attire be permitted within one's four walls.

Few women students here play beatnik. Fewer still play slob on the streets of Syracuse. This writer feels that as many coeds would adhere to a recommended dress pattern—placed in its proper scope—as do to one which is decreed.

But the Dress Standard, fabled as it is, is only a part of AWS shortcomings. What about AWS' bureaucracy of apparently functionless committeeheads?

Schlageter pretendeth not to know what the AWS Speaker Pro Tem did last year. But she certainly set no spirited record for encouraging women's living centers to go on dorm council—a chore assigned her by AWS' little know-it-all pamphlet, "In the Know."

Last year at least two living centers tried to go on dorm council—a type of self-government in which the unit decides its own rules and sets penalties for late minutes and infractions of lesser campus rules.

The story was the same for both living centers. The Constitutions were drawn up and amended according to AWS recommendations by Jan. 1. But they died a slow death from pigeon-holing. Who pigeon-hold them and why?

And, hate to say it, this columnist has never heard (out side of the AFS house organ publication of the textbook lending library. If she had, she would probably be several sheckles richer and no doubt many facts wiser. This phantom library is theoretically (again, relying on information in that little know-it-all—oops, In the Know book) sheparded by the academics chairman of AWS.

Having now hurled some rotten produce due AWS (and having gotten at least three incomplete metaphores going), Schlageter has a suggestion. It seems that nearly all of AWS' problem comes right down to faculty public relations.

Publicity should be rallying point of the whole show. Maybe the Academics Director is conscientious doing her job. But this writer certainly wonders, since she has never heard of a textbook lending library.

And maybe Standards Council is all just a bunch of happy Girl Scouts with knobby knees who will continue the present dress standard because of the latter. At any rate, the public relations commissioner has a job to do.

This writer has observed the many good suggestions offered by AWS Pres. Marilyn Burke at the Pinebrook Conference. The machinery of her organization needs an oil job. Of this she is no doubt aware. And this may be the year for AWS.

LETTERS

Fraternities

To the Editor

Just to set the record straight — Alpha Epsilon Pi and Alpha Tau Omega are not "the first hill fraternities to share eating facilities". No doubt this has occurred many times in the past, but one needs to look back no farther than three years for a recent example.

During the first academic year following the founding of Sigma Chi Psi, (1959-1960) that fraternity accepted the invitation of Beta Theta Phi (at that time the Beta Epsilon Club) to share the Beta's dining facilities. Incidentally, Sigma Chi Psi also innovated the practice of joint fraternity-sorority boarding plans during the academic year 1961-1962.

Panty Raid

To the Editor:

Not willing to let a dying matter expire peacefully, I should like to address this letter to Michael Keiser, whose letter to the S.U. Administration appeared in the October 4th Daily Orange.

As may be recalled, Keiser took to task the Administration over its recent panty raid policy. He argues that the college student should be allowed to occasionally throw off the shackles and rigors of study and participate in what he terms "unique" fun.

Now it is my contention that a University's main purpose is to allow the student to gradually mold himself into a useful and productive member of society. This process of personality-molding involves the exposure of the student to many different situations and circumstances so that he will be better equipped to cope with those events that confront him after he leaves the hallowed and protecting halls of the University.

However I should imagine that basic ingredient for this process would be a reasonably mature person. The frolicsome, racous activities of those students participating in the great silk crusade do not in my estimation represent this basic ingredient.

It is particularly perplexing to me why Keiser, a senior, has not yet discovered this fundamental fact. In this light I should think the administration has taken a rather benevolent attitude toward something they could justly be quite severe about.

Why not roll up your hair, Keiser; you might be able to see the University and the students.

At Lowe Art Center

The Show

The Art School's annual faculty exhibition will open Sunday, Oct. 14 at the Joe and Emily Lowe Art Center. The show will open with a reception to meet new staff members at 4-6 p.m.

One of the exhibit's highlights is the first portfolio of "Syracuse University Printmakers 1962," a collection of 10 original prints by faculty members, of which 40 will sell for $75 each.

The school feels that a unique feature of the show a complete freedom of media, style or subject matter. It is designed to motivate individual expression experimentalization among the faculty.

The Faculty

To compensate for the loss of four faculty members, the School of Art has added five teachers to its staff.

New staff members are:

Charles Giordono, teacher of design and art education and a graduate of the Massachusetts College of Art. While working for his master's degree here last year, he prepared a film "Primavera."

Lawrence Feer, teacher of industrial design. Feer left a position as head of the Advanced Product Design Studio of General Motors in Detroit to come to SU.

Edward Ainsley Burke, drawing and advanced painting instructor. An independent artist from New Woodstock, N. Y., Burke was educated at John Hopkins University and New York's Art Students' League.

Paul Tarantino, metal-smithing and design instructor. Tarantino is returning from three years of teaching and a research tour of Korea with a United States program for the development of Korean handicrafts.

Ferald diGuisto, instructor in both the School of Architecture and School of Art. He is a graduate of the Boston Museum School of Art and Yale University and formerly taught at the University of Washington.

Faculty members missing this year are Ruth Randall, who is retiring to work on her book "History of Ceramics," and Arthur Darvishian who has joined the art faculty of the State University of New York at Buffalo.

Carl Roters is on leave to complete a series of paintings depicting the life and history of the Jackson Hole area in Wyoming.

Finally, Edward Chavez has resigned to devote full time to his own painting.

The Students

The first meeting of the Art Students Association will be held 7 p.m. Tuesday at Lowe Art Center. The meeting is open to all.

Charles Giordono, a new member of the staff, will show his recently completed film "Primavera.." He will also speak on the "Cinema as an Art Form."

'La Traviata' In English

Demonstrating that opera is living theatre, the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre will present an English version of Verdi's "La Traviata" at 8:20 p.m. Wednesday, October 10 at Lincoln Auditorium.

The opera was translated into English by the producer Boris Goldovsky to enable the audience to be enveloped into the action and nuances ofthe opera.. The translation is not literal; rather it uses colloquial English phrases that could have been written by Verdi.

The production consists of a company of fifty including 11 principals, a chorus and an orchestra.

Tickets can be purchased at the Clark Music Building, 416 S. Salina St., for $3, $3.50 and $4 or call HA 2-8915 for reservations.

D'Plain 6 Wins

Despite a strong female contingent of Watson rooters, Dell Plain 6 triumphed over Watson 2 Thursday evening in the first of this semester's "Syraquiz" programs.

The program, returning to WAER, universtiy FM station, after a two year absence, was emceed by Mike Styer, program director.

Each question was scored from five to 30 points. Categories included current events, music, sports, history, theater, modern art, mythology and literature.

Questions included naming the coaches of the teams opposing the Bears in football, identifying the author of the broadway play "A Man for All Seasons" (one wild stab was Howard Taubman, drama critic of the N. Y. "Times") and giving the year of the completion of the Suez Canal.

Representing the winning team were George Yesian, George Choderker, Alan Stolowitz and Mike Krassner.

Watson West 2 was represented by Barry Moore, Tom Lowe, Ralph Miller and Edward Buzanowitz.

Clinton Cottage will face Dellplain 6 on the "Syraquiz" next week.

Foreign Pics

The Midtown Theatre will show an exciting series of foreign films all this week. On Tuesday, the Polish film "Advertisement in Warsaw" with English subtitles will be shown.

"The Grasshopper," written by Anton Chekhov, will be shown on Wednesday evening. This will be its first run in Syracuse. The film will have English subtitles.

"Winter Fantasy," featuring ice skating and dancing to folk and classical music, will be the attraction also on Wednesday.

Two German films, "Ewiger Rembrandt" and "Wiener Blut," a Strauss operetta, will be shown Thursday night.

UP IN THE AIR

The New TV Season

By Jan Griffin

The arrival of the new TV season just about matches the opening of the third channel in Syracuse. Now all programs from all the major networks will be available to local viewers. But that may not be to our advantage.

CBS hit absolute rock bottom with a gem called "The Beverly Hillbillies," which transplanted oil-rich "Real McCoy"-types to the statue suberb.

A more painful program could not exist. It does though. It's CBS's "The Nurses.." Take the melodrama of "Ben Casey" combine with "Dr. Kildare" doctor- intern relationship, turn the whole thing over to the gals in the maternity ward, and a mid-evening soap opera will result.

Days Of Yore

Two great performers from the CBS days of yore returned this season.. Though neither showmanship seems destined again to triumph over format made glorious beginnings, TV.

Lucille Ball seems a bit uncertain of her new situation comedy role, but her old fans will give her a big welcome. Jackie Gleason roared onto the screen with his old show almost completely in tact proving in the old masters never lose their touch.

NBC allowed an updated version of "Bonanza" to get into the schedule. The new show suffers greatly by comparison "Empire" changes the circumstances of the hero slightly, but he remains a young Ben Cartwright in grey flannel helicopter and narrow lapel plane tickets. Running back and forth between metropolitan centers of commerce and the big ranch he manages, Our Hero will wear out the viewers faster than the sole of his shoe.

Shakey

One really bright spot on the new NBC schedule is "the Andy Williams Show." It got off to a shakey start, but the ingredients are sound, and the show should improve greatly with time. Best of all is Williams himself, a younger version of Perry Como. The New Christy Minstrels, grabbing the folk music audience along with faithful Williams fans, will appear regularly.

ABC's new shows are as undistinguished, on the whole, as CBS's and NBC's. "Stoney Burke," a much - promoted modern Western could catch on as a popular show, but will never be very good TV. How nice it lasted only one hour. NBC's "Virginian" is long, long 90 minute presentation. It is too much like a grade Z movie to be real television. Except for the scenery it flopped completely.

With the good shows that have been held over from last season, and with hopes for a few of the new ones, like "I'm Dickens, He's Fenster" another "Car 54"? this season may provide some good entertainment.

CBS

Once again, however, the brightest moments will have to come from special programs. The opening of Lincoln Center and the "CBS Reports" on smoking and cancer have heralded a season of programs of importance and cultural value.

"Teahouse of the August Moon" is coming at the end of the month. Using programs such as this as stepping stones, the Fall '62 TV season may justify itself.

But then again it may not.

Down In Front

By JUDY ADAMS

To those of you who live and die with the Syracuse football team and want to do a little living again, take heed. Coach Ben Schwartzwalder is attempting to inject a bit of life into his drooping squad.

In one of the major shakeups since the San Francisco earthquake, Schwartzy has juggled his backfield around until any resemblance between the first string and the one that took the field against Army last week is purely coincidental.

Ben first moved his starting left halfback, Bill Schoonover to full, and dropped the touted Bo Nance to fourth string. Schoonover had been the number two fullback last year but was being groomed to fill the shoes vacated by Ernie Davis.

Schoonover, who is wearing Ernie's old number 44, is presently leading the club in rushing yardage with 66 in 14 carries.

It's apparent that Ben is easing Schoonover along. By never comparing the new Number 44 to the old one, Ben has done his best to give Schoonover confidence. All that's been asked of him is that he do his best. The strategy appears to be working.

But that's about all the Schwartzwalder strategy that has been successful so far this year. The boost of Nance to strating fullback inspired him to perform well at Oklahoma, but the Cadets were waiting for him every time he carried the ball. Maybe a week on fourth string.

Ben then moved junior John Humphries in the left half spot vacated by Schoonover. Humphries has been a fine defenseman in his first two years as an Orangeman, but is untried on offense.

Another defender, peppery Don King, has taken over the right halfback slot. Ben has often said that King has the ability to play pro ball on defense.

The major move, one that will confuse even the most adept strategians, was the switching of sophomore Walt Mahle to number one quarterback.

Everyone was expecting something to happen at the signal calling position. It was like a tennis match watching Ben shift between Bob Lelli and Walt Sofsian, hoping to get the winning combination. But neither was able to move the team satisfactorily.

Lelli's work in the pre-season practices led Schwartzwalder to declare, "Bob's my quarterback".

Last year Bob completed 14 of 22 passes for 180 yards, three touchdowns and a 64 per cent accuracy. But this year he has connected only on nine of 24 tosses for no touchdowns and a lowly 38 per cent average.

The confident Sofsian has done no better with a two for nine record giving him a meager 22 per cent average.

So Ben dropped these two who were vieing for the number one quarterbacking position to the third and fourth strings.

In their place are sophomores Mahle and Rich King. Neither of the two were even considered among the outstanding sophomores according to this year's preseason publication mailed to all communications media.

Ben completed his masterminding by dropping little Gus Giardi to third string behind King; Billy Hunter to the same position behind Humphries.

Ben seems to think his problem is in the backfield. He's trying to remedy them by changes. But, in general, two of his lines will basically remain the same. The first is the one on the field. The second is the new one on his brow.

Syracuse Nationals Prep For Exhibition Series

By IRA BAKST

The Syracuse Nationals arrived in Syracuse Friday afternoon to begin practices for their upcoming series of exhibition games with the New York Knickerbockers. With the fine crop of rookies evenly balanced throughout the league, the Nats are practicing daily with visions of their toughest season in years.

The fight for the playoffs should go down to the wire as the Nat's "patsies", the Knicks, have become strengthed with the acquisition of Paul Hogue, a much needed center, and the return of Kenny Sears.

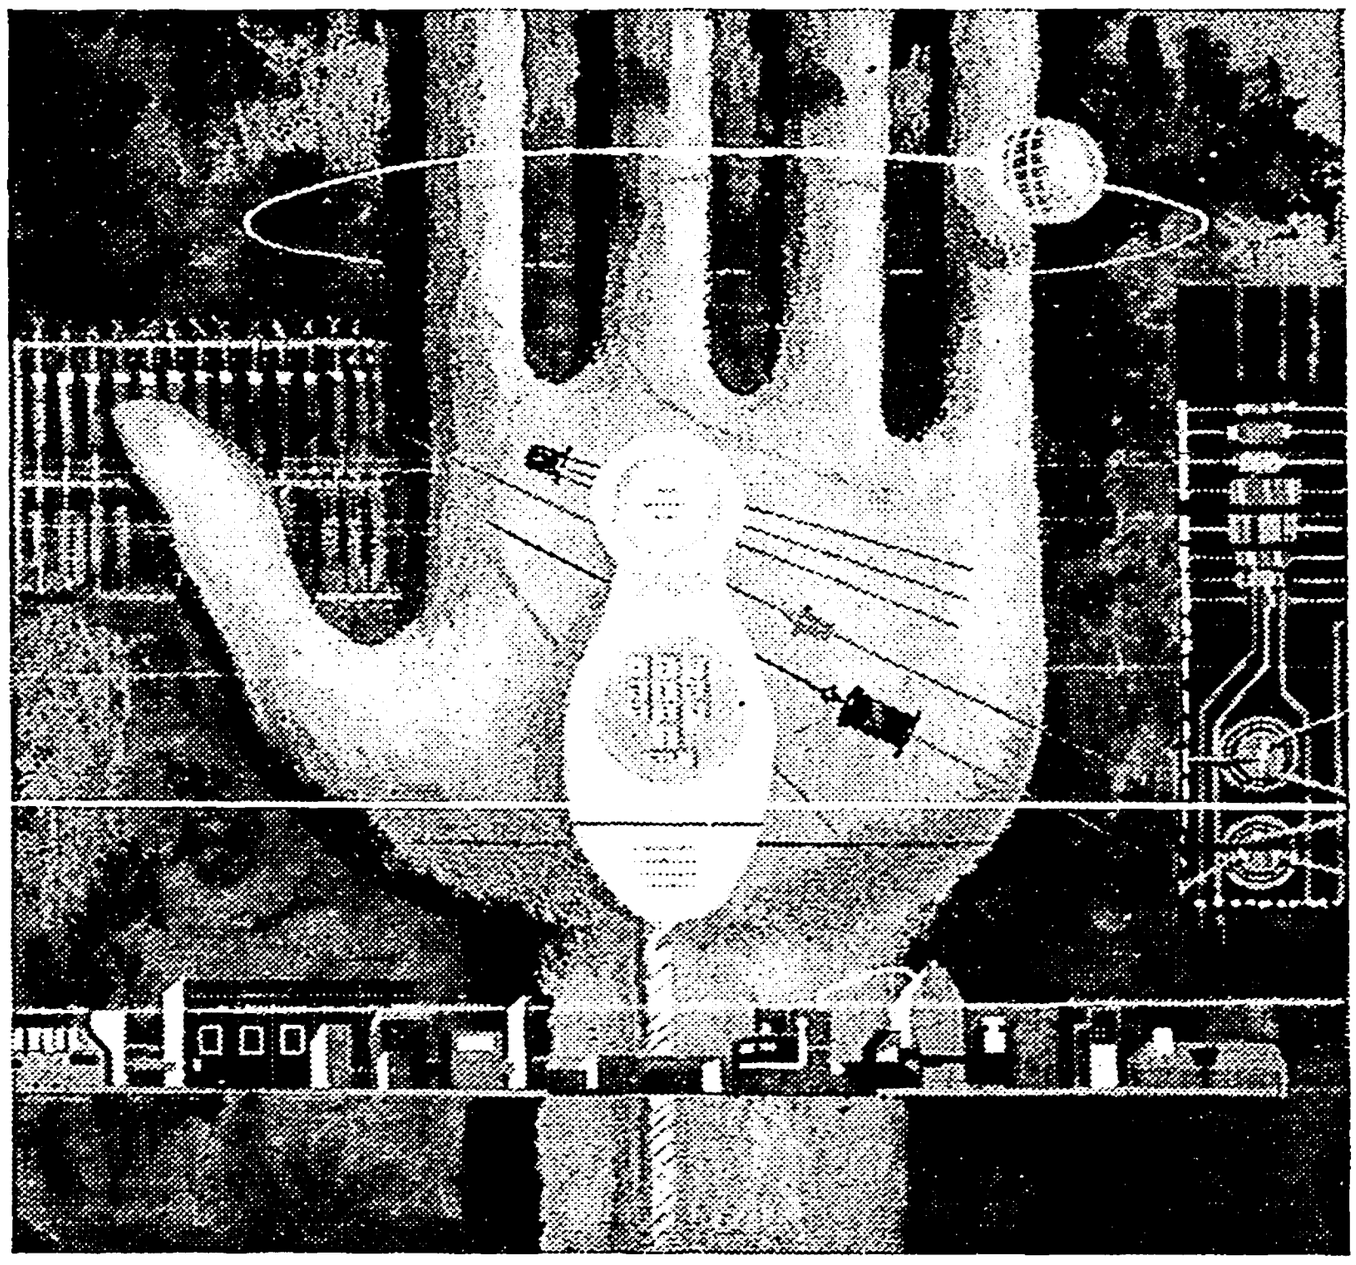
The Nats will no longer have to meet the Philadelphia Warriors 12 times a year, as the Warriors have shifted to San Francisco in the Western Division.

Oscar Robertson and the Cincinnati Royals have taken their place and should add keen competition to the present hoop scene at the War Memorial.

Among the top good looking prospects in Syracuse uniforms this year will be Len Chappell (Wake Forest) and Chet (the Jet) Walker (Bradley); both first team All Americans on everyones 1961-62 team.

Both these players should blend in with last year's crowd pleasing National squad by opening night, October 20, when the Nats meet the Los Angeles Lakers. The Lakers former Nat Dick Barnett added to their unit should provide lighting fast action for the Nats, as well as a natural rival.

The Boston Celtics, favored by most writers for their sixth straight Eastern title, have added more depth by acquiring Jack "the Shot" Foley (Holy Cross) and John Havlicek (Ohio State) in the College draft.



Bob Cousy will be back with the rest of the World Champions to once again make the Eastern Division a battle for second place.

The Knicks should finally give the rest of the Eastern Division some competition with All-Americans Paul Hogue, John Rudometkin (U. S. C.), Tom Stith, who was out because of tuberculosis in 1961-62, and with return Kenny Sears from the San Francisco Saints of the ABL.

The Knicks also made headlines by reacquiring Western Division All Star Gene Shue from the Detroit Pistions for Daryll Imhoff plus cash.

The other member of the division, Cincinnati, is relatively unchanged from the squad that finished second in the West last year. The Royals have been hit hard by the reluctance of Jerry Lucas, star from Ohio State, to play professional basketball for the N. B. A. club.

Syracuse must count on their veteran squad consisting of all Pro Dolph Schayes, Johnny Kerr, Lee Shaffer, Joe Roberts, and Swede (7'1") Halbrook up front, plus Al Bianchi, Larry Costello and Hal Greer in the backcourt in order to top all the new Eastern division talent that will be present in the new season.

Our future is in the hands of men not yet hired

At Western Electric we play a vital role in helping meet the complex needs of America's vast communications networks. And a career at Western Electric, the manufacturing arm of the nation-wide Bell Telephone System, offers young men the exciting opportunity to help us meet these important needs.

Today, Western Electric equipment reduces thousands of miles to fractions of seconds. Even so, we know that our present communications systems will be inadequate tomorrow; and we are seeking ways to keep up with—and anticipate—the future. For instance, right now Western Electric engineers are working on various phases of solar cell manufacture, miniaturization, data transmission, futuristic telephones, electronic central offices, and computer-controlled production lines—to name just a few.

To perfect the work now in progress and launch many new communications products, projects, procedures, and processes not yet in the mind of man—we need quality-minded engineers. If you feel that you can meet our standards, consider the opportunities offered by working with our company. In a few short years, you will be Western Electric.

Challenging opportunities exist now at Western Electric for electrical, mechanical, industrial, and chemical engineers, as well as physical science, liberal arts, and business majors. All qualified applicants will receive careful consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. For more information about Western Electric, write College Relations, Western Electric Company, Room 6206, 222 Broadway, New York 38, New York. And be sure to arrange for a Western Electric interview when our college representatives visit your campus.

Colgate Thinclads Edge Syracuse Runners, 27-28

By ART ROSSKY

Paced by a first place finish by its ace, Colgate's cross country team ruined Syracuse's opener with a 27-28 win in a meet held Saturday at Hamilton, New York.

The loss extended the harriers' losing streak, which began last season, to three dual meets.

The loss also ended a 28 meet winning streak that Syracuse had rolled up again the Red Raiders.

The key first place was gained by the Red Raiders' Jim Wilder, who covered the five mile distance in 27:18.

Syracuse captured second and third places, in addition to three other places among the top ten finishers.

Captain Mike Guzman gained second with a time of 27:35, and was followed by Muncey Ferguson, whose 27:45 gained third place.

Mike Schuster finished sixth; Jack Dailey, eighth, and Tom Higgins, ninth.

In the preliminary meet, Syracuse's frosh whipped the little Red Raiders 22-33.

Mike Spino and Bill Cihak, both of Syracuse, tied for first place as they covered the three-mile distance in 15:31.

The Orangemen, who are trying to improve on last year's 2-3 mark, will open their home campaign Saturday Oct. 13, at 11 a. m. with a meet against Buffalo at Drumlins.

The Frosh teams of Buffalo and Syracuse will run in a preliminary meet.

Frosh Runners Host Buffalo In Hill Debut

Freshman cross-country coach Bob Grieve has his nine man harrier squad ready and waiting for its match against Buffalo, Oct. 13.

Pacing the new squad are top prospects Mike Spino, from Lyndhurst, N.J.; Bill Cihak, from Buffalo; and Marty Miller and Clay Bennett, both hailing from New York City.

The other five members of the team are Ron Bukow, Rich Edwards, Jeff Kearn and Dan Kleemon, from Huntington, Brentwood, Pinebrook, and Franklin Square, N.Y. respectively, and Don Kibby from Hardford, Pa.

Last year the squad posted a 1-2-1 dual meet record. Led by Tom Higgins and Cal Evans, the team tied Colgate 28-28 in a hard fought contest. Evans finished first in the three rule course with a good 14:19 time. The frosh the beat Buffalo, 31-25, while losing to Army, 21-40, and Cornell, 27-28.

The Orange will soon travel to Buffalo and then Cornell. Grieve has high hopes for a winning season.

SOCCER CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

Soccer plays interested in joining a soccer club should attend a soccer meeting tonight at 7:30 in the trophy room of the men's gym.

DON KING

Don King Preparing For Offensive Role

By MERTH JOHANEK

A knee injury has caused Don King, an active athlete and halfback on the S. U. team, to see less activity in this year's football season than he had hoped.

Don started his athletic feats while attending Lafayette High School in Buffalo. He played football, basketball and tennis while at Lafayette, achieving "All City" titles for two years in both football and basketball. In 1956, Don received the "All-American" title in football.

After graduating from high school in 1957, Don entered the Marine Corps. While stationed at Camp LaJeune, North Carolina, he played on the football team. His position was that of halfback.

A six-foot, one hundred-eighty pound Physical Education major, King had no comment to make on the Oklahoma and Army games, except that he has played defense during both games, and that his knee has caused him to miss much of the action.

When asked if he had any comment or prediction for the upcoming Boston College game, King replied, "Next time I'll be playing offense, and I'll be playing as hard as I can."

Orange Grid Stats Poor

By JIM DINE

It has been said that statistics give a pretty comprehensive picture of the outcomes of athletic contests. Such is the case for the Syracuse Eleven.

After one peers through the statistics, it can be observed that the Orangemen have not been too successful in their opening contests.

The Schwartzwalder coached forces have moved the ball well in compiling 26 first downs and 418 yards in total offense, but the inability to keep possesion of the ball (seven fumbles) has hindered their chances for hitting paydirt.

Forward passing has failed to come through for the offense, thus a great deal of pressure has been placed on S.U.'s running game. Bob Lelli has attempted 24 passes and he has completed nine of them.

His reserve Walt Sofsian could only complete two of nine attempts, give the quarterbacks a passing percentage of 33.3. The 11 completed passes have been god for 130 yards, and Billy Schoonover leads the pass receivers with three receptions.

Along with being ahead in pass catching, Bill Schoonover has the best rushing yardage with 66 yards in 14 carriers.

Close behind him follows Bo Nance with 62 yards. Mike Koski has the best rushing percentage with 5.6 yards per carry.

The opposition (Oklahoma & Army) ran up a total of 405 yards on the ground, but they could only advance 87 yards through the airways. A great aid to the Orange has come from the amount of penalties the opposition has compiled. Syracuse was only penalized 65 yards compared with 165 yards of our opponents.

Usually a statistics column presents a large section to the leading scorers of the team, but since S.U. has not moved the ball over the goal line, the leading scorer is Tom Mingo with 3 points.

Gene Stancin is a close second with two points.

As Mingo and Stancin are both linemen, Syracuse is one of the few schools at which the linemen outscore the backs.

Despite its offensive troubles, the Hill forces have given opposition offensives more than their share of troubles.

Syracuse has surrendered only 16 points in losing its two games.

Included in this defensive display is a tenacious pass defense which has allowed a measley 43.5 yards per game through the air, seventh best in the nation.

However, there's an old saying that the team scoring the most points wins.

Last Year-A Frosh Rebellion

NINE DAYS from now the Class of '66 will have its first officers. These four will be faced with the task of organizing a weekend in less than two months' time. Tomorrow and Wednesday the frosh will nominate candidates. The campaign glad-handing returns to Syracuse Sunday. Three days later it will be all over; the frosh will cast their ballots. The winners will be among the 34 candidates who filed petitions last week expressing their desire to run. Tomorrow's convention will narrow the field down to 12 — three for each office. Last fall's frosh staged a rebellion, upsetting campus political tradition. Here is that story.

By ANDY PORTE

It all started one warm day last October, when the presidents of three Dell Plain floors asked each frosh living center to send a delegate to a meeting that night. The three called the meeting, they said, because they felt they did not know enough about the two campus political parties, which were to run the freshman elections a few weeks hence.

Pledges

Before the deferred rush system went into effect, the Greeks already had their pledges by the time of freshman elections, and setting a slate was a mere matter of form for the all-Greek parties. But last fall there were no pledges, and the three freshmen said they wanted an election free of upperclass influence.

The majority of the freshmen at the meeting agreed they knew little of the campus political setup. The group summoned the leaders of the two campus parties, who promptly appeared. The leaders asured the frosh that their interests would be preserved, and everyone went home, the situation still a trifle hazy..

Meet Again

Yet all were not pleased. Again the frosh met, and this time they made up their minds, so they said. They wanted an election, free of the naughty upperclass parties. They got themselves a name, Freshmen for Free Elections, and an image — a tall, handsome southerner named Robbie Stern.

However, once more the frosh changed their minds. In a stormy three-hour session, they compromised with the smooth-talking party leaders, and agreed that the frosh would work with the parties. The financial aid of the Greeks ,they admitted, would be nice.

Under the plan approved by the frosh and the parties, each freshman floor or living center would send two delegates to each party's convention. Prospective candidates could attend either convention, and the frosh would not have to pay anything towards campaign expenses. Everyone shook hands and all seemed hunky-dory.

Not So

Not so. In agreeing with the parties, the frosh had consented to let the Greeks maintain their vote in the nominating convention, since they were being generous enough to put up the money. Well, someone pulled out a slide rule and figured that while the frosh would have a majority in the conventions, the Greeks would conceivably push a previously-selected candidate through for a nomination by voting as a block.

So the freshmen met again—this time on the Hendricks Chapel steps. Their decision was to tell the parties at the conventions later that day that they had reconsidered and decided that only frosh should vote in the convention. If the parties refused the demand, the freshmen would walk out..

The parties didn't agree, and most of the freshmen walked out. Those frosh delegates who stayed joined with the upperclassmen in nominating candidates from those Freshmen who had also decided to remain. The rest of the frosh had another meeting.

To the freshmen who had walked out on the parties, this meant a total war. They formed their own party, had their constitution quickly approved by JSL, whose speaker was admittedly pro-frosh, and scheduled a nominating convention.

They christened themselves RIP, invited each floor to send delegates to a convention, and chose new leaders, deciding to keep Stern in the background rather than be accused of bossism and personal interests.

The new leaders, though not new faces, were an outspoken Long Islander, Mike Lieberman, and a sage Irishman, Mike O'Bryan.

The convention was held as scheduled, with no unusual incidents. Campaigning started and the Class of '65 went to the polls.

As most people predicted, it was a romp, a massacre, a crushing blow to party prestige. The RIP candidates won by wide margins over the two party slates.

Deferred rushing has made Greek participation in freshman elections a virtual impossibility. In this, the second year of deferred rush on the Hill, students still discuss last year's frosh elections, in which a freshman group bargained and bickered with the Greeks, and finally beat them.

Pinebrook Keynote Urges Freedom, Responsibility

Special to the Daily Orange

SARANAC LAKE — Student government must serve in order to be served. and must operate within a frame of freedom and responsibility, Dr. Betty Cosby told the thirteenth annual student government conference here Friday.

As student government commits itself to freedom and responsibility, freedom and authority to act will follow, Dr. Cosby added in discussion after her keynote address.

She is assistant dean of students at Cornell University and former assistant dean of women on the Hill.

She likened the government's need for freedom to the individual student's desire for freedom. The student, she said, feels he is too mature to be thought of as a child of the administration.

Cautioned

Dr. Cosby described a professor and his students who gave and received lectures using tape recorders. These, she said, were a "non - professor" and "non-students."

She cautioned against a "non-student government."

This, she said, could be of two types:

1. Discussion type, characterized by issues remote from campus and by issues which do not lead to action.

2. Committee type, characterfrized by a hodge-podge of committees whcih never accomplish more than choosing their successors.

The student is wrong, she noted, who feels that the university exists only to serve him.

She denied an easy outline of student government's exact responsibliities. The students, like the faculty and administration, "are bound to all that comprises the university," she said.

Student government at Syracuse must be more than "a good place to bury trouble makers and keep them talking to themselves," she said.

(Ed's. Note: Source of this final quote from Dr. Cosby is Kent L. Barwick, Class of 1962, who was Joint Student Legislature Speaker 1960-1961.

World News

Cuban prisoners. James B. Donovan, the United Sattes attorney negotiating for the release of 1,100 Cuban war prisoners, yesterday flew to Miami to discuss Prime Minister Fidel Castro's latest offer with the Cuban Families Committee. "Negotiations are going well," said Donovan, who predicts another week of talks will be necessary to reach an agreement.

Unofficial reports say Castro still demands $62 million for the prisoners' release but that he is willing to accept part of the payment in food and medicine. Donovan, the Democratic nominee for U. S. Senator from New York, is expected to return to Havana today with the Families Committee's recommendations.

Integration. NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins predicts Alabama will be as difficult as Mississippi to integrate. South Carolina will cause considerably less trouble, forecast the Negro attorney during a talk in Rome yestreday. Questioned about the amount of money spent in Oxford, Miss., by the NAACP, Wilkins said, "If it costs $100,000 a day, it's worth it."

Parent's Weekend Tickets

Students who wish to eat breakfast and attend the football game Parents Weekend with their parents must purchase extra tickets for themselves.

No student meal tickets will be honored for the Sims Dining Hall breakfast for parents at 8:30 a.m. Sat., Oct. 13. Students may buy tickets for their parents and themselves for $1.25 each in the registrar's office. Chancellor William P. Tolley is scheduled to speak at the breakfast.

Parents will not be allowed to sit in the student sections of Archbold Stadium for the Saturday SU-Boston College game. This means students must get tickets for their parents in other sections of the stadium. Students must buy tickets for themselves if they wish to sit with their parents instead of in the student section.

Regular student tickets will be honored for the student section but may not be exchanged for seats in the parents section.

Students must get a special card in the registrar's office in the Administration Building before buying tickets in the Manley Fieldhouse ticket office.

ISO to Set Up Loan Fund

Plans for an emergency loan fund for international students were finalized at last Wednesday's meeting of the Hill International Students Organization.

ISO hopes to raise $1,000 by the end of this semester for a fund that will help students from other countries with temporary financial problems.

Money will be raised with donations from Syracuse community organizatons, club programs and individual gifts.

ISO also discussed Wednesday the possibility of setting up an international student center with more space and facilities than the group now has at the Chapel House. No location for such a center was decided upon.

ISO Pres. Nellie Atallah announced membership in the club is open to all interestedl international and American students.

Different national groups will present programs each month. A Ukrainian program will be featured Oct. 25.

Ernie Davis Returns . . .

as the late great George Gipp who died of pneumonia after a brilliant Notre Dame career and never had a chance to show his college greatness on a professional gridiron.

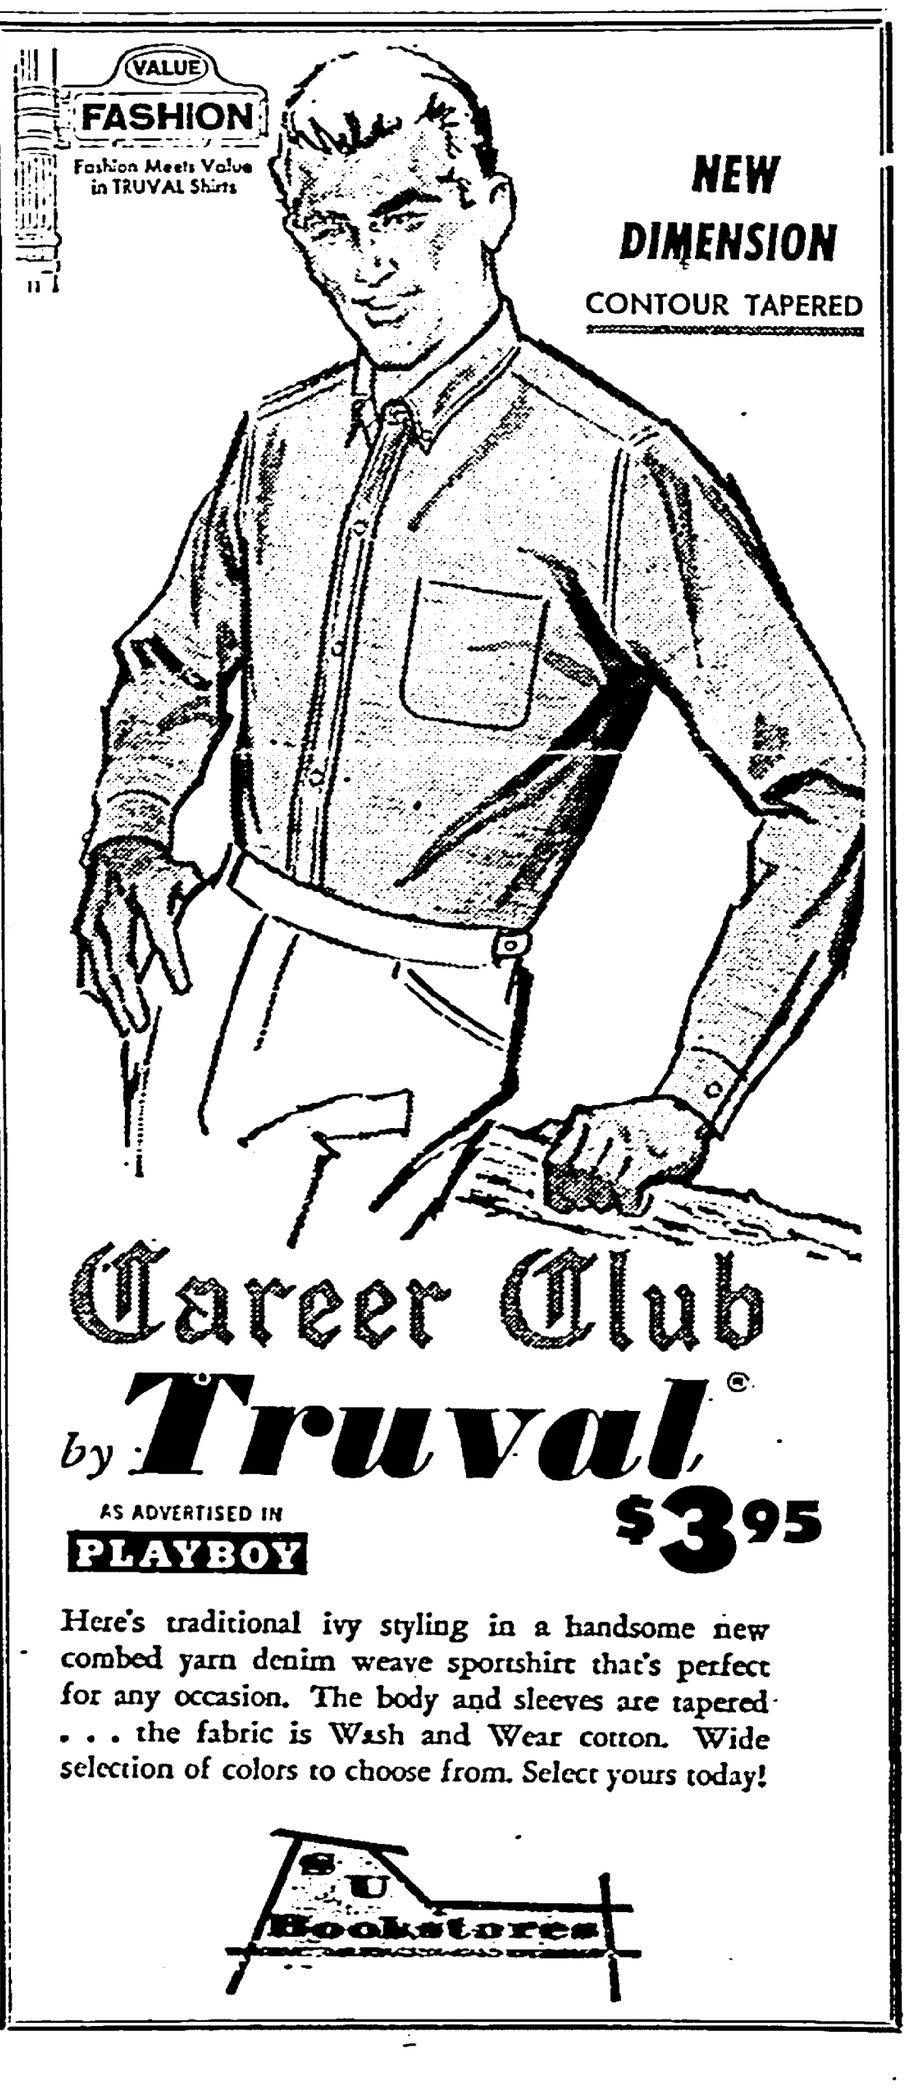
Ernie and the Browns have different ideas, however, with the Heisman Trophy winner scheduled to start light workouts shortly.

Work Ahead

The Cleveland Browns' team physician Dr. Victor Ippolitto gave the impression that Ernie has a lot of work ahead of him before he can ever perform in a Cleveland uniform.

"His long idleness will mean that Ernie will be starting from scratch physically." Ippolitto said. "The most important thing is getting his legs back in shape. He'll have to start out with a lot of running exercises and when his wind returns, he will eventually work regularly with the team."

"He has a great advantage," Ippollito said, "he is a marvelous boy and has always taken excellent care of himself."



Ernie Davis, one of the college greats of all time, is returning to the gridiron—barely recovered from a dreadful disease—and regardless of his future performance, will be trying.

Ernie has always tried. In 1959, as a sophomore he moved into the starting lineup of the star-studded national championship Orange squad. The following year, he started his assault on Jimmy Brown's rushing record at SU and made both the AP and UPI All-American selections.

The high point in Ernie's career came last fall when he only made everybody's All-American team, but also won the Heisman Trophy, symbolic of his rank as the United States' top college player.

Nominations Slated At '66 Convention

Sawyer to Address Group As '66 Seeks Officers; 35 Vie for 12 Ballot Spots

The freshman class nominating convention will open at 6 p.m. today in Maxwell Auditorium. Dr. Michael department, will keynote the convention, attempting to O. Sawyer, chairman of the Maxwell School citizenship "create a feeling of unity and responsibility among the freshmen."

Three candidates will be nominated for each of the four class offices. If the convention does not complete its business tonight, it will convene again Wednesday.

Joint Student Government Elections Commissioner Katherine Antony explained the procedure of the convention to the candidates at a meeting Monday night. Each candidate will address the convention, and will then be asked three questions from the floor.

Speaking

Presidential candidates will be entitled to speak for eight minutes; vice presidential candidates for six minutes; and candidates for secretary and treasurer will be given four minutes.

After all candidates for one office have spoken, a preliminary ballot will be taken. Each delegate will have three votes.

TONIGHT

WHAT—The freshman nominating convention. Three candidates for each class office will be selected.

WHEN—6 p.m.

WHERE—Maxwell Auditorium.

WHO—The 35 candidates and the delegates from each freshman floor and living center.

Starting with the candidate with the lowest number of votes, the committee will eliminate those candidates whose vote totals add up to a majority of total votes cast.

(For example, if 100 delegates are present, and 300 votes are cast, the elections committee will start with the lowest vote total, and add upwards until a total of 150, a majority is reached. These bottom candidates will be dropped.)

Discussion of the remaining candidates will follow, and a second ballot will be taken. The three leaders on the second ballot will be the candidates. A losing candidate may drop down and seek the nomination for a lower post.

Lot Drawing

The order in which the candidates for each office will speak will be determined by drawing lots tonight. Chairman of the convention will be Edmund Gelgud. Vice chairman of the meeting is Robert Heins. They will be assisted by the other members of the all-freshman elections committee.

The elections commissioners stressed that the convention will be run as a closed meeting, due to the lack of seating in the auditorium.

Seeking the presidential nominations are Jonathan Bernstein, Watson West 0; Lisa Coleman, Flint 3C; Dennis Green, DellPlain 8; Richard Griffin, DellPlain 1; Lee Hammer, Watson West 2; and Ernest Harada, DellPlain 3.

Board of Pub Meeting Set

The Board of Publications will meet Thursday, Oct. 18 to discuss "the usual problems of student publications," according to Dean John S. Hafer.

Hafer asked for the meeting because "Dean Wesley Clark, chairman of the Board of Publications and School of Journalism dean, had not called the usual fall meeting of the board and I felt it was time to discuss some of the business that was left unfinished last year."

Hafer indicated that one of the topics under discussion would be Syrcause '10', the student-run literary magazine which was left without an editor or a sufficient budget for the coming year.

Francis O'Brien, financial advisor to student publications, suggested late last year that the 1962-63 budget for the magazine be cut in half and only three editions of the magazine be published.

Architecture Talk Today

Maxwell Fetes Uganda

By CHARLES BARNEY

It was a small, quiet celebration, but the feeling of joy was evident. Uganda was a free nation.

"The country celebrates," First Counselor Uganda delegate to the United Nations Emmanuel Ndaula said, "not because we're to have a jolly good time, but because we take the future in our hands."

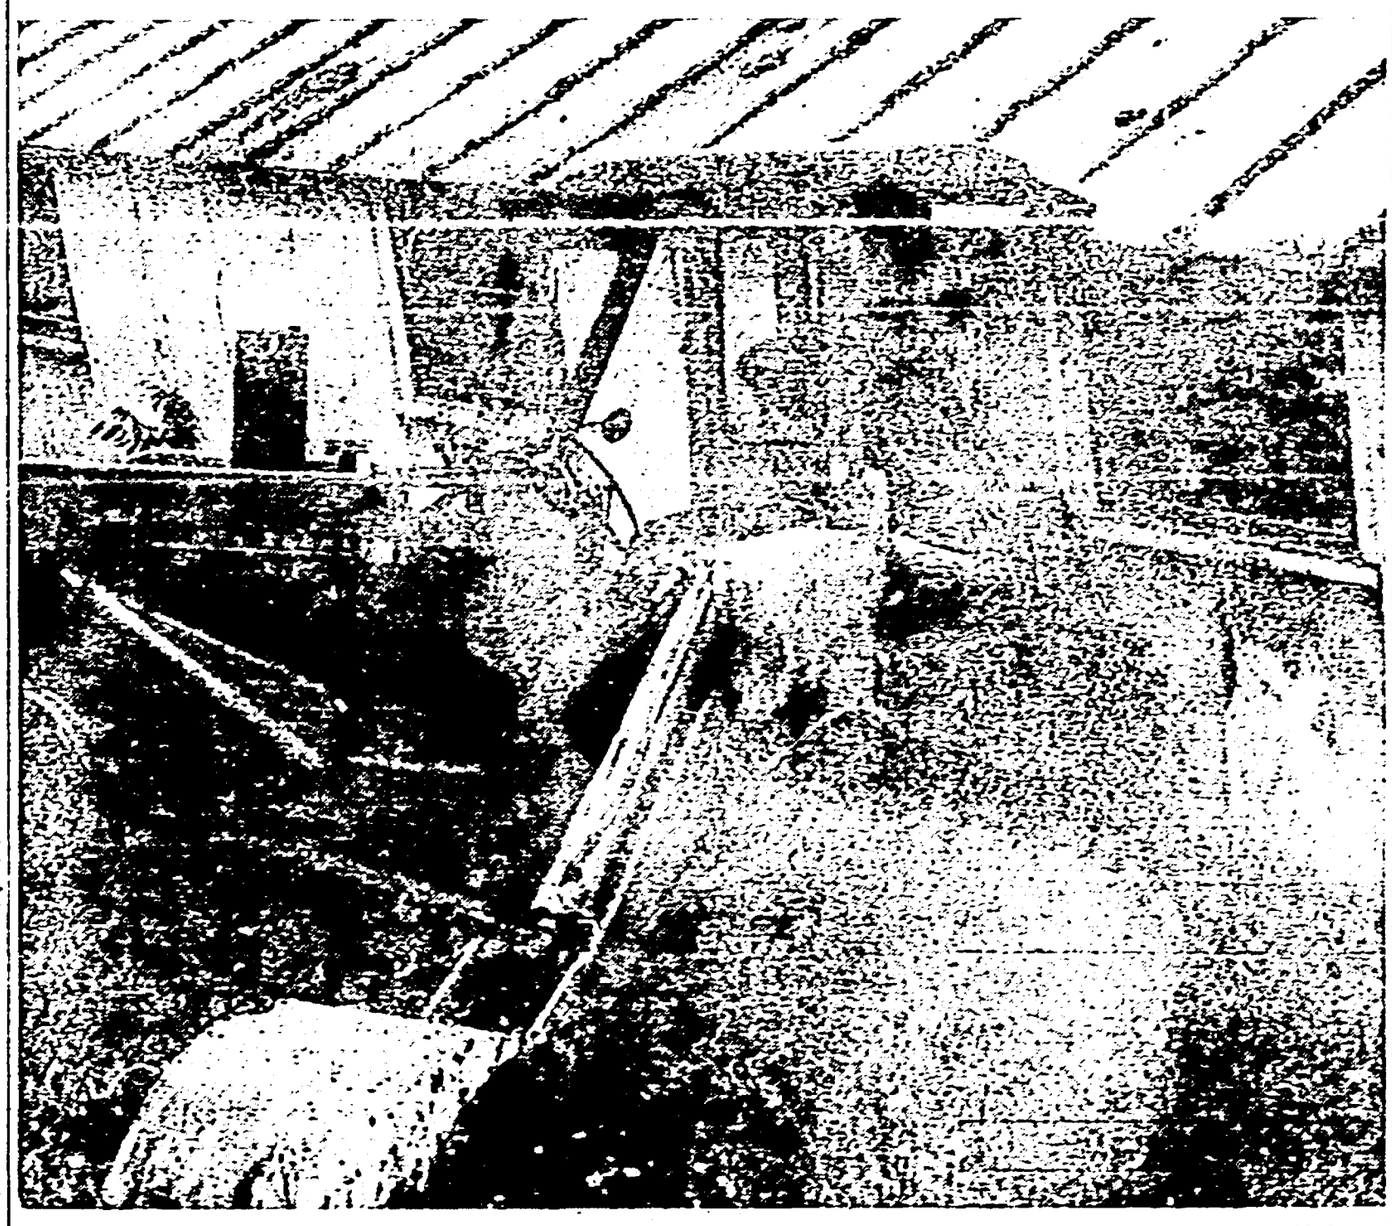
Celebrating were the staff and members of the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship Program of East African Studies at a Drumlins Country Club banquet last night.

Also present were East African students from Syracuse University and other upstate New York colleges.

After dinner speakers were Maxwell Dean Stephen K. Bailey, Acting Program Director Victor Thompson, and Delegate Ndaula.

Uganda became free at 12 midnight, Dean Bailey explained, but due to changes in time zones the event occurred about five hours ago

Bailey not only extended congratulations for Uganda's independence, but for Great Britain's previous rule.



"The country is fortunate," Bailey stated, "for Britain's enlightened leadership which brought not only language but lore and culture."

Director Thompson also emphasized the importance of British rule. He added his feeling of envy for the people of Uganda.

Ndaula, emphasizing the task Uganda was willing to undertake, thanked those present for their confidence in his country.

After the formal banquet a reception was given at Prof. Eduardo Mondlane's home.

'Crunch'

An unidentified bulldozer slid down an embankment Monday afternoon into pre-fab living center D-5 on Irving Avenue.

The damaged room is occupied by brothers William Teetz, a junior, and Doral Teetz, a sophomore. Both are students in the College of Forestry.

Commented William, "I thought we'd at least get our stuff out before they tore the pre-fabs down.

The bulldozer, which was being used for grading, made a four inch dent in the corner of the pre-fab. Contents of the room were disturbed but undamaged.

Upperclass, Transfer Men To Start Rush

Fraternities to Rush Informally On Own Time Until Thurs.

Upperclass and transfer fraternity rushing, postponed from last weekend, has been set for today, Wednesday and Thursday. Fraternity Administrator James P. McMurray has announced.

Each house has been allowed to set its own rushing time, McMurray explained. Regardless of the time of the rush, a man may not be pledged until after 6 p.m. Thursday and only if he has registered and paid his $2 fee.

Final registration for freshmen, upperclass and transfer men's rush will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. today in the dean of men's office.

Over 120 have registered for the upperclass transfer rush. A preliminary list of rushees was given to fraternities last week. An additional list of men who have signed up since then will be completed by noon Wednesday, McMurray said.

McMurray urged all students who have not registered to do so today. No man will be cleared for pledging until next semester if he does not register today, he emphasized.

Pinebrook: Trial and Fact

The student leaders who attended last weekend's Pinebrook Conference were upset Monday because they didn't see what they wanted to on page two of the Daily Orange.

We were honestly amazed at their reaction to what was in effect a piece which represented the conference favorably. Perhaps the fact that some sense of rationality was left in the writing was what bothered them.

The reality was there because we felt an obligation to the students who were not at the conference, and even to those who were there. For if we simply accepted the so-called "gung-ho" spirit of Pinebrook we would be performing a disservice to our mutual goal—the betterment of Syracuse University.

We were emotionally moved by the stirring and sincere words of praise Vice President Piskor bestowed on the university, we were proud of the loyalty to the university expressed by Vice President Faigle, and we had a warm glow when the Chancellor displayed an informal and friendly interplay with the students.

This, in fact, was probably our happiest hour at Syracuse. Here was a pride and loyalty to the university that we could feel and share with the men of administration.

This session was the spirit-inducing part of the conference during which time the arguments and disagreements disappeared. But this was just one part of the conference.

To view the conference on the basis of this session, is grossly inaccurate.

The conference was devoted to the study of our student government system and viewed in that light, the conference cannot possibly be considered a total success.

The Speaker of the Joint Legislature claimed he could work out a plan to insure that the throngs of student senators attend JSL meetings. He may have a plan that will in fact work but if it doesn't it seems a shame that he didn't take serious consideration of the plan brought forth from a conference committee calling for the lessening of the number of senators.

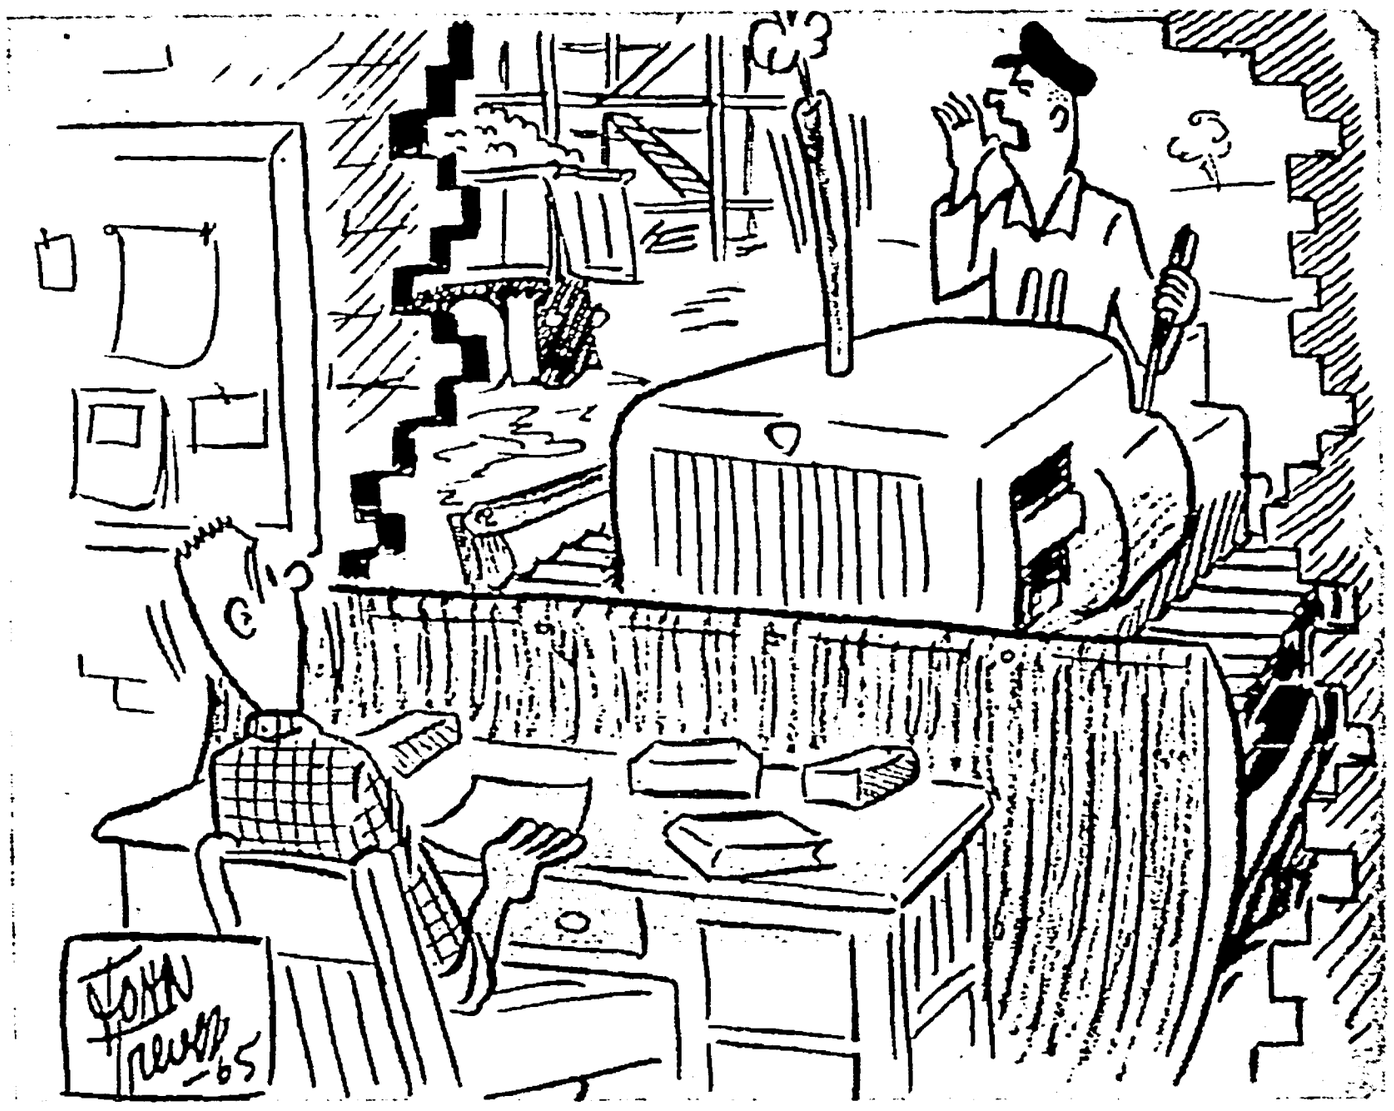
Perhaps this plan wouldn't make the senators more responsible and the JSL more efficient, as the committee suggested. We hope that Mr. Mittleman's faith in the senators is justified.

And perhaps he does have a sure-fire plan and, sparked by the spirit of Pinebrook, will bring the legislature to heights never before attained.

And, in reality this is all we were saying Monday. The spirit is there and the flesh is willing, as an old phrase goes. But there are other old phrases just as there have been other conferences. The spirit has always been there during the Pinebrook meeting but what has happened to the flesh when it returned to the carnivorous campus? We all know that it decayed.

If our words were distasteful to these leaders perhaps we had them all wrong. We felt they had gained a new feeling of confidence and purpose at Pinebrook. They honestly said they wanted to know who they were and where they were going. And they were told. Given this confidence and spirit, plus some definite paths of action, they should welcome a reminder.

Our leaders must remember that the student body wasn't at Pinebrook to be instilled with the overwhelming spirit. They must remember that the students will not accept the spirit without something to go along with it.



That they give these students something is all we ask.

THE GADFLY

Miracles - - - Old and New

By T. Lee Hughes

A "living saint" is dead.

While Wally Schirra went through the final hectic weeks of preparation for his six-orbit journey around mother earth, one of the most puzzling religious mysteries of this century came to an end.

It is characteristic of the scientific age in which we live that the minds of Syracusans were attuned to the pending orbital feat, while the death of Therese Neumann passed with scarcely a lifted eyebrow.

Therese Neumann: who on many Fridays and during every Holy week for the past 36 years re-lived the agony of the crucifixion, blood oozing from wounds in her frail palms and feet, from her forehead, side, and eyes.

Therese Neumann: who for 35 years reportedly took no food or liquid, subsisting solely on the Holy Eucharist.

Therese Neumann: who is said to have transferred the physical and moral sufferings of others onto her own pain-racked body, who is described in several instances as being capable of bi-location (being in two places at once).

Hundreds of G.I.'s during World War II, and thousands of pilgrims before and since report seeing this daughter of a poor Bavarian tailor lying entranced on her bed, re-living the passion of Christ while blood oozed from the wounds on her body.

Examination by physicians from many parts of Germany could disclose no natural cause for the mysterious wounds which appeared sometimes as often as once a week, nor could a continuous 15-day surveilance of her daily activity (including scientific analysis of all excretions, and close supervision of bathing) reveal that she had taken any liquids or nourishment.

To many, Therese, who died two weeks ago at the age of 64, was truly a "living saint." Her parish priest had said, "She has received a revelation that through her suffering many would be directed toward the other world, and so she must bear patiently what this brings with it."

Today is an age of rightful cynicism, a reaction against the gullible acceptance of religious experiences which lingered from pre-medieval periods. The mystical experiences of the Bavarian maiden might be whisked away with the tools of modern psychology, and the reports of bi-location might be attributed to misinformation on the part of an ignorant and prejudiced population.

But the physical and mental reliving of the crucifixion has been witnessed by so many persons (some of them qualified medical men), and has been the subject of so many countless magazine and newspaper articles, and scholarly books, that it can scarce be attributed to a figment of the imagination.

Therese Neumann was what has traditionally been described as a 'stigmatist'.

The heathen world presents no record of stigmatism. It is strictly a Christian phenomenon, gaining its impulse from a desire to re-live the suffering of Christ.

The first recorded stigmatist in history is St. Francis of Assisi. At the turn of the 19th century 321 instances of stigmatism had been recorded (only 41 which have been men), 62 of them having received some sort of recognition from the Roman Church in the form of canonization or beatification.

In 1956, a Vatican source said that the case of Therese Neumann was being examined "benevolently."

Can the Therese Neumann stigmatism (and indeed any so-called miracle) truly be regarded as an intervention of a Divine Power, or is it merely an observed event at variance with traditionally accepted patterns of nature?

William James writes of effects similar to, though not identical with, those in stigmatization, produced by hypnosis in laboratory experiments.

In the case of Therese, there is adequate background to suggest that her affliction may have been psychologically induced.

Living in poverty amid a devoutly Catholic family, Therese, at the age of twenty, was besieged for eight years with a series of mishaps which included partial paralysis, acute appendicitis, severe convulsions, ear and eye afflictions (which caused partial bleeding) and bedsores.

It was with the cure of these afflictions during her twenty-eighth birthday that Therese began to experience the visionary and physical reliving of the passion of Christ.

It is not impossible to suggest that the young girl had accepted her original physical sufferings as part of an offering to the Christ whom she had adored, and with their sudden cure (considered by some as a miracle in itself) substituted a psychologically self-induced affliction to keep her "close" to her God.

"That I should be able to hold my pen because I wish to do it," says one author, "is ultimately just as great a mystery as that I should develop a stigmata from meditating on the crucifixion."

Is the action of the mind influencing the body directed by a Divine power? Is the case of the stigmata still a miracle?

As with all religious miracles it is impossible to tell. For "miracles" have traditionally occurred in an atmosphere of religious fervor which makes the mind susceptible to almost any suggestion of the supernatural.

They are passed on to succeeding generations by writers who can scarcely be tagged "impartial observers" but who in fact are proponents of a method of worship. No one could possibly term the Holy Bible an impartial account of history.

The miracle is often cited as proving the existence of God. Yet the religious definition of "miracle" (Divine intervention in the course of nature) presupposes the existence of a Supreme Being. The proof of the pudding cannot lie in the pudding.

If we are seriously to question the "Divine Intervention" in the Therese Neumann stigmata, in spite of its current and scientific substantiation, then we must also seriously question the "Divine Intervention" in the most renowned miracle of all, the Resurrection of Jesus Christ.

—And keeping always in mind the words of Laurence Oliver: "If a silly disciple invented the Resurrection, a wise disciple may well have invented the Sermon on the Mount. We cannot eat our cake and have it. We must either accept the testimony of His disciples or confess that Jesus is but a name; for we have no other source of information."

THE CUTTING ROOM

Some Spongecake

by John E. Greenwald

We should like to thank the members of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity for a bit of valuable information: the only girls worth dreaming about are Greeks.

We have always wondered why the coeds crossing the quad have looked to drab, dumpy and unattractive. Now we know: they're Independents. All the "dreamy" Greek chicks stay in their houses primping for PiKA's calendar.

Or so we initially thought after first viewing the fraternity's effort. But on second viewing we weren't so sure. Indeed we eventually reached the opinion that PiKA's dream girls were more spongecake than cheesecake.

With Many Thanks

On the cover is Nancy Wycoff, of Alpha Phi. The winner of PiKA's contest, Nancy is surely the most attractive of the calendar's lot, thanks in part to a good hair dresser, foundation garment maker, dressmaker and cosmetic salon.

We have the odd feeling that coming out of a 7 a.m. shower Nancy may look no better than, say, Donna Nusbickel, who represents the month of October.

This Kappa Delta miss, sitting most uncomfortably on the "kissing bench" by HL, seems to be posing the question of whether her derriere is as firm sitting down as standing up.

How Nice

Alpha Delta Pi's Linda Metzger looks equally uncomfortable standing by a stone fence near, we think, Maxwell. She is uncomfortable because this is probably the first time she is wearing high heels with that costume. How nice of Linda to shed her clammy sneakers for the picture.

Next comes Letty Helpern of Sigma Delta Tau. Like most of the other "calendar girls" Letty looks and smiles as blandly as a watered down quart of milk.

Marylyn Mager, Miss January of Delta Phi Epsilon, may have a little more cream to fatten up the skim milk, but if the only way she can stop traffic is by standing in the middle of it, she'll need a lot more.

Three in One

February is represented by narcissist Nancy Wycoff. That's right, she's the one who appeared on the cover. She's also the one in the mirror.

Chris Sedziak, Alpha Gamma Delta, has a problem: either her dress is too long or her legs are too short.

The photograph of Linda Gellis, Iota Alpha Pi, is so unfortunate we quickly turn to Miss May, Sigma Tau Upsilon's Claire Christian. Claire is cute. We wish Claire would explain why she insists on wearing black ballet slippers though.

Nightmares?

Diane Kessler, of Chi Omega, is something we'd rather not dream about. We hope that Diane drives that MG with more grace than she stands in front of it.

We wonder if Phi Mu's Lynne Daly is trying to imitate Maxwell's columns... Lynne may be stiff, but she's not statuesque.

Cathy Balash of Kappa Kappa Gamma is so bland so sweet, we can't think of a thing to say.

Lastly comes Delta Gamma's Cue McGreivey. Wonder what her "mug" shot is trying to cover up.

We are not trying to personally insult any of these ladies, all of whom are probably charming and personable. A few may be intelligent.

But we see no value, besides dirty rushing, in publishing bad photographs of coeds whose only physical value seems to be that they are not ugly..

MJQ: High on Polls

The Modern Jazz Quartet, winner of the NAACP's first annual Award for Cultural Contributions in the Field of Music will appear at Lincoln Auditorium 8:30 p.m. Thursday October 18.

Over the years MJQ has compiled an impressive collection of music awards. Their recording of "Django" was selected as the disc of the year in 1956 by both the British Broadcasting Corporation and the Academic du Jazz of Paris.

Magazines in Japan, France, Italy, New Zealand and the South African Broadcasting Co. have also honored MJQ.

The quartet has also made favored positions on the Playboy magazine's All-Star Poll.

John Lewis, who composes much of the MJQ's repertoire, was awarded "Arranger of the Year" by Metronome in 1955 and 1959, "Downbeat" in '56; and by Jazz Podium in 1958.

The quartet, Lewis, Percy Heath, Milt Jackson, and Connie Kay, was awarded first place in the combo category by Downbeat, and Metronome.

Esquire's Magazine's critic Nat Hentoff has commented, "the MJQ has evolved into the most individual and multiple accomplished ensemble in jazz history."

'The Blue Angel' At Regent Today

The film that brought stardom to Marlene Dietrich, "The Blue Angel," will be seen 7 and 9 p.m. today at the University Regent Theatre, 820 E. Genesee St.

Directed by Josef von Sternberg this 1929 German film established the careers of the director and his star. The story concerns a middle-aged professor who is degraded through his love of a cafe entertainer.

"Blue Angel" will have a subtitle and is the second of four international film classics shown by the Regent as part of their Tuesday Evening Film Series. "The Roof" and "Sawdust and Tinsel" will conclude this series.

Contest

"If you were asked to participate in a well-known sex survey, would you agree to answer their questions and why?"

If you can answer this question 50 words or less, you can win a free pass to "The Chapman Report."

The contest, sponsored by RKO Keith's Theatre, will close at noon on Thursday.

Giants Even Series; Rap Yanks, 7-3

By JUDY ADAMS

A seventh inning grand slam home run by Chuck Hiller in the fourth game of the Series gave the San Francisco Giants a 7-3 victory over the New York Yankees to even the series at two games apiece.

Don Larsen, who relieved for the third time in the four games was credited with the win though he pitched to only two men.

Marachal started for the Giants, and was followed to the mound by Bob Bolin, Larsen, and Billy O'Dell.

Whitey Ford started his second game and was relieved by Jim Coates, Marshall Bridges finished the game.

The Giants drew first blood in the second inning when Felipe Alou led off with a double and Tom Haller knocked a two-out homer into the right field stands.

The Giants continued to pick on Ford with singles in the fourth and fifth innings, but were unable to score.

In the fifth the Giants loaded the bases on singles by Haller and Jose Pagan and a walk to Harvey Kuenn after two were out. Ford ran the count to 3-0, before striking out second baseman Hiller.

Hiller got his second chance in the seventh. Jim Davenport led off with a walk. Jim Coates, who had relieved Whitey Ford then struck out Haller.

Matty Alou subbed for Pagan and doubled to left. Ed Bailey was sent up to hit for the pitcher Larsen. But when Yankee Manager Houk inserted Bridges for Coates, Bob Nieman then took Bailey's place in the batter's box.

Nieman was intentionally walked to get at Kuenn. The strategy appeared to be working for Houk when Kuenn popped up to Boyer at third. This brought up Hiller again with the bases loaded.

But this time he parked a pitch in the right field bleachers for the ninth grand slam home run in the history of the Series to put the Giants out of reach, 7-2. It was only the fourth home run of the year for the Giant second baseman.

The Giants added one more in the ninth on singles by Matty Alou and Hiller and an error by Bobby Richardson.

The Yankee scoring came in the sixth and ninth innings. Walks to Mantle and Maris is followed by Skowron and Boyer singles tied the game at 2-2 in the sixth.

Hill Coach G. Garrett Pro Net Champion

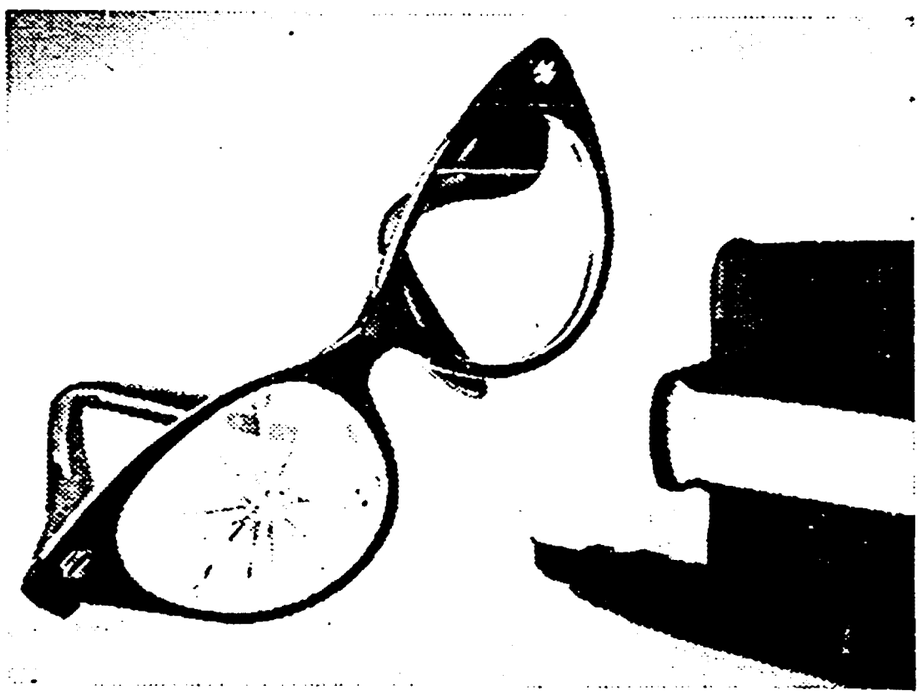
Syracuse University Tennis Coach Gene Garrett has been playing in the form that won him and partner Herb Flamm of UCLA the national collegiate doubles championship in 1950.

Garrett and Sam Giannalda, combined to win the doubles crown in the National Professional Tennis tournament in Washington, D. C. The two players defeated the team of Bartzen and Armando in two straight sets, 12-10 and 11-9.

For Sam Giannalda the victory was sweet revenge. In the match for the singles championship, Bartzen, half of losing doubles team, defeated Giannalda by scores of 6-4, 6-3, and 6-4.

Former Hill Stars Play At Stadium

The Frankfort Falcons downed the Chelsea (Mass.) Sweepers 14-9 at MacArthur Stadium Sunday night. The Falcons have a large number of former Syracuse University players while the Sweepers squad is built around Boston College football grads.



Bill Sears' 56-yard run early in the third period gave Chelsea the touchdown needed for victory.

The Sweepers scored also in the first period on a Don Allard to Rick Sapienza 22-yard pass. Sapienza booted the extra point.

Gary Fallon scored from the one after a 70 yard, 13 play drive in the first quarter. Al Gerlick made the conversion.

The Falcons scored a safety when Joe Paratore downed Allard in the end zone.

Former Hill All-American Fred Mautino was a standout for the Falcons catching seven passes for 40-yards.

Saturday afternoon was somewhat offbeat on campus with students filing into the library instead of the stadium, displaying books instead of placards. None were huddled around radios. One was hard pressed to be entertained with even the world series taking a day off. Many may have preferred it this way after the two football exhibitions to date by the Orangemen. Whether you like it or not normalcy for a fall Saturday at "cuse" returns this week.

While the Orangemen lay idle, our opponents put on an impressive display of force. Sunday morning headlines had UCLA upsetting second-ranked Ohio State; Boston College, Holy Cross and West Virginia registering shut out wins; and Pitt and Penn State also triumphing.

Boston College took the statue-of-liberty play out of storage and used it for a 62-yard scoring effort in beating VMI, 18-0, in Boston with Ben Schwartzwalder looking on. No doubt Ben will come back singing words of praise for Jack Concannon, the Eagles amazing quarterback, especially since the Orangemen don't seem to have one of their own.

The 6-4, 195-pound BC junior from Dorchester, Mass., is the guy who made the 79-yard run against Syracuse last season. He is not an unusually fast or powerful runner. His faking and shifting, running style has made the lanky back very adept at long gains.

This season he already has runs of 98, 70 and 65 yards to his credit. He has also been very impressive as a passer this season, throwing for two scoring plays last week.

Against Syracuse arm tackling, Jack should have little trouble duplicating some of his long gallops.

BC also has quite a fullback in Harry Crump, as Piety fans will remember from last season. Against VMI last Saturday, the 210-pound back went up the mid- touchdown aerials.

Jim Miller, in his first year as coach at the Heights, had the BC linemen shed at least 10-pounds apiece in an effort to inject more speed and mobility into the hugh forward wall he inherited.

The Eagles will be riding the crest of a three game winning streak when they pull into Archbold Stadium. Syracuse football is probably at its lowest ebb of the season. While we look for the Orange to be about six point favorites, an upset win is very possible.

The other half of the Syracuse coaching staff sat in on the Holy Cross-Colgate game at Hamilton, probably wishing the Red Raiders were back on our schedule this year so we wouldn't need two open dates. They saw another top quarterback in Pat McCarthy, a pre-season All-American choice on many ballots. The Cross scored, and did just about anything else, at will against our departed rival in winning 22-0.

The image of UCLA football prowess grew a few feet with their win over Big Ten and national power Ohio St. The Orangemen close out the season against the Bruins in a nationally televised game which could be embarrassing.

Opponents Continue Winning

By JULIAN LOUBE

It was another big week for S.U.'s 1962 opponents with only two teams, Army and Navy, losing. The biggest victory of the weekend was UCLA's 9-7 triumph over Ohio State, previously the nation's number one ranked team.

There were three shut-outs. West Virginia blanked Boston University, 7-0, and Holy Cross brushed off Colgate, 22-0. Boston College took its third straight victory, downing VMI, 18-0.

George Washington, specializing in close games, had another one as the Generals downed Furman, 14-7. Penn State, still Number One in the East, thumped Rice, 18-7.

Michigan had little trouble stopping Army, 17-7, and Minnesota had even less beating Navy, 21-0. Pittsburgh squeaked by California, 26-24, while Oklahoma remained idle.

UCLA sophomore quarterback Larry Zeno kicked a 24 yard field goal with only 35 seconds left to play to give the Bruins a two-point victory. Earlier in the game, Zeno had missed a one-point conversion to give Ohio State a 7-6 halftime lead. Halfback Kermit Alexander scored the UCLA touchdown on a 45 yard run.

Holy Cross had an easy victory over a Colgate team which gained a total of 83 yards, lost three fumbles, and completed only three of 17 pass attempts. Only 7,500 people turned out to see the one-sided affair in which Colgate was unable to cross the 50 yard line until there were only 3:27 left on the clock.

Penn State failed to convert any of fullback Dave Hayes three touchdowns, but the fourth-ranked Nittany Lions held Rice to just one second quarter touchdown. Penn's rock-ribbed defense allowed the Owls to only three rushing first downs.

Jim Procopio returned a punt 51 yards in setting up the game's only score early in the first period as West Virginia beat B.U., 7-0. Except for their lone touchdown drive, the Mounties were stymied by Boston's defense. West Virginia quarterback Jerry Yost, who had gained a total of 312 yards in the Mounty's first two wins, picked up only five against the Terriers.

Football Team Lacks Leader

By HOWIE SCHNEIDER

Today there is a great misconception about the college football player. It is currently believed that the Saturday afternoon hero is a big, dull, ignorant fellow, who exploits the funds of the University and spends his four years of glory here then passes on to be forgotten. For those believers in, "I eat raw meat for breakfast" by Joe Football Player a meeting with Syracuse gridder Tom Mingo would be quite an experience.

Lying in his room in Sadler Dorm, his 6-1 195-pound frame stretched along the bed, Tom talked about his interests, accomplishments, disappointments, and anxieties during his four year stay at the Hill. Tom not only talked of the past but also of the future. A pre-med major, the blond Ohioan is as dedicated to becoming a doctor as becoming a successful football player. "I tried to combine academics and athletics into my education and it has helped me msture in many ways", said the senior Tom was born and raised in Campbell, Ohio where he starred in basketball, baseball and football at Campbell Memorial High School. His grid performance earned him All-State honors at end and a scholarship to SU.

Like many other frosh Tom experienced many problems when exposed to college ball for the first time. He found it difficult to adjust. "The backs were faster and the assignments had to be carried out faster. I found myself no longer a star but just another guy in a football uniform", said Tom.

In his sophomore year he was in an auto accident and didn't see any action. For most of his junior year he also saw limited action. It was his junior year however that brings back memories which Tom will never forget.." The most exciting game I ever played in was the Liberty Bowl contest against Miami", remarked Mingo. We beat them 15-14 and I don't think I ever played on a better team then that one." Tom also said that the toughest team he played against was the Penn State squad of that year (1961).

Through in his fourth year Tom's greatest personal achievement did not occur until the opening game of this year.. It was Tom who came in late in the first half of the Oklahoma game and kicked a 45 yard field goal to give the Orange a big 3-0 lead. The kick seemed to be the difference until Joe Don Looney sprinted his way 60 yards to paydirt to give the Sooners a 7-3 victory. Mingo plays both offense and defense but prefers the latter.

Tom's three pointer also made him the team's leading scorer, an honor he would gladly relinquish for a couple of touchdowns in the upcoming Boston College game.

Mingo feels that this year's squad potentially is just as good as any he's played on. "Everyone associates us with the 1959 National Championship team, we can't be champs every year. The present squad lacks togetherness If we had a team leader and a little more hustle we might have won our first two games." Tom is optimistic however that the team will find the right combination." If we beat Penn State we can go the rest of the season undefeated."

The good humored Senior breaks another "Iron Law of football players", he enjoys reading and he and his roommate paint in their spare time.

Tom Mingo is truly from "head to toe" a well rounded individual. If he uses his hands in a surgery room as well as he does on a football field he can operate on this reporter anytime.

Signups for Social Service Work

Signups for the Hendricks Chapel Social Service Committee will be Wednesday and Thursday from 1 to 5 p.m., the Chapel Board room.

The committee has co-operated with the city Volunteer Center in providing help for the United Fund and other public health and welfare agencies for many years. Interviews will be held during signups.

Assistant group leaders are needed for sports and recreation programs. Volunteering as an assistant leader with the Boys' Club, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, YWCA, or Huntington Family Center, West Side, means giving part of an afternoon or evening each week..

Hospital work can mean serving trays, caring for children in the out-patient clinic, serving as a receptionist on a floor or helping with the children in a pediatric ward. Volunteer hospital workers will have an orientation period and must plan to work regularly on a once-a-week assignment.

Persons with skill in music, dancing crafts, sports story-telling and nature study are needed as regular leaders.

Nurseries

There is a need for volunteers to help with children spending the day at a nursery while their mother's work. Skills in group play and story-telling will enrich this program. Love and patience is needed to teach handicapped children simple skills.

Swimming is a special skill and sport that can be shared with handicapped children. Men, especially, are needed. Red Cross certificate or teaching experience is required.

The Volunteer Center and American Red Cross need people with office skills from envelope stuffers to experienced typists.

NYU Professor Likens Radio To Atom Power

"Broadcasting is like atomic energy: it can be a death dealing instrument. It is the first medium that has a reach as extensive as the world itself."

Prof. Charles Siepmann of New York University thus addressed a graduate seminar last Thursday in the Women's Building. His topic was "Broadcasting in a Free Society."

Siepmann related the field of broadcasting to American Society today, viewing broadcasting as a unique opportunity for a person to discover himself, having available to him for the first time the "funded knowledge of mankind."

Ignorance, indifference and inertia were cited by Siepmann as the most dangerous pitfalls in the development of an individual.

Broadcasting ideally should provide man with information and background for "his needs in living and expansion of his horizons of knowledge and awareness.

Siepmann advised that "to serve the public one needs to communicate in the language of the people. Recognize yourselves as artists. Be an artist in your job and mediate the art of life."

SU Rally to 'Rock' BC Eagles

Freshmen candidates for class officers will be announced for the first time at the Boston College pep rally at 6:30 p.m. Friday, October 12 on the steps of Hendricks Chapel.

The rally has been named the "Eagle Rock" for the Boston College football team which is known as the Eagles. The significance of "rock" will be explained more fully at the rally, promised the rally co-chairmen.

Co-chairmen are Goons Helaine Gold, Geraldine Porter, Stephen Kalinitch and Harold Zirkin.

Also featured at the rally will be Coach Ben Schwartzwalder and the squad, Judy Delp and the Twirlers, the Dean Noble Quartet and the Chapel choir.

Song sheets will be passed out before the rally so that freshmen and their parents will be able to participate in all of the songs and cheers which will be sung and chanted.

Parents are encouraged to attend the rally, said the co-chairmen. Goon dormitory representatives will pick up the students and their parents from their floors at 6 p.m.

Attendance will be important for both the general student body and the goons. An award will be given to the cottage or dormitory with the greatest percentage of its members present.

In addition, attendance will be considered when freshmen apply for Goon Squad and when the Bill Orange trophy is awarded to the outstanding freshman floor.

Goons will be given goon hours for their participation.

Wingate Says SU Has No Discount House

"Syracuse University is in no way supporting any discount house, closed or otherwise, in any form or manner," Vice President Francis Wingate has announced.

The statement was made by the Hill vice president and treasurer after a number of faculty and staff had been contacted by a "closed" discount house. The literature distributed by the house to university employes seems to indicate that the university is in support of the business and in some way sponsoring it.

"This is the farthest thing from the truth." Wingate said.

"This discount house is attempting to paint a picture of exclusiveness to which only particular people may belong. The business of joining this discount house is about as exclusive as the Democratic Party," Wingate said.

Hill Coed Studying in Israel

A Syracuse University coed, Dorien Grunbaum is among 61 American students at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She is participating in a one year program sponsored by the American Friends of the Hebrew University.

This program is the largest in the eight-year history of Hebrew University. The American Friends is "designed to enable American students to savor Israel's culture at first hand and to contribute to a better understanding in Israel of America and American Jewish ideals and institutions."

The other students come from 38 colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada.

The entire group is composed of 26 men and 35 women selected from many applicants by the American Student program Committee of the American Friends of the Hebrew University.

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem has an enrollment of some 8,000 students and is recognized as one of the world's outstanding institutions of education.

Studying at the university are Israelis, immigrants, Africans, Asians and a growing number of Arab students.

All courses are taught in Hebrew. New students take an intensive four months course in Hebrew and the history and culture of Israel. Students who already have a sufficient knowledge of Hebrew are able to take courses in the regular curriculum.

Faculty tours acquaint students with a first hand account of the nation's history and new developments in the economic and social life of the country.

A Quiet Moment

VICE PRESIDENT and College of Liberal Arts Dean ERIC H. FAIGLE and DR. BETTY COSBY, assistant dean of students at Cornell University, pause a moment from the rounds of discussion at the government conference held this past weekend at Pinebrook Site, Saranac Lake, in the Adirondacks.

Pinebrook: Canoes and Song

By CAROL SCHLAGETER

The Pinebrook Student Government conference is over. The scrape of canoes on a dock and singing in the lodge are silenced for another year.

But there was more to Pinebrook than the sounds of enjoyment and 11 resolutions. There was an atmosphere of intent and excitement. That atmosphere was unlike the football spirit which waxes and wanes from weekend to weekend.

That excitement was a steady enthusiasm. It was bolstered by knowledge that student government would soon receive a brisk, revamped constitution, an effective means of inspiring attendance at JSL and a means for coordinating all campus activities.

Humor and fellowship pervaded the Adirondacks conference camp, despite rain which fell for all but an afternoon of the three-day sessions. Beneath pines two centuries old and vivid foliage, that fellowship provided a bond between students and administration.

They served each other meals and jokes. The Chancellor and a student danced together to the Dark Town Strutters Ball.

Pinebrook lasted into the small hours Saturday and Sunday. Its essences were contrasting ones—humor, philosophy, cynicism and accomplishment.

A sample of overheard comments follows:

"The student legislature should never be afraid to criticize the student body."—Joint Student Legislature Speaker Ronald Mittleman.

"The student body should never be afraid to criticize the student legislature."—Interfraternity Council Pres. Thomas Rigoli.

"A camel is a horse designed by a committee."—Conference Co-chairman Lawrence Dana.

"This is the best Pinebrook in the ten years I've been attending."—Vice Pres. John S. Hafer.

"A vice president is a bundle of brass by day and a cloud of gas by night."—Vice Pres. Frank P. Piskor.

Freshman Pick Six For President, V. P.; Reconvene Tonight

By ANDY PORTE and AUDREY LIPPMAN

Jonathan Bernstein, Dennis Green and Richard Griffin will run for president of the freshman class. David Bindeman, George Goltzer and Laurie Weisman will seek the office of vice president.

They were selected at the freshman nominating convention Tuesday night. Balloting for secretary and treasurer will take place when the convention meets again at 6 p.m. today in Maxwell Auditorium. The elections are scheduled for Wed., Oct. 17.

Nominations for both offices were decided on the first ballot, instead of the anticipated two, because an evident majority of the votes had been cast for three persons. Voting totals were not released.

From Brooklyn

Bernstein, a resident of Brooklyn, is social chairman of Watson West O. He stressed the need for a freshman assembly, composed of representatives from each frosh floor and living center. He recommended a class newsletter and listed plans for freshman weekend, including a twister, carnival and dance. Bernstein also suggested the possibility of a faculty talent show.

Green, who lives on DellPlain 8, is a Joint Student Legislature senator. A native of Texas, he recommended a winter scene for Freshman Weekend, including a ski party at Skytop. Green said he would attempt to get a big-name entertainer for the weekend.

Griffin, president of DellPlain 1, resides in Huntington. In addition to plans for Freshman Weekend, he recommended that the class participate in other activities, such as working for charitable organizations. Griffin also suggested that a trophy be awarded the freshman floor with the highest academic average.

New Plans

Bindeman, a resident of Dell Plain 5, comes from Washington, D.C. He suggested an elected freshman assembly to allow more student participation in class government.

He urged a newsletter to inform the class of both their officers activities and recommendations and a monthly calendar describing freshman events.

Goltzer, who lives on Watson West 3, hails from Brooklyn. Included in his ideas for Freshman Weekend was a carnival theme for Saturday afternoon. He suggested that booths be placed on the quad and that the SU-UCLA football game be broadcast over the quad loudspeaker.

Miss Weisman, of Day 8, comes from Newton, Mass. She asked the delegates for enthusiastic members on committees. Among her suggestions were a frosh weekend carnival, bonfire and a frosh-sponsored music-arts festival.

The commissioners stated that any freshman could sign such a petition except for those who had signed petitions for the winning nominees of the office in question. They explained that this petition would in effect be a "pledge of votes", since it would enable the candidates named to appear on the final ballot.

Sawyer Lists Possible Goal At '66 Convo

Students are stockholders in the university and should learn to be identified with it all their lives in order to learn and live, to develop talents, sharpen abilities and work with complex public issues, according to Dr. Michael O. Sawyer.

In his address to the freshman nominating convention Wednesday night, Sawyer suggested that to get this experience the students work in student government and class offices to equip themselves for a continuing of these interests outside their college career.

Courage

Sawyer defined one of these shoals as courage to overcome failure. Without some failures in the next year, "I would suspect the class had not acted as well as it ought to," he said.

A second shoal to overcome is the ability to refrain from wondering who controls the power in this university.

"Nobody has power," Sawyer said. "Those who spend time wondering are on the wrong track. There is power to burn in the university, waiting for someone to take hold of it."

Opposition

The third shoal is the fear of belonging to the loyal opposition. Freshmen should speak for freshmen even though they may disagree with all other classes, faculty and administration, Sawyer added.

Suggesting that the class of 1966 work for goals, Sawyer gave as possibilities a campus peace corps, "a student save the faculty" program and an improvement on the cultural program of the university.

There are over 600 international students on the SU campus. There is the opportunity to relate our ideas to these students who will go to direct the destinies of their countries, Sawyer said.

Faculty

Sawyer asked students to save the faculty for discussing ideas with their pupils. Although he does believe there has not been a notable lack of faculty-student coordination yet at SU, it is possible if something is not done to preserve cooperation.

Building a cultural program with literature and humanities offered to the campus was his third suggestion.

Sawyer told the freshmen to think of how they feel now, how they will feel at their senior convocation and how they will feel as they return for

Parking Garages Studied To Offset Hill Congestion

Means of Financing Facilities Being Studied by Committee

By BEV LURIA
Junior Editor

Multi-story parking garages on the Syracuse University campus are being contemplated by SU officials as a solution to the present parking congestion.

University Vice President and Executive Asst. to the chancellor John F.. Olson has told the Daily Orange that "the long range plan of the university calls for parking garages."

Dr. Olson said a sub-committee of the Design Board of the Board of Trustees is currently making a serious study of the feasibility of such garages.

2 Years Away

Explaining that SU is now about two years away from garages, Dr. Olson said if built they would be located "in the vicinity of those facilities with intermittently heavy use."

Plans are consideration for financing the proposed garages range from total university to total student payment stated Dr. Olson. Among these plans are:

1. Direct charge on garage users. (This could be daily payment or a form of periodic assessment)
2. Charge on all university parking, with the revenue helping finance the garages.
3. An annual fee on all parking facilities with a small daily charge for garage use.
4. Parking meters on university lots.

Sub-committee

The sub-committee consists of Vice President for Administration and Research Clark D. Ahlberg, university architect Harry King, SU landscape architect Noredo A. Rotunno and James Ahlberg.

V. Latorre, assistant to Dr.

Dr. Olson said the committee is at present "exploring the experience of other institutions with parking garages."

"Parking is a problem that most urban universities are faced with as land costs go up," Latorre said. He mentioned two methods other institutions have used to solve this problem:

Activities Convocation Set Sunday

Plans for the Joint Student Government Activities Convocation were announced Tuesday by JSG Activities Coordinator Beverly Lewis.

Highlighting the meeting at 2 p.m. Sunday will be a speech in Hendricks Chapel by Joseph Julian, an instructor in the citizenship department and JSG advisor. Julian will discuss the importance of activities in college and their relationship to a career after college, Miss Lewis said.

The convocation is the result of the Activities Exchange Conference last spring at which it was decided to centralize campus activities under the JSG coordinators, Miss Lewis and James Tallon.

The coordinators have divided the activities into five groups: student government, athletics, service and honoraries, communications and special interests. Each group will be covered at the convocation.

Signups for activities will be held in Sims Dining Hall following the convocation. Twenty-five campus organizations have expressed a desire to participate in the convocation.

In addition to the regular business, candidates for freshman class offices will be introduced.

Panhel Waits On Student Union Funds

By SUSAN WEINBERG

Panhellenic Council decided Tuesday night to postpone a decision on donation of proceeds from its Nov. 30 Charity Ball.

An article in Monday's Daily Orange reported the Pinebrook Conference proposal that proceeds be used as a basis for a student union building fund.

While this proposal is being considered, it is not the only one being debated, said Shelley Doctors (Alpha Epsilon Phi) Panhel vice president.

A committee has been appointed to discover: the budgets of all of the organizations under consideration; how important Panhel's contribution would be to the organization, and whether Panhellenic can offer any help to the organization other than monetary aid.

Discussion

After this information is presented at next week's meeting it will be taken back to the individual chapters for discussion and vote.

A final vote will be taken in two weeks by the council.

Miss Doctors emphasized that Panhel is interested in seeing a student union at Syracuse. "Whether or not we decide to contribute to this fund is not a reflection of our interest in it. Our interest is high but we must decide if this is the appropriate

Hafer Hails Quality

By CHARLES M. STEINBERG

Syracuse University administrators hailed the increasing quality of faculty and students here in a series of interviews with the Daily Orange at Pinebrook last weekend.

Vice President for Academic Affairs Frank P.. Piskor said that the Syracuse faculty is so studded with members "distinguished and recognized by faculties of other universities" that he can no longer begin to list them all.

Dean of Personnel Administration and Admissions John S. Hafer claimed that "there aren't 50 universities in the country with a higher mean College Board S.A.T. score than Syracuse."

"Syracuse no longer has to search for recognition," said Piskor. "It has it." He cited a recent federal government report which listed Syracuse within the top twenty universities exercising the greatest influence in federal government and international affairs.

Both officials and Chancellor William P. Tolley pointed out though that Syracuse will always be committed to serving a "spectrum of abilities" in students.

Piskor noted that the administration still hoped, however, to improve the current "spectrum." "I am satisfied with the direction in which we're moving and nearly satisfied with the pace," he said.

"But we wouldn't want a student body of 8000 students all with high 700 college board scores even if we could get one," Piskor stated.

Chancellor Tolley questioned the advisability of such an "intellectual press" (competition) in the educational process.

He did say, however, that looks forward to the establishment of an honors college for qualified and interested students.

Dean Hafer refers to the current student body as "an intelligent cross-section of cosmopolitan America" and said that this is highly attractive to prospective teachers.

Prof. A. Leland Jamison, chairman of the Department of Religion, who came here from Princeton two years ago substantiates this view. Jamison said he prefers Syracuse.

Responsibility Freshman Style

The 35 freshmen who gathered in Maxwell Auditorium Tuesday evening represented a new hope for the election system on the Syracuse campus. For these office-seekers are being given the opportunity to be elected outside the framework of the campus parties.

Because of deferred rushing this year the freshmen also will be free of Greek influence. This independence of both party and Greek affiliation could be freshening arrival on the Syracuse political scene.

Last year a good start was made in this direction by some freshmen who wanted to rise above the petty political practices of the past which placed emphasis on popularity and affiliation.

Freed also from the manipulating of the party big-shots the freshmen will have the opportunity to show the rest of the student body that there is a better way to do things.

We have heard a lot about freedom and responsibility lately and here will be a good arena for the freshmen who finally are chosen to run for office to show that they can act responsibly when given the freedom that was lacking under the influence of the party.

Good News

The story which broke this weekend on Ernie Davis is a happy story about a man who has had little to be happy about in the last three months. Doctors report that his "blood disorder," so long a mystery to the public was in fact a type of leukemia but it has been arrested.

Ernie will start working out shortly, according to the reports. It has been a long time between runs for the Elmira Express and we look forward to his return to playing. By now there is little doubt that Syracuse football is not the same without him.

Let's hope he will be able to join another former Syracusan in Cleveland, Jim Brown, and complete that dream backfield which seemed for a while to have become a nightmare.

Uganda

Another nation has joined the rapidly increasing number of independent states.

Uganda, long a protectorate of Great Britain, this week is independent. In celebration of this new freedom the Maxwell School feted natives of this nation Monday night.

Emanuel Ndaula of that country touched on the important role Uganda will have to be ready to assume. Like all nations with new-found freedom, Uganda will have the difficult task of showing the outside world that it can take care of itself competently.

The fact that our Maxwell School will play no small part in this attempt makes the country closer to us than others.

We wish Uganda well in this most important moment in its history and we urge the Maxwell School to continue its fine work in East Africa to keep these new nations friends of the West.

TREVER ON CAMPUS

"Thank you for this spontaneous show of support..."

With Malice Toward None

Greek Anonymity

By Beverly Luria

When all the clamor of rush is over and the "select few" have been accepted into the Grecian ranks, what happens to the rejected rushees? The gates to the great Greek paradise slam shut, leaving these unfortunate people to a probable fate of campus anonymity.

At least this is the way it seems to many who have paraded themselves before calculating measuring eyes in the the Syracuse University White Slave Market known as rush.

For some of these people rush was a means to become better acquainted with the Greeks and the fraternity-sorority system. For others, rushing was an end in itself—they desperately wanted to be accepted by and become a part of this hand picked group.

Those who rushed out of curiosity or because they wanted to meet the Greeks and see if they were interested in joining a house are in the better position of the two groups. If their offering was rejected by the "Greek judges," they were disappointed but not totally disillusioned and embittered. However, many of the rushees regarded acceptance by a fraternity or sorority as a sign of prestige, of social status.

Those in this group with mailboxes devoid of bids may feel that SU has rejected them, that they are doomed to campus anonymity. Some may work harder at their studies or immerse themselves in activities to show that they really don't care. In the end, these students may realize that rejection by the Greek system actually helped them find their niche in campus life.

But there are always persons who live for the day they can become fraternity men and when rejected, may in a sense, cease to live. They may lose interest in their work and activities and perhaps leave SU.

The stigma of being a Greek reject can seem minor to the initiates but it is often very real and painful to those who have been "cut." In their unhappiness, they may contribute greatly to the frequently - mentioned campus apathy by becoming one of the anonymous faces that exist rather than live.

These persons go through college without actively participating in campus life. They attend classes and spend most of their spare time complaining rather than trying to right the wrongs they speak of. Student leaders, administration, food service, social life and especially the Greek system come under their blind attack.

Mr. Anonymous does not have to be a Greek reject, but the disenchantment that often accompanies failure to make a house is a giant step in that direction. Other anonymous faces can be found in the very heart of campus life, the Greek system.

Persons may join houses for personal gain rather than to contribute to the system. They often become parasites, living on the reputation of brothers and sisters who are actively engaged in campus life.

Anonymous Greeks are not as easy to label as independents because houses are eager to create an impression of participation among all members. However, they do exist and are lead weights in their houses just as Mr. Anonymous is in his larger group of independents.

Both sets of campus "nebbishes" have one thing in common—they give up or fail to establish the individuality that can pull them out of their category. Whether Greek or independent, a strong individual who is not afraid to join campus life and make his feelings known can become "someone" on campus.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

In answer to John Greenwald's offensive column libeling the Pi Kappa Alpha Dreamgirl contestants:

Greenwald makes two accusations worth considering—that all the girls are Greeks, and that the calendar is a "dirty rushing" gimmick. To the first question, I'll say this: we have a right to put whomever we please on our calendar.

We have never, nor will we ever bother to seek Mr. Greenwald's approval on a private house project. The girls are Greeks because we thought that the sororities would show positive interest in a fraternity project. Pictures were taken last year which means that a dorm floor would not even exist as a unit when the calendar was scheduled to appear this Fall.

As to the second charge, Greenwald may remember, if he's read the D.O. lately, that no calendars were distributed to Freshman men. Any publicity it got was due solely to the D.O.

This project was conceived to make our Spring weekend a bigger success. In this it succeeded. It also drew the house together, gave us reason for pride, and provided evidence of the kind of renewed vitality and originality in our Greek System that the administration has been looking for.

As for the filthy attacks on the character and looks of the girls themselves, I can only say that Greenwald is lucky that he isn't writing for a commercial paper, or he'd probably have a few libel suits on his hands.

The D.O., having allowed this sort of diseased axgrinding, has failed its obligations to both the student body and the university, not to mention the girls involved. It has ceased to train students in the best concepts of good journalism, but has allowed its pages to be smirched with the libelous and pointless ravings of a mal-adjusted character.

I guess the "new" D.O. has the same share of mad dogs as the old. Only the names have changed.

ONE NIGHT STAND

Gleason Flops

By Jeff Zients

Disappointment is hardly an adquate word to describe our reaction the Jackie Gleason's "The Jackie Gleason Show: The American Scene Magazine" as presented last Saturday night on C. B. S.

Those of us who remembered the old Gleason shows in the middle '50's were looking forward to the return of "the great one," and not trite, overplayed and just not funny comedy."

On occasion we get a tiny spark of the old Gleason but the excitement of his "away we go" has dwindled to an amature night in dixie atmosphere. Let us be kind and blame it on the writers. Gleason is still Gleason and his can be very funny given the proper writers.

A Few Moments

Paul Lynde and Frank Fontaine can make almost any situation a riotous affair. But Gleason has contrived and "overused" his "creative abilities" in place of honest fun that the end result is a complete loss of anything even resembling humor.

Gleason will give us a few moments of his famous "Pour Soul" or "Joe the Bartender," but even these routines, that were once so wonderfully amusing, fall flat.

It might even surprise "the great one" to know that his first two shows have been saved, if not stolen, by his only guest act: The Newton Brothers. These young men should, perhaps, be called "the great ones."

Spoiled

The younger of the four brothers has a voice that is a striking combination of Judy Garland and Bobby Darin. His phrasing, control and range is excellent. Although, almost spoiled by Gleason's overproduction of the June Taylor Dancers, this boy stopped the show dead.

The home viewer had the experience of discovery that must have delighted those who first heard Jolson, Garland or Sinatra. We cannot over-estimate this boy's ability.

Remember that name: The Newton Brothers. If they do not go right to the top there is something wrong in this business.

Getting back to the portly star of the hour, Gleason should and cold do better with the many talents he has and money he has for writers. He has been called a comedy genius. In his new offering his genius is limited to introducing obvious and contrived blackouts and appearing in long and dull routines which are "not up to Gleason's standard."

The show as it now stands should be an early victim of the battle of the ratings. Let's hope not. The great talent of Jackie Gleason should be seen on the home screen.

Maybe he will improve his own ship and go back to his truly great format of the past. As the show now stands it can best be described by paraphrasing one television critic, the title is as awkward and contrived as the entire production.

Indian Singers Concert Slated

The ancient art of Indian music comes to Syracuse Thursday, Oct. 18, when the Sangeeta Madras performs for the Celebrity Series at the University Regent Theatre.

Sangeeta Madras, translated as Music of Madras, features drums "dueling" or simulating conversation.

Scholars disagree as to the exact age of the country's music but the history dates back at least several centuries.

In addition to two drummers, the group is composed of a flautist and cellist. Performing on the Vina, the Indian version of the cello, is the company's leading soloist Balachander. His instrument, the oldest in his country's history, was said to be created by the Gods. In 6,000 B.C., a Chinese emperor imported it to his court.

The flute, known as Venu in India, is played by Ramani, descendant of a long line of musicians. He has been a solo recitalist since the age of 10.

The two drummers are Sivaraman and Ramabhadram, the latter of whom began as a vocalist. The former is considered the master of the Mridangam, the two-headed drum.

In addition to performing on the Mridangam, Ramabhadran plays the rare Kanjira and Ghatam, both new to American audiences. The latter is a clay pot which is used to give a comic effect to music.

An estimate of Indian authorities reveals that from 20 to 95 per cent of every concert of the country's music is improvisation.

However, the Carnatic music of South India is severely classical in its strict traditionalism. This, too, will be heard in the concert.

When Boston College Comes To 'Cuse Concannon, Crump Could Shake Loose

By BILL CRONAUER

Boasting a three game winning streak and a tall, shifty quarterback, the Boston College Eagles invade Archbold Stadium Saturday with but one thought in mind: defeating Syracuse.

HARRY CRUMP

This aim is far from impossible and perhaps even probable. On the basis of their shutout wins over Detroit and V.M.I. and their 28-13 conquest of Villanova, the Eagles of Jim Miller will be tough to contain.

BC's backfield duo of Jack Concannon and Harry Crump nearly spelled ruin to Syracuse last season. Concannon's outside runs and Crump's up-the-middle bucks should again give fits to the SU defense.

Quarterback Concannon, a 6'4", 190-pound junior from Dorchester, Massachusetts, will call offensive signals for the Bostonians. In 1961, he thrilled a television audience with his 79-yard touchdown jaunt against the Orangemen.

Fullback Crump, the Eagles' top ball carrier over the past two campaigns, is a 200-pound senior from Westboro, Massachusetts. Crump runs like a bull to the line of scrimmage, but like a halfback after it.

Rounding out the Boston College backfield are halfbacks John Barrett and Pete Shaughnessy. Both the speedy juniors who saw little action against Syracuse last year.

A large and mobile BC line is headed by senior Art Graham. Graham looms as a possible All-America candidate at end. The 6'1" flanker received All-East honors for his showing in the Villanova game.

On the opposite post is senior Bob Smith who snared three aerials for 26 yards in 1961. His 6'5" frame proves inviting to the Eagle quarterbacks.

Veteran Gene Carrington and sophomore John Frechette hold down the first string tackle jobs. Carrington is a two-year letterman on the BC squad. Frechette ran with the third unit in Spring drills, but moved into the starting lineup against V.M.I.

Two seniors, Lou Cioci and Dave Yelle, will open at the guards for Boston College. Cioci gained lineman-of-the-week honors on several occasions last season and was an All-East selection.

Yelle, a 5'11", 212-pounder from Taunton, Massachusetts, is noted for his defensive talents. Coach Miller describes him as "as fine a middle-guard as there is in the country."

Two-year regular Tom Hall anchors the center of the Eagle line. Excelling on offense, the 218-pound senior also shared signal-calling duties on defense last Fall.

With 22 additional lettermen returning, Boston College has the depth and experience to embarras the Orangemen on Saturday.

Nittany Lions Top Trophy Poll Again

Pennsylvania State's unbeaten football team is the unanimous choice for first place in the Lambert Trophy Polls. This is the second straight week that Penn State has come out on top.

The Nittany Lions, winners of the Trophy last year as the East's best collegiate football team, stayed on top Monday with an 18 to 7 victory over Rice last Saturday night. Pittsburgh is in second place with eight points. This is a result of their 26 to 24 win over California. Seven and one-tenth points puts Michigan State in third place. Michigan scored a 17 to 7 victory over Army last week end. The top scoring Nittany Lions have ten points.

This week end Army is host to Pennsylvania State, while Pittsburgh plays a fourth straight intersectional contest. Pittsburgh is meeting West Virginia.

Lelli's Inexperience Cause Of Slow Start

By TOM MULLER

Speed, deceptiveness, intelligence, a good arm — these are the qualities of a good quarterback. But a really great quarterback needs one more thing — nerves of steel.

Once Bob Lelli acquires this coolness, which can only come through actual game experience, he will join former signal callers like Ger Schwedes and Dave Sarette on the list of all-time great Syracuse quarterbacks.

There is little doubt that this young man from Roselle Park, N.J., has the ability. Last year this 5'-10", 180 lb. Junior completed 14 of the 22 passes he attempted. These were good for 180 yards and three touchdowns, which far exceeds the point total of the entire team this year!

After a sophomore year like that, Coach Ben Schwartzwalder seemed to be looking toward a season of few quarterback problems. "He's very quick," said Schwartzwalder. "Handles the ball well, and he throws with his wrist so he can get the ball away fast. Some passers have to wind up when they throw, but not this fellow. He can bust out of the pocket and fight off a charge and still get rid of the thing so that it hits the receiver."

Unfortunately, this pre-season view has taken quite a bit of punishment in the past two weeks, and the concensus of opinions is that relative inexperience is the cause.

To many avid Orange followers and football prognosticators, however Lelli's slow start has come as no surprise. After all, last year Bob held down the number two quarterback spot behind the great Dave Sarette, who was not about to give him many chances to gain that all-important experience. Then, too, when Bob did get to play, he often found his team enjoying a decided advantage.

Furthermore, last year's devastating ground attack, led by Heisman Trophy winner Ernie Davis, took a lot of the pressure off the passing game. This year's ground game is centered around Sophomore sensation Jim Nance, who has even less experience than Lelli. Nance's inexperience has led to a greater dependence on the air attack, thereby putting great strain on the quarterback.

It seems very unlikely that Bob will remain on the fourth string very long; he has too much ability. Here's hoping that this talented young southpaw can make the transition from good to great before graduation deprives him of two excellent receivers, John Mackey and Walt Sweeney.

ENDOW THE AFFLERBACH COLLECTION!
OR
Nobody ever lost an Eagle Tabsnap under the dresser

MANY men who would like to wear tab collar shirts do not do so because they object to the tyranny of collar buttons. It is not just that collar buttons are hard to find when you need them. (Contrary to popular belief collar buttons do not always roll under furniture. The only sure way of finding a collar button is to walk around barefoot in the dark until you step on it. Now there is an experience.) ☆ No, there is something else: some men are simply not built for collar buttons. Their Adam's apples are in the wrong place. Or their hands are not the right shape for wrestling with all those empty collar button holes. So they end up wilty and out of sorts before they ever hit the street. It is the haberdashery equivalent of cutting yourself shaving. ☆ But that is a thing of the past. An Eagle Tabsnap Shirt is secured by one simple, inaudible click. As you can see from the illustration, it lies inconspicuously flat and neat. The snap enclosure is covered by the same material as the shirting itself. Eagle Tabsnaps are available in a wide range of colors and patterns, with short sleeves or regular. ☆ Yes, it appears that the collar button will join the button fly in the museum of clothing antiquities. Say, that is a good idea. If you can find your collar button please send it to us and we will start one (The Afflerbach Collection) right here in Quakertown. In return we will tell you where in your town you can find Eagle Shirts. ☆ Otherwise how would you know?

Obel-omia Happy

By CHARLES BARNEY

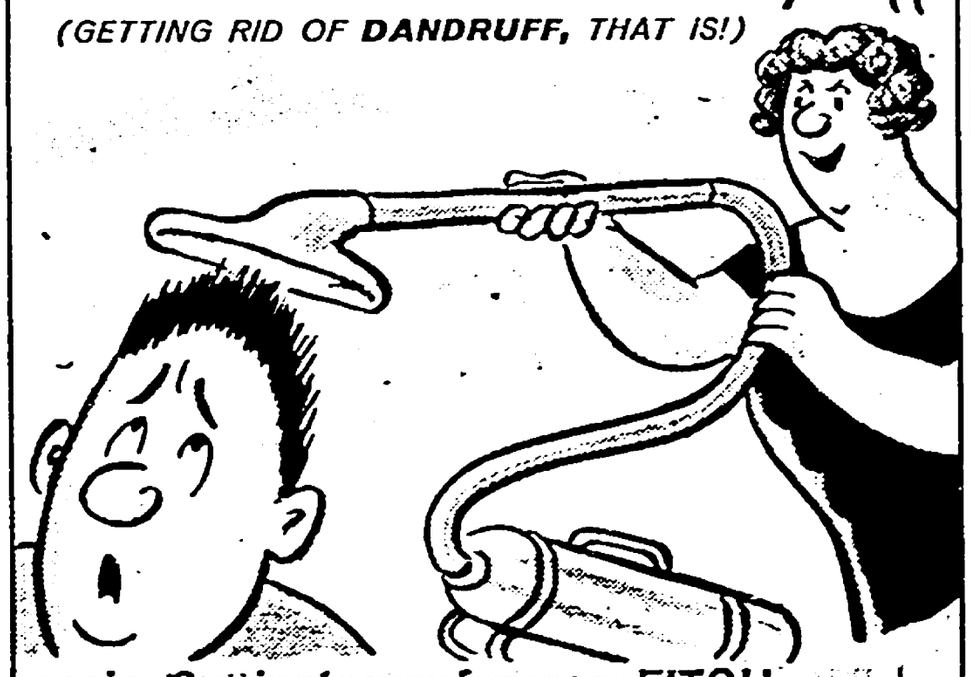
Typical of the recreation to Uganda's independence was native Ungandan Charles C. Obel-omia.

"I am not extremely happy," said Obel-omia during dinner, "I feel like I always do.." But from Obel-omia's applause one could tell he had stronger feelings.

Obel-amio was a guest at the Drumlins banquet Monday. He is a Freshman at the State University of New York at Albany.

Obel-omia's native country, Uganda, is relatively unknown in America. Since 1894 it has been one of Great Britain's East African protectorates.

It wasn't until 1952 that the first signs of independence appeared, Obel-omia said. It was then that natives assumed government positions. Since then the majority of government leadership has shifted to the natives.



Culturally Uganda is a strange land. Most striking is the large size of families, Obel-omia explained. Not only are there large numbers of children, but a man may have several wives.

Obel-omia's father has two wives. His brother has nine wives. The more money a man has, the greatest number of wives he collects.

Brothers often pay for the education of other children in the family. Obel-omia aids two of his brothers. When he returns home he plans to continue teaching.

"Where's The Fire?"

There was no fire in Slocum Hall Tuesday morning.

Just a fire drill.

This is national Fire Prevention Week. The Syracuse Fire Dept. and the Hill Security Police cooperated Tuesday in staging the drill.

Hundreds of students, faculty and staff workers evacuated Slocum at 10:10 a.m. in response to fire alarms and fire horns. A city fire truck, fire engine and the fire chief were on the scene.

Four city firemen took a trip up a ladder to the top floor of Slocum, armed with axes, and came back down again. Just Practicing.

Security Police Director Robert D. Flaherty told the Daily Orange his organization was "very pleased" with the drill. "The students took it seriously, they were very orderly," he said.

1. Surface parking lots on the outer perimeters of the university. (students either walk to campus or use a shuttle bus)
2. Parking garages or ramps where multiple use can be made of the same land.

Costs

Latorre noted that land and development costs for surface parking lots equal approximately $2000 per car. He explained that costs are reduced by half for each additional level "up to an optimum point."

Sub-basement parking is also begin considered by the university, Dr. Olson stated. He said the Newhouse Communications Center will employ this method but added, "unless the terrain lends itself it will be too expensive."

Mass underground parking is about 25 years away according to Dr. Olson. He concluded, "by that time we'll probably be building heliports."

Tolley Speaks At Dedication

Chancellor William P. Tolley spoke Sunday at the dedication of Utica College's student center.

Approximately 500 attended the exercises to officially open the Ralph F. Strebel center, named in honor of the first dean of the school. Dr. Strebel served as dean from 1947 until he died in 1959.

Boyd Golder, former mayor of Utica and a member of the Utica College foundation, accepted the building on behalf of the foundation.

The Strebel Student Center is the second building on the college's new 110 acre campus. The first building, which includes classroom and administration wings, was opened last year.

Delegates Nominate Secretary, Treasurer For Frosh Elections

Pam Bender, Richard Simon and Susan Sommers were nominated for secretary of the freshman class in two ballots Wednesday night. Janet Aspinwall, Harley Flaum and Steven Schacter were designated as treasurer candidates on one ballot.

Candidates for president, chosen Tuesday, are Jonathan Bernstein, Dennis Green and Richard Griffin. Vice presidential candidates are David Bindeman, George Goltzer and Laurie Weisman.

The candidates will be introduced publicly for the first time at the pep rally Friday night. Campaigns will open Sunday, and elections are scheduled for Wednesday. No campaigning of any kind will be allowed before Sunday.

Miss Bender, who resides in Neponset, lives on Flint 4C. She recommended plans for Freshman Weekend, including a Friday semi-formal dance and Saturday brunch.

Simon, who lives on DellPlain 5, resides in Leominster, Mass. He interpreted the secretary's job as a policy recorder, keeping records of class activities. He said that he would attempt to keep all freshmen informed of class activities.

Miss Sommers, a resident of Flint 3C, lives in Maplewood, N.J. She suggested that the minutes of all executive council meetings be printed in the Daily Orange, and also recommended a cultural exchange program with neighboring colleges.

Miss Sommers hoped that the class could raise money for the student union.

Miss Aspinwall, who resides in Fords, N.J., lives in Marshall Cottage. She suggested that the freshmen keep upperclassmen from attending the Freshman Weekend unless escorted by a frosh date. Her ideas for this weekend included a carnival on Saturday and a late breakfast for all freshmen in Sims dining Hall.

Flaum, who hails from Utica, lives on DellPlain 6. He stressed publicity for all frosh activities in order to insure financial success. Among his ideas for Freshman Weekend were selling frosh buttons, selling tickets to separate events as well as an overall ticket to the weekend, and a possibility for freshmen coeds to have a half an hour extension of their Friday curfew, by means of a 30-cent donation to the frosh treasury.

Schacter, who lives on DellPlain 3, resides in Schenectady. He recommended periodical treasury reports to the class. As a means to raise money for the class treasury, he suggested sale of raffles or specific objects.

All candidates for the offices will meet at 4 p.m. today in the JSG office. If any candidate is unable to attend, he should call one of the elections commissioners at the office, ext. 2650 or 3138.

Candidates who were defeated at the convention who wish to run independently must submit a petition with 250 signatures to the JSG office by noon Friday. None of the signatures may have appeared of victorious candidates of the office in question.

JSG elections commissioners Katherine Antony and James Morris again stressed that signing such a petition would in essence be a "pledge of votes," since the candidate's name would appear on the final ballot.

In closing the convention, freshman elections commissioner Edmund Gelgud urged the delegates "to strive not only for the unity and spirit of your class but also for the unity and spirit of your university.." Gelgud received a standing ovation from the 100 delegates.

JSL POSTPONED TO TUESDAY

Joint Student Legislature will not meet tonight as scheduled, JSL Secretary Louise Bal has announced due to conflicts with freshman elections and tonight's citizenship lecture the meeting has been postponed to Tuesday night. Time and location will be announced.

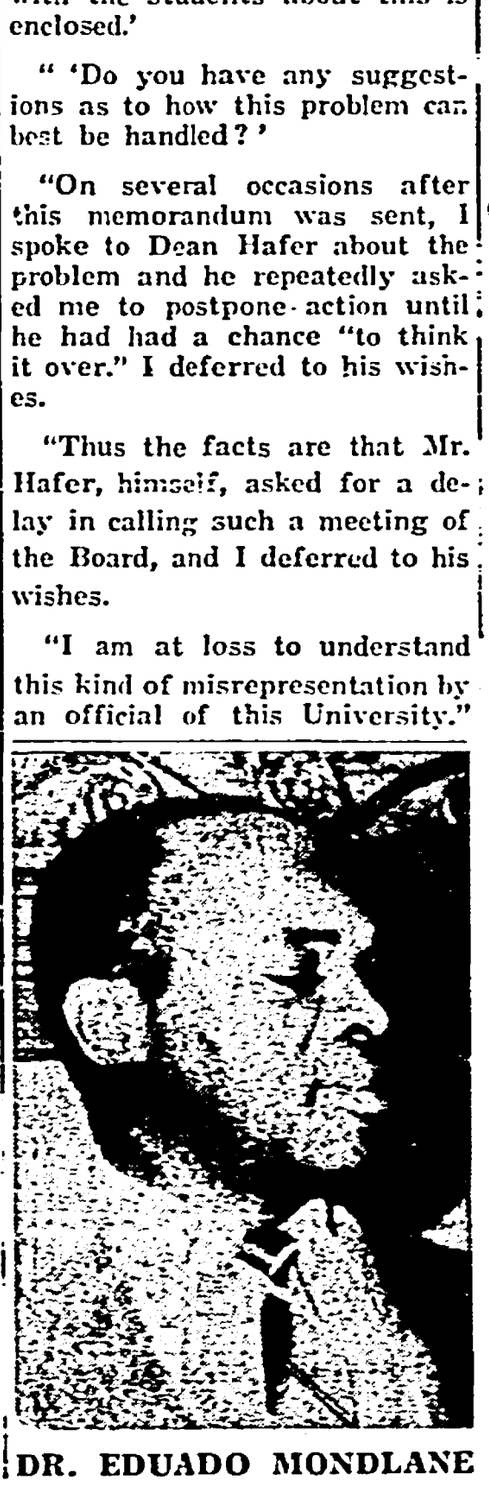
JSL Steering Committee will meet as planned at 4:30 p.m. today in the student government office.

Hafer Asked For Pub Delay Says Dr. Clark

The following is a statement issued Wednesday by Dr. Wesley C. Clark, dean of the School of Journalism, in answer to a statement by Vice Pres. John S. Hafer in Tuesday's Daily Orange.

"The statement by Mr. John Hafer in the Daily Orange as to my responsibility in calling a meeting for the Board of Publications to discuss Syracuse Ten is largely in error.

"I quote from my memorandum to Mr. Hafer dated September 7, more than a month ago; 'A decision has been made, I believe, not to publish Syracuse Ten this year.'



" 'However, no announcement has been made to this effect and members of the Board of the old Syracuse Ten are expecting a meeting of the Board of Publications to elect the officers for Syracuse Ten for this year. Such a meeting was planned before the students left in the Spring. My correspondence with the students about this is enclosed.'

" 'Do you have any suggestions as to how this problem can best be handled?'

"On several occasions after this memorandum was sent, I spoke to Dean Hafer about the problem and he repeatedly asked me to postpone action until he had had a chance "to think it over." I deferred to his wishes.

"Thus the facts are that Mr. Hafer, himself, asked for a delay in calling such a meeting of the Board, and I deferred to his wishes.

"I am at loss to understand this kind of misrepresentation by an official of this University."

SEN. JACOB K. JAVITS

Senator Javits To Address Frosh Tonight

Replaces Douglas

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) will address the freshman citizenship sections at 8:30 p.m. today in Hendricks Chapel. The former New York attorney will lecture on " Creation of Wealth for the Future of America."

Sen. Javits is filling in for Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) who was unable to make his scheduled appearance. Javits is a member of the liberal wing of the Republican party and a strong supporter of civil rights.

Javits attended night school at Columbia University and received his law degree at New York University in 1927. He was elected to the House of Representatives and served eight years as congressman from the 21st district.

He became state attorney general in 1954, the only GOP candidate to win in a Democratic landslide that year. Javits ran against Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City in 1956, receiving a plurality of 45,000 votes in the senatorial race.

Javits will oppose Robert Donovan, also a New York attorney, for his senate seat in the November elections.

PatternsAlike In East Africa - Mondlane

By DANIEL RITEY

"We in East Africa have problems, but they are human problems and experiences. We in Africa are not the only ones with these problems and if we do not resolve them, it will be because we are human," Dr. Eduardo Mondlane said Wednesday night. He spoke at a lecture before the Anthropology Club in Chapel House.

Speaking on the topic of culture patterns of East Africa, Mondlane, who is currently President of the Mozambique Liberation Front, noted "the forces that determine whether a group succeeds or not can be applied to any group of people and that success is not always coming."

He cited the example of South America where there was a common language and religion yet where the idea of a United States of South America never materialized. "We have about an even chance to form a United States of East Africa," he noted.

Mondlane asserted that the language barrier in Africa was troublesome. "It would help in Africa if the language situation was like that of the U.S. where there is only one language. It would greatly help if only one language was taught in the African schools."

Pan - Africanism developed out of a common cause, he explained, and without it the movement could not exist. Whenever people find a common cause to work for, they will do so and seek to find a solution, he noted.

Mondlane explained the notion of the African personality as the "tendency of the African people to have the same outlook on world affairs because of their common past of Colonialism." This is not necessarily true, he went on, as witnessed by the two voting blocs which are prevalent in Africa today.

The Maxwell professor explained that much of our knowledge of Africa and especially East Africa was based on misinformation. "Little was known of South East Africa until the 15th Century when the Portugese came and opened the area up," he said.

Mondlane noted that the tribe, as commonly defined in the West, was thought to be a group of people with common ancestry, language and central government.

"I first accepted this, but as I increased my studies, I began to question the definition of the tribe." He noted that the new African governments were based on the people not the tribes and that they represented the people as a whole.

AWS to Place Dormitories 'On Own'

House presidents from all coed living centers not now on a dorm council met Wednesday night. They discussed the possibility of all women's centers forming dorm councils.

These councils would be self-governing, with their own standards boards including governing of late minutes. They will be under jurisdiction of the Association of Women Students and must maintain the AWS standards, said Marilyn Burke, AWS pres.

Dorms now under this council system include Day, Flint, and Shaw. Also included are Alpha Phi, Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Kappa, Chi Omega and Alpha Xi Delta sororities.

Naomi Pinsky, speaker pro tempore of the AWS Assembly, will help dorms to write constitutions for the self-governing councils.

Miss Burke said she hoped to have all upperclass coed living centers on the council system by this semester. The freshmen centers are scheduled to apply for this council system in the spring semester.

Blood Drive Committee Visits Today

The campus Blood Drive committee will visit all large living centers tonight to answer students' questions on the drive, scheduled Thursday, Oct. 25 in Shaw Dormitory.

Permission slips will be distributed by committee members. These slips must be signed by parents of students under 21. Permission slip forms will also be printed in Friday's Daily Orange.

JSG Holds Class Today

Students participating in the student government training program will attend the second lecture today in H.B. Crouse Hall.

Freshmen whose last names begin with N-Z must go to the 4 p.m. lecture; those with A-M, the 7 p.m. lecture.

Ronald Mittleman, Joint Student Legislative speaker, Leland Peterson, president of the Traditions Commission; Milton Joffe, editor-in-chief of the Daily Orange, Sandra Joy, editor-in-chief of the Onondagan, and Michael Styer, program director of WAER-FM, will address the group.

Security Police Director Robert D. Flaherty said this lot is used by the Hill Athletic department for paid parking during home games. Cars which remain in the lot after noon on football Saturdays will be towed away, Flaherty said.

SU Pass Defense Third In Nation

By BILL CRONAUER

The only thing Syracuse University football followers have to shout about this season is a rugged but little tested Orange pass defense.

The Hillmen have allowed their opponents a mere 43.5 yards per game through the airways, ranking third in the nation in forward pass defense.

Oklahoma and Army completed only one-third of their passes against the stingy Syracuse defense. Orange backs have also intercepted two enemy aerials.

Few Syracuse opponents are included among the NCAA offensive and defensive leaders. Unbeaten Boston College ranks 12th in major college total offense with 1,120 yards for three games.

Pittsburgh holds down the 12th position in rushing with an average of 250 yards per game. In forward pass defense, U.C.L.A. and West Virginia stand behind the Orangemen in the fourth and fifth spots.

Among the individual offensive leaders is BC's quarterback Jack Concannon. Concannon boasts 537 yards gained in 81 plays. The Eagle field general has runs of 98, 70 and 65 yards to his credit this season.

In the forward passing department, Ron Klemick of Navy has completed 31 of 55 attempted passes to rank seventh among major-college tossers.

All-America candidate Dick Drummond of George Washington occupies the eighth spot in rushing with 295 yards in four games.

Hal Powell of Penn State tops Eastern pass receivers with 13 receptions for 147 yards and one touchdown. The Nittany Lion halfback is 12th in the nation.

Another Penn Stater, sophomore Charlie Raisig, has punted nine times for 380 yards, Raisig has averaged 42.2 yards per kick to rank eighth on the major-college level.

The West Virginia Mountaineers stand proudly as one of the two remaining unscored-on major college teams.

Braves Open Season Against Hull-Ottawa

The Syracuse Braves open their season with a game Friday evening at Hull-Ottawa. The "Canadians" will play the second game of the home and home series at the War Memorial Sunday night at 7:30.

Mayor Wallsh will extend an "official" greeting to the Braves from the Onondaga Indian Nation preceding the face-off.

Manager-coach Gus Kyle continues to be pleased with the Braves' defense. Goalie Roger Crozier, however, is the only sure starter. Center Phil Esposito and defenseman Peter Ford also seem likely to start. Wingman Rich Lackwich is back with the team but he is unlikekly to see action because of a broken cheekbone, suffered against the Boston Buins in an exhibition game.

Tickets are available at the War Memorial, either at the Montgomery street box office or at the Braves' office in room 234 at the War Memorial.

International Student Tickets

International students who have turned in their football stubs to Mrs. Palmer's office at Chapel House may pick up their reserve seats from noon to 12:45 p.m. Saturday on the steps of Hendricks Chapel.

DAN ADAMS AND JERRY PARSONS

'We're Not Folksingers'

By JOHN E. GREENWALD
Entertainment Editor

". . . anybody should ask you whose been singing this song, tell 'em Jack the Rabbit, I've been here and gone . . ."

"Dan and I are not folksingers," Jerry Parsons, Colgate '62, explained one night at the Lively Arts Coffeehouse where he and Dan Adams sing folksongs.

Rather, he explained, they are two students of folk music who happen to enjoy singing. And judging by the reception the two have received at the Genesee Street cafe, they do it quite well.

Dan, also Colgate '62, and Jerry have been singing together for a little over three weeks. They have appeared on the Jim Deline television show, and have given the first or what they hope to be many high school lecture-concerts at Skaneateles.

The boys consider folk music as a "cultural function that keeps the past alive while responsive to the change of the present and future."

They have no truck with popular singing groups who perform, what Jerry feels, are "synthetic folksongs."

Jerry, 22 years old, hails from Wilmington, Del., near the West Virginia border. As a child he was bombarded with "folk and western" music. When Jerry was 18 he began playing a guitar his grandfather made.

Both Jerry and Dan are mainly interested in Southern Apalachian folk music. They don't feel they have the cultural background to sing "Negro blues," or calypso.

Dan, also 22, from central New York, has "been singing all my life." At Colgate he was head of a choral group unofficially called "The 13."

"The only way to make a living," Dan said, "is to do what we like." The boys are currently hoping to make a go of giving lecture-concerts explaining the development of American folk music.

FILMS

'Summerskin'

When autumn comes the summerskin peels and falls away.

It was a lazy summer morning when rich, lonely and sensuous Marcela awoke in Leopoldo Torre Nilsson's award winning film, "Summerskin," which opened at the Riviera — Cinema last night.

A bored Marcela drew her bath, idley turned pages of some books, bit into a chocolate bar. She was in the prime of her languid summer, her flesh white and vital her figure bursting as the season's fruit.

Her decayed grandmother, Joujou came to the lavish Argentine estate to offer, and have accepted, a deal: for the price of a trip to Paris and a Dior collection Marcela would "entertain" the dying Martin.

The first Marcela plays the role for the young pale, bearded Martin. But Marcela falls in love with Martin, excellently played by Alfredo Alcon. Whether she falls in love out of pity or rather out of a sense that only in the face of death can she be herself is not clear.

Her love rejuvenates Martin. In the autumn he returns wanting to marry Marcela. She refuses; he committs suicide.

In face of life Marcela can only react as she was taught. Confronted by a vital Martin she tells the story of her deal with Joujou, and she lies that she was never in love.

"Falling in love for us is like falling in love with death," Joupou tells Marcela in the film's final moments.

"Summerskin" is a brillion of the aristocracy who so riches and boredom means only death. It is filled with images of beauty (the lovely Graciela Borges as Marcela) and sensuosity (a beach party).

Give Blood

On October 25, the Red Cross Bloodmobile will come to the Syracuse campus and will give the students of Syracuse a chance to redeem themselves.

Last year the drive was a failure as well under 200 pints of blood were given. This year a well-organized drive is under way to get the students out in numbers that will be worthy of a campus this size.

It would seem that the amount of support being given the drive will insure a successful campaign. The numerous student organizations have endorsed the drive and have urged students to donate.

But in the final analysis all this talk and support will amount to nothing unless the students are willing to take some time and contribute a part of themselves to a most worthy cause.

Giving blood is easy and harmless. In doing so a fine service to mankind will be done and the name of Syracuse will be bettered.

Let's roll up our sleeves and give.

Post Mortem

The Supreme Court of the United States this week dismissed a case in which a New York horse racing fan, who lost a winning daily double ticket, contested that it was unconstitutional not to pay him the amount of the winning ticket.

What interesting thoughts this leads us to. The first of them being. Why should the highest court of the land have to waste its time on a two-dollar bettor who has violated the cardinal rule of racing (Don't tear up your pari-mutuel ticket until the race is declared official.) ?

In what may be the longest photo finish in history, the Supreme Court has now flashed the official sign. Difference of opinion makes a horse race and keeps our courts busy.

Poor Taste

To the Editor:

I was very sorry to read an article of such poor taste in a newspaper that allegedly represents Syracuse University. It was rather difficult to discern the purpose of such an article unless it was meant as a space filler or simply an airing of what might be suppressed feelings of rejection.

I direct my criticism to an article in the October 9, Daily Orange, "Some Spongecake" by John E. Greenwald. It seems to me that if Mr. Greenwald found the photography of this calendar lacking, he might have come right to the point. On the other hand, if he dislikes the girls mentioned or finds them physically unappealing, this is certainly a matter of personal taste and not worthy of space in the Daily Orange or any other newspaper.

I'm sure that if Mr. Greenwald were an expert on beauty his opinion might warrant a certain amount of consideration. But judging from his criticisms I found his judgment without any aesthetic reference.

I found this article entirely lacking in humor and tact. I hope that in the future the Daily Orange will find some constructive news to print or save money by cutting down the size of the paper.

Football Seating

To the Editor:

In answer to our "disgruntled Senior's" letter to the Editor, we feel an explanation of the 1962 Football Seating Rules is needed.

To begin with, these rules, rewritten by both commissioners are reminiscent of those of the last five years, as anyone who took the time to read those of last year would know.

However, they include benefits to students over pervious rules. These are:

(1) Increase from 1¼ to 1½ times group membership per block.

(2) Earlier distribution of tickets.

(3) Simplification of obtaining tickets.

(4) Fairness in alloting seats. For every reserve ticket one stub is required in exchange. Thus groups cannot benefit by using stubs that have not been collected.

(5) Enabling students without block or reserve seats to obtain better seats faster in the stadium, since all reserve seats must be filled by 1:00 p.m.

The purpose of football seating is to accommodate students with the best possible seats. Since the students are allotted a limited section, rotation of blocks is the fairest way to do so.

We realize that no one can be satisfied at all times; especially he who thinks he is a privileged character.

Select Few

To the Editor:

Good grief! The vast wasteland of the DO editorial page has been spoted with an untruth! Miss Bev Luria, in the season's first attack on rotton fraternities, led off her column with some cracks about the "'select few' who have been accepted into the Grecian ranks."

Indeed, Miss Luria, you didn't bother to use facts. Last year, out of the 618 freshman who completed formal fraternity rushing, 490 were pledged by fraternities.

The "select few" of Miss Luria's column represented 79 per cent of all the freshmen who completed the rushing process. And even this figure is deceptively low because it doesn't include the large number of boys who rushed during the fall's formal rush and didn't pledge until the spring. If these were included, the percentage would be even higher.

This certainly doesn't describe a "select few."

James Tallon
IFC Rushing Chairman, 1961-62

I'M GLAD YOU ASKED

Much About Nothing

By M. H. Weinstein

The other evening I again become painfully aware of the fact that frosh girls are still required to be tucked into their little nests at 9:15.

After navigating that obstacle at the base of the mount (I hear that they're installing mines), and after puffing up those seemingly endless steps, I found myself sitting alone in Flint lounge while my companion for a harmless study date was chained in her tower with my class notes.

As I sat quietly brooding, I noticed a group of energetic young men who were working very hard at being casual. They were on the phones, busily and loudly inviting startled young things to a "spur of the moment" type party.

Our upperclass coeds were just thrilled out of their empty litle heads about it as they were overcome by pure coolness.

Coolness is the art of being frustrated, scared and immature while being able to convince everyone that you're not. It is the art of being shot down while making it look like you weren't really interested in her anyway.

Just then, three young studs sauntered in to the lounge snapping their fingers. (Perhaps finger snapping has some religious meaning for those engaged in self worship.)

"Hey, you guys want some dates?" someone yelled scross the floor. So back to the phones.

Meanwhile the residents were turning a delightful shade of puce as these young bucks sauntered about the lounge while radiating their slightly over oily charm.

The sad fact of the evening was that the lounge was almost empty. Thus they were spared the envious looks of those of us with only slightly above average sex appeal.

But while full length mirrors are made, they shall never want for admirers.

Meanwhile back at the web. The girls are getting ready to partake of useful activity on the S.U. campus.

The following dramatization is true in substance. (I have spies.) The scene is a floor meeting of frosh girls. The floor goon is speaking.

"Now girls, let's remember that campus activities are classified into three groups: A. B and C.

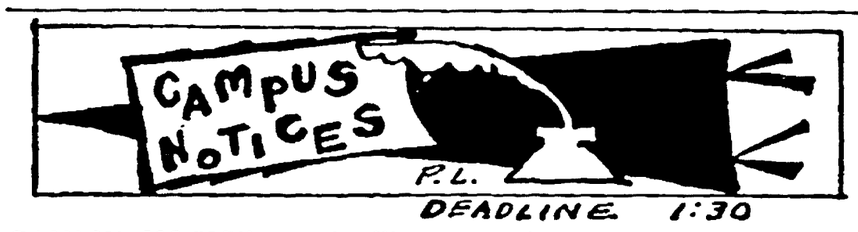
A is for activities containing both upperclass and frosh men.

B is for upperclass men only. This is by far the best bet. All upperclassmen think that frosh girls are naive and very anxious to gain experience. So you go to dinners, movies and fraternity parties while he's trying to teach you things that he doesn't know that you know.

C group is for frosh activities only. This is usually held in reserve for times when nothing better is available. This is just the thing for those of you who like hamburgers and bus rides.

Remember, sustain his enthusiasm while keeping your guard up at all times.

So much for action at the front.



As for the curfews, I have always felt that if a young lady wishes to be indescreet, she can do so just as easily at 9 p.m. as she can at 4 a.m.

The world advances toward the age of space, while S.U. still seems to be marching proudly into that Victorian never-never land of pomp and prudery.

In the future, I can see the Syracuse campus equiped with infra-red television cameras, even have to stir out of their so that the heirarchy won't Danish Modern love seats in order to see who is where and when. Panty raiders beware, modern technology is against you.

If all restrictions were lifted, everyone would grow quickly sick of each other and would be very happy to spend a quiet evening in the dorm telling lies about their love lives.

Of course, it is rather unrealistic to think that all our scholars are like those decribed earlier, even though it is fun to think about. As for those who do fit this description, they deserve each other.

Know the Orange:

BILL SCHOONOVER

Schoonover At Fullback

By VIN ZUKOWSKI

In 1959, a senior fullback from Stroudsburg Union dominated Pennsylvania high school football. Performing with daring skill, he earned a berth on the All-Lehigh Valley team and on the All-Pennsylvania High School team.

Taking his past performances into consideration and weighing the fact that Pennsylvania is reputed by national sports writers as moulding the best high school football players, the Syracuse University coaching staff recruited William Schoonover to play for the nation's number one college football team.

The staff's efforts were handsomely rewarded with Bill's freshman performance. Running from the fullback slot, the Penn rookie led the frosh backs in yards gained from scrimmage. Under the pressure of high school clippings, Bill lived up to his billing.

In the year after "number one," the coaches were very high on sophomore Schoonover. Once again the coaches were justified. He gained the second unit fullback assignment with outstanding pre-season practice sessions.

In the second game of the season against West Virginia, Bill had a fifty yard TD run to his credit. Bill also performed capably at linebacking assignment for the squad. However, Bill broke his hand later in the season and was out of action through four games. His vital statistics for the year were 137 yards rushing in 25 attempts for a 5.5 per carry average.

In 1962, the Orange had to fill Ernie Davis' left halfback position, and Bill Schoonover was called on to fill the gap. Inheriting Davis' jersey number, once again Bill was expected to perform adeptly.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder said of Schoonover, "He is not an Ernie Davis, but he is a learning ballplayer and has handled the shift from fullback to left halfback remarkably well. He is eager, he hits hard. We think he will come along."

In the first two games of the season, Bill didn't disappoint Coach Schwartzwalder.

Because of offensive shortcomings, the backfield was shaken up, and again Bill finds himself at the fullback position—the number one fullback position. This would seem to show that the 2.5 average points per game has not developed because of a Schoonover short circuit. The coaches have faith in the 5' 11" back, and he returns the confidence with yards every time. Bill Schoonover carried big numbers on his back. He carried them well.

Yankees Win, 5-3

Rookie Tom Tresh, the Yankee hitting hero of the Series, came thorugh again yesterday, when he blasted a three run homer in the eighth inning to lead the New Yorkers to a 5-3 win over the Giants and give the Yankees a 3-2 edge in games.

The Giants opened the scoring in the third when Jose Pagan singled, took second on a sacrifice by Jack Sanford, and scored on a double by Chuck Hiller.

The Yankees tied it up in the fifth when Tresh doubled and eventually scored on a wild pitch. The other New York run came in similar fashion in the sixth when Bobby Richardson singled and came around after a sacrifice, a force out, and a passed ball.

With one out in the eighth, Richardson and Tony Kubek hit back to back singles and Tresh uncorked his mighty blast.

After an off day, the Series switches to San Francisco on Friday for game six.

YOU CAN TAKE A BIG STEP CLOSER TO YOUR FUTURE

That's when the Linde Company representative will be on campus. He will be interviewing qualified engineering students who feel their future lies in research or applied engineering.

The LINDE Laboratories, for example—at Tonawanda (Buffalo), N.Y. Speedway (Indianapolis), Ind., and Newark, N.J.—provide an unusually stimulating environment for the scientific-minded to grow and develop. The many achievements of LINDE people in research and applied engineering have borne a rich harvest of progress: Over half of LINDE's current sales volume comes from products and facilities that did not exist 15 years ago.

Pall Mall Presents~ GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

BATON-TWIRLING HIGH-STEPPER

CAMPUS TYPE I

The High-Stepper is an ideal choice for Campus Type #1 for two reasons. First, she is a fairly common species—and second, she is easy to identify.

Just as the bird-watching beginner should concentrate on the Robin, Sparrow and Cardinal before moving on to more exotic species, the girl watching beginner should master the observation and identification of types such as the High-Stepper before progressing to rarer (and usually more difficult to identify) types.

As in all fine arts, the mastery of fundamentals is the key to girl watching success. This mastery of fundamentals is just as important in the art of cigarette making. Taste Pall Mall and see what we mean!

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

Javits Calls for More US Productivity; Hits Kennedy's Program

By DANIEL RITEY

Sen. Jacob K. Javits told the freshman citizenship sections that "we are in a war of productivity with the Communist bloc and other free competitive nations of the world. We need an all out effort to win."

Speaking Thursday night at Hendricks Chapel, the New York lawmaker said that unemployment is the chief deterent to President Kennedy's idea of getting our country on the move again.

"Everyone's been talking about moving our country and increasing our wealth and growth, but there has been little action on it so far." He noted that our unemployment and part-time employment labor force was almost at the level of the depression years.

Automation

"Automation is also another major concern," he went on. "We have many people who are losing their jobs and who are faced with the difficult task of adjusting to new and different working conditions."

"High productivity is the key to our unemployment problem, not large bank accounts or huge taxes. Our productivity must be living—that is, in terms of goods and services, not sterile as in terms of $50 billion for our defense budget," Javits said.

The Republican liberal outlined two alternate ways of solving the problem which he termed

Senator Visits City; Begins Upstate Drive

By JOYCE HERGENHAN

Business combined with more business was the theme of Sen. Jocab Javits' Thursday visit to Syracuse.

In town to address Syracuse University's freshman citizenship students, the senator took time to launch his upstate reelection campaign.

Describing himself as "a fugitive from Washington," the senator maintained constant contact with the waning senate session. A fully fueled and crewed plane lay ready to whisk him back to the capital in case of unforeseen developments.

Frosh Files for Ballot

By ANDY PORTE

Lee Hammer, who was defeated Tuesday in his bid for nomination for president of the freshman class, Thursday filed a petition to run independently for that office.

Hammer was unsuccessful in his appearance before the freshman nominating convention.

He stated "I'd like to prove myself." His petition, which contained more than the required 250 signatures, will be checked by the Joint Student Government elections commissioners today.

Hammer elaborated plans for Freshman Weekend, Dec. 7-8 including a big-game band, a casual twister, a button design contest and a slave auction.

Only One

Hammer was the only candidate who filed to run independently on Thursday. It was rumored that two other defeated presidential candidates, Serge Jelenevsky and Lisa Coleman, would also file petitions. Miss Coleman said she was considering the idea, but a spokesman for Jelenevsky said that he would not run. Deadline for petitions is noon today. Elections are Wednesday.

The election commissioners, Katherine Antony and James Morris, Thursday revealed plans for campaigning. They stressed that no campaigning would be allowed before noon Sunday. Campaigning closes at midnight Tuesday.

The candidates will make several public appearances before and during the campaigning period. Their first appearances is scheduled for tonight's pep rally. They will then appear at the activities convocation, set for 2 p.m. Sunday in Hendricks Chapel. They will also be present at a junior class-sponsored twister for the frosh to be held at 6:30 p.m Monday in Flint Hall.

The commissioners explained that each candidate will be allotted $10 to use on his campaign. Each candidate must submit a list of expenses, including receipts, by the time polls close Wednesday.

No posters of any kind will be allowed in classroom buildings or on telephones poles and trees.

7,000 Hill Parents Here This Weekend

Mom and Dad, and assorted brothers and sisters, become Syracusans this weekend as more than 7.000 parents flock to the campus for Parents Weekend.

Syracuse University's unique "School for Parents" gets underway at 10 a.m. this morning with greetings from Hill Vice President Kenneth G. Bartlett and student co-chairman Karen Kover and Fred Klein.

Academic Vice President Frank Piskor will describe Syracuse University's academic community and will tell the parents what the university expects of the students.

For the next two sessions, parents will have their choice of attending one of three basic study areas for information and guidance. The three areas are: the humanities, the basic sciences and the social sciences.

Professors and deans specializing in the study areas will review the academic goals and the purposes of the various programs.

Dr. Sidney Thomas, Fine Arts department professor, will speak for the humanities. Dr. Roy Price, chairman of the social sciences and education department and Dr. Donald Kibbey, mathematics department chairman, will speak for the social and basic science groups.

Henry Wirth, chairman of the chemistry department, will talk on the basic sciences, geography Prof. George Cressey on the social sciences, and Dr. Theodore Denise, philosophy department chairman, on the humanities.

The final sessions will hear Hendricks Chapel Dean Charles E. Noble explain how parents can best stimulate and aid their children through four years of college. He has titled his talk, "High Potential Living."

A reception in the Colonial Room in the Chapel concludes the School.

At the "Eagle Rock" pep rally, which starts at 6:30 p.m. on the main quad, parents will meet Coach Ben Schwartzwalder and the team. Candidates for freshman offices will also be introduced.

An 8:30 a.m. brunch in Sims Hall opens Saturday's activities. Chancellor William P. Tolley will speak on "Syracuse University."

Parents Fund Grows

By BEV LURIA
Junior Editor

Syracuse University will have a new Student Health Service and infirmary because of the initiative taken by the SU Parents Association.

SU Vice President for Development Newell W. Rossman said the association hopes to fulfill its pledge of $350,000 for an infirmary by June.

The fund-raising campaign, which was begun by the parents three years ago, is about halfway towards completion, Rossman stated. A fund progress report will be given by Theodore Pierson, chairman of the program, at the annual Parents Weekend breakfast at 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

Parents' Contribution

Explaining that the parents' contribution will only cover a portion of the cost of the infirmary, Rossman said, "We hope to raise the rest from friends and foundations."

All parents' donations to SU, unless otherwise stipulated, will go into the health service fund, Rossman said. He explained that many gifts to the university are restricted or for a specific purpose.

Unrestricted Gifts

Unrestricted gifts from parents and alumni ordinarily go toward "the faculty salary schedule, scholarship or financial aid program and operation and maintenance of the institution," Rossman said.

He mentioned that "gifts in kind" or non-financial donations are also made to the university. Mrs. J. Burch McMorran recently donated a portrait of the late SU Chancellor James Roscoe Day.

The portrait of Day, who was chancellor from 1893-1922, will be hung in Day Hall on Mount Olympus.

'Club' Burned

By ALAN G. MILLSTEIN
Associate Editor

All the brew under the bar couldn't control the blaze that leveled a Syracuse landmark, the Clover Club, Thursday morning.

The Almond Street dance hall and bar which was a veritable Saturday night watering hole for Hill students was described as a "total loss" by Syracuse fireman after they vainly tried to control a kitchen grease fire about 10:30 a.m. yesterday.

Located in the heart of the city's 15th Ward, the Clover Club was a two-story wood frame structure with sagging walls that bulged with pleasure seeking Syracusans on any average Friday or Saturday night of the academic year.

Paul Maloff, the Club's barkeeper, told the Syracuse fire department that the disastrous fire was touched off by an overheated greasy stove. Two fire extinguishers were emptied by Maloff in an attempt to halt the hungry flames that quickly consumed the taproom and dance floor that comprised the public areas of the Club.

There were no injuries result-

Parents' Weekend A Special Time

This is that special time of year when parents come to the Syracuse campus en masse. This year the weekend is earlier than in the past but the activities and objectives are the same.

Parents Weekend is the one time when the parents of SU students can really participate actively in the campus affairs as a group.

Especially for the parents of freshmen and transfer students this will be the first chance for a close observation of their children's new home.

It is our opinion that what the parents see this weekend will make them confident that Syracuse was indeed a good choice for the continuing of their son's or daughter's education.

Although the parents won't be able to grasp the entire essence of the university in so short a space of time, we hope that the atmosphere of the campus as a whole will make them aware of the quality of Syracuse University.

Yes, quality is the best word to use in this case because Syracuse is becoming increasingly involved with quality.

The faculty, curriculum and students at Syracuse each year advance with tremendous leaps and Syracuse continues to strive for academic excellence.

This is a worthy objective and with an increased understanding and concern for the school and an active interest in it, Syracuse will grow even more rapidly.

This concern must come from the undergraduates, alumni and parents if the goal is to be reached. Thus, for some parents this is another chance to see the growth already evident in just a short space of time and for the parents here for the first time it is an indication of what the future holds in store.

The Daily Orange bids you welcome, one and all.

ELECTIONS '66

Freshman Heritage

By Audrey Lippman

Well, the freshman nominating convention is over, and once again, upperclassmen stand by watching the frosh conform to the standards of dear old SU.

From juniors and seniors, we have come to expect this idea that freshmen must learn the ways of the university. They never consider the possibility that frosh are also people, with minds and ideas (some of them quite good).

But the sophomores, the idealists of last year's elections, should hang their heads in shame. You who fought so that other frosh might benefit, have done nothing to help the class of '66.

Some students argue that last year's frosh had a cause: to prevent campus party interference in freshmen elections.

Since the elections this year are being run under the supervision of JSL election commissioners, the class of '66 is left without a goal to fight for.

What everyone has forgotten is that the new students know nothing of the cause for which the class of '65 fought last year. As soon as they are caught in the web of Greek rushing, freshmen will be lost forever. They have never battled for liberty and so will not recognize the lack of freedom in their lives. They will accept the rules of the campus parties without question, for they have never known another system.

Is it not up to the sophomores to impart their knowledge to the freshmen? Has the spirit of revolution for individual liberty died upon this campus? Or has it never had a chance to live, since it was killed in infancy as the class of '65 joined the ranks of upperclassmen?

What actually happened last year? Before the deferred rushing system, freshmen were pledges of Greek houses at election time. Consequently, each Greek was a member of a political party and participated in its nominating convention.

Last fall there were no pledges, and the consensus among freshmen was that upperclassmen should stay out of their class elections.

As explained in a DO article by Andy Porte Oct. 8, the bosses of the political parties promised to protect the frosh interests. But upperclassmen still had a chance to nominate and perhaps designate the candidates for freshman office.

The frosh wanted their own way. They organized "Freshman for Free Elections" with good-looking southern rebel Robbie Stern leading the troops.

In a last ditch attempt to save their idea of elections, the political party big wigs offered freshmen representation in party conventions. They also agreed to pay the campaign expenses of the nominees.

A clever rebel discovered upperclassmen would still be able to block-vote and force a candidate in over the wishes of freshmen delegates.

So the troops rallied again, after the parties denied a demand that only frosh have a voice in the nominating convention.

The result, after the formation of the Reform Independent Party, was a serious blow to the campus parties. RIP's leaders, Mike Lieberman and Mike O'Bryan, were instrumental in the resounding victory of a frosh independent slate.

The fulfillment of the wildest dreams of the class of '65, concerned more than sound leadership and class unity. The cause of the class, the age old fight for freedom from oppression, scored another point.

A common theme for potential candidates in this year's nominating convention was: "This is the first year freshmen may run their own election. Let's do the best we can."

The delegates took their jobs seriously and chose candidates with sound ideas to run for class offices. This will be enough for the present. But it will not suffice in the future.

If you who fought for freedom last fall and spring in elections for the class of '65, still strive for the purpose and goal of your cause, don't stop now. Tell the newcomers to our campus society what has happened here.

The freshmen go to the polls Wednesday to choose their class slate. It is hoped that they will pick wisely to start a successful four years on Piety Hill.

In the future, when they are faced with the issues of campus, and later, national life, will they understand the work, the historical significance, the basic aims of individual liberty? Who will guide them to increase the freedom of man? Who but the sophomores, who have had to fight for their rights?

I, a member of the class of '65, certainly hope they do.

AMIDST THE CLAMOR

Amidst the clamor surrounding the PiKA calendar girls, we are naturally led to the subject of beauty contests. Of which there are not nearly enough on this campus. Syracuse U. needs a campus beauty queen. All we have now are a bevy of queens selected by the Woodchoppers, the fraternities, and a couple of other organizations.

With Miss U.S.A.'s, Miss Universes, Miss Worlds, running all over the country, why could not Syracuse have a Miss Student Body?

Joint Student Legislature could sponsor the contest. And more than likely it would attract more attention than some anti-noise bill. At least one large segment of this campus would take notice.

On to broader subjects—if there are any. Has anyone noticed how black-and-blue eyes seem to be in style? But, did you know this coloring was the result of an accident—at least in theory. And you Cleopatraed girls can thank this year's Saltine Warrior.

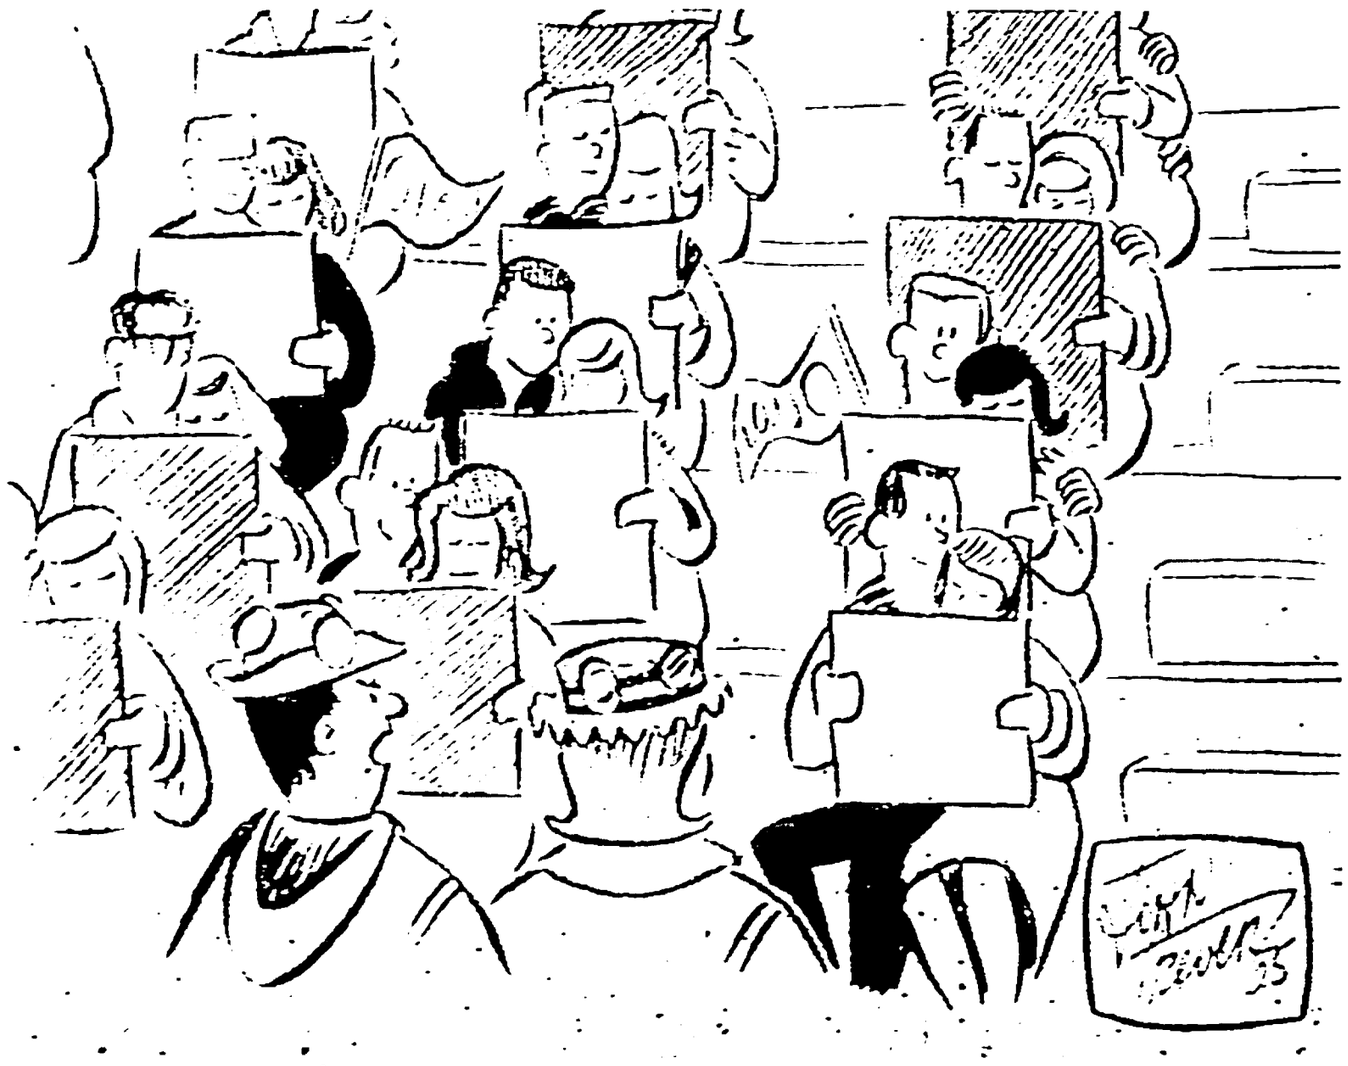
Trying out his war cries (tears, maybe) at the annual Varsity-Alumni gridiron classic last spring, our Injun mascot's eye got in the way of a misguided muscle. The shiner that resulted must have added more expression or something or other. 'Cause now, it is the thing for all red-blooded American campusettes.

After all, a woman is but a build in a girdled cage. GUTTIEST COMMENT OF THIS WEEK DEPT: Winner? You are wrong it is not Greenwald. It is James Meredith, who after having the protection of 14,000 armed force personnel, had the gall to complain that Kennedy sent segregated troops to Oxford. Next Meredith will want to see the White Citizens Council integrated.

Or maybe Meredith will press for a football game between Howard University* and Ole' Miss played at some neutral territory like Little Rock. Referees could be Martin Luther King and Ross Barnett. The Army Band with fixed-bayonets could march at half time.

THE GREEK WAY: Some joker wondered why the reception for the Modern Jazz Quartet is limited to Fraternity men and their dates. The answer? Well mainly because it is being sponsored by the Interfraternity Council. Mainly because it is one of the privileges of being a Greek.

There is nothing from stopping the independents from doing the same thing. Or maybe the independents feel they should be given a free ride to participate in all the Greek activities, including Greek Week.



And contrary to Bev Luria the Greeks are not a small, select group. Select the fraternity men may be, but if you look at the figures over 80% of last year's rushees were pledged. Thus, it seems there is a fraternity for almost any young gent who wishes to join.

New Orange Lineup Faces Boston

By BERNIE MacCALLUM

A revamped backfield with a rookie quarterback will open the home season for Syracuse when they meet the undefeated Boston College Eagles in Archbold Stadium at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Orangemen are rated a solid ten point favorite in spite of their winless record.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder has had Hill sophomore Walley Mahle working with the first unit in practice this week and claims that the youngster will be his quarterback at game time. Mahle who hails from Erie, Pa., quarterbacked the second frosh team last season.

Schoonover Moved

Bill Schoonover has been moved to fullback from left half. Bill, who played all of last season at fullback, has been the most effective ground gainer for the Orangemen.

In another move, John Humphreys has won the starting nod at left halfback, baring a last minute change. John has seen mostly defensive action for Syracuse.

Don King, a 185-pound senior from Buffalo, takes over as the two way starter at right half. Because of a leg injury King was confined to playing defense in the two previous games.

Wilson Starts

Sophomore Jim Wilson has been promoted to a starting berth at right guard by Schwartzwalder. The 6-2, 215 pound lineman saw limited action in the first two games.

The rest of the line up will remain in tact with Walt Sweeney at left end and All-American end candidate John Mackey on the right. The guards will be Dave Meggesey and Wilson.

Gene Stanom will center the forward wall. Captain Leon Cholakis is at inside tackle with John Paglio in the outside slot.

B. C. 3-0

Boston College, under new head coach Jim Miller, has a 3-0 record including two shutouts. The Eagles beat VMI, Detroit and Villanova.

"This is a real solid football team," said Schwartzwalder after watching the Eagles dump VMI 18-0 last Saturday.

"They have a fine all-around quarterback in Jack Concannon. His passing is sharp and we know he can run because he ran 79 yards for a score against us last year."

Concannon, a double threat quarterback, has three long sprints to his credit this season with one a 98 yard run against Detroit.

The Boston College offense is geared to breaking back lose for long single gains. They use a wide open pro-type offense with long passing, and long runs. This contrasts with the Orange grind-it-out-offense, more common in college ball.

The Boston starting lineup will have Concannon calling signals, Harry Crump at fullback with John Barrett and Bob Shann the halfbacks.

Miller's ends are Art Graham and Bob Smith. Gene Carrington and John Frechette are the tackles with Dave Yelle and Lou Cioci at guards. Tom Hall will center the line.

Graham All-East

The Eagle offensive leader is Crump who has rushed 229 yards on 38 carries for a 6.0 overage. Concannon has 141 yards yards on 29 carries for a 4.9 average. In the air Jack has completed 26 of 52 for 396 yards and four touchdowns.

End Graham has caught ten passes for 231 yards and two scores.

A crowd of 30,000 is expected for the opener. This is the fifth time the two teams have met. Last year up in Boston the Orangemen won 21-14 with two touchdowns in the last two minutes.

Orange Pix

Faced with seme difficult contests this week, the D.O. forecasters have come up with their usual startling predictions.

Because of the many loyal Syracuse fans, and because the sports staff shares this loyalty, the Orange are the pick to down the visiting Eagles of Boston College.

Here we go again:

Syracuse over Boston College
Penn State over Army
Michigan over Michigan State
Pittsburgh over West Virginia
Texas over Oklahoma
LSU over Miami
Wisconsin over Notre Dame
Rutgers over Colgate
Holy Cross over Harvard
Navy over Cornell

Ends Battle Tomorrow

"Keep the ends in sight." That's the password for tomorrow's Orange home opener with Boston College.

Two fine pair of ends will face off on the Archbold turf when the winless Syracusans host the unbeaten Eagles. Both squads boast pre-season All-American picks at that position.

The Bostonians bring in one of the outstanding ends in the east in senior Art Graham. The 6-1 203 lb. wingman guards his right end position with a tremendous pass-receiving record.

In the past two seasons, Graham has topped the BC ends with 29 grabs with teams that made most of their yardage on the ground.

In the three games that he's appeared in this year, Graham has caught 10 passes for a 231 yard total. This yardage represents nearly 60% of the total yardage that the entire team has gained through the airways.

On the opposite side of the line stands lanky Bob Smith. Smith came from virtually nowhere (well, fifth string) to the number one left end position.

Syracuse fields its own choice for All-American in the shoes of John Mackey.

Last year John was one of the nations top ends when he set an Orange record with 321 yards gained in pass receiving. This year John has been his best on defense with a team whose only boast is defense.

Walt Sweeney is Mackey's counterpart on the left side. The two combine to form one of the best end combinations that an Orange quarterback could throw to.

Runners Host Buffalo; Look for First Win

By HOWIE SCHNEIDER

After a disappointing 27-28 loss to Colgate, Coach Bob Grieve and his harrier squad hope to bounce back and beat Buffalo Saturday.

The veteran cross-country director bolsters an evenly balanced squad of four lettermen and four sophomores. Grieve lost his top runner of last season, Joe Francello, through graduation, but is hoping senior captain Mike Guzman can fill the gap. Grieve calls the solid distance man a "good leader."

Another key man in the Orange prospects is Mouncy Ferguson, who ran a 4.11.5 mile and placed sixth in the IC4A mile in 1961. The other returning lettermen, juniors Jack Dailey and Steve Killorin, are both former New York State high school champions.

Top sophomore hopefuls include Mike Shuster, who was out of school last year, and Tom Higgins, one of the freshman standouts in 1961. Rounding out the team are Cal Evans and Tom Driscoll.

In last week's defeat to the Red Raiders the team showed some promise. Syracuse captured second and third places, in addition to three other places among the top ten finishers.

Guzman finished second with a time of 27:35, and Fergurson placed third with a 27:45. Shuster finished sixth; Dailey, eighth, and Tom Higgins, ninth. Despite the loss Grieve looks for a good year.

Last season the squad also got off to a slow start. They dropped successive meets to Colgate, Buffalo and Army but then beat Villanova and Fordham.

After challenging Buffalo the runners will go up against Army, October 20, Cornell, October 27, and Fordham, November 3. The team will also participate in the IC4A meet in New York City, November 19. All home contests are at Drumlins Country Club.

Lewis Starts Basketball Practice; Hopes Hoopsters Hustle Will Help

By IRA BAKST

Starting 7 p.m., Monday, the Syracuse hoopsters will begin their 62nd season of basketball activity on the Hill.

"Past records will be put aside and only those boys with desire, plenty of hustle, and ability will be prominent in my plans." So stated rookie coach Fred Lewis as he prepared to put his untried squad through initial practices.

Unfortunately Lewis does not have the caliber of players to mold a championship club. However, under his present recruiting system the future of cage activity on campus could be unprecedented in one or two short seasons.

Much will depend on Carl Vernick, a 6-1 guard who averaged 18 points a game last year. He will join Seaman, 6-0; Dick Finley, 6-0; and Dick Taylor, 6-2 from last year's team in the back court.

Centerman Manny Klutschkowski 6-5, and Herb Foster 6-4, will help up front.

Coming up from the frosh with a good chance for starting berths this year are Phil Schoff, 6-3 forward, who pumped in better than 18 points a game last year, and Richard Duffy, 5-11 guard.

While the varsity still remains a question mark at this time, the frosh squad has talent never dreamed about before on campus.

Ready to don uniforms for the coming campaign are:

Dave Bing, 6-2 guard from Washington, D. C. Bing made Dell Magazine's 1st team High School All-American last year;

Frank Nicoletti, 6-3 forward from St. Peters Prep, Jersey City. Nicoletti was a 2nd team H. S. All-American in 1961;

Rex Trowbridge, 6-9 center from Bethlehem. High School, Delmore;

Sam Penceal, 6-3 forward, captain of Boys High City champs last year, named most valuable player in New York City;

Dick Ableman, 6-5, New State second division high scorer;

Fran Pinchaut, 6-3, Newark Academy, who averaged 38 points per game;

Jim Bocham, 6-3, named to the 2nd team All-American.

This team, a real crowd pleaser, will be coached by Dr. Morris Osburn who came here with Lewis from Mississippi Southern.

Coach Lewis is anxious to get house and the new talent will go a long way in bringing to Syracuse a good brand of exciting collegiate ball.

Canadiens And Black Hawks Seen As Strong Contenders

By IRA BAKST

The National Hockey League officially opened its 1962-63 season this week with Toronto topping Chicago Wednesday night and a full schedule of games last night.

The League has not seen many major changes in team strength during the off-season. A possible exception to this would be if the Chicago Black Hawks land all star left winger Frank Mahovlich from Toronto.

The Hawks have already made headlines by sending the Leafs a check for $1,000,000 for Mahovlich's services. President of the league, Maurice Campbell, says that until official word comes from Toronto the deal is off.

Chicago

If the Black Hawks get Mahovlich they probably will win the league title and the Stanley Cup. They have one of the best lines in hockey with Bobby Hull, NHL co-scoring leader, Red Hay and Murray Balfour.

Montreal

The Montreal Canadians will again depend on the Beliveaus, Geoffrions, and the Richards to keep the home wolves happy. George "Red" Berenson fresh from last year's playoffs may help the old men. With Jacque Plante and Tom Johnson still protecting the nets, he might not be needed.

Toronto

The Toronto Maple Leafs have lost Bert Olmstead, but still retain the smooth working passers from last year's Stanley Cup champs. Kent Douglas, a defenseman acquired from Springfield in exchange for five minor leaguers will help aging Johnny Bower in goal. The Leafs are a question mark, depending on excellent youth developing and their veterans holding up. A solid third place regardless.

New York

The N. Y. Rangers won't have much trouble capturing the last Stanley Cup berth. The Blues picked up Bert Olmstead, Bronco Horvath and have an excellent rookie crop. Rod Gilbert and Len Ronson could give the Blues a good third line. Their first line of Bathgate, Prentice and Earl Ingerfield should improve over last year's fine record. Doug Harvey will play again for a record $30,000. The Blues look great on paper, but they usually do.

Detroit

Detroit has acquired top minor leaguer Floyd Smith from Springfield of the A.H.L. but despite some other improvements, they still look impotent on offense. Gordie Howe will go down with the ship a second straight year.

Boston

The Boston Bruins have bought up two of the best minor league goaltenders to bolster their non-existent defensive alignment. They are Ed Johnson and Bobby Perrault. However, their other draft choices bring in more bad news for Hub fans who will continue to pack the Boston Garden.

Being conservative, watch for the Canadians to edge Chicago. Toronto, New York, Detroit and the Bruins will round out the standings.

Hockey Club Plays Hull

Professional hockey will return to Syracuse once again as the Syracuse Braves, the newest entry in the Eastern Hockey League, will face off against the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens Friday night on the latters home ice. In other action during the same evening, Kingston will pit its sextet against Sudbury.

Coach Gus Kyle, a former National Hockey League defenseman, has high hopes for the approaching season. He believes that a great many of his boys are National Hockey League material, and he expects to see a few of his skaters make the jump to the N.H.L. with the Braves parent club, the Chicago Blackhawks. The Braves are fortunate to have Roger Crozier in the nets because in exhibitions thus far, he has excelled. Also Defenseman Pete Ford and wingers Phil Esposito and Jim Sanko are assured starting berths.

Hillel Announces Weekend Plans

The B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation will conduct regular Friday evening services as part of Parents' Weekend at 8 p.m. in Hendricks Chapel.

Gershon J. Feigon, an ordained Rabbi from New Rochelle, and one time Director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at Oxford, Mississippi will be the main speaker.

The service will be conducted by Larry Feigon acting as Cantor, and he will be assisted by the Hillel Choir, under the direction of Harvey Spitzer. Following the service, an Oneg Shabbat will be served by the members of the Syracuse and Esther Chapters of the B'nai B'rith women.

The Hillel Foundation has erected a festive Sukkoh on the lawn south of Hendricks Chapel, in commemoration of the Feast of Tabernacles which began Wednesday night. The Sukkoh or shelter symbolizes God's divine providence.

The Feast of Tabernacles, a harvest festical, is described in the Bible as a reminder to the Jewish people of the 40 years' sojourn in the desert, when the people lived in booths.

The Hillel Spkkoh, decorated with harvest fruits, was designed by Ian Hugh Gordon, a fourth year Architecture student.

The number and total value of financial grants available to graduate students are estimated to have doubled since 1956.

The lecture in Journalism 1a will be held this Friday in 117 Lyman instead of Maxwell Auditorium at 12 noon. Cause of the shift, said Dean Wesley C. Clark is the fact that a lecture for parents attending Parents weekend has been scheduled for the same hour in Maxwell.

JSG - - Full Time Job

Some students spice their daily schedules with activities. For Theodore Bayer and Carol (Shultze) Lucha, the formula seems reversed.

President and vice president of Joint Student Government, together they spend roughtly 65 hours each week in student government activities.

It is difficult, Bayer pointed out, to decide where JSG work ends and private life begins. Even in classes or at his living center people ask him questions about JSG and related activities, he said.

Here are the committees on which Bayer is a voting delegate:

He has created two new JSG committees. The president's council or Higher Echelon of Leftover Leaders (HELL) meets at least every second week. It is composed of JSG senior coordinators.

The Advisory Board is composed of Bayer, Miss Lucha, student court chief Justice Robert Dick, JSL speaker Ronald Mittleman, the head of the student union committee and the four class presidents. The board is designed to unite JSG and class activities.

The JSL cabinet, where the student car bill idea was conceived, consists of leaders of the three JSG branches, Miss Lucha and Dean Earle W. Clifford, advisor to JSG.

In addition, Bayer represents the student body on the following university committees:

Personnel Committee, which validates bills passed by the student legislature; Social Committee, which approves campus-wide social events; Field House Committee, which determines Field House policy; Athletic Board; Orientation Committee; Board of Publications which selects editors of campus publications; and Design Board, which formulates university policy.

Bayer may send his personal representative to some of the meetings. Others stipulate that he alone may attend.

Miss Lucha represents the student body on all of the preceding committees except Personal Committee and University Social Committee. In addition, she serves on the Women's Building Housing Committee.

Of all the delegates to Joint Student Legislature and all the persons involved in JSG, he and Miss Lucha are the only ones who represent the entire student body, Bayer pointed out. The president and vice president of JSG are elected in spring campus-wide elections.

WEEKEND

RIVIERA CINEMA—A skillfully done Argentine drama about the rich, well born, and sexy. We wonder if any local girl would do what Marcela did for a Dior collection and a trip to Paris: "entertain" a dying man. Well, girls, why not trot to the Riviera and see "Summerskin." Jean Gabin stars in the French co-feature mystery, "Night Affair," for you "film noire" fans. "Summerskin" at 6:45 and 9:55 p.m. "Night" at 8:20 p.m.

KEITH'S—If a noted sex survey team asked you, would you? This is the theme of an over-sexed pot boiler, "The Chapman Report." No one under 16 allowed to see this one, not even if you're married and have two kids. Dorothy Dandridge stars in another one of those films that have meaningless titles, "Malaga!" "Birth Certificate" at 6:10 and 9:50 p.m. "!" at 8:20 p.m.

PARAMOUNT-Return to those days of yore, those wonderful pre-natal years when the world was young and all Walt Disney made were cartoons. "Lady and the Tramp" is reminiscent of those animated days. "Almost Angels" is the current brand of Disney "live" action, sprinkled with corn. "Back to the Womb" at 7:15 and 10:15 p.m. "Actors are cheaper than drawings" at 8:36 p.m.

LOEW'S—Uh, oh, Elvin is back. His back is also back, so is his chest, so are his muscles, what there are of them. Elvis is playing "Kid Galahad," a boxer of ear drums. Sorry gals, but Elvis doesn't have much hair on his chest. No wonder. Co-featured is "The Magic Sword." No time available. Those high school girls are.

ECKEL-Cinerama tells a story. You bet it does all about how not to make any movies in Cinerama; how not to make movies in wide screen; how not to make movies about too many fairy tales: It's got a lot of action though: watch the crowds run out of the theatre. Those plaster dragons are real scary. 8:30 p.m.

SHOPPINGTOWN— Yessirree, "The Music Man" is still at the Shoppingtown. Better get out there, only seven more days to hear those 77 you-know-whats. "Theatre in the Underground" at 7:05 and 9:35 p.m.

OTHER FILMS OF INTEREST

HOLLYWOOD— "Birdman of Alcatraz" asks the question: can a tough, weather-beaten, square-jawed Burt Lancaster play a mild-mannered convict who fiddles with his birds. The answer appears at 8:35 p.m. There will be no make up. If you are right you can see "Safe at Home." But you'll have to come in at 7:10 p.m. Confusing isn't it?

FRANKLIN—"The Adventures of the Roadrunner" makes "Hatari" seems worthwhile. The "Roadrunner" short is a riot. Wish "Hatari" would run: out of town. "RR" at 8:35 p.m. "Hatari" runs twice. It'll fall on its face at 6 and 9:15 p.m.

WESCOT— "Jessica" is some crazy American chick with nice legs who tries to midwife some crazy European island. Maurice Chevalier plays the local priest (huh?). Speaking of "huh's" and other grunts and groans, "Birdman of Alcatraz" co-features. "Jessy" at 7:30 p.m. "Birdy" at 9:20 p.m.

LAKESHORE— Nothing good for you back seat fans, a good movie at passion alley tonight: Max Shulman's "Rally Round the Flag Boys." Nice satire of the good ol' teenage U.S.A. at 7:30 p.m. "Big Red" at 10 p.m. Sorry, no triple feature.

DEWITT DRIVE-IN—Another one for film and not love fans. "A Streetcar Named Desire" with MARLON. "The Notorious Landlady" with him. "Car" 7:30 p.m. "Mar" 9:48.

ALSO PLAYING

PALACE—"Big Red," 7 and 10 p.m. "Lonely are the Brave," 8:30 p.m.

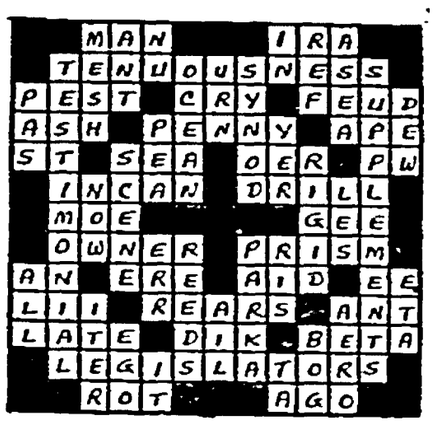
SALINA DRIVE-IN—"Streets of Sin," 7:35 and 10 p.m. "Life Begins" 9:40 and 11:30 p.m.

ON THE AIR

B'WAY ON RECORD—Original cast recording of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." 4 p.m. WAER-FM.

MEN OF MUSIC—Igor Stravinsky's Violin Concerto in D Major and the ballet "Le Sacre du Printemps." 9:05 p.m. today, WAER-FM.

SYMPHONIC SHOWCASE — Brucker's Symphony #4 and Shostakovitch's Symphony #9 are featured: 8 p.m., Saturday, WAER-FM.



WORLD OF THE VOICE-Donizetti's "Lucia Di Lammermoor" will be played. 8 p.m. Sunday, WAER-FM.

ON STAGE

Facelift for Cheering

The 1962 placard cheering section will feature a new look during its halftime show at the SU-Boston College game Saturday. This year the block of 1,116 frosh will flash placards throughout the entire program.

Changes in the background color will be made by a trick, the "amoeba," created by the placard cheering committee. The pattern will start from the center of the section and fan out like an explosion.

The committee is headed by Traditions Commission members Lee Gillespie and Joseph Kinnebrew and composed of sophomore Goons Nancy Perkins, Judith Anderson, Sandra Franklin, Susan Dugan, James Marshall, Roger Ellenberger, Shep Shepard and John Trever.

Planning

Most of the planning was done during orientation week; the idea was sketched, graphed and colored exactly as it will appear in the stands. Each freshman in the section will receive instruction sheets for the cheers.

Many new cheers have been incorporated this year, featuring simplicity and visual contrast. Features at Saturday's game will be a flying eagle cheer, a special parent's cheer requesting money, and a skimmer cheer for the Goons.

The freshmen will placard cheer at three home games this fall: Boston College, Navy and George Washington. The committee urges all members of the class of '66 to participate as often as possible and reminds them that it is a prerequisite for joining next year's Goon Squad.

Javits...

as "mythical solutions." They are: a shorted work week for labor—which would create bad conditions and still leave a shortage of jobs—and excessive governmental spending. "This solution is unwise because government only spends not produces, and production is the answer to America's economic problems."

Senator Javits presented an eight point program which, he feels, is what the U. S. should do in the face of its pressing economic issues.

Tax Cuts

"I recommend sharp tax cuts in the lower brackets and some cuts in the middle and upper levels. I also would like to see a corporate tax reduction." The senator was displeased with Kennedy's failure to issure an immediate tax reduction which, he felt, would give our economy "a drive forward."

"I also want permanent federal standards of unemployment and a system which would compensate workers who lost their jobs through automation," the senator said.

Dorm Library Plan Slated

The three major men's dormitory libraries will initiate a system of supplementing the main library reserve supply with copies of books on reserve in their individual libraries, assistant Dean of Men David F. Tatham announced Tuesday.

"Each of the three libraries, Sadler, DellPlain, and Kimmel, will have on reserve required reading books from selected courses," Tatham explained.

The dorm libraries are often open later than main branches and will thus give the students a better chance to review reserve books. The dorm libraries are open only to the residents of that dorm, Tatham said.

"The extent to which the books are used will determine how long this new system will last," he said. A list of the books on reserve in the library will be posted in the library.

At the present time this system is being used in only three dorms. Marion dorm residents are allowed to use the Kimmel facilities.

Hill Debaters Face Colgate

The Syracuse University debate club will hold its first Inter-Collegiate debate Saturday at Colgate University.

The topic "Resolved: That the Non-Communist nations should form an economic community."

Participating in the debate are Nelson Happy, Paul DeSantis, Arthur Shapera, Richard Siegel and Steven Hallmark.

Sponsored by the New York State Debate Coaches Association, students will also give demonstrations on debating.

In addition, Dr. McEvoy, debate coach, and his assistant, Richard Sawyer, will provide various debate case analysis.

New officers for the fall semester are: President, Paul DeSantis; Vice-president, J. Nelson Happy and Secretary, Carol Wurthner.

Saltine Warrior

The Saltine Warrior stood above the waters of the glacial lake. He surveyed the hills of Onondaga. He began to twist.

The game-time warrior, a relatively recent tradition at Syracuse, takes his name from the Solvay salt mines which dub Syracuse the Salt City.

The "bold, brave man" has become a pep tradition of Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity.

The warrior was introduced about eight seasons ago after an accident involving Bill Orange, former university symbol. The late Bill Orange, an orange-attired man on stilts, met with mishap during a game when he fell or was tripped from his position some ten feet off the ground.

A Lambda Chi member is selected either by a vote of the brothers or by the outgoing Indian, according to this year's Saltine Warrior, Paul Pohl.

Pohl is a senior in production management from West Springfield, Mass.

Pohl, who is 6 feet 8, explained that the warrior's costume is not authentic, since buckskin cannot be altered if the next Indian is a short, wide one. The Indian he explained, sews his own costume.

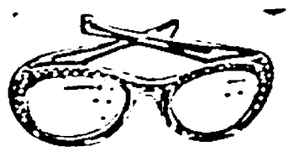
The costume consists of a feathered headdress made by Onondaga Indians on nearby Nedrow Reservation. The costume simultates an original fringed jerkin and pants.

The mood of the Saltine Warrior, be he stern and brooding or a brave of fire-water frenzy, is left to the Individual actor. While last year's Indian was the first to introduce the twist, Pohl comments, "I do whatever comes into my mind."

It appears that the old warriors, like their paleface counterparts, emerge from battle and fade easily away into public life.

Among the growing tribe of former chiefs are Thomas Parke, a student for the Episcopal clergy at General Seminary in New York City; last year's warrior, John Vorhes, an industrial designer with a New York firm and James DeDuca, a music teacher at Minoa High School.

Warrior Jack Sheehan, 300 pounds of simulated brave, aided the cheerleaders by chanting cheers in a falsetto incongruous with his mass. He was characterized as a "nebbish-type Indian."



Not unlike other university students, the warrior has his transportation problems. He appears at all home football games, those at nearby colleges and universities and bowl games.

Pohl attended the Army game, and plans to travel to Penn State and Holy Cross. But since the warrior is not included with cheerleaders under the university budget, he must arrange his own transportation to distant games.

And so each year one more Indian enters the happy hunting grounds of retirement, and a new warrior seizes the tomahawk on behalf of the Syracuse Orange.

Senator...

each geared to a specific audience, cast barbs at the Washington administration and proved Javits' "seasoned campaigner" reputation.

The first, given before the Dairymen's League convention, underlined the senator's position as a representative of the "second largest dairying state in the nation."

Explaining his liberal stand on farm and other matters, the senator said "I deserve my reputation as a liberal and I'm proud of it."

Speaking before the Lincoln Republican Club, an Italian-American group, Javits discussed his work in the area of equal opportunity, especially in the field of emmigration reforms.

He described the nation's emmigration laws as "one of the most discreditable set of laws on the books and called for their revision.

"Italians don't suffer any more than Greeks, Spaniards or Russians," noted the senator, "but they seem more concerned than other groups with the situation."

The Southern Democrats are most responsible for this problem, said the senator who described himself as an ardent advocate of quota reform.

Describing this fall's congressional election as "the halfway poll of the historic election of 1964," Javits told an audience of university and city dignataries, "We can't take 1964 for granted any more than we can take this year's election for granted."

If the situation demands it, "the nation's voters won't hesitate for five minutes before changing presidents in 1964, said the state's senior senator. "The president doesn't do enough for unpopular causes, Javits maintained, "always attributing this lack of action to the Southern committee chairmen.

Javits repeatedly described this year's Republicn ticket as the finest state ticket ever offered to the people of New York State.

ESSPA Conference Today

By HOWIE GINSBURG

High school students from all over New York State have filed onto the Hill campus for the twenty-fifth annual Empire State School Press Association conference beginning today.

Students will get an opportunity to display their school magazines, newspapers and yearbooks, and discuss them with fellow journalism students.

Gene Gilmore, School of Journalism instructor and editor of the ESSPA Magazine, expects 500 students to attend the convention.

Speakers

Speakers at the sessions, which continue into Saturday, for the most part will be veteran school publication advisors.

The program will start this morning in Hendricks Chapel, where Laurence B. Siegfried, professor emeritus of graphic arts in the School of Journalism, will deliver the opening address.

The ESSPA banquet, to be held tonight in Sims Dining Hall, will be presided over by dean of the School of Journalism, Dr. Wesley C. Clark.

Speaker

The speaker at the banquet will be Edgar May, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter from the Buffalo Evening News. May won the prize in 1961 for his series on public welfare.

He is currently working on a book about public welfare, on a Marshall Field Foundation grant.

May has also been awarded the Walter O. Bingham award of the Buffalo Newspaper Guild for outstanding journalism in Western New York, and the "best weekly in New England" award while he was acting editor of the Belows Falls (Vt.) Times in 1962.

Guest

Charles Carver, first president of ESSPA, will be a guest at the banquet. He is expected to reminisce about his experiences in journalism.

Greetings will also be given by M. Lyle Spencer, retired dean of the Syracuse University School of Journalism.

Prof. Edmund Arnold, chairman of the SU graphic arts department, will speak at 2:30 p.m. in 207 Hall of Languages on "Tips on Layout and Type".

Other speakers today will include Mrs. Dorothy Mendelsohn and Agnes Scott Smith, of Kingston High School; Sister Marie Catherine, of the Nazareth Academy, Rochester; Fred Packer, Syracuse Vocational High School; and Mrs. Bette Russell, of Niskayuna High School.

John Trevor, Daily Orange cartoonist, will deliver a lecture on "Cartooning and Lampooning" at 10:15 a.m.

Magazine

Magazine staffers will be lectured to by Malcolm Alama, editor of the Alumni News of Syracuse University; Sister Mary Christine; and Robert Root chairman of the religious journalism department.

More lectures will be given later in the afternoon for school paper staffers

Profs. Robert Murphy and Roland Wolseley of the School of Journalism will speak at 9 a.m. Saturday. Murphy's topic will be "Get the 'Why' in Your Stories." Wolseley's will be "Critical Writing for School Publications."

Laurence Piper, president of ESSPA, will deliver a lecture on "Writing and Editing Sports" at 9 a.m. Norman Moyes, J-School instructor, will speak on "How to Take Good News Pictures," at the same time.

ing from the fire and there were only two customers at the bar to witness the colorful end of popular collegiate hangout.

The fire came during the midst of National Fire Prevention Week and only a few days after the fire marshall's office had certified the Club as meeting all safety requirements.

The Clover Club was the campus election headquarters where winners and losers alike cried in each other's brew after receiving the results of every political war held on the Hill in recent history. The scene of many a "deal" and "compromise" by campus politicans, the Club was neutral territory in which many hot feuds were forgiven and forgotten.

Returning alumni and many upperclassmen will be sadly disappointed this week-end when they find only some soggy timbers on the Almond street site once occupied by the Club.

DU Dog Dies

After a week's illness, Andrew Atticaeum Brahmal III, mascot of Delta Upsilon fraternity, died Friday of compound pneumonia.

Known as Andy, or "Woofer" the St. Bernard dog had been a part of DU for five years and was perhaps the best known canine on campus.

In memoriam the grief-stricken house is flying its flag at half mast. All donations for flowers will be gratefully accepted, according to fraternity spokesmen.

A quiet burial with only the attending vetnarian present provided the final paragraph of the five-year-old dog's life.

JSG OK's Hammer Petition

Lee Hammer's name will appear on the freshman presidential ballot, Joint Student Government elections commissioners ruled Friday.

Hammer, who was defeated in last week's freshman nominating convention, submitted a petition with the necessary 250 signatures to JSG. No other persons filed to run independently.

The commissioners, Katherine Antony and James Morris, said Hammer will have to use his own money for campaigning. The $10 limit set for convention-endorsed candidates will also apply to Hammer.

Hammer will run against the three candidates nominated by the convention — Jonathan Bernstein, Dennis Green and Richard Griffin. Elections are scheduled for Wednesday.

Bernstein commented, "I'm glad to see him in the race. May the best man win." Green and Griffin could not be reached for comment.

All candidates for office, including Hammer, will appear at a twister scheduled for 6:30 p. m. today in Flint Hall. Campaigning ends at midnight Tuesday.

'Press Can Aid Freedom' May Tells ESSPA

By HOWIE GINSBURG

There is a definite parallel between journalism and the responsible citizen, said Pulitzer Prize winning reporter Edgar May Friday evening.

May, on leave from the Buffalo Evening News, told high school journalists at the Empire State School Press Assobanquet, "an able press can preserve that virtue which prevents demagoguery."

The first requisite in the newspaper field is brains, he said. "You must have the ability to write simple English without any fancy footwork."

He called a solid basic education vital. "This is a complex world," he stated. "The day that journalism school graduates are considered freaks is over."

May told the journalists to assume nothing. Indicating that the responsible newswriter has a duty to the citizenry, he warned them always to dig under the surface and discover the meaning of what they are reporting.

He suggested high school journalists turn to the problems that concern them—those involving their fellow students.

"If I were an editor of a school paper," he said, "I would send a reporter to a local jail to talk with the delinquents there."

He discussed other "problems of your generation". Referring to students who never finish high school, he stated, "I'd like to pick 12 dropouts and follow their careers."

Following May's address, Dr. Wesley C. Clark, dean of the School of Jounralism, presented two full tuition scholarships to the J-school.

The awards, given in conjunction with the ESSPA conference, were presented to Carol Allen of Sweet Home High School, Buffalo, and Laurel Deutsch of Sewanhaka High.

Tolley Speaks on SU, Students at Breakfast

"Youngsters are like horses, they're skittish unless they know you and trust you," said Syracuse University Chancellor William P. Tolley at the annual Parents Weekend breakfast Saturday in Sims Dining Hall.

Addressing a capacity audience of 700, Tolley told parents "We (the administration) act as parents in your absence." He assured parents that SU has parental faith in and affection for its students.

"I don't think students realize they are sheltered and protected here," Tolley said. He warned parents against taking their children's letters too seriously. "By the time the postman delivers the letter to you the crisis is over and a new crisis is starting," the chancellor stated.

Citadel of Freedom

Tolley described SU as "a tremendous citadel of freedom." He emphasized, "We insist on the right to inquire. The only freedom that is important is freedom to think."

While the chancellor expressed belief in state-supported education, he said, "If we are going to have a free society we must have some free institutions."

Focusing his attention on freshmen and their parents, Tolley said, "One of our rules is to never overestimate the knowledge of a freshman and never underestimate his intelligence."

Boys and Girls

Tolley explained "Youngsters come to us not men and women, but boys and girls." However, he continued, "We have to treat them as if they are adults."

"It is ridiculous to get saddled with a member of the opposite sex in your freshman year," the chancellor advised freshmen.

In a speech following Tolley's address Theodore Pierson, national chairman of the SU Parents Assn., reported that parents have donated $120,000 toward a new health service and infirmary.

Pierson called for parents to give donations which are tax deductible and asked those who could to give gifts "above the $10,000 figure."

Friday, SU Vice President for Academic Affairs, Frank P. Piskor told parents that the university expects their sons and daughters to make a quick adjustment to college academic life.

Addressing the annual School for Parents, Piskor said SU expects students to make "social mistakes" but said, academically, "our goal is to hasten adulthood as soon as possible."

Piskor listed academic aspirations students should have: respect for love; freedom; the life of the mind; awareness of the social environment, concern for values and standards and preparation for a life's work.

Court Will Ask IFC Bar on Theft Pranks

Joint Student Court is planning to send a strong recommendation to the Inter-Fraternity Council Judicial Board asking action be taken against any fraternity involved in thefts that are part of their house pledging and initiation programs.

The JSC action stemmed from a case involving two fraternity pledge brothers who stole two metal ash urns from Dellplain dormitory as part of a pre-initiation scavanger hunt.

The two sophomores involved in the case last week were put on disciplinary probation for a semester and were told to pay fines of $20 within two weeks to the bursar's office.

Share Blame

JSC Chief Justice Robert Dick told the Daily Orange that both boys involved said they disliked the idea of stealing University property and felt that their fraternity should to some extent share the blame.

"The boys involved related to the court that they would under conditions be involved in stealing from local stores or from individuals," Dick noted.

In another case, a freshman girl, caught stealing at the book store Oct. 10 pleaded guilty before the court last week and was placed on disciplinary probation for a semester.

The girl was required to make a verbal apology to book store head Burton L. Fink, pay a $1.45 fine, and was further required to do one hour a week of constructive work for the university.

'On' Editors to Meet

Senior and junior editors of the "Onondagan" will meet at 3 p.m. Wednesday in prefab 7.

Mr. James McWilliams, representative of the yearbook publishing company, will discuss the production of the '63 "On."

AN APOLOGY

On page two of last Friday's Daily Orange a small bit of so-called filler material appeared which the editor feels should never have been set in type, let alone appear in the paper. We are at a loss to explain how this filler got past the editors and we would like to apologize to any persons offended by it.

Morality Case Rocks Cornell

By CLAY RICHARDS

ITHACA—The suspension of a Cornell University graduate student who lived with a woman in his apartment last summer has inspired widespread unrest on the Ithaca campus.

The unidentified student was indefinitely suspended on Oct. 4 by the Cornell faculty committee on student conduct for violating the school's unwritten code of morality.

The girl, also unidentified, was reported to have been a coed at another college.

Two controversies have arisen from the case, one between graduate students and the university concerning the application of undergraduate social policy on the graduate level and another between the student government and the administration over where responsibility rests for establishment of the school's social code.

Grads

In the primary controversy, graduate students are protesting the suspension on the grounds that the university does not have the right to determine their social policy. They also claim violation of their civil liberties.

Also causing conflict is the question of the "Cornell Code" for students. In this incident, which sets up social regulations the university over-rode the student government's code and handed down its own decision.

At least three student groups met with Cornell officials Friday to discuss the matter which has been growing in complexity since the suspension action was taken.

Policy

"The really significant outcome is, of course, the role of the Cornell student in the molding of important student policy," commented student government President Harold Nathan. This is especially important at the presnt time when a revised student code is under consideration, Nathan said.

In addition to the meetings, the student newspaper, the Cornell Daily Sun, has been featuring the controversy on both its front and editorial pages. Undergraduates, graduate students and faculty members have been writing letters to the paper in a manner reminiscent of the university imposed social code controversy which sparked Cornell student riots in the spring of 1958.

The attitude on campus Friday, a Sun editor told a Daily Orange reporter Friday, is far different from the angry mood of 1958. No one expects a repetition of the riots which culminated in the burning in effigy of various faculty members and the throwing of eggs and stones at President Deane W. Malott.

The student code, which came into being as a result of the 1958 riots, requires only that a studen tbehave in a gentlemanly or lady-like fashion with spelling out in detail offenses which would cause disciplinary action.

Commenting on the present issue, the graduate student involved commented, "the university has the right to establish rules and regulations for students. It also has the obligations to let them (the students) know what they're about. It the university wishes to make regulations prohibiting behavior not illegal, it definitely has to let students know their rights have been curtailed."

The student was given a five day deadline to get out of the city of Ithaca but this was later extended by the school.

What is a Newspaper?

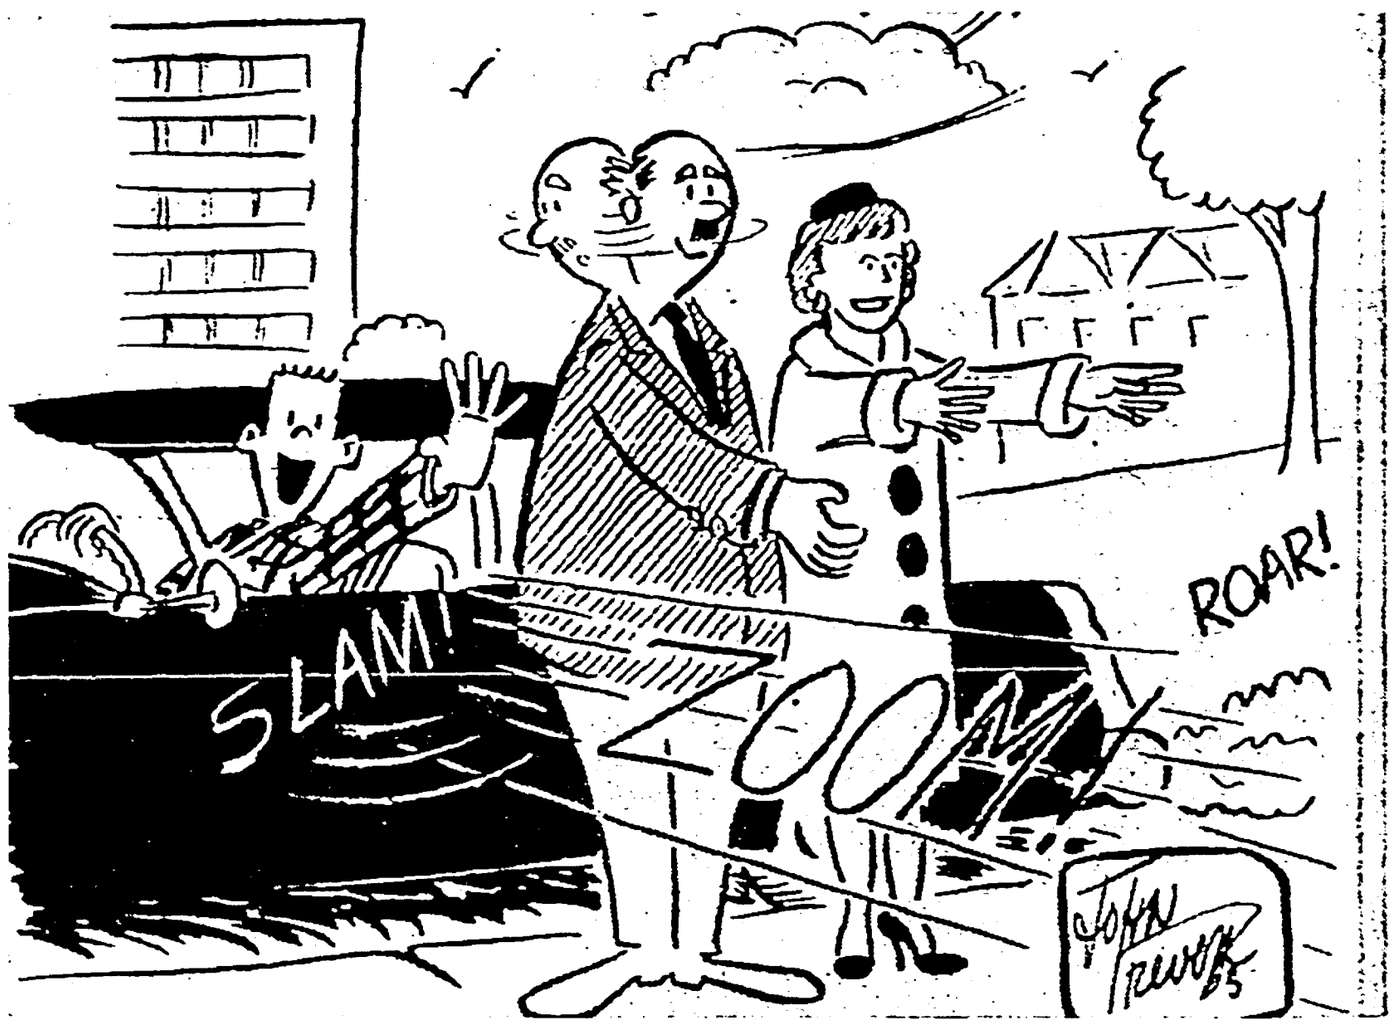
By Rep. Carl Albert, Okla.

Majority Leader, U. S. House of Representatives

To the layman, a newspaper is a sometimes satisfying, occasionally perplexing, and often exciting experience. To the newspaperman, the American public must present a similar enigma. As an element in our society, we view no single institution as more fundamental than the press in expressing the divergent views arising out of free and open discussion; more formidable in the structuring of public opinion; or more faithful in the execution of its vast responsibilities.

In an age of potential push-button annihilation when the repercussions of error can be catastrophic, we must be able to marshall the best thinking of the best minds and bring it to bear on the problem at hand. The functioning of an open democratic society demands an informed populase. History is replete with decisions not made or made erroneously because the weight of public opinion was against them. Thus, a newspaper becomes the means of disseminating information — accurate, factual information—to serve as the basis for reasoned judgment.

This is not to say that a newspaper is committed to total objectivity. What could be more appropriate in a free society than the expression of honest convictions strongly held? No man would deny a newspaper editor the citizen's privilege to form an opinion on the basis of the available facts and argue the wisdom of his decision. Nor would any responsible editor deny the citizen's right of access to all the available facts, presented without bias, on which to base his judgment.



Many factors emerge which affect the newspaper's basic function as a disseminator of information. The newspaper has a responsibility to the local community it serves. This public service aspect is familiar to us all in announcements of community interest and local news feature stories. More important, however, is the service rendered by the newspaper which recognizes its influence on the public mind, to stimulate the interest and arouse the concern of the average citizen in those issues which are broader than his private world. No concept is more germane to the success of democratic government than the proposition that every citizen shares the responsibility for his government. No institution performs a greater public service than preparing the citizen to fulfill this responsibility.

The supposed inroads of the "electronic media" in the areas of disseminating information and influencing public opinion have been the subject of considerable discussion in recent years. There is no doubt that radio and television have profoundly changed the habits of news-hungry Americans. On-the-spot coverage enables the listener and viewers to participate in the news, and newspapers, by their very nature, cannot compete with this speed in transmitting information. On the other hand, the electronic media cannot compete with the newspapers in depth of news coverage presented. The permanency of the written word —its availability for later close scrutiny and intensive study— provide the opportunity to delve below the surface of the issue and probe the principles underlying it.

When a newspaper succumbs to the temptation to simplify issues in order to popularize them, it loses the advantage of the analytical and abdicates its responsibility for the accurate. That portion of the public interested only in a sketchy superficial reporting of circumstances can be satisfied by a five minute newscast: the man who seeks a solution through the logical sequence of sifting facts, ideas, and theories demands the full presentation that only a newspaper can give. It is not beyond the realm of probability that the majority of newspaper readers desire facts plus analysis, both clearly delineated. It is not inconceivable that the majority are sophisticated enough to recognize the shades of gray, as well as the black and white, of a given problem. It is not implausible to challenge the old notion that sensationalism sells newspapers; rather, it is logical to view a newspaper as fulfilling the dual role of informant ond analyst.

Faced with the dynamic world in which we live, the concept of the newspaper and its role in our society cannot remain static. Used irresponsibly or unjustly, the power of the press can be a torch to raze our democratic structure and reduce to ashes our confidence in the ability of man to determine his destiny; used with responsibility and intelligence, the power of the press can remain the cornerstone of our monument to democracy.

GARDEN OF EDEN

More About Pinebrook

By Carol Schlageter

People constantly approach this writer and ask, tongue-in-cheek, if an event will receive "fair" news coverage in the Daily Orange. Perhaps a small discussion of journalistic practice is in order.

A reporter is assigned to cover a specific beat or story. When covering this story he must write the facts objectively — that is, without allowing personal opinion to enter in. A columnist, however, writes articles expressing his / her opinion on a given event. Columns are set aside from the rest of a newspaper and are placed on the editorial page.

The two types of writing, then, are totally divorced.

With the semantic exercise thus set aside, this writer would discuss one of the most thought-provoking topics which she has encountered. The spirit of the Pinebrook Conference bears further investigation.

In a "color" story on what Pinebrook meant to those who attended, Schlageter wrote:

"Humor and fellowship pervaded the Adirondacks conference camp, despite rain which fell for all but an afternoon of the three day session. Beneath pines two centuries old and vivid foliage, that fellowship provide a bond between students and administration.

"They served each other meals and jokes. The Chancellor and a student danced together to the 'Dark Town Strutters Ball'."

But because of the responsibility of objective reporting, Schlageter could not continue her observations.

deed friendly. The idea ex-

That atmosphere was inchange was indeed profitable for student government. But perhaps the barriers between student and administrator were lifted a little too much Perhaps the students forgot just who they were representing.

One student said to this writer, "What am I going to say to the guys when I go home? Am I going to tell them we buddy-buddied with the administration and told jokes? They want to know what happened to Syracuse 10. They don't want to know about the little steps which JSG has taken, they want to know answers to the current issues. But none of our campus leaders had the guts to stand up there and ask."

As it turned out, the students did have a chance to find out about Syracuse 10 and other issues. But the informal interview with the Chancellor lasted less than an hour.

That group discussed religion at Syracuse, Syracuse 10, university drinking policy and other vast topics. An hour could not have substantially dented any one of these topics.

In her keynote address to Pinebrook, Dr. Betty Cosby pointed out that the students like faculty and administration, "are bound to all that comprises the university." Did the so-called campus leaders, in enthusiasm for their newly-welded bond with the administrators, forget that they are also bound to the student body?

Did Pinebrook fall into the (Kent) Barwick boat along with campus government — "a good place to bury troublemakers and keep them talking to themselves." Was Pinebrook just a little more than that — a place where administrators could impress leaders with the fact that they were "good guys" never to be confused with the evil bureaucrats in most hierarchies?

Indeed, the administrators are not "bad guys." But those students who did not have the opportunity for face-to-face contacts with the administrators do not know this. I suggest that this conference might have been of more value if some of the issues which are troubling the student body could have been explored and explained. These explanations could have better instilled in the student body the realization that administrators are really human.

Of course the principal purpose of the conference was to air ideas to improve student government. This was the purpose of the 50 persons who attended. But did they overlook a most important secondary function? Did they forget that student goverment is Alexander P. Student's only liaison with sometimes obscure administrative policy?

Interference

To the Editor:

I am somewhat annoyed at the interference by some sophomore students in the recent "Frosh" elections. The nominating convention was to be strictly run by the freshmen election committee and its delegates.

Yet, certain sophomores not only lobbied at the convention but actually maneuverde their way into Maxwell Auditorium, during voting, and influenced votes through jestures and bias outbursts.

Miracles

To the Editor:

The history of the "miracles" of Thersa Neumann sounds like a perfect case of mental and physical derangement. Can an apparently intelligent young man like Terry Hughes really expect us to sympathize with this woman? to worship her as a saint?

No one will disagree with Mr. Hughes' right to believe what he will, nor with his right to print those beliefs. We can only ask what his purpose is. In all truth his article does not belong in a campus newspaper. What does he hope to prove? What is he aiming at?

The age of science has wrought its havoc on all religions, and perhaps catholicism has suffered most because of its dogmatic principles.

We "heathens" must be content to sit back and enjoy the progress man has made in pushing back the limits of our known universe. We must deprive ourselves of the more dubious pleasures of viewing a "living saint" in all her religious passion.

UP IN THE AIR

Quality in the Airwaves

By Quentin Newfield

There recently has been a barrage of criticism leveled at the broadcasting industry, and perhaps rightly so. This is no attempt to hide the faults of both radio and tele vision, but simply an effort to focus on what is good. There is lots!

It's immediately apparent that the electronic media has certain inherent advantages. The recent concert from the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts is an excellent example.

Millions across the country had an opportunity to see and hear America's best music as it was actually being performed. At any given time whatever is offered is available to 99 per cent of our population through radio, well over 80 per cent via TV.

A day hardly goes by without someone saying to me that he wouldn't have one of those "noise-boxes" in the house, or if you don't like westerns tele vision is no good.

Instances of sincere efforts by television and radio are becoming even more numerous. Eyewitness to History, ABC Close-Up and David Brinkley's Journal represent just a portion of good material available from each of the TV networks.

Not only can all of us be entertained and well informed by just sitting in our living rooms and cars, but we can even earn college credits in history, economics, language, etc., right at home.

The Montana sheep herder can keep informed and listen to the nation's musical works of art; others are kept informed while traveling or on the job. The list could go on.

Still, I can agree that a lot of what is available we might be better off without. Jim Bormann of WCCO Minneapolis-St. Paul has said that the broadcaster's integrity may be lost if we continue to rely upon "capsulized news washed down with discordant platter music." It seems to me, though, that the responsibility for a real change rests as much upon the public as the man in charge.

Almost everywhere there is a wide choice of radio listening at hand, and all metropolitan areas have more than one television channel.

My whole point has been that good radio and television are available today. That is no excuse to forget that there is room for plenty of improvement.

If we want improvement it's our duty not to accept the mass of sensational and uncreative junk that is around. The faster we, as an audience, demand better programming by ignoring the trash and only paying attention to the good, the more rapid further improvement will be.

Frosh Squad Ready

This year's Freshman football team has quite a record to live up to, but it looks like they can do it. Besides the fact that last year's team had a three win—one loss record, this year's team has a five game schedule ahead of them. Four of these games are away.

This is Coach Jim Shreve's fourth year with the freshman squad. During his years as coach, he has won 11 games and lost only one. Coach Shreve graduated from Syracuse University in '51.

One of the "big ones" on the team is Steven Chomyszak. Steve is a graduate of Johnson City High School, Johnson City, N.Y., "Number 74", Steve is a 6-4, 235 pound tackle.

The smallest man on the team is 5-9, 210 pound John Los. John is from Ipswich High School, Ipswich, Mass.. John plays Guard.

The Tangerines, start their season against Penn State, at University Park, October 20.

Friday, October 26, they play Army at West Point.

SU Crews In Autumn Practices

By BILL CRONAUER

With eyes to the 1964 Olympic games in Tokyo, the Syracuse University crew teams are working out daily on Lake Onondaga.

Our coach Loren School predicts a successful season for his varsity, junior varsity and freshman crews. "I'm looking forward to a good year. The varsity squad is thin, but of fine quality."

Good Frosh

School is equally impressed with the rowing of this year's freshman team. Under assistant coach Gene Perry, the Orange frosh are currently practicing technique on Lake Onondaga.

The 1962-63 rowers will attempt to return crew honors to Syracuse and to shoot for a spot on the Olympic team. In 1959, the Hill oarsmen won an event in the Pan American Games in Chicago.

Hopes for a prosperous season fall on the shoulders of strokesmen Giles Van DerBogert, Paul Salm and Charlie Rayfield. Van DerBogert served as the number two strokesman for the varsity last year. Salm called strokes for the frosh crew while Rayfield sat out the 1961-62 season with an injury.

Veteran

A large group of experienced returnees indicates a successful spring for Bill Orange. Captain-elect Bill Sanford, Dave Price, Ted Kakas, and Steve Gladstone are holdover varsity oarsmen. Coxswain John Reed and bow Walt Barber also return.

Seven junior varsity starters are back for another crew campaign. Oarsmen Don Rick, Bruce Buckley, Carl Paralato and Paul Eckhardt return, along with stroke Hogan, bow Dave Norris and sox Dick Hersh. Senior reserves Scott Sanford and Frank Benson should see some rowing action.

Up from the strong 1961-62 freshman team are Tom Prindiville, Gennaro Cibelli and Harry Gedney. Sophomores Stu Schiffrin looms as a prospective starter. Newcomers Jim Segaloof and Chuck Grandey provide coxswain support.

Mahle Stars In SU Win

Air Attack Wanted For PSU

By ALLAN KORT
Sports Editor

"We still need a passing attack," Syracuse University Coach Ben Schwartzwalder said following the Orange's 12-0 whitewash of the Boston College Eagles Saturday afternoon before a Parents Day crowd of 31,000 at Archbold Stadium.

Even though Ben was pleased with his squad's aggressive attack, he noted that SU hurlers could only complete three of eight passes for 31 yards.

The big story unfolding at Archbold Saturday was sophomore quarterback Walley Mahle, the 6-3 English-accented lad from Pennsylvania who was called from his fourth string position to stimulate a Syracuse running attack.

Mahle Surprises

"Walley is a good tough kid," Schwartzwalder said, "who doesn't freeze under pressure. Whenever he was caught unaware by the BC line, he always came up with a five or six yard gain."

Mahle amazed Orange spectators with his running speed as he galloped 101 yards in 16 carries and scored the Orange's only two TD's of the year; the first climaxed a 74-yeard Syracuse 16-play drive as the previously untried quarterback anteloped 10 yards around left end for the score.

The second score came in the closing seconds of the fourth period as Mahle climaxed a 17 play-86 yard drive with a 20-yard run around right end.

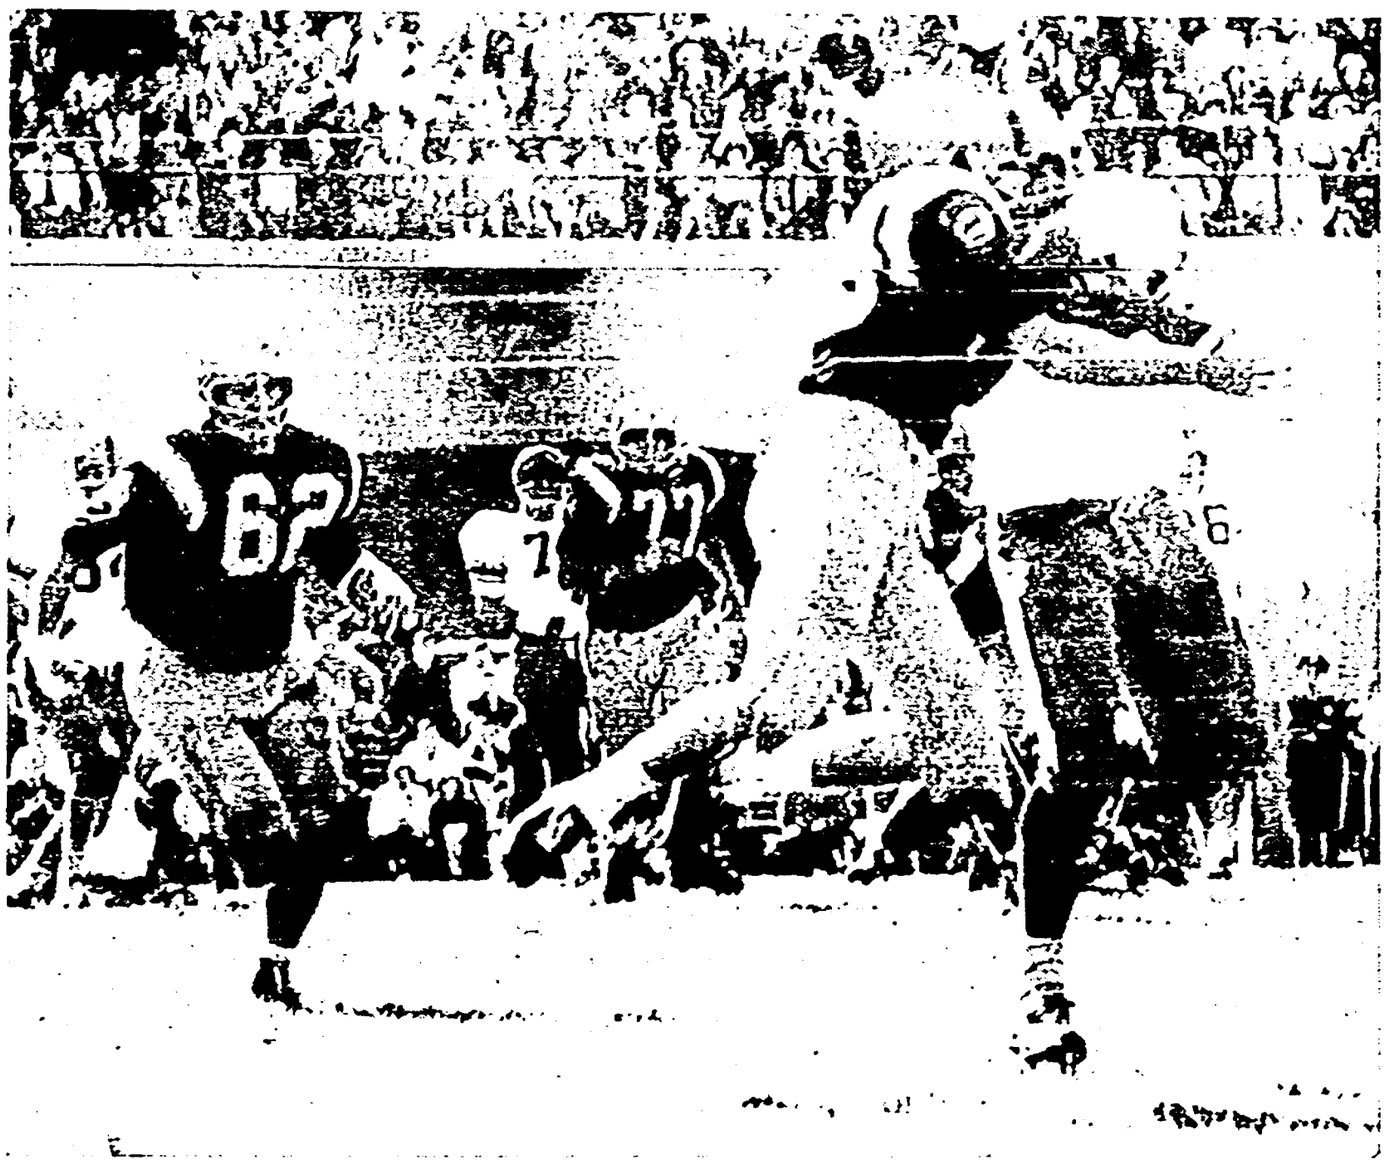
Teamwork Helped

Syracuse showed the teamwork it lacked in the first two contests. "Our blocking was good," Ben said "and we got good running from Jim Nance and Jim Gaskins.

The two left halfbacks were the only Orange injuries. Nance suffered a briused thigh late in the first half and did not return, while Gaskins suffered a nose injury late in the game. Nance, running from his new left halfback post, picked up 38 yards in six carries, while Gaskins had 50 yards in 10 carries.

Bill Schoonover ran well from the fullback spot which he recently acquired, buffaloing 35 yards in 10 carries.

Strong Rushing



Offensively the Orangemen ground out 19 first downs to the opposition's eight; out rushed BC, 271 yards to 40, and hit for 31 yards in the air, while Concannon's passes netted 62 yards.

Looking ahead to the Penn State contest next week at University Park, Schwartzwalder said, "The kids had plenty of hustle out there and that should give us the lift we've needed.

"Nance did well from his left half spot, since he could run more wide open and didn't have to worry about blocking assignments.

"We now have to work on Mahle's passing,' Ben said, "He should do fairly well in the air once he gets his feet on the ground."

In summing up SU's first win of the year Ben said, "we won this one the tough way...on the ground. Next week, we'll have to have a passing attack to throw at Penn State.

JOHN MACKEY grabs Lelli pass in the first half and is stopped in his tracks by BC defender. SU won game, 12-0.

Syracuse Opponents Plagued By Upsets

While Syracuse University was on its way to winning its first grid contest of the year, Syracuse opponents were having their usual good weekend, winning six contests while dropping three.

This was a week of upsets with powerful Penn State, rated first in the East and third in the nation, dropping a 9-6 heartbreaker to a hustling Army team.

Penn State, a heavy favorite to defeat Army led 6-3 with less than a minute remaining in the game. Army put on a blistering drive and moved to the Penn State 17 where they had the choice of kicking a field goal for the tie, or going for the win.

A flat pass was successful in bringing the Nittany Lions their first taste of defeat this year.

In another upset, the Mountainers of West Virginia remained in the undefeated ranks, toppling a strong Pittsburgh team, 15-8. West Va. had been unscored upon going into the Pitt game.

Oklahoma, the team involved in many heartbreakers this year, lost a close one to third-rated Texas. Oklahoma beat Syracuse, 7-3 on a last minute touchdown, then lost to Notre Dame in a close one last week.

The Colonels of George Washington University won their second game in four outings, nipping Boston University 14-6, while Holy Cross defeated Harvard, 34-20, in one of the highest scoring games of the year.

Navy, which had trouble scoring in earlier contests, launched an overwhelming attack and sunk the Big Red of Cornell, 41-0.

Another SU opponent proved it will be tough against Syracuse. UCLA, which upset Ohio State last week, continued on the unbeaten track, whipping Colorado State, 35-7.

Michigan State University contributed the largest number of faculty members of any American college or university to overseas research or training programs in 1960.

Hill Cagers Have Hopes

This evening, the Syracuse hoopsters open their practice under Coach Fred Lewis. Many question marks surround this year's varsity squad, and Lewis a rookie coach, will obviously have many problems.

One big hopeful is Carl Vernick, who averaged 18 points a game last year for the Orange. Also back from last year squad are Dick Finley and Dick Taylor, both dependable backcourt men. Up front, the Orange are looking for big things from forward Herb Foster and 6-5 center, Manny Klutschkowski.

Up from last year's freshman team are forward Phil Schoff, and guard Richard Duffy.

Prospects look very good for a fine freshman team. The squad includes All-Americans Frank Nicoletti, Dave Bing, and Jim Boeham. The team is bolstered in height with the addition of Dick Ableman, 6-5, who was last year's New York State second division high scorer, as well as Rex Trowbridge, 6-9, from Bethlehem High School, Delmore.

The frosh are coached by Dr. Morris Osburn, who, like the varsity mentor, came to the Hill from Mississippi Southern. Both coaches have high hopes for this year's squads, and, while the varsity is not as blessed with material as is the freshman team, the varsity Hill hoopsters have heart.

The Institute of International Education reports that some 1700 faculty members from almost 400 American colleges and universities were on research or teaching assignments in the past year.

Student Program Offers Jobs Abroad

By SUSAN WEINBERG

A completely student-run program provides summer jobs for American students in almost any country they wish to visit.

In its second year at Syracuse University, the International Association for Students of Economics and Commercial Studies (AIESEC), will have organizational meetings at 7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, in Maxwell Auditorium.

The program, open to undergraduate and graduate students, is geared mainly for students majoring in commerce and economics who wish to work in their field in a foreign country, said Robert Troy, AIESEC co-chairman.

At Syracuse, AIESEC screens and selects university applicants and tries to find jobs for foreign students who wish to come to the United States.

Jobs

Syracuse AIESEC is entitled to send as many students as it finds jobs for foreign students, Troy noted.

Last year four Syracuse students participated in the program. They were David Collins, who went to Germany; Dick Funda, Yugoslavia; Ann Siegel, Yugoslavia; and Barbara Tennant, Spain.

In return, two Dutch and one Swiss studnet worked in Syracuse for the summer.

About 55 countries now participate in AIESEC, which was organized internationally after World War II.

It started in Europe and has since spread to include countries in Asia, Africa, North and South America, Troy explained.

Although students have many countries from which to choose, about 85 per cent request France, Germany, Italy, Greece and the Scandanavia countries.

About 10 per cent choose South America; the others pick Asia and Africa.

Most of the foreign students in the program who visit America are likewise from France, The Netherlands and Great Britain.

Total exchange among all 55 countries involved 11,000 students last year, Troy said. Of these about 350 were American students.

Local AIESEC groups in the participating countries act as reception committees during the stay of the visiting students.

They find housing, plan parties for them and take them on trips and excursions.

To qualify for the program, students must have completed their sophomore year and have had at least six hours in economics or in an approved business administration course. There is no language requirement to work in most countries.

While freshmen are not eligible to appy, they are encouraged to join AIESEC and participate in the group, emphasized Troy.

The proportion of youths who tend college is eight times greater in the United States than in England and five times greater than in Russia.

Frosh Directory Ready Soon

A Freshman Class Directory, with pictures of each freshman at Syracuse will be printed by the Navy football game, Junior Class President Logan "Slugs" Sallada announced at the Pinebrook Conference.

In addition to containing each freshman's picture, the directory lists the student's home town, age, home and campus addresses, telephone number and height.

The booklet is a Junior Class project, and will be sold by members of the group.

THE WHITE HOUSE

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK — 1962

I would like to offer my greetings to the nation's press during this observance of National Newspaper Week, 1962.

Newspapers play a vital role in our society. They have been called the universities of the people and rightly so. With all the great advances of our educational system and the spread of its benefits to an ever greater part of the population, the free press remains the most important source of popular political education without which a democracy cannot function. The responsibility of the press in fulfilling its role is great.

It must present both full and accurate news and informed comment which puts that news in perspective.

A greater part of the attention of the press is rightly focused on the doings of our government at home and abroad, another great part on the foreign scene. By what it says on these topics and the way it says it, the press does much to shape and focus the nation's thoughts on these important matters.

I think we are fortunate as a nation in having a press that tries to live up to these responsibilities with progressively higher standards.

New JSL Constitution Planned Next Month

Joint Student Legislature Steering Committee Thursday afternoon discussed a policy to strengthen JSL attendance. The committee also planned an agenda for the JSL meeting Tuesday.

David Knickerbocker, chairman of the Government Structures Committee said that the writing of a new JSL constitution will be delayed for about a month. Meanwhile, he said, his committee is investigating reapportionment of JSL senators.

Parking

Jay Litwin of the Local and National Affairs Committee said he will discuss campus parking and possible construction of parking garages with John F. Olson, vice president and assistant to the chancellor. He also outlined a proposal for uniting area universities of similar size. The group, he said, could meet this spring to discuss the work of student governments.

Litwin also said that as an individual senator he will recommend that the administration issue a statement clarifying excused and explained absences from classes. He said the administration should also make a statement concerning examinations on Gentile and Jewish holy days.

Joan Hakanson of the marking committee said her committee is compiling student and faculty opinion on the current marking system and is corresponding with other colleges about their marking systems.

Other committee heads said that they must confer with their committees before presenting recommendations on the floor of JSL.

AEC Session Held Sunday

About 150 freshmen and transfer students were introduced to the spectrum of campus activities Sunday. Following an Activities Exchange Convocation in Hendricks Chapel, signups for 24 campus activities were held in Sims Dining Hall.

Our society preserves diversity by offering choice, Joseph Julian of the Maxwell School told the convocation. In totalitarian states, he noted, there is only one organization. Organizations, he said, must remember that it is the individual man they serve.

Activities Exchange Commissioners Beverly Lewis and James Tallon presided at the convocation.

Explosive Potential Seen In Cornell Morality Case

By CLAY RICHARDS

ITHACA — Quiet prevailed at Cornell University Monday afternoon but an "explosive situation" is seething under the surface, according to Cornell Daily Sun Editor-in-Chief Robert Gabriner.

Tempers flared at the Ithaca school last week when the administration went over the head of the student government and suspended a student for living with a women in his apartment during the summer session.

In overruling student government-established "Cornell Code" the administration has started an explosion from which echoes may not fade for months.

Cornell Daily Sun Editor-in-Chief Robert Gabriner told the Daily Orange Monday that the coed involved is reportedly a Cortland State University student.

In attempting to confirm this report with the dean of women's office at Cortland, the Daily Orange was told no comment could be made on the report unless the coed's name was known. The office said Cornell University had not been in contact with them on the case.

The case is expected to come to a head early next month when a new student code will be offered to the university administration for approval, Gabriner told the Daily Orange. Under this more liberal code, the student could not have been suspended even if he had been an undergraduate.

Gabriner explained that at Cornell, male undergrads are allowed to seek apartment housing in the city if they desire..

Riots

"If the university administration does not approve the new code it is very possible that a situation similar to the 1958 riots will occur," Gabriner said.

A similar disciplinary action by the university in 1958 resulted in three days of rioting culminated by the burning in effigy of several faculty members and the throwing of eggs and stones at Cornell Pres. Deane W. Malott.

Two petitions have been drawn up by the Cornell Liberal Student Organization and the Graduate Students Assn. asking reinstatement of the student.

The student, a graduate assistant majoring in psychology, left Ithaca Sunday without appealing the case.

The executive board of student government Friday night accepted a proposal urging that it be given a more active role in the formulation of university policy.

The board also directed the faculty committee on student affairs to report its preliminary findings and recommendations on the new code no later than Nov. 1, 1962.

The new code differs from the existing one in that it states the university is not to interfere with he private lives of students as long as they are not disturbing the rights of others, Gabriner explained.

Student Government Pres. Harold Nathan contends this clause is not contradictory to the policy set forth in the report of Cornell deans of the undergraduate colleges in 1958 which reads "the university. . .cannot undertake to act in loco parentis if this means maintaining concern for and supervision over all aspects of the student's life—social, moral, and religious as well as intellectual.."

Editorial

Gabriner, in a Sun editorial Friday, opposed the student government move, stating: "Students at this university outnumber the faculty by 11-1.. The proposal, therefore, would allow students to literally run the university. We always thought we were here to educate ourselves. It's a nice try, but we are sure that something more realistic can be suggested by either the members of the board of student body."

Opinion is divided at Cornell on this issue, Gabriner told the Daily Orange.. Directly opposed to the student government view, Gabriner said, is university spokesman Prof. Robert Sweet who said: "Sexual morality is a legitimate concern of the university faculty."

The Cornell case recalls a recent case at St. John's University in New York City where two Catholic students were suspended for being married in civil court.. In the legal battle to reinstate the couple, a lower court ordered the school to reaccept them on the grounds that they were married legally, although not in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church.

A higher court in reviewing the St.. Johns case reversed the lower court decision, saying the school had the right to determine the moral basis for their students.

The case is now before the Court of Appeals for a final decision.

The Campaign Trail

By ANDY PORTE

Plans for their class weekend Dec. 7-8 were the most common topic as the 13 candidates for freshman offices spoke before class members Monday night. The candidates spoke at a mixer in Flint Hall, sponsored by the junior class.

Jonathan Bernstein, the first of the presidential candidates to address the group, called for a freshman class assembly, an inter-class council bringing together the heads of each class and Joint Student Government, a student newsletter, and extensive weekend plans, including a carnival, twister, semi-formal dance and a faculty talent show.

Dennis Green, another presidential candidate, recommended a Friday night dance for the weekend, followed by a party at Skytop on Saturday afternoon, and a name group for Saturday night. He also suggested other class projects, such as a Sadie Hawkins dance.

Richard Griffin, a third candidate for president, called for an open Freshman Weekend,

Two Staffers Write Books For SU Press

By DANIEL RITEY

Two new books, both written by Syracuse University faculty members, are scheduled to be published this week by the SU Press. One deals with international law and the other with the role of the historian.

"Perspectives and Patterns," by Dr.. Warren B. Walsh, professor of Russian history and Chairman of the Board of Russion Studies, comprises four essays which explore the historian's function and the recent entry of science into the historical field.

History and Science

Richard B. Lillich, director of the international legal studies program in the College of Law, is the co-author of "International Claims: Their Preparation and Presentation." Gordon A. Christenson, Attorney - Adviser in the Office of the Legal Adviser, U..S. Department of State, co-authorized the book with Prof. Lillich.

Walsh's book relates history and science, investigates the quest for objectivity and unites, on common grounds, the arts, social sciences and the scientific approach to history, in four independent but interrelated es- Dr. Walsh's 35 years as a his- historian form the background and substance of his new book.

Prof. Lillich's book explains the mechanics of preparing and presenting international claims to various legal bodies like the State Department, the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission and other international commissions. Syracuse Recruits 84 Professors

By CHARLES M. STEINBERG

Eighty-four new members have been added to the Syracuse faculty this year in what Vice President for Academic Affairs Frank P. Piskor terms "our finest year of recruiting in the past three years."

The new additions, which represent appointments to the rank of assistant professor and above, come to Syracuse from 32 different academic institutions, from state and federal government and from private industry. The institutions most heavily hit by SU recruiting were the University of Chicago with six teachers drafted and Yale and Ohio State Universities with four each.

"The 84 we've brought in reflect an expansion in the total number of the faculty and also our desire to prepare for the increasing size of the student body," Piskor said. "Certain significant additions reflect our commitment to maintain strength in the science-mathematics area, our new emphasis is creative writing — and our traditional strength in the social sciences," he said.

The new emphasis in creative writing at Syracuse is apparently heralded by the addition of of novelist - poet, Delmore Schwartz. The author of some 11 volumes, the most recent of which is "Successful Love and Other Stories," Schwartz has been appointed visiting professor of English. He has taught at Harvard, Princeton and Chicago Universities and Kenyon College, Ohio and was poetry editor of the New Republic in 1955-57. Schwartz will write another book while at Syracuse this year.

Geography

Syracuse's highly-reputed geography department this year gains Assoc. Prof.. Richard Dahlberg. Dahlberg, who has taught at UCLA for the past six years, is a cartographer with a special interest in African studies. He is expected to participate in the Maxwell School's special program in that area.

Mathematics

The mathematics department gains the greatest single number of new recruits — seven. Included are two full professors, Kleinfeld and Herbert Ryser. from Ohio State, Drs. Erwin Rysen, with Ohio State for 12

(See Professors, Page 7)

Carnival Queen

The crowning of a "Miss Campus Chest" will highlight this year's Campus Chest Carnival, scheduled for Oct. 26 on the main quad.

Each application should include the girl's address, phone number and a $2 entrance fee.

Contestants will attend two qualification coffees until finalists are chosen. The girls will be judged on personality, social presence and beauty. Final voting will be done by the student body.

For any additional information Robert Davis, ext. 2626 or Elaine Weiss, ext. 2968, may be contacted.

All living centers, fraternities, sororities and activity groups are invited to enter contestants. Applications must be turned in Thursday at the main desk of Shaw Dormitory or Sigma Nu fraternity, 801 Walnut Ave.

Cinderella on Campus

The 1959 Syracuse University football team was called a Cinderella team because of its miraculous performances which surprised most experts.

Well, it seems that shortly after that season ended Syracuse football turned back into the pumpkin and started to rot in the field.

Things had been getting blacker and blacker as 1959 became 1960 and 1960 became 1961, etc. This year Syracuse was faced with a nightmare—two consecutive losses without scoring a touchdown.

Then came Parents' Weekend (or the prince's ball) and from the cinders came a fourth-string quarterback (stepsister) with a name that most people had never heard and could not really pronounce with certainty.

But things were going bad and Ben Schwartzwalder gave him the chance. We won't carry the analogy too far and call Ben the Fairy Godmother, but on Saturday Walley Waitman Mahle certainly became the Cinderella on campus.

In the great tradition of sport, Walley came onto the field without a minute's varsity experience and engineered Syracuse's first win of the year, scoring both touchdowns.

Next week Mahle will face a rugged Penn State team and many cynics will be critically watching him waiting for the pumpkin to burst. But based on his outstanding performance last week before the home crowd, we think maybe Walley Mahle's story will live happily ever after.

THE GADFLY

Literary Flower

By T. Lee Hughes

Tempers flared last week in the first public comment on whether or not there will be a "Syracuse 10" this year.

The '10', once a literary, and then a 'muckraking' campus magazine, last year was the chief ingredient of the university's public stew pot.

A proposed article by the staff on the university's food service system erupted into a controversy when some members of the administration insisted that such an article was not in keeping with the 'literary' format, while the publication's editors declared they had a right to determine editorial content themselves.

The pot appears to be bubbling still.

A month ago Dean of the School of Journalism Wesley C. Clark told one of last year's editors that he had received no financial allotment from the university for publication of the '10'.

It appeared as if the University had silently laid the publication in its grave.

But information concerning the move was at a premium. Clark refused to say any more than that the magazine's budget had been cut, and that he even refused to admit publicly.

According to informed sources, English department head Sanford Meech got wind of the budget slice, and made a sudden foray into the office of University Vice President Frank Piskor.

Meech was reportedly upset with the University for laying the axe to what previously had been the institution's only outlet for creative expression.

Indeed he had material for a convincing case. The university had dumped $10,000 into a new radio tower for WAER atop Mount Olympus. Yet in the wake of last year's controversy, the University was claiming, apparently, that it could not support a student magazine.

What took place behind the doors to Piskor's office can only be the subject of speculation. But it must have involved some animated conversation, because shortly after Dean John S. Hafer announced that there now would be a Board of Publications meeting, presumably to discuss the fate of the '10'.

But the fly in the ointment was, who was to explain the delay in calling the meeting? The result probably stands as the first time in Piety's history that one university official has challenged the veracity of another in print.

Last Tuesday Dean Hafer was quoted in the DO as saying "Dean Wesley C. Clark, Chairman of the Board of Publications and School of Journalism Dean, had not called the usual fall meeting of the board, and I felt it was time to discuss some of the business that was left unfinished last year."

Two days later, Clark accused Hafer of "misrepresentation," and said that Hafer's statement was "largely in error."

"A decision has been made, I believe, not to publish 'Syracuse 10' this year," said Clark.

He added that he had sent several memorandums, asking in effect, how to handle the students who had applied for the editorship.

"Hafer repeatedly asked me to postpone action until he had a chance 'to think it over'," Clark said. "I deferred to his wishes."

It appeared as if Hafer himself had stalled for a delay in the Board of Pub's first meeting.

Why he seemingly tried to shift the onus of responsibility for the delay onto Clark can only remain a matter of conjecture.

Under pressure from students on the Board last year, that body reluctantly passed a new constitution for the magazine embodying two major proposals: 1.) that the magazine be permitted the wider scope last year's editors desired; 2) that the tradition requiring all copy to be submitted to a faculty advisor before publication be terminated.

Could it be that with the possibility of again enduring another non-literary publication, the university decided to do with no magazine at all?

Was this decision in fact made during formulation of the university budget last May, when too, some administrators simply could not "find time" to meet and elect a new editor?

Was this the way the university planned to leave things, hanging in the air, thus averting a publicity explosion over the subsidy cut?

Could it be that when Sanford Meech stepped in, administrators were faced with the prospect of explaining publicly why a Board meeting concerning the '10' had been delayed so long this year?

The situation was further complicated when publications' financial advisor, Francis O'Brien, erupted with another story. He claimed that he had been given a budget for the '10' (about half of last year's) but had rejected it in favor of other revisions in the publications program. Clark refused to comment on O'Brien's version.

In any case, it is not difficult to guess why the finger of responsibility was pointed at Clark.

Clark has traditionally been the "middle man" on the Board of Publications. With five students and five administrators facing each other on the Board, it is Clark who holds the balance of power in any tie vote. At last years meeting, he voted with students in the crucial proposal over the format of the magazine.

It is Clark whom some administrators tend to blame when things go awry in student publications, though this man has little more control over what student editors have to say than has Pierre Salinger over the President.

Where does the '10' stand now? Clark refused last week to make additional comment on the financial status of the magazine.

It is a conflict which, like a volcano, appears to have a great deal more beneath the surface.

Ice Hockey

To the Editor:

The articles in Friday's DO on hockey give this reader the distinct impression that the writer doesn't know what he is talking about. He apparently has been reading too many Syracuse newspaper articles on the subject. Several mistakes and foolish statements show that he obviously isn't qualified to predict the NHL standings.

For example, we find that NHL President, Clarence Campbell has changed his name to Maurice. Wonder what Monsieur Richard thinks of that? I see that the Montreal Canadiens are now depending on old men. One of the three examples to inform us who the old men are, is the Richards. Could it be that the writer hasn't heard the latest news? Maurice Richard retired three years ago, and Henri is in his twenties.

Of course, we won't mention fellows like Bill Hicke, Bob Rousseau, Gilles and Jean-Claude Tremblay, Dickie Moore and Don Marshall. They're too young and inexperienced to be included as part of the threat posed by the Canadiens. I see Tom Johnson is playing goal now! Lot's of luck Tom.

I see the Syracuse Braves goalies has excelled in exhibition games this year. Mr. Bakst has been reading those Syracuse newspapers again. Crozier was a fair goalie in junior amateur hockey, but he won't have a chance in the EPHL.

The NHL teams who played Syracuse in exhibition games were easy on him so he wouldn't look too poor in front of the fans. I've never seen Henri Richard go in on goal alone, draw the goalie out, and then fire the puck AT him!

I can't comment on the basketball article in the same issue. I don't know much about the subject. But then, I don't write newspaper articles about it either.

Reviews

To the Editor:

Perhaps the DO staff and movie critic delight in their own childish humor; however, if they would concentrate their efforts to evaluating the pictures on their merit or lack of merit, the entire student body might profit.

It might also aid your movie expert if he actually saw some of the movies he has reviewed.

THE CUTTING ROOM

Repercussions and Lessons

by John E. Greenwald

It is amazing. With atom bombs poisoning the air, Mississippi pulling a Civil War bit, over four million people unemployed, and who knows what other nonsense going on the only thing that can get a rise out of the Syracuse University campus is an irate college journalist attacking a rather inept "dream girl" calendar.

Not since Carl Gottlieb wrote, in November of 1959, that the Marching Band looked like "one hundred girls and someone who drops her baton every now and then," has the campus exploded over such a foolish issue.

Letters and flowers poured into the Hellbox. While crossing the quad we would be alternately cheered and vilified. Opinions about our column crossed all social and sexual barriers till we became quite unsure whether that girl or that Greek coming up to us would be mad or happy.

Above all though, we think a number of lessons were learned by people on either side of this typewriter.

First we feel that some sorority girls may not be so easily "induced" to participate in something they don't like. A few of PiKA's "dream girls" did not want to pose for the calendar and only did so because of pressure from their "sisters."

One such girl was quoted as saying she felt like an idiot posing for the photographer. We think it's a bit odd that any organization, social or otherwise, can impose its will to the point of allowing someone to feel, and look, foolish.

We also think it's odd that those girls who had severe misgivings about posing didn't put their foot down and tell their "sisters" nothing doing.

The second lesson that we hope the whole campus learned is summed up by the old saw, "Look before you leap." Some of the sororities involved had the impression that PiKA's calendar would carry no advertisements and would not be distributed to the campus at large, or even to non-Greeks.

A few of the girls saw the photographs, but most of them did not see the actual pictures that was to be printed. Every girl should have demanded to see the selected photograph, and should not have been satisfied till they did.

The third lesson concerns snobs. About a dozen of the people who congratulated us were sorority girls who said in effect, "John, I loved your column. The girls in the house thought it was a scream!"

The reason? These girls didn't particularly like the houses that some of the calendar girls belonged to. Ever since those encounters words of fellowship and brotherhood from IFC and Panhell will never sound the same.

The fourth lesson was taught to us by the DO's letter-writers. The average letter we received said, "You were too abusive, you big, fat, crummy slob." We thought that college students would have enough sense not to use the same techniques they condemn.

What seemed worse was the number of letters that Terry Hughes' superb column of the same day received: just one. If Dean Hafer is so confident of the quality of SU's student body why was Terry's article ignored while our effort became a "cause celebre."

Lastly, was a lesson we learned ourselves. To be frank "Some Spongecake" was not one of our better columns. In terms of subject, style, presentation and the like there have been others we are prouder of. And while we still stand by what we wrote we are a bit ashamed that it had to be this column to create such an explosion.

We realize that from now on any nuumber of students will read "The Cutting Room" to see if Greenwald "does it again."

We may "do it again," but we'll never do it that way.

Prof Shows Own Film

By STEPHANIE BRILL

A thin, white, vertical line appears on a black movie screen, followed by the inscription, "Prima Vera." The camera then moves through a black and white window into Joan of Arc's cell.

The girl is awakened on her tiny bed. She smiles as she accepts a crudely made cross from a black cloaked man. Suddenly she smiles at the object in her arms, which, in a split second, has become a baby lamb.

Charles Giordano, of the Lowe Art Center, made this short experimental film as part of the requirements for his Masters Degree.

In a talk before the Art Students' Association last Tuesday, Giordano explained how he inferred the film's meaning through visual symbolism rather than a literal plot.

By using a steel sword, he explained, against a canvas splattered with red paint and close-ups of a delicately carved wooden crucifix he emphasized the saint's agony without including the traditional burning-at-the-stake scene.

Stressing the artistic nature of future film-making, Giordano saw the director's role as one of an artist, using photography only as a vehicle for expression.

Giordano, who is the first of several speakers scheduled to speak before ASA, said he used five film processes and enlarged and superimposed eight and ten inch props to cut production problems.

Foreign Pics

Once again the Midtown Theatre is offering a series of foreign films. " Midwife" and "Eva Miro, Evangile," a double-feature Greek bill is scheduled for Tuesday.

Two first-run Russian, color films, "Tiger Girl," a circus picture, and "Safety Match," a satirical comedy by Chekov, are slated for Wednesday.

All of the above movies have subtitles.

Thursday the Midtown has the German "Zirkus Nenz" and "Flittervochen," plus a German newsreel.

Syracusans may point with pride to their orange beanies, orange pennants, and orange-clad football players for their school is the only one in the United States with Orange as the only official school color.

MJQ Here Thursday

"The first pure concert ensemble in jazz," the Modern Jazz Quartet, will appear at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, at Lincoln Auditorium.

Consisting of four ex-members of the Dizzy Gillespie band, the MJQ have gratified critics and garnered awards since they were first heard in New York in 1952. Their recording of "Django" was selected as the disc of the year in 1956 by both the British Broadcasting Corporation and the Academie du Jazz of Paris.

The quartet, composed of John Lewis, Percy Heath, Milt Jackson, and Connie Kay, has also won first place in the combo category polls of Downbeat and Metronome magazines.

Much of MJQ's repetoire is composed by John Lewis, who was named "Arranger of the Year" by Downbeat in 1956, by Jazz Podium in 1958 and by Metronome in 1955 and 1959.

Down In Front

By JUDY ADAMS

No one, absolutely no one expected to see the show they saw Saturday. Not even the producer-director Ben Schwartzwalder.

But those who turned out for the performance saw a clever bit of acting by a young man named Walley Mahle that upstaged the more publicized names on the field.

The kid ran the whole show. And boy, can he run!

He carried the ball 16 times, as was announced to the fans departing from the Stadium, for 101 yards.

Perhaps Archbold's version of Bob Shepard should have explained that this averages out to a neat 6.3 yards per tote. The mathematicians in the throng had him averaging anywhere from three to eight yards a carry.

The 19-year-old sophomore provided the sole scoring punch of the afternoon for the Orange when he loped over the goal line from ten and twenty yards out.

The first score must have brought tears to old Ben's eyes. It'd been 301 days since an Orange team had crossed the stripe that counts. The last time was back in the fourth quater of last year's Liberty Bowl.

The lad from Erie accounted for exactly one third of the Syracuse offense. He lacked only a yard of equaling the yardage of the entire BC team.

Not bad for a debut. Not bad at all.

There have been other flashy unveilings here on the hill.

Dave Sarette, whose graduation has caused the Orange quarterback problem, came off the bench in the 1959 opening game to complete 9 of 13 passes for 117 yards.

It was Dave's 66 yards that had stood as the top quarterback rushing yardage . . . until Saturday.

And it was just last year, before a similar Parent's Weekend crowd of 31,000, against another team from Massachusetts (Holy Cross) that a little guy made a mighty big impression.

The man was "little Gus Giardi." That afternoon just 51 weeks ago, the little man with the 42 on his back hopped off the bench and onto the field. He took his first varsity handoff and scampered nine yards.

That day he stole the hearts of the onlookers as he lugged the ball eight times, averaging 8.5 yards a carry. He punched out six first downs and sprinted across the goal line for a TD.

There's something about a little man or a fifth string kid trying to win a berth on the starting eleven that brings out the sentimentalism in the fans.

Therefore it's not hard to draw a parallelism between the two debuts. The sparkplug of a Giardi may have been the more appealing, but Walley Mahle had the fans walking away talking to themselves.

No one had really believed that Ben would go

SUHarriers Win Opener, 15-43

By ART ROSSKY

Opening their home campaign in impressive fashion, the Syracuse cross country team whipped Buffalo, 15-43 Saturday at Drumlins.

The Orange compiled a perfect score by capturing the first five places.

Captain Mike Guzman paced the win with a first place finish. He toured the five-mile course in 26:19.

He was pushed by Mouncey Ferguson, who gained second with a 26:25 clocking.

Other Orangemen in the top ten were Mike Schuster, third; Tom Higgins, fourth; Jack Dailey, fifth; and Steve Killorin, eighth.

Harrier Coach Bob Grieve said, "If we had run this well against Colgate we would have won. We were just a week too late".

All Syracuse runners showed vast improvement over the losing Colgate mach of the previous week. Guzman improved 1:16 on his Colgate time; Ferguson improved by 1:20.

In a preliminary meet the Orange Frosh rolled up a perfect 15-50 score against the Buffalo freshmen.

The victory, the second straight year, was paced by the first-place finish of Bill Cihak.

Cihak, who tourned the 3..3 mile course in 16:19.5, set a new Frosh record.

The old record of 16:56 was set in 1958 by Joe Francello, who was a three-year Varsity star.

Mike Spino, who stopped the clocks in 17:09, finished second.

Other Frosh in the top five were Marty Miller, Craig Bennett, and Ron Bukow.

The next Varsity meet will be held Saturday October 20 at 11 a.m. at Drumlins with Army providing the opposition.

Grieve feels that this week's meet will be a close one, for the cadets were undefeated prior to Saturday action.

The cadets have whipped Providence, LeMoyne, Fairleigh Dickinson, and Air Force.

Grieve noted that Air Force had been undfeated prior to the Army meet.

The Frosh will next see action on October 27 when they meet Cornell at Ithaca.

WALLEY MAHLE

Walley Mahle Who Is He?

By JULIAN LOUBE

Walley Waitman Mahle is the number one reason why Syracuse fans have decided not to give up hope for this year's Orangemen.

The 19-year-old quarterback stepped onto the football field as a varsity player for the first time in his life last Saturday, and, eight minutes later, he scored a touchdown—something no other Syracuse player has been able to do all season.

Walley is one of the three fastest men on the team (Koski and Hunter are the other two), but for the first two games of the season he was listed as the fifth string quarterback.

In the shake-up which followed the Army game, Coach Schwartzwalder decided to give Walley a chance at the starting spot.

"We thought he had the ability to do the job," said Schwartzwalder, "and he certainly proved it on Saturday. He's the fastest running quarterback to play for Syracuse since I've been here."

Walley can run 100 yards in less than 10.2," and he is the firstS.U. quarterback to run long yardage out of the "T" formation.

His passing, however, leaves something to be desired. "We'll give him a chance to work hard on his passing this week in practice," Schwartzwalder said.

Walley lives in Erie, Pennsylvania, where he spent six years at Fort deBoeuf Junior-Senior High School. He played varsity sports every year, earning a total of 18 letters. He made all-county and all-state honors in football, basketball, and baseball.

Last year he played first string quarterback for the first game of the freshman season, but he was moved to second string behind Rich King for the remainder of the year.

"I didn't know how well I'd do," said the inexperienced quarterback after the game, "I just wanted to prove that I could help the team."

INTRAMURALS MEETING TODAY

Observations On the Series

By VIN ZUKOWSKI

The Yankees made the Series in 159 games. the Giants in six more.. New York, how did you compile the highest win percentage? You missed Mantle, and Maris, Ford, and Arroyo slumped. Terry helped. So did a rookie shortstop and the steady play of a second baseman.

A few games better than a mediocre team. New York, thank the rest of the league. The "Year of the Tiger" never came off. The Oriole youth movement was physically unsound. The "up-the-middle" strength of Chicago was not theirs of '59.

Cleveland, where did you go, weren't you on top in June? Twins and Angels dared to contend—one a franchise switch, the other a franchise embryo. Giants, were you the best in the league? You finished number one. Or did LA finish number two.

The Redlegs won as many as the previous year's team that won the pennant—this year it was good for third. The hits of the '60 Pirates were outs in '62. Spahn, Burdette, Adcock, Mathews, Crandell—all four years older.

The road to the Series is one of causes.. The eighty RBI's of a journeyman first-sacker. A three-inning arm in the bullpen. An aging vet acquired on waivers. A rookie brought up from the AAA farms. The trade you almost made. The road is also of causes. The young hurler who shook off the catcher's sign and watched the ball land in the "short porch."

The slugger who was a half-step too slow on defense. The injury of the 20-game winner. The torn ligament of the .300-hitter. The failure to break even away from home. The difference is a World Series share, a first division bonus, or no bonus from .005 out of fifth to 66 ½ games out of first.

The Bronx and Frisco are in. Ready to join Willie Mays in a back-to-the-plate catch in center field, Sandy Amoros in a catch in the left-field corner and a throw to second for the DP, Don Larsen in striiking out Dale Mitchell for the 27th out of a perfect game, Lew Burdette in three Series wins against New York, Elston Howard in a diving catch in left-field when he should have been behind the plate, Big Klu in a display of power but Larry Sherry in the bullpen, Bill Mazeroski in a four-master to bring the championship home, Elio Chacon on the bases but Bobby Richardson in the RBI department.

Seven games decide six months of play. Seven games decide a wild celebration in Frisco, LA, Cinci, Pittsburg, or Milwaukee from a headline, "YANKS WIN" in New York. The last out is made. A putout and at bat added to the box-score. Wrap up the Series, write it into the record books.

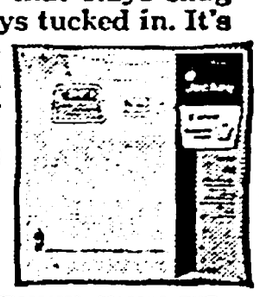
with this untried kid. It was just a tactic for BC's sake or merely an attempt to jolt some life into Lelli or Sofsian.

It may have started out that way, but 8.39 after the opening kickoff, Walley had skippered the Orangemen to their first touchdown of the year. There was little doubt that he meant to keep his job as the number one signal caller.

Exactly 51 minutes later he duplicated the feat.

In the time between, he had moved over, around, and through the BC defense in an awesome display of speed, power, and deception that must have sent the scouts hurrying home to their worksheets.



It was a wonderful day for football too—especially a win.

with all class members able to attend. He recommended a party for underprivileged children in Syracuse, and a Freshman academic award.

Lee Hammer, the independent candidate for president, recommended that the freshmen work for a student union, and listed weekend plans including a "pig dance," a semi-formal dance, a button contest, big-name entertainment and an efficient publicity committee.

David Bindeman, running for vice president, listed a seven point program, calling for a vice president to act as a troubleshooter, a freshman assembly, a class newsletter, distribution of a pocket-size calendar of freshman events, an extensive committee system, several open class meetings, and a weekend which every freshman is able to attend.

George Goltzer, another vice presidential candidate, recommended that JSG send each incoming freshman a student government guide over the summer, and also suggested a carnival-like affair on the main Quad during Freshman Weekend, coinciding with the broadcast of the UCLA game..

Laurie Weisman, the third candidate for vice pesident, stressed that Freshman Weekend should not be the only class event, recommending a music and arts festival and a freshman bonfire. Several girls from her floor paid her a tribute in song at the mixer.

Pam Bender, a candidate for secretary, yielded to a frosh with a Boston accent, who proceeded to imitate the nation's president, saying "ask not what you can do for your class but what Pam Bender can do for you."

Richard Simon, another secretarial candidate, stated that the problem of the class was "to get political power out of the university," and to do this the class must be informed. Simon assured the class that he would keep them informed as to class activities.

Susan Sommers, the final canlidate for secretary, recommended that minutes of class executive council meetings be printed in the Daily Orange, suggested a cultural exchange program with neighboring schools, and weekend plans featured by big-name entertainment.

Janet Aspinwall, candidate for treasurer, recommended a late morning breakfast for the weekend, and called for a close officer-class relationship, with the students to seek out the officers for anything they need.

urer candidate, callel for several mixers before the weekend, to raise money for the weekend. He also recommended that separate tickets be sold for the weekend events, in addition to an overall weekend ticket. He also suggested an elected freshman council.

Steven Schacter, the final candidate for treasurer, said that he would issue biweekly statements as to the financial situation of the class. He also suggested tha several class projects be held before Freshman weekend.

Panhel Vote Approves IFC Food Plan

Skytop Conference Sunday; Open House Cancelled

By SUSAN WEINBERG

A straw vote of sorority presidents and rushing chairmen Tuesday tentatively approved the Interfraternity Council plan to organize a cooperative, initially for food-buying.

This approval is not binding, however, emphasized Stephen Burwick, chairman of the IFC program. It will be up to each house to decide for itself whether it wishes to participate.

Open to all fraternities, sororities and independent organizations on campus, the cooperative would engage in all area of business, Burwick explained.

Food buying will be the first business in which the cooerative will engage. If 25 sororities, 30 fraternities and two cooper-

Samuels Tells Young Dems Of Challenges

By PETE KOSSEFF

A sound economy in New York can only be obtained by a sound educational system, Howard J. Samuels told Syracuse University Young Democrats Tuesday.

The Republicans lack of ability to provide such a system is the reason for the declining attractiveness of New York to industry he said.

Samuels, Canandaigua industrialist, was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination at their convention here last month.

New Magazine on the Fire

By HOWIE GINSBURG

Plans for a student-run financially independent magazine will be presented at the Board of Publications meeting Thursday, Terrence Hughes has told the Daily Orange.

Hughes, 1961-62 editor of Syracuse '10', the university's literary magazine, said that a group of eight students wishes to publish a "magazine of general interest."

Acting as spokesman, Hughes stated that the group received wide financial support and did not expect any subsidies from the university.

"All we are asking is that the board give us campus sanction," he explained.

"If the Board decides to publish Syracuse '10' as a purely literary magazine," he continued, "we feel that the students will still need a magazine of more general interest."

He also recognized the importance of having a literary magazine as one of the major campus publications. "Cornell supports nine campus publications," Hughes said.

Hughes refused to say anything definite about the publica-

Last year Syracuse '10' was financed by the university.

Editor Terrence Hughes scheduled an expose on the university's food service in the magazine's second and last issue.

He was asked not to run the article because it would be harmful to the university. Hughes was told that the purpose of Syracuse '10' was that of a literary magazine and exposes did not belong there. When he continued to plan the printing of the article, university made it known they would withhold the subsidy.

The article was eventually printed in the Daily Orange and Syracuse '10' has not been printed since.

Newhouse J-Center Construction to Start

By BEV LURIA
Junior Editor

After approximately two years in the planning stage, work on the first building of the Samuel I. Newhouse Communications Center is slated to begin about this January.

Dr. John F. Olson, Syracuse University vice president, told the Daily Orange that within a month construction may begin for the relocation of a steam pipeline which runs under the block bounded by University, South Crouse and Waverly Avenues and University place where the Center will stand.

Originally the project was scheduled to begin Jan. 1, 1961 and be completed Dec. 31, 1962.

Buildings

When completed, the center, which was originally planned as one journalism building, will have three buildings containing all aspects of communications. The SU School of Journalism will be housed in the first structure.

The reason for the delay in construction, said Olson, is the complications that arise in the planning of a large scale project.

"You can put up a warehouse in a matter of months," Olson said "but we are building an architectural gem, educationally in the vanguard and with no models of other institutions to go by."

New Ground

He added, "We're breaking new ground. This takes time simply because of the enormous number of contingent situations one faces." Also, Olson continued, 'You must be sure to erradicate all your mistakes on paper before you get into brick and mortar."

Some of the problems to be faced in building the Center, Olson explained, are air conditioning and a telephone system. He said, "These must be planned for the entire Center rather than for a single unit."

Before actual work on the Center can start, there are auxiliary problems to be met, Olson said. He stated that Haven Hall and Schulte Cottage must be torn down and Buildings and Grounds moved to a new location.

JSG Sets Up Student Union Fund Group

Committee Will Meet With Administration In Two Weeks

By CAROL SCHLAGETER

The Student Union Fund Raising Committee will meet with Hill administrators in two weeks to discuss the exact cost of construction of a student union and to establish goals for student contributions to the building fund.

The new committee, which student union commissioner Ann Cooney described as an "idea group," met Tuesday to fund-raising ideas.

Tentative suggestions included:

1. A twister in roped-off sections of Walnut Park.
2. A "buy a brick" campaign where individual students could contribute small sums to the building fund.
3. Percentages from drama department performances if the student union would publicize a specific night's performance.
4. A downtown day where students would be encouraged to patronize Syracuse stores. The student union fund would receive a percentage of the day's profits.
5. The student union committee could take over publication of next year's student directory, probably at a profit of near $700.
6. A percentage of profits from class dances.
7. A percentage of vending machine sales from machines located on campus.
8. Student variety shows.
9. Name entertainers in future years, by perhaps subsidized underwriting from other campus organizations.
10. A new university handbook to be given to future freshmen and sold to upper class students.
11. A percentage of campus chest profits.

Representatives of the various organizations attending said they would ask for suggestions and discussion at the next meeting of their groups.

An idea poll by the Student Opinion Survey of Joint Student Government was also suggested.

Board members Theodore Bayer and Carol "Shultze" Lucha, president and vice president of Joint Student Government, will represent the student body at the meeting.

Students calling SOS will be asked the following questions: "Do you want a student magazine? What kind of magazine would you support—a literary magazine; ideas and discussion of non-campus topics; discussion of campus topics; or a combination of the above? Would you want two separate student magazines?"

SOS commissioners Carol Wurthner and Arthur Perschetz said SOS will poll campus issues throughout the year.

An Important Vote

The independent slate of freshman candidates has been selected and has done its campaigning. The Daily Orange has already expressed its hope that the system used this year will prove to be another step in improved election systems on the Syracuse campus.

But whatever effort is made by the candidates to keep the elections independent and so-called democratic, little will be accomplished without a strong voting turnout. Only in this way can the freshmen show they are concerned enough with the elections and the entire political process on campus to take the time to cast a ballot.

For whether you know it or not, freshmen, elections on the Syracuse scene don't usually attract too many voters. As a matter of fact the political arena is one in which the charge of student apathy has been heard most frequently.

Today the eyes of the whole campus will be on you freshmen to see if you will continue the long tradition of absenteeism at the voting booths or if you will express your confidence in the candidates and in the Syracuse political process by by getting out to vote.

Take a little time out of your day and cast that ballot.

Brooklyn Eagle

There was a time not too long ago when a favorite joke went something like this: "Brooklyn is the only city in the country without a mayor, a daily newspaper and a left fielder."

Brooklyn still doesn't have a mayor of its own and it lost its whole baseball team but once again the fair borough of Flatbush has a daily newspaper.

Monday of this week the Brooklyn Eagle once again hit the pavements. It was a long time between press runs for the old morning paper which went out of business seven years ago.

Its return was auspicious, however coming as it did on National Newspaper Week. For this is a time when daily newspapers die and large syndicates run the industry. But the Eagle is trying to buck the trend.

Its job won't be easy but it will certainly be a different newspaper. It will be printed by the photo offset process, a rarity among fullsized daily papers.

And for a touch of the good old days, the Eagle will sell for just five cents.

With Malice Toward None

Communications Barrier

By Beverly Luria

Last March the newly-elected Joint Student Government President Theodore Bayer told the student body, "Next year we want to know exactly where the administration stands." This statement frequently accompanied Bayer and Company's oft-repeated plea for better communications between the students and the administration.

For the benefit of newcomers to SU, these sentiments were well-drilled into the heads of students and administrators alike to the tune of —as students we have a right to know what is going on. Bayer's carefully-picked crew (better known as HELL or the Higher Echelon of Left-over Leaders) put on a propaganda campaign worthy of some of the more radical fringe groups.

Loudspeakers on the quad could not have gotten the message over more clearly to the students than the not so subtle use of the DO and WAER by "drop in anytime" Bayer and "I'm everyone's pal" Lucha.

This year though, the message seems to have lost some of its glamor and even the volume appears to be slowly diminishing. JSG talk has veered away from its early "party line" and is rapidly turning to more immediate problems.

While Bayer and JSG can be praised for their action in matters such as the car bill, they should not be condemned for the continuing lack of communication between the students and administration.

How many DO readers could define or explain the work of the Faculty Senate, Design Committee, Personnel Board, Social Committee or Chancellor's Cabinet? Yet the topics discussed by these bodies and the decisions they make actively affect practically everyone on campus.

It is a difficult task for the DO to explain the workings of these groups to the student body, as Daily Orange staffers are barred from meetings and little effort is made by the administration to even keep staffers informed.

In fact, to a casual observer it might appear that relatively unimportant and definitely not secretive material is withheld from the DO by the administration. To summarize, the administration's withholding of news is not actively deliberate but rather of a more "keep them from discovering it happened" blanketed manner.

Our student government representative, Bayer, is definitely the best informed student on campus. It seems that he and his assistants are sincere about wanting to lead a better-informed student body.

Bayer attends most of the above-mentioned meetings, and at this point the communication chain breaks. If he were free to pass these "communications" along to the students via the DO, this would be a very well-informed campus.

It should be recognized that many topics discussed at administrative meetings have little or no relevance to students. Often, topics should be censored in the best interest of the university.

But it has reached a point where this censorship is carried to an extreme. DO reporters should not have to fight for news of every small donation to the university or be kept out of every administrative meeting because "dangerous comments could be made." Much more information could and should be transmitted to the student body.

No, our government president cannot be accused of breaking a promise to the students as it was not really in his power to make the promise. The main problem between students and administration is mutual distrust rather than poor communications. Any lack of communications merely stems from this basic distrust.

Students should accept decisions made by the administration without feeling that "they are against us." When this step is taken and students realize that the administrators are on their side, much of the problem will be solved. The administration should, in turn, regard the students in deed, as well as in word, adults.

If this is done and a feeling of mutual trust builds up, then the problem should disappear of its own accord. This will take time and no student government, regardless how hard-working and well-meaning, can prematurely force the matter.

Wanted: An Issue

By M. H. Weinstein

The demise of the Clover Club may prove an irreplaceable loss to student government. Campus leaders must now find a new base from which to issue their usual pious, pedagogical, platitudes.

Will student government survive? You bet your crib notes it will.

It will survive to don sack cloth and ashes whenever someone screems, "we want silk", gasping with horror that the same students who showed the mature good judgment to vote for them, would also choose to engage in a little constructive rioting.

It will continue to spend endless hours in search of an issue to justify its own existence. Student leaders usually show themselves to be more interested in glorifying the dry machinery of government than in putting it to a real use.

After the frosh finished their revolt last year, their president still continued to remain a glorified social chairman. This new found strength and support didn't really change the nature of the office. They seemed to revolt for the mere sake of revolt but the results were still the same.

Campus leaders are still belly-aching about being excluded from decision-making meetings in which they feel they should sit. When they do sit with the administration, they often find themselves reduced to mere yes men.

The new car bill becomes rather meaningless when one takes time to consider the number of students who will really be affected. How many sophs have a 1.6 average, and of those who do, how many will even want to have cars?

So what are some of the real issues on which our leaders could work?

One is the fact that the students had to hike out to that mushroom-shaped dust bowl to register, when a little imagination on someone's part could have saved them needless amounts of shoe leather and frustration.

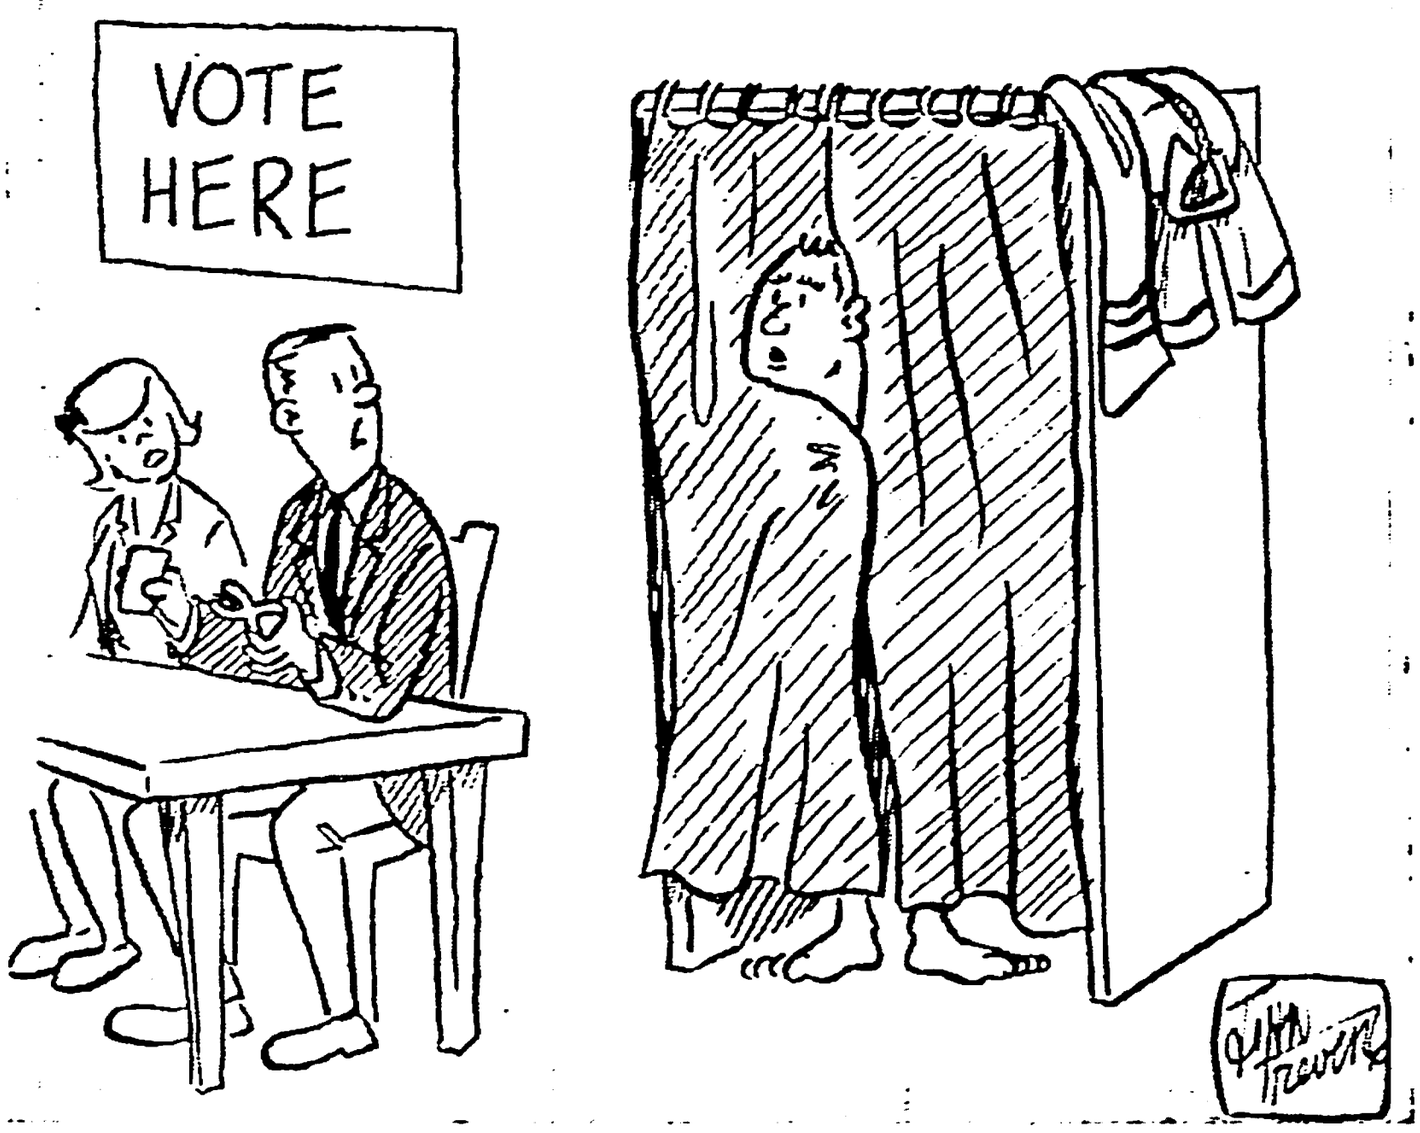
What about that pigeon-coop and stilts called H.B.C. which now graces our quad? Student leaders might be consulted before such horrors are approved in the future.

Joint Student Court still has no real jurisdiction of its own, but merely handles the cases which are referred to it by the university.

Need I even mention the continuing battle with food service and the fact that the Syracuse 10 was brazenly censored when it attempted to deal with it?

For that matter, what about the Syracuse 10?

There are still the old cries for a more realistic drinking policy, curfew policy, and a more liberal policy toward housing exemptions.



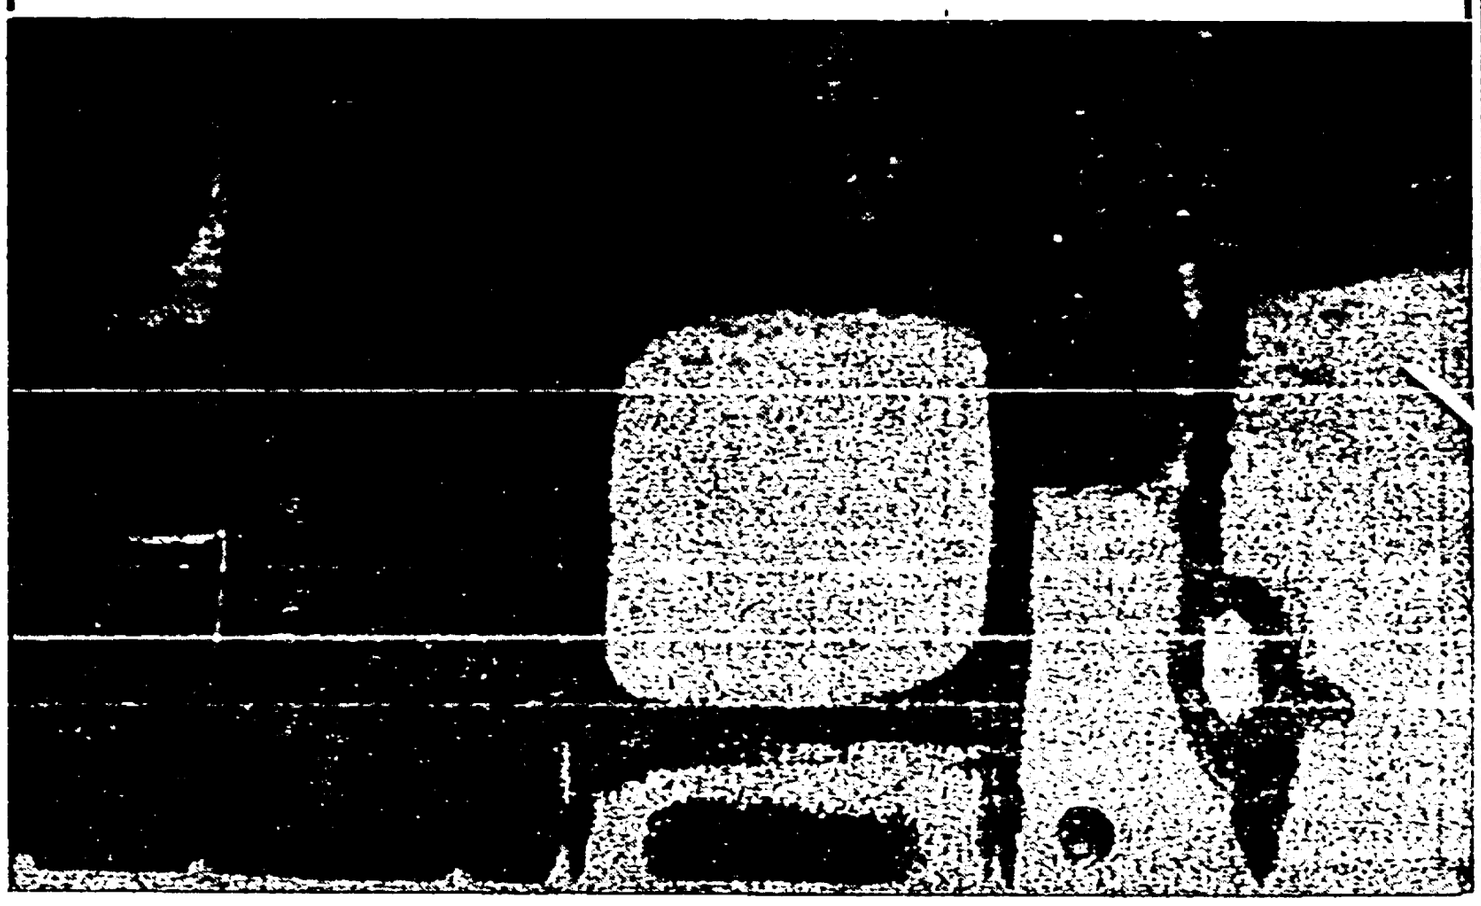
Let's not forget the abuses of the fraternity system, or the fact that some houses seem able to get away with murder despite stern pronouncements from the university. All houses are equal but some are more equal than others.

Student leaders might also be consulted in the consideration of new academic programs as well as the reevaluation of old ones.

Those are just a few of the issues which everyone loves to talk about and nothing more.

At present, our student leaders couldn't lead each other across the street. Our students still refuse to follow their noses and back up their representatives when they do think of something.

So, back to the drawing boards for bigger and better constitutions to set up a more foolishly elaborate system with which to accomplish painfully less.



"Where's duh hot water in here?"

A Second Floor Surprise

By STEPHANIE BRILL

An experimental mural done by graduate and advanced students this summer under the direction of Prof Fred Conway proves that there's more than "dark" at the top of the stairs in the Lowe Art Center.

The mural is one of six that the class created successively on the second floor-wall.

It is unique because it was designed and executed directly on the ridged and textured cement block wall and utilizes encaustics, a media involving melted wax and oil paints. Wash-effects; large blocks of bold opaque, reds, blues and yellows, intermingled with patches of gold leaf on a darker background create the work's ornamental effect.

"We at the art school were pleased to have a person and artist as fine as Professor Conway to work with this group," commented Dr. Lawrence Schmekabier, the school's director. Conway is the distinguished painter of murals at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester and the First National Bank, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Pepsi Cola, Hallmark Cards, the University of Illinois and the New York Architectural League have awarded Conway prizes.

He has also had many one-man shows and exhibits work in the Corcoran Gallery of Washington, D.C., the William Nelson Rockhill Museum of Kansas City, Missouri and the University of Illinois.

"This mural fits with the series of murals we are gradually adding to the campus," Schmekabier pointed out.

THEATER

'Macbeth' at HBC

"The way of doing it has its limitations but we had a lot of fun," Prof. Mary Marshall said, summarizing her and Prof. Ray Irwin's experimental reading of Shakospere's Macbeth."

As usual Miss Marshall was correct.

What these two versatile instructors attempted was to show the nature of the relationship between Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.

By choosing certain scenes, the weakness of Macbeth, Lady Macbeth's drive and practicality, the eventual alienation of the two as Macbeth went deeper into evil while ignoring his wife were sketched out in broad but sure strokes.

Those familiar with the play found the extreme focusing on these characters and their dilemma producing a unique kind of intensity not found in usual presentations of Shakespeare.

Much, of course, depended on the interpretation of the two readers. Unfortunately Miss Marshall's and Prof. Irwin's manner of reading are very different: Miss Marshall emphasizing the language and poetry; Prof. Irwin using his vibrant and supple voice to emphasize the characters.

Separately both interpretations are valid. But on the same stage they only seem to enlarge the differences. In one scene though, the sleepwalking scene, Miss Marshall and Prof. Irwin performed brilliantly, creating for the audience a moving moment of theatre.

MUSIC

Sunday at Crouse

Parents' Weekend this year was concluded in fine style with the opening of the Crouse Concert series by flutist John Oberbrunner. And the parents were there as demonstrated by the applause at inopportune moments during the performance.

Mr. Oberbrunner opened the program with a Sonata by Vivaldi. With the capable assistance of Miss Rohan Sage at the piano, this was an excellent vehicle for his warm and vital tone quality.

After the short, reflective Soliloquy by Bernard Rogers, the audience was treated to a Sonatina by Guarnieri. The first movement was whimsical with abbreviated motives bobbing up and down and greeting each other in mid-flight.

Melancholy became the mood for the second movement as the piano supplied a thin accompaniment under the flute's plaintive call. The third movement resumed the mood of the first again, and heightened it.

A short Work for Flute by Ibert was followed by Allegre con Brie by Kuhlau. Mr. Oberbrunner was accompanied in this by a second flutist, Miss Cornelia Lyons. The two musical lines implied a chord progression so strongly that one felt the need for no further accompaniment of any kind.

Indians Set for Tonight

To-night Syracuse audiences will have a first-hand experience with the exciting melody and rhythms of South Indian Music.

Sangeeta Mardas, a unique five member group, will perform at 8:30 p.m. in the University Regent Theatre. The group was brought to America under the sponsorship of the Asia Society Performing Arts Program.

Some of the unusual instruments to be used in tonight's program will include a great two headed drum, a tamboura, and a clap pot drum. Most Americans have never seen or heard many of the instruments.

The players are all leading exponents of the music of the south. They come from Madras and the concert when translated means Music of Madras.

Balachander, called "The great vina virtuose" by Italian critics heads the group.

Marching Band Slated for TV

Filming and recording sessions are in progress all this week in preparation for the television appearance of the Syracuse University "All-Collegiate" Marching Band. The band will appear on more than 350 television stations throughout the nation.

The United States Army Pictorial Center, in New York City, has asked the band to participate in a special sports program in connection with their telecast, "The Big Picture." The band, under the direction of Donald E. Schmaus, will perform formations for the beginning and ending of the show. They will also provide background music throughout the 30 minute telecast, which will be moderated by sportscaster Mel Allen.

Also participating in the film will be the Majorette Corps; Judy Delp, our "Orange Girl;" the Herald-Trumpet Unit; and Mr. Schmaus.

Miss Delp will do some special twirling routines for the show.

New York Tiptoes Past Giants 1-0

By Judy Adams

It's all over but the shouting.

In the tensest battle of the long seven game series, the New York Yankees eaked out a nervous 1-0 win. They returned home last night as World Champions.

Today the Yankees reign, but the Giants didn't miss by much.

Yesterday's game could have gone either way, but the Giants couldn't take advantage of their opportunities.

The New York Bombers managed their sole run in the fifth inning when Bill Skrowon led off with a single to left. Clete Boyer followed with a single to center, sending Moose to third.

The Yankee pitcher Ralph Terry was walked unintentionally to load the bases. Skrowon scored from third when Tony Kubek hit into a double play.

The San Franciscans had two chances to dent the plate, but failed both times.

In the seventh with two out, Willy McCovey tripled to center. Orlando Cepeda went down swinging in an attempt to bring him home.

Then in the bottom of the ninth, Matty Alou was sent up to bat for reliever Billy O'Dell. Matty laid down a perfect bunt that got past the pitcher Terry.

This put the tying run on first with none out with the top of the batting order coming up.

The crowd at Candlestick must have felt a little like the five thousand of "Casey at Bat" fame, when Matty's brother, Felipe went down on strikes after attempting to get aboard on a bunt.

Ralph Terry then struck out Willie Mays brought the fans fourth game hero Chuck Hiller. to their feet and Ralph Houk to the mound when he hammered a double down the left-field line.

Third base coach Whitey Lockman held Alou, the tying run, on third.

After a short conference, Houk decided to leave Terry in to pitch to McCovey.

The fans were in frenzy. Almost any type of a hit would win the game and the Series for the Giants.

It was a "Casey at Bat" situation, but McCovey hit the ball. He hit it hard. But he hit it right at Bobby Richardson, and the game was over.

Ralph Terry was the winner. He had had a perfect game for the first five and two thirds innings before his opposite number Jack Sanford singled in the sixth. He allowed only three hits after that.

Sanford was taken out in the eighth after the Yankees loaded the bases for the second time in the game, on an error and two singles.

Bill O'Dell came in and retired the side without allowing a run. He stayed to work the ninth.

It had been a bitterly fought series all the way.

It was a little anti-climatic after the National League playoffs. It was the second time in had everything riding on one as many weeks that the Giants game. This time they didn't quite make it.

It was a good Series. The Yankees won. The Giants didn't really lose.

DO Answers WAER; Gals to Play Football

The other day the Daily Orange was startled, to say the least, to receive a letter of challenge from the FM radio station WAER.

The subject of the challenge is a "powder puff football game" between the females of the respective staffs.

Never to let a challenge go unanswered, the DO staff replies in the following:

TO THE SPORTS DIRECTOR OF WAER:

Because of the pride of this organization and because we know full well we can slaughter you, we gladly accept your challenge to a powder puff football game between the female members of WAER and those of the Daily Orange.

As was the case last year in basketball, once again the power of the press shall be evident. You must never underestimate the power of a woman, especially the ones who work for this staff.

We of the Daily Orange express to you our deepest sympathy, for you are all obviously out of your minds if you think the girls of WAER can win over the bunch we have in this office.

Ben Schwartzwalder missed his big chance when he failed to recruit the females of the D.O. Some of them could make Leon Cholakis and Dave Meggyssey cringe with fear.

Among the many women who vow to bring fear into the hearts of the radio girls include: Tackle: Jeannie Ranov 5' 4" 130 lbs. End: Audrey Lippman 5' 1" 102 lbs. Quarterback: Ellen Halprin 5' 4" 110 lbs. Halfback: Merth Johanek 5' 4" 120 lbs. Fullback: Judy Adams (Tiger) 5' 5" 140 lbs.

Sessions will be held in Archbold Gymnasium until the home court is erected at Manley Field House. The court has been in the field house storage room for a month, but isn't slated for regular practice use until Nov. 1.

"We hope to get on the new court soon," Lewis said. "We can give the boys the basics at Archbold but to have the home-court advantage, we have to know every nook and cranny of the court."

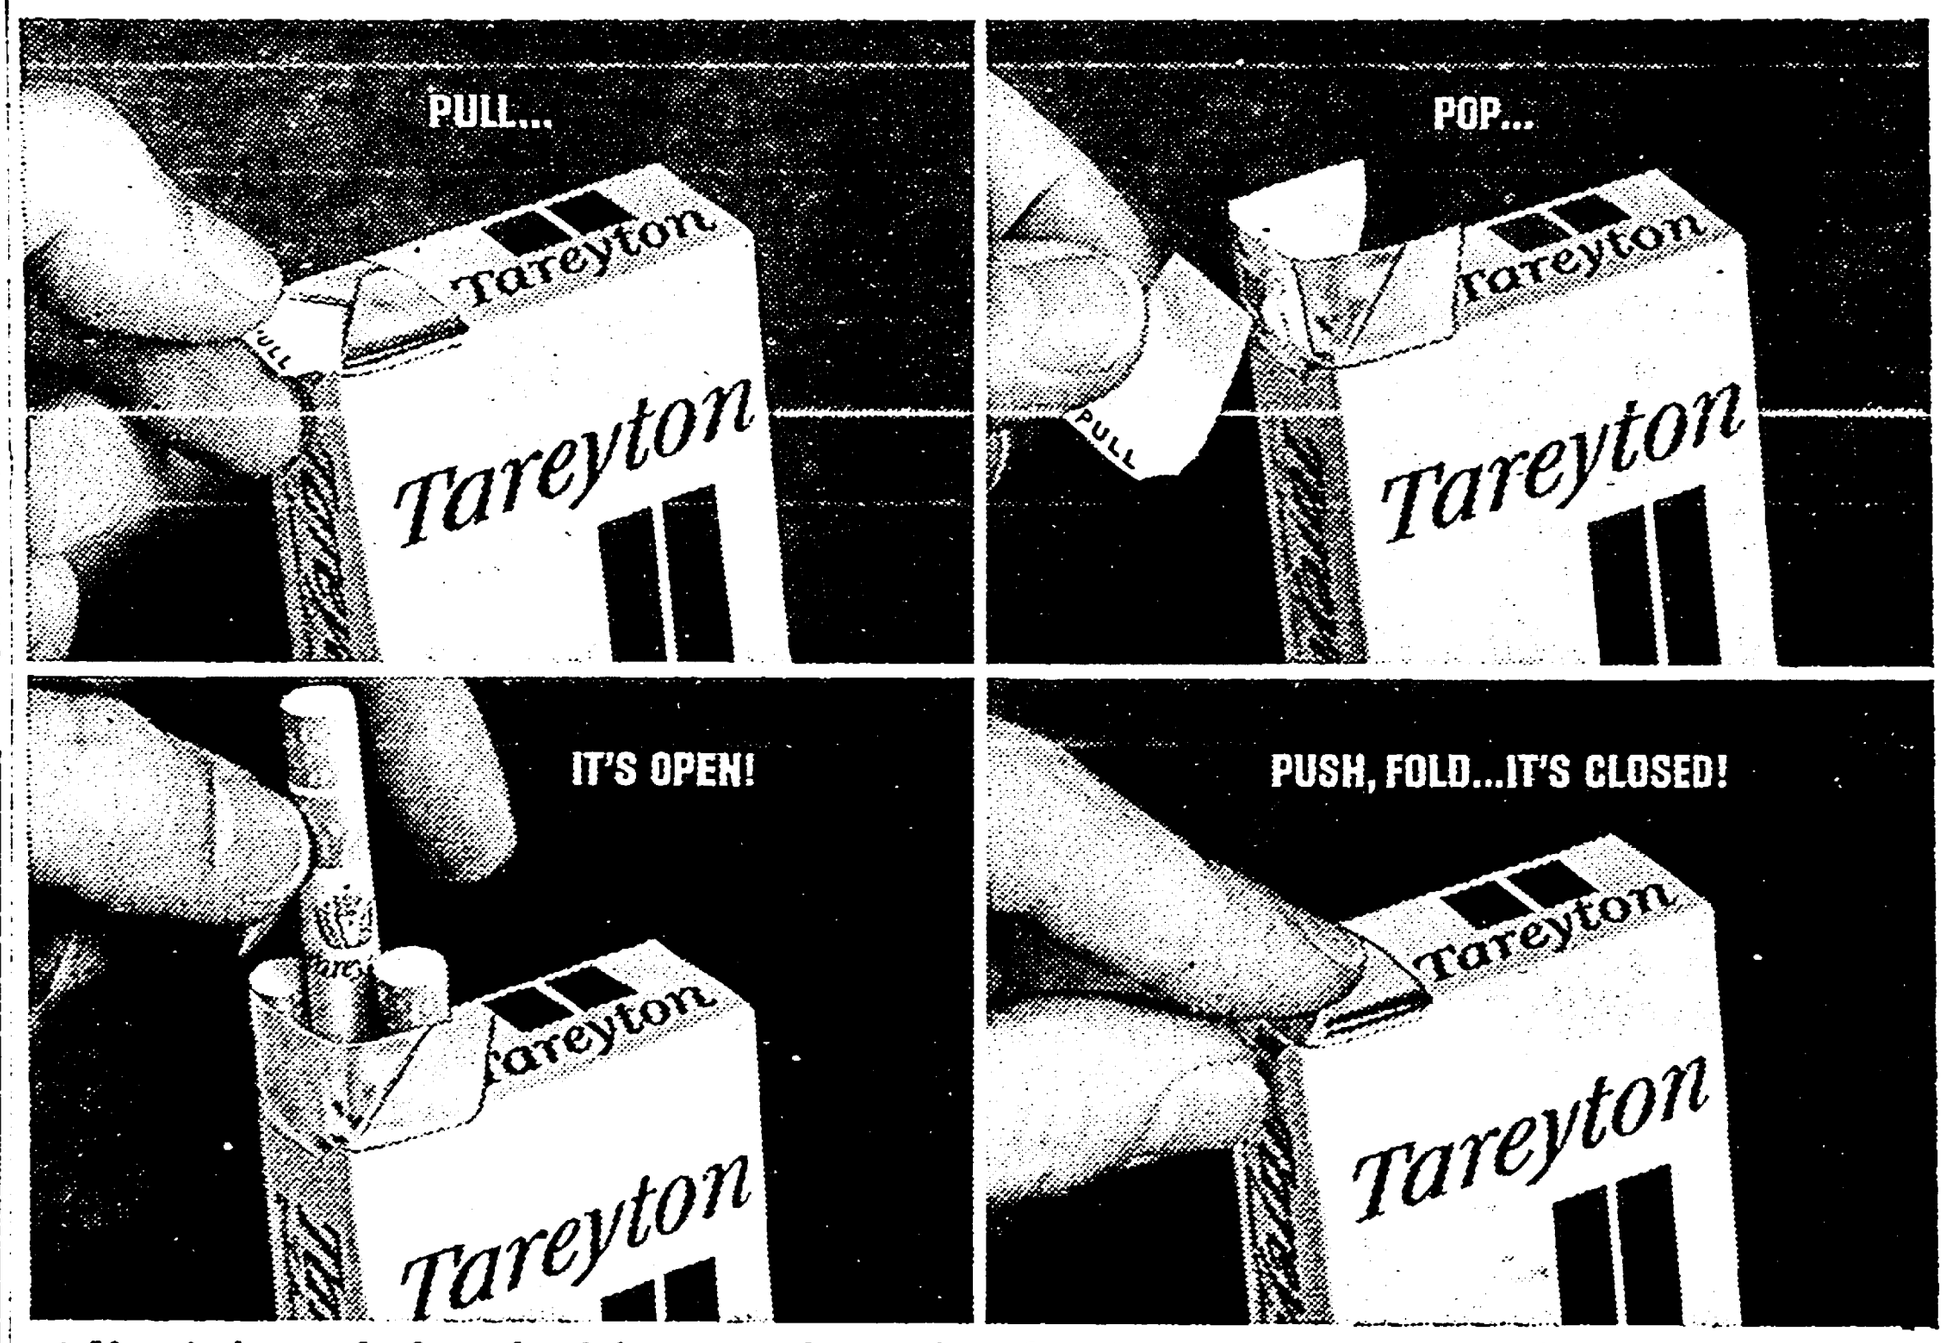
Mahle All-East

The Eastern College Athletic Conference, the major college all-East team, named sophomore Walley Mahle top quarterback in the East in the E.C.A.C. Varsity Debut. Mahle directed both Orange scoring drives and scored both tallies on runs of 10 yards and 20 yards.

Walley gained 101 yards in 16 carries for a 6.3 average yard gainage. However, Sophomore of the Week honors went to Navy's quarterback Roger Stauback. Stauback led all six Navy touchdown drives against Cornell. Roger scored twice.



Halfback named to the E.C.A.C. team was junior Dick Peterson of Army. Dick, playing offense for the first time this year, caught the winning 15 yard touchdown against Penn State.

Tackle for the Eastern College Athletic Conference team is from Holy Cross. He is Dennis Golden.

Dave Meggyesy of Syracuse University and Harry Crump of Boston College were nominated for honorable mention.

"The football team should have a university of which it can be proud." This maxim suggests the heights to which modern college football has risen. It exposes the grim realities of big-time college football: football as a business.

To the model coach of 1962, winning is of sole importance. The teacher demands total dedication to victory, at all costs, in any manner. The "how you played the game" concept has lost its meaning in collegiate circles.

Let us examine the all-important ways of winning. Current theory leaves only two roads open for achieving success. (1) hard work, self - sacrifice, dedication and discipline; (2) cheating.

The first path is based on the oft-heard conclusion that "nice guys finish last." Under this system, there is no room for the clean, benevolent performer. You have to be mean to play college football. Conquest comes only through punishment and destruction of the other man.

At the University of Kentucky, this "hell-for-leather, helmet-busting" style has come in for rough sailing. Star halfback Darrel Cox bitterly left the team during spring pratice, "refusing to be anyone's trained killer." Other players followed, 22 others, all voicing extreme contempt for coach Charlie Bradshaw's commando methods.

One Kentucky player said "The way I look at it, football is coach Bradshaw's business. But to me it's a sport not a business." Another added, "When it gets to the point that football isn't any fun, why continue?" How does one answer that question? How does one tell him that college football isn't supposed to be fun?

The second path to victory involves the use of illegal methods. organization of more practice sessions than allowed by the NCAA; so called "slush" funds for player-compensation; and recruiting violations, to mention only a few.

Last spring at the University of Colorado, a crisis of conscience errupted over deceptive recruiting practices. An NCAA investigation revealed that a "football factory" had been established at Colorado, cultivated by a coaching staff advocating cheating as standard procedure in sports.

Both the adminstration and the NCAA took action. The school fired the head coach and his assistants, the athletic association placed Colorado on probation and denied it permission to play in post season games. The University of Colorado, with a little push tackled the recruiting problem and conquered it. College football need not be professional.

Sport Magazine states, "As yet, it has not set the college world aflame with its example. It seems likely that many other colleges prefer the 'system' with all its faults and all its de ceits."

What price victory? Only the school can determine the value.

THE SYRACUSE BASKETBALL squad began its workouts Monday evening in Archbold gymnasium under the watchful eye of new coach Fred Lewis. Here the coach points out some directions to team members trying to work their way onto the first string. The Orange will open their season against Kent State Dec. 1.

Lewis Prepares Team For New Season, New Coaching Work

By Merth Johanek

"We're putting all past records behind us," Coach Fred Lewis said as the Orangemen embarked on their 62nd season.

With the opening game against Kent State scheduled for the Manley Field House December first, Fred and assistant coach Morris Osburn spent the first of many three-hour night sessions prepping a turnout of 40 freshmen and varsity prospects on the basics of "Lewis style" last night at the Men's Gym.

The practice was unlike many held at SU under former coach Marc Guley. The practice started with the usual calesthenics, with the exception of two. One of the never before used warm-up procedures was a five-minute session of rope jumping. This was added to the curriculum to increase coordination, balance, and jumping ability. Another of Coach Lewis' innovations in practice was step running. This was done within the gymnasium three stories.

Simple layup techniques were used in refreshing the team's agility. The Coach also had the Orange team work on rebounding.

Orange and blue warmup balls were used for the first time this year. These appeared to be made of a heavier substance than the basketballs. Used in passing practice, these should produce greater accuracy, and a stronger team.

The Freshmen looked fundamentally stronger than the varsity, at the first session. They appeared skilled in high jumping, and shooting. Speed seemed to be an outstanding quality in the Freshman squad.

Lewis started the workouts with combination exercises between frosh and varsity squad members. Simple dribbling and passing exercises were the procedure, but Lewis emphasized the importance of timing and jumping.

Basketball practices will be

Texas, Alabama Top AP

In a close vote, the Associated Press Poll has named the University of Texas the nation's top football power. Alabama, last week's leader, dropped one position and is now in second place, 21 points behind Texas' leading total of 458. Both teams managed to remain undefeated by narrow margins.

As a result of an upset loss to Army, Penn State dropped from third and is no longer among the top ten vote-getters.

Although idle, Southern California moved up a notch to replace Penn. Louisiana's victory earned the number four spot, while idle Mississippi remained fifth.

Ohio State's romp over Illinois moved the Buckeyes up to number six, and unbeaten Arkansas stepped up one rung to number seven.

Rounding out the list, Northwestern, Washington and Wisconsin were voted eighth, ninth, and tenth respectively.

In the important Lambert Trophy Poll, which decides eastern supremacy, Army replaced Penn State as the top team.

Army was given six out of eight first votes as a result of their last minute 9-6 victory over highly touted Penn.

Holy Cross barely edged Syracuse for third place. Following the Orange were Pittsburgh, Dartmouth, and Navy.

Haft Wins Venice Swim

WAA is already in full swing with a lot more to come. The "Swim to Venice" contest turned out to be a popular event in which sorority and independent women swam 11,269 laps during two weeks of competition.

The victor in the cottage division was Haft, piling up a total of 743 laps. Nottingham and Marshall cottages made a good showing, taking second and third places. Flint 4C emerged victorious over Shaw and Day 6 in the dorm division accumulating a total of 1649 laps.

The Modern Dance Production Group got things under way with try-outs last Thursday, New high steppers for the year include Nan Goodman, Pam Hill, Bobbie Schmitz, Kathy Eddy, Toby Sitomer, Sandee Bauman, Jan Strauss, Steffi Gilbert, Ellen Bristol and Bronwyn Williams.

The girls will be participants in the Christmas show and festival of the arts being planned by the group.

'10' . . .

tion until Thursday's meeting. "We have not yet decided on whether we get sanctioning and if the Board approves Syracuse '10'," he said.

"Tentatively" Hughes announced, "we plan to put out three issues." He said the first would be sold in the beginning of December, if the Board approves the plans.

The group, consisting of Renate Bruns, Judith Hill, Susan Dreher, Maurice Forman, Ellen Becker, Susan Crumbaker, Brian Donovan and Hughes, feels their magazine would solve the Board's problem of deciding the nature of Syracuse '10'.

Sanctioning by the Board of Publications would allow the new magazine to be sold on campus. If, however, the Board refuses to sanction the magazine, dormitory sales would not be permitted. If the magazine is restricted to off-campus sales it would be more difficult to obtain advertising.

Hughes and committee have been raising money by personal appeals to individuals and organizations on campus. Professional fraternities and faculty members, including members of the journalism faculty, were contacted in the financial drive for the magazine.

School of Journalism faculty members are in agreement that last years '10' did not fulfill its purpose, according to DO reports. They felt that the magazine had too large a budget for what it turned out.

However, most of the School favors both the new magazine and a purely literary Syracuse '10'.

Hughes announced that work would begin next week if the Board sanctioned his plans Thursday. If not, "we will have to make a few decisions. But we will cross that bridge if and when we come to it."

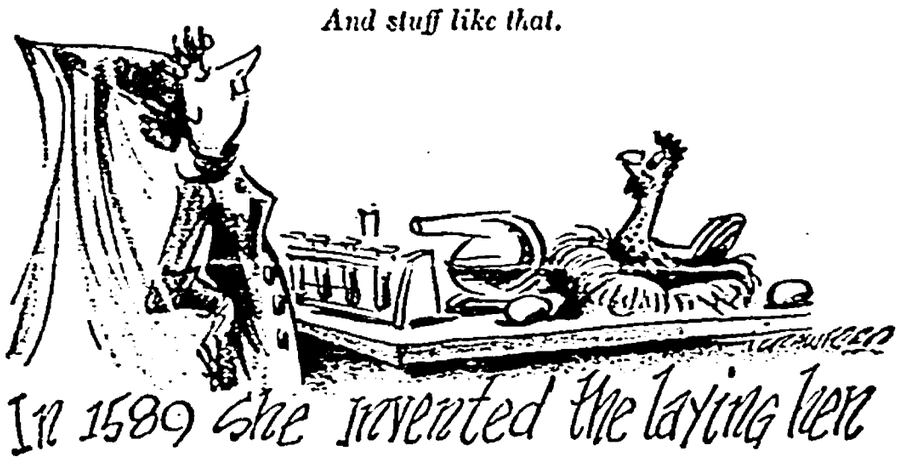
On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "I Was a Teen-age Dwarf," "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis," etc.)

WHAT TO WEAR TILL THE DOCTOR COMES

Now that you have enrolled and paid your fees and bought your books and found your way around campus and learned to hate your roommate, it is time to turn to the most important aspect of college life. I refer, of course, to clothes.



What does Dame Fashion decree for the coming school year? (Incidentally, Dame Fashion is not, as many people believe, a fictitious character. She was a real Englishwoman who lived in Elizabethan times and, indeed, England is forever in her debt. During the invasion of the Spanish Armada, Dame Fashion—not yet a Dame but a mere, unlettered country lass named Moll Flanders—during the invasion, I say, of the Spanish Armada, this dauntless girl stood on the white cliffs of Dover and turned the tide of battle by rallying the drooping morale of the British fleet with this stirring poem of her own composition:

Don't be gutless,
Men of Britain.
Swing your cutlass,
We ain't quittin'.

Smash the Spanish,
Sink their boats,
Make 'em vanish,
Like a horse makes oats.

For Good Queen Bess,
Dear sirs, you gotta
Make a mess
Of that Armada.

You won't fail!
Knock 'em flat!
Then we'll drink ale
And stuff like that.

As a reward for these inspirational verses Queen Elizabeth dubbed her a Dame, made her Poet Laureate, and gave her the Western Hemisphere except Duluth. But this was not the extent of Dame Fashion's service to Queen and country. In 1589 she invented the laying hen, and she was awarded a lifetime pass to Chavez Ravine. But she was not to end her days in glory. In 1591, alas, she was arrested for overtime jousting and imprisoned for thirty years in a butt of malmsey. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.)

But I digress. Let us get back to campus fashions. Certain to be the rage again this year is the cardigan (which, curiously enough, was named after Lord Cardigan, who commanded the English fleet against the Spanish Armada. The sweater is only one product of this remarkable Briton's imagination. He also invented the glottal stop, the gerund, and the eyelid, without which winking, as we know it today, would not be possible).

But I digress. The cardigan, I say, will be back, which is, I believe, cause for rejoicing. Why? Because the cardigan has nice big pockets in which to carry your Marlboro Cigarettes—and that, good friends, is ample reason for celebration as all of you will agree who have enjoyed Marlboro's fine, comfortable, mellow flavor and Marlboro's filter. So why don't you slip into your cardigan and hie yourself to your tobacconist for some good Marlboros? They come in soft pack or flip-top box. Cardigans come in pink for girls and blue for boys. © 1962 Max Shulman

Cardigans or pullovers—it's a matter of taste . . . And so is Marlboro a matter of taste—the best taste that can possibly be achieved by experienced growers and blenders—by science, diligence, and tender loving care. Try a pack.

Panhel...

ative living centers join in the plan, it will be possible to buy food at a much cheaper price than on individual bases, Burwick noted.

Definite plans for the Panhellenic Skytop conference Sunday were also announced at this special Panhellenic meeting.

Purpose of the 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. conference will be to air ideas and make plans for the coming year, said Shelley Doctors, Panhel vice president.

The eight discussion topics will be: Relations Within the House; Scholarship; Rushing, which will be divided into two groups, one to discuss theory and the other to discuss the technical aspects of rushing; IFC-Panhel Relations; Panhel and the Campus; Relations Between Sororities; Promoting Panhel as a Whole; and Reorganization of Panhel.

Ideas from the discussion sessions will be presented to the whole group at the close of the conference. They then will be mimeographed and distributed to all sororities.

Since the representatives will be house presidents, rushing chairmen and Panhellenic delegates, their ideas should represent the feelings of most sorority women, Miss Doctors noted.

Panhellenic will use these ideas in planning its activities for the remainder of the year.

In other Panhel business, house presidents voted against having open houses for freshmen coeds originally scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 27.

Two reasons caused the reversal of decision. First, the Council felt that open house at this time would put undue pressure on the freshmen which deferred rushing was supposed to eliminate.

Also, the open houses would be organized so that two representatives from each sorority would go to every other sorority.

The Council felt that it would be too difficult in so short a time to organize the open houses so that they would run smoothly and efficiently.

Samuels...

The three main challenges to the nation, said Samuels, are the resurgence of Russia since the war, the potential threat of Red China in the light of the tremendous Russian progress and the effect of the "age of technical revolution in America."

This world of change has produced a greater interdependence among people, Samuels said. 'The Democratic Party is the party to move with such great social and economic change, he said. He declared the Republicans ineffective because they are split between those who see this as an age of change and those who want to move back to an age when people were more independent.

Samuels stated the Democrats, under President Kennedy's leadership, can show their ability to keep up with the need for a government to adjust to this change.

Samuels believes in investment for the future, by paying New York's investments as the state uses them instead of the Republican "pay as you go" policy. Even though Republicans have kept the state debt down, the local debt has risen astronomically.

Samuels, who doesn't believe in the 35 hour week, feels that private industry attracts too much of the brain power of the U.S. We need more brain power in the public sector or government, he said.

His belief in the separation of church and state is tempered by a belief in finding the answer for relieving the burden of parochial schools without violating the separation doctrine.

Samuels believes the Democratic party needs reform. There must be arbitration between the "Northern liberals and the conservative myopic Democrats of the South," he said. He also called for reform in the delegate picking in the Democratic Convention. Samuels feels too many delegates are controlled by county bosses.

Attending the speech were Dean Stephen K. Bailey of the Maxwell School, Young Democrats advisor Dr. Alan K. Campbell of the political science department and Lee Alexander, Onondaga County Democratic congressional candidate.

At the meeting Pres. Vincent Monterosso announced Rep. Samuel Stratton of Schenectady and Adlai Stevenson United States United Nations delegate will be asked to speak at future club meetings.

Daily Orange Weather Watch

by Stuart Soroka
and Henry Adams

With today's issue, the Daily Orange begins a weather column entitled Weather Watch. It will be written by two students, Stuart Siroka, a sophomore in journalism, and Henry Adams, a junior physics major. The two intend to enter the field of forecasting in the future and have been doing forecasts for WAER. Now they will appear in the Daily Orange with a daily forecast, weather trends and general tips on the weather. Soroka has been writing a newspaper weather column since he was 11.

Although this time last year the campus was whitened by the season's first snow, we will get nothing worse now than light frost in the valleys and typically crisp Autumn air.

Most of the rain ended this morning but with a good bit of cloudiness persisting through sundown. A few light showers or sprinkles may develop later in the day, not enough, however, to warrant rain wear for afternoon classes.

The further outlook for tonight and tomorrow—overcoat weather continuing with diminishing cloudiness and drier air.

Buying Cooperative On Paper for Greeks

By ADAIR DUFINE

Detailed plans for a Greek buying cooperative may be entered for chartering by New York State by the semester's end.

At Wednesday night's Inter-fraternity Council meeting, plans for such a move were discussed, but further action was tabled till the next meeting, Oct. 31.

Last year, with IFC backing, several fraternities cooperated in buying baked goods and milk for their house tables.

The IFC food cooperative committee has continued working out details of an expanded buying set-up this year. Stephen Burwick (Sigma Alpha Mu) is committee chairman.

At Tuesday night's Panhellenic Council meeting, Burwick received support for the proposed cooperative from sorority chapter presidents.

More legal work is necessary before the Council can apply for the required charter from the state for their cooperative.

Independent living centers, as well as fraternities and sororities, would be eligible to purchase common stock in the cooperative and would hold all voting power in the cooperative said Burwick. He stressed, however, that Greeks would not be forced to join the cooperative.

The cost to each house would be an initial stock purchase, from $100 to $150 per share. A small deposit would also be made each month not to exceed the monthly total purchases of the house. This bank account would absolve all risks to the cooperative, Burwick said.

In other business IFC placed under the jurisdiction of its Judicial Board cases of initiation pranks.

Joint Student Court this week had asked IFC to take action against fraternities involved in pranks that result in theft, property damage or other such side effects.

Rushing events planned by the Council include coffees for freshmen next Tuesday and on Nov. 15 and freshmen exchange dinners Nov. 27 and 28.

One representative from each house will attend the coffees as well as IFC officers. The dinners will be buffet style with only one-third of each fraternity's membership present. The rest of the house will be filled with brothers from other houses and freshmen. A rotation system will be used for fraternity members to insure fair representation.

Blood Drive NowExtended Two Days

The Campus Blood Drive will be held over a two-day period instead of the previously announced one, public relations chairman Townsend Southard revealed Wednesday. The reason for the extension was the unusually high member of people volunteering to give blood.

The drive was originally scheduled for Oct. 25, but will also be held on Oct. 26. The hours have also been extended, and are now set for 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the 25th, and 10:30 a.m- 4:30 p.m. on the 26th.

Questions concerning the blood drive will be answered on WAER-FM (88.3mc) at 4 p.m. today. Anyone who needs a permission slip should call Richard Kuzmack, ext. 2940 or Barbara Currey, ext. 2516.

CAP to Close Slate to Other SU Parties

18 Party Members; Unaffiliated Houses MayRunCandidates

By AUDREY LIPPMAN

A decision to keep members of other campus political parties from running on the Campus Alliance Party ticket was passed in a CAP meeting Wednesday night at Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

Other motions approved by the party delegates included a decision to allow Greek houses whose constitutions do not allow affiliation with a campus political party to run candidates at the nominating convention.. The house must promise to back the candidate and the slate and pay the candidate's fees if he should receive a nomination.

Independent

Those politically independent Greek houses whose constitutions do not have such a clause and who wish to run a candidate on the CAP slate will be asked to join the party before their candidate will be accepted.

Two committees, campus affairs and constitutional reconstruction, were formed and

Green Elected Frosh President as Coeds Sweep Other Offices

By ANDY PORTE

Dennis Green is president of the freshman class. Laurie Weisman was elected vice president, Pam Bender was chosen secretary and Janet Aspinwall treasurer in Wednesday's freshmen election. The vote totald 1,159, slightly more than half of the 2,229-member class.

Green totaled 404 votes, defeating Richard Griffin, 313; Jonathan Bernstein, 247; and Lee Hammer, 165. Miss Weisman received 462 votes, besting David Bindeman who got 382 votes, and George Goltzer, who totaled 274.

Miss Bender tallied 447 votes, compared to 354 for Susan Sommers and 311 for Richard Simon. Miss Aspinwall received the largest amount of votes, 529, in defeating Harley Flaum, 382, and Steven Schacter, 210.

Totals

Green gained his victory by piling up large totals in Sims and H.B. Crouse Hall. He also topped the Graham vote while Hammer, the independent candidate, received the highest total in Watson.

Miss Weisman won an otherwise close race by almost equaling the totals of the other two candidates in HBC.

Miss Bender topped the voting in each polling place but Sims, where Simon received the highest amount. She received her biggest plurality on Mt. Olympus.

Miss Aspinwall was a runaway victory, losing only in Graham but almost doubling her opponents' totals in Watson. Flaum won the Graham vote.

Statistics

Green, who lives on DellPlain S, is a resident of The Hague, Netherlands, formerly of Texas. He is known as "Tex" on his floor. Miss Weisman who resides in Newton, Mass., makes her campus home on Day 8. Miss Bender, of Flint 4C, hails from Neponset. Miss Aspinwall, who lives in Marshall Cottage, is a resident of Fords, N.J.

The 1,159 total was less than the mark of 1,369 at last year's freshmen election. The election ended two weeks of nominating and campaigning highlighted by last week's nominating convention.

Frosh Coed Rush Convo Set Saturday

By SUSAN WEINBERG

Freshmen coeds who plan to rush next semester are required to attend the Panhellenic rushing convocation at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Hendricks Chapel, Wendy Wriston, Panhel public relations chairman, has announced.

Purpose of the convocation is to familiarize the freshmen with the Panhel system as a whole, said Miss Wriston. Key Panhel-

Global Engineers

By CHARLES M. STEINBERG

From five continents of the globe come the six new professors added to the College of Engineering faculty this fall.

South America sends Dr. Jose Perini, an assistant professor of electrical engineering. Dr. Perini, who received his doctorate from Syracuse, taught for the past seven years at Escola Politecnia de Sao Paula, Brazil.

Europe's contribution is a well-known industrial engineer, Dr. Constant Kerkhoven. A Dutch citizen, Dr. Kerkhoven will be a visiting professor here. He has written some nine books and 62 articles on industrial engineering. In 1956 he received the Silver Medal for industrial engineering from the prime minister's office in Jerusalem. In 1962, Dr. Kerkhoven was awarded the Medaille d'Honueur in Paris, for his work.

Down Under

From the down under, Australia, comes Dr. Klaus Schroder, an associate prof. in the department of chemical engineering and metallurgy. A native of West Germany, Schroder taught at the University of Melbourne.

Coming from the opposite ends of Asia are two new assistant professors of electrical engineering, Dr. Abbas Tchamran of Iran, and Dr. Wen Chung Wang of Taiwan. Dr. Abbas, who received his Ph.D. at Purdue has had field experience in his native country. Dr. Chun, who received his undergraduate education in Taiwan holds a doctorate from Northwestern University. He has experience as a senior engineer with the Hoffman Electronics Corp., Ill. and with General Electric Co.

The lone American in this international array of educational talent is Dr. Leonard I. Stiel, new assistant professor of chemical engineering. Stiel, who recently received his doctorate from Northwestern University, has collaborated on a number of articles in chemical engineering journals.

New York City's Press Problems

The various unions of the New York City newspapers have banded together in a unified front to press their demands. Experiences in other cities have impressed the New York locals that strikes by just one or two paper unions are ineffectual and often deadly. By acting as a single unit they feel the publishers will be in a better mood to accept their proposals.

But in case the publishers hedge, the unions have made other plans. Simply put, the locals are quite prepared to shut down all of New York's major dailies and publish their own paper.

"It will be New York's first real labor daily," one labor official was quoted as if he were looking forward to the event with great relish.

Some officials were candid enough to admit a long, drawnout strike may permanently kill a few papers. This is quite true. The New York Post has been in financial trouble for many years. Hearst's Journal American and Daily Mirror are publishing only through intra-Hearst accounting manipulations. The same is true for Scripps-Howard's World Telegram and Sun. The Herald Tribune, thanks to recent editorial changes, has one foot out of the grave, while the Times just abouts breaks even with the Times Company making a small profit on its newsprint holdings. The only financially secure paper is the Daily News.

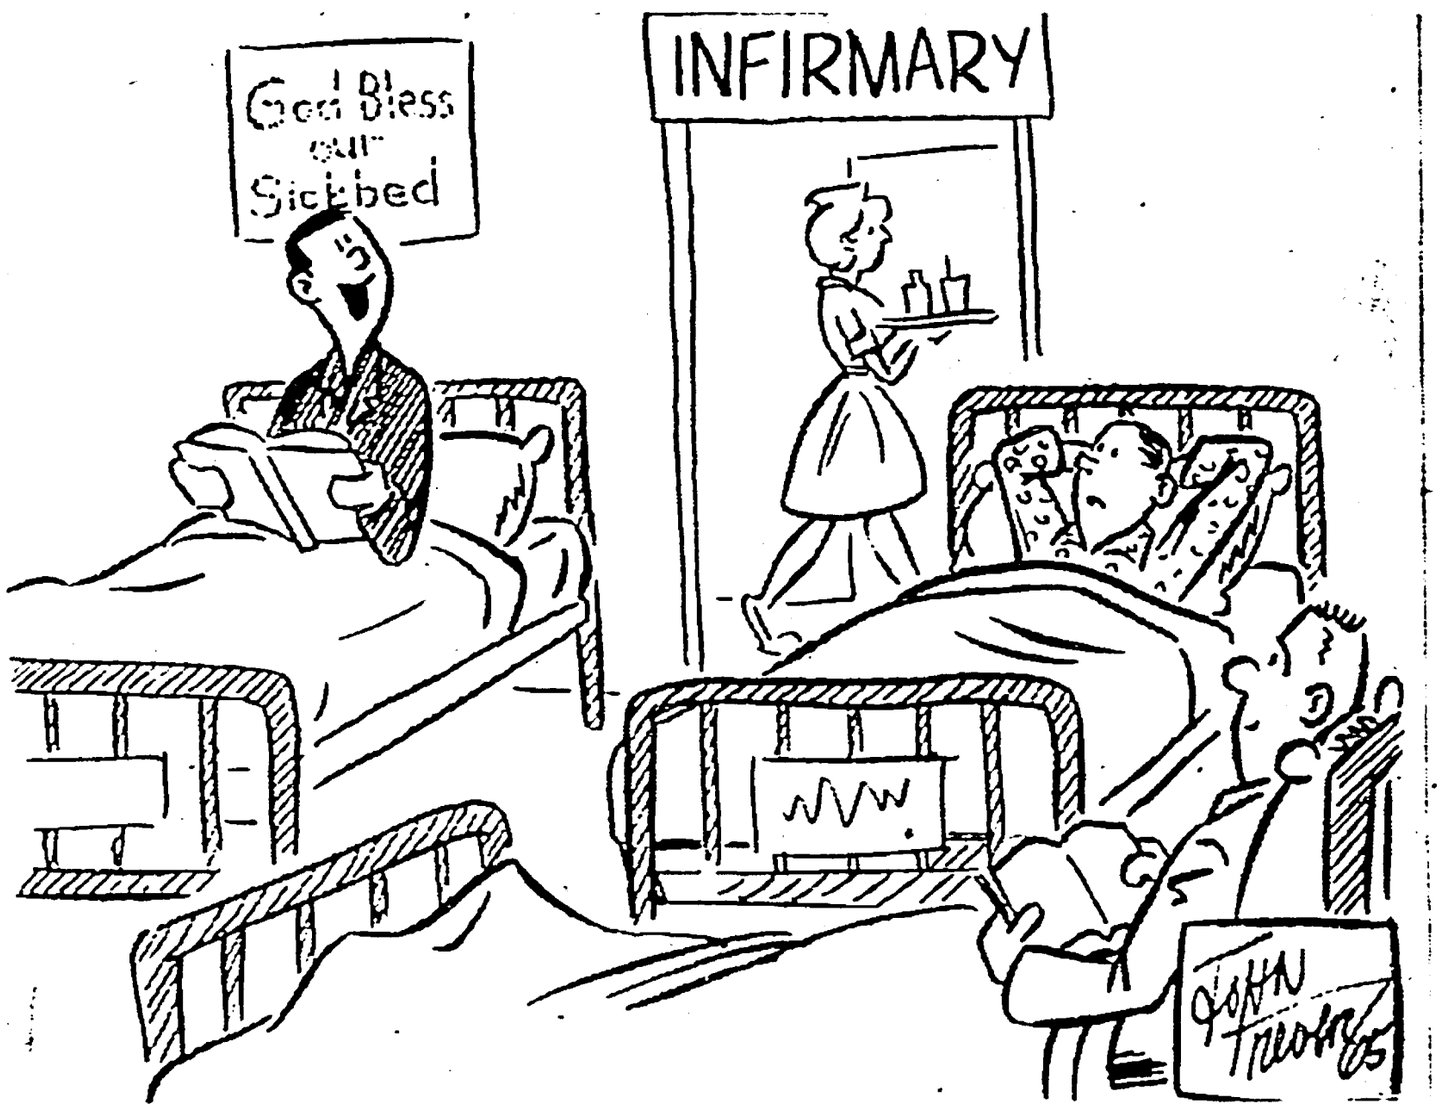
A long, ugly strike could conceivably mean the end of the Post (the only consistent pro-labor paper in New York, by the way) and the World Telegram. It could also force Hearst to merge his two gotham enterprises.

There is something ugly in hearing union officials discuss a complete shutdown of the New York press. It creates a bitter taste in the mouth to read of plans to publish a labor daily that will hardly satisfy the reading appetites of the nation's largest community.

The unions seem more than willing to create a vacuum, a sickening vacuum, in one of the most important aspects of a free and democratic society: its free press.

Newspapers are a live, vital, dynamic, enterprise. Some depict, others seethe, but all are filled with the life-stuffs of our world. Ultimately, they are as necessary to our existance as the telephone, the gas companies and the railroads. To any but the most primitive of societies they fullfil a need as great as the police, fire departments, schools, and the law courts.

To purposefully design their closing is as destructive as to order a police, doctors or teachers strike. Only the most oppressive and dangerous of condtions can warrant a paper's shutdown.



The composing room may get uncomfortable during a hot summer's day; a police reporter may get shot at while covering a story. But these are hardly enough reasons for anyone, whether reporter, linotypist, pressman, accountant or even a copy boy, to want his paper to stop publishing.

By the nature of their industry, newspaper unions have a responsibility greater than their own petty and personal needs. It's one thing to manufacture left handed hammers; it's something else again to work on a newspaper.

Union leaders have often accused, and rightly so, publishers of not following their responsibilities as purveyors of a free press. But we wonder if the union "all or nothing" attitude is setting a worthwhile example.

By planning to publish a "labor paper" in case there is a lengthy strike makes the union threat seem almost a promise. If they keep their promise, their usefullness in our society is truly in doubt.

TREVER ON CAMPUS

"Let's elect a social chairman and have a mixer with the girls' ward"

ANOTHER VIEWPOINT

A Cold, Hard Look

By Larry Dana

After much deliberation about the entire rushing picture on this campus, I felt the need to emit a loud yelp to those who insist upon inserting their heads in the good old S.U. sand. Look up—look around—and perhaps you'll feel like heading for the hills until the smoke clears.

What smoke, you say, Dana, what's your problem? Well, lets take a look, a long cold rational look, and perhaps you'll see.

First, the very person who is supposed to be protected by the rushing system is well nigh going to be drawn and quartered. The freshman is caught in a deadly cross fire as a result of the deferred rush.

How? Assume all houses follow the rules to the letter. The freshman now picks the fraternity of his choice by a week or two of blitz tours and fast talk. On the basis of a few hectic half hour visits, the freshman picks his house.

Good grief—is this fair? To make a man decide where he is to live and eat, to pick his closest friends for the next four years, on jet propelled visits through the houses? I don't think so.

Has he seen any house in a social situation, or has he been able to find out what the brothers are really like as people, or even what personality the house has as a whole? No! What criterion, then, is there to make an intelligent choice.

Actually, he makes his decision on the basis of three factors. They are the physical appearance of the house, the religious tendency of the house, and the prior reputation of the house which he discovers in dorm bull sessions with other freshmen.

At the rushing convocation, Dean Earle Clifford gave the freshmen a number of criterion to look for when they rush. It is doubtful whether the freshmen can follow the dean's wishes in this vein, even if they want to under the new system.

On the whistle stops they make, even the most perceptive freshmen don't have nearly enough information to make a legitimate decision.

Many guys are going to make mistakes they will regret by deciding their house under such pressure.

As long as our heads are out of the sand, lets take a look at the rushing rules themselves.

In brief, we upper class fraternity men are barred from contact with freshmen except in classes and related areas of contact (e.g. the library). No phone calls, no frosh in our cars, none with us when we eat, play ball, go into town, etc., ad infinitum.

In short, we must forget an entire class exists until February. Then, for a few short weeks, it's open season on the frosh. Fine system.

Now, let's use our heads for a minute. We have created a false situation with arbitrary rules which go against every rule of human nature. And add this to the witches brew—you've got hundreds of freshmen very curious about fraternities, and thirty houses straining at the bit to tell them all about it.

How long will it take before the inevitable happens. How long before people start getting hurt because of these unreasonable rules. How many freshmen will be tricked by the houses that decide to dirty rush. How many houses that keep the rules will lose out to those who don't.

Which house will be the first to succumb to the temptation of dirty rushing, and get caught. Chances are the only reason that house dirty rushed in the first place is because of a fear that its competitors were similarly engaged.

Perhaps you think I paint a pretty black picture, well, there's more. The prestige houses, the ones with the reputation, gain immeasurably under these rules. Because the freshman who hasn't been dirty rushed uses their reputations as a very important criterion since he has seen no other houses.

This whole system puts the non-prestige houses on the spot. To stay alive, they had better make up for the edge the prestige houses have. However, they are the houses which can least afford rushing probation.

The big houses in the past have proven they can survive rushing probation, they can afford to take the risk of dirty rushing. The small houses can't.

Is the picture hopeless? It sure is if we put our heads back in the sand and make believe dirty rushing can't happen. It's hopeless if we maintain the attitude that freshmen will make intelligent choices on the basis of the rushing sessions.

Let's face the problem head on for a change, instead of running away from it. Allow limited contact before February—it's going to happen anyway. Permit freshmen to see fraternity parties, but limit the amount spent on each party to $100 per house. Give the freshmen opportunity to learn about the houses, not by outlawing contact, but by supervising it.

It's just plain silly to put blinders on freshmen and expect them to wear them until February.

As long as we've got a deferred rush system, why not use it to its fullest rather than defeat its purpose as we have set it up now. The theory of deferred rush is to give freshmen ample time to look over the houses and be then able to make an intelligent choice. This will not be accomplished by barring contact to such an absolute degree.

It will be done by allowing the freshmen and the fraternity men ample opportunity to meet with each other. Then, and only then will deferred rushing have met its purpose on our campus.

Policy on Letters

The letters' column is maintained for the expression of opinion by our readers. The Daily Orange reserves the right to edit letters for reasons of grammar, space and good taste. It also reserves the right to reject letters.

Letters should be typed and should not exceed 250 words. All letters must be signed with names and addresses, but names will be withheld on request.

Syracuse University probably has the northern-most football fan club in the world. General Electric Co. and the University are co-operating in a program that allows GE and service personnel stationed in such places as Greenland and the Aleutain Islands to see special films just a few days after Orange games.

American colleges and universities are spending more than a billion dollars a year on new dormitories, classrooms and laborities.

Folksinger

FRANK WARNER

Frank Warner, general president of the Long Island YMCA, whose hobby is folk singing, will perform 4:15 p.m. today for the public, and 7:30 p.m. for the SU faculty in the Chapel House lounge.

Warner, a historian and well-known authority on American folk songs, illustrates that undoctored folk singing can be entertaining and exciting.

He sings the songs of the people as well as the songs that had close links to American frontier days. Warner accompanies himself on a wooden banjo made for him by a North Carolina mountain friend.

Warner was a featured player in RKO's Civil War movie "Run of the Arrow" and took part in the 1959 and 1960 Newport Folk Festivals. He has also made several recordings, the most recent: Our Singing Heritage; Songs of the Civil War (with his sons); and a documentary with Bill Bonyun and others.

His campus appearance is under the sponsorship of Hendricks Chapel.

NITE LIFE

The Jimmy Dean Show

The Three Rivers Inn opened its fall line up of big names last Friday night with popular singer Jimmy Dean, comedienne Dory Sinclair and the father—son team of Billy and Bobby Spina. The show, while a bit long at almost two hours, was well paced and dragged only rarely.

The Spina's opened the show with some oldies in typical vaudeville fashion. The eight-year old Bobby completely upstaged his father with a standout interpretation of "Mack the Knife." Though the total effect of the act was okay a little trimming is needed.

Comedienne Dory Sinclair, whose thinning blond hair and mannerisms remind one of Phyllis Diller, is next on the bill. Her singing, mugging, cracks about her looks and suggestive gags pleased the house and should carry her far. Her total effect of a kooky, lovable nut is marred only by her close resemblance to Miss Diller.

Watching these first acts from ringside was headliner Jimmy Dean. When announced he casually walked onto the stage and sang the cute novelty "We'll Wear Glad Rags Tonight." A few "home town stories" were followed by some imitations and an amusing "Barnyard Shuffle" dance.

A receptive house loved his "milking cows" story. "Darn nice, for Yankees," he quipped. Dean's novelty "I Won't Go Huntin' with You Jake, but I'll Go Chasin' Women," brought down the house.

Dean's show is a good one. He is a talented performer and his relaxed, home spun personality mixed up with his Texas drawl adds up to a showman who just can't help being likeable.

Dean's warmth gave the large Three Rivers Inn a living room atmosphere. Adam Wade comes in Oct. 22, and Sammy Davis jr. appears at Three Rivers Nov. 2.

JZ

Cox Slated For Crouse

Jerrold Cox, pianist, will present the second Crouse Concert program 4 p.m. Sunday, at Crouse College Auditorium.

A member of the piano teaching staff, Cox holds both his bachelor's and master's degree in the Humanities from Syracuse. He is studying piano with Robert Goldsand in New York City and has given recitals in Central New York and Virginia. He has appeared as a soloist with the Syracuse University Symphony and the Krasner Chamber Music Ensemble.

Sunday's program will open with Mozart's Variation on Salve tu, Domine by Paisiello. This will be followed by Beethoven's Sonata Pathetique and the Opus 15 Fantaisie by Schubert.

The program will close with the Sonata, Opus 26, by the American composer Samuel Barber.

FILMS

'Jules and Jim'

"Jules and Jim," which opened at the Riviera Cinema last night, is not, as some have told us, a comedy. It is a history.

That much of the film has a bubbly, giggly, effervescense is because that part deals with the lyrical, soaring, full throated freedom of the bohemians in Europe prior to World War I.

That part of the film has a frustrating, "illogical," and brooding atmosphere is because it deals with a troubled soul of post war Europe.

Specifically "Jules and Jim" deals with two students, Jules and Jim, and their affair with the beautiful Katherine.

The three, Jules played by Henri Serre, Jim played by Oskar Werner, and Katherine played by Jeanne Moreau, romp through a bohemian Paris and a quiet country side.

They have a passion for life and a passion for each other. With remarkable vitality director Francois Truffaut ("The 400 Blows") has captured the joyous humor and the intense faith in life of these people.

This era begins to disintegrate with the interpolation of newsreel footage of the war, and is ended with similar footage of bookburning in Germany. So does the "menage a trois" between Jules, Jim and Katherine. Her beauty, her moods, even her sex, become meaningless.

Jeanne Moreau is the brilliant, sensuous star of this partly joyous, partly frantic, partly sad, but always fascinating film. In addition to "Jules and Jim" the Riviera is featuring Ingmar Bergman's "Wild Strawberries."

Syracuse Hockey Association Schedules Ten Contests

The Syracuse Hockey Club will compete in the Finger Lakes Collegiate Hockey League during the 1963 ice season.

Members of the F.L.C.H.L. include the University of Rochester, Hobart, Brockport State, Ithaca College, R.I.T. and Syracuse. Of these, only R.I.T. holds varsity recognition.

All Syracuse University home games will be played at the New York State Fairgrounds. Saturday night home contests will start at 6:30 p.m. and Wednesday night matches will begin at 10 p.m.

Since the Hockey League is not a member of the Eastern Collegiate Conference or the NCAA, freshmen and graduate students will be able to participate. Under varsity rules only upperclassmen are eligible.

Coach and advisor for the Syracuse Hockey Club is Dr. Richard Johnson. Johnson will select squad members and submit a team roster to league headquarters before the Jan. 12 opening.

Following the hockey season, an all-star team will be picked to face off against other area colleges. The all-stars hope to play two post-sason matches, one in Rochester and one in Syracuse. Clarkson and St. Lawrence are mentioned as possible opponents.

The Syracuse 1963 league schedule:

Jan. 12 Brockport State
16 at R.I.T.
30 Hobart
Feb. 2 University of Rochester
9 Hobart
13 Ithaca College
16 at Ithaca College
20 at Brockport State

27 at University of Rochester

Tight Games Add Color To '62 Series

The 1962 World Series has finally come to a close, climaxing the longest baseball season in history. For Yankee fans it was an average series, the Bronx Bombers winning in seven games.

For the Giants, it was a heartbreaker. All year long the Giants kept "coming back" in Manager Alvin Dark's words. Battling for a tie, the Giants went down to the last game of the year to get it.

It took three hair-raising playoff games before the San Franciscans could even get the right to meet New York's finest in the Fall Classic. In the end though, the team that kept coming back just ran out of gas.

Although no really outstanding performance occurred in the Series, it was a usual one in which the obscure figure took the spotlight. Jose Pagan, Tom Haller, and Chuck Hiller paced the Giants, while Tommy Tresh was the big offensive and defensive hero for the New Yorkers.

Orange Gridders Hold Third Spot In Defense

By BOB ROGERS

After winning last Saturday against Boston College, Syracuse has still kept its third place in forward pass defense. Bill Orange is only topped by Boston U. and Oklahoma.

In three games there have been 30 attempts with only 12 completions for a percentage of .400. The same incidently as Oklahoma. However, Syracuse has let go of 149 yards where as Oklahoma has only had 140 yards fly. This is 49.7 yards per game; only two yards behind second place Oklahoma.

In individual forward passing, Navy's Klemick is the only opponent of Piety who has made the first 15.

Klemick has attempted 60 passes and completed a little more than half for 385 yards and one touchdown.

In the pass receiving department, Powell of Penn State is 10th in pigskin receiving. In four games he has caught 18 passes for 188 yards.

In the punting department, Penn State seems to excel. Raisig is third in this most important field. He has kicked 14 times for a 42-yard average. Maybe Bill Orange will help lower his average.

Looking into the future, Drummond of George Washington seems to be a game rusher, at least at the moment. Drummond has moved up three more places since last week. This week he is fifth with 88 rushes for 426 yards in five games.

Concannon of B.C. dropped from 8th pace to 15th place in total offense. Concannon gained some 20 yards, since last week, it seems that Concannon ran into a brick wall.

Walley Mahle, although he has not made any showing in the national statistics, had a 6.3 per carry average.

In last week's game Walley carried 16 times for 101 yards. He also scored the only two touchdowns of the game.

Art Baker Lost to Bills For Season

The services of former Syracuse University star fullback Art Baker have been lost to the American Football League Buffalo Bills for the duration of the season.

Baker, a 6-1, 225-pound power runner, injured his leg two weeks ago, and Buffalo officials said he was operated on recently.

Baker was the number one fullback on Syracuse's number one team in 1959, teaming with Ernie Davis, Ger Schwedes and Dave Sarette to form an unbeatable backfield.

Art graduated from the Hill in 1961, and immediately signed with the Bills.

Buffalo is currently in last place in the AFL's Eastern Division.

The International Typographical Union was founded in 1852 and is the first and oldest labor union in the United States.

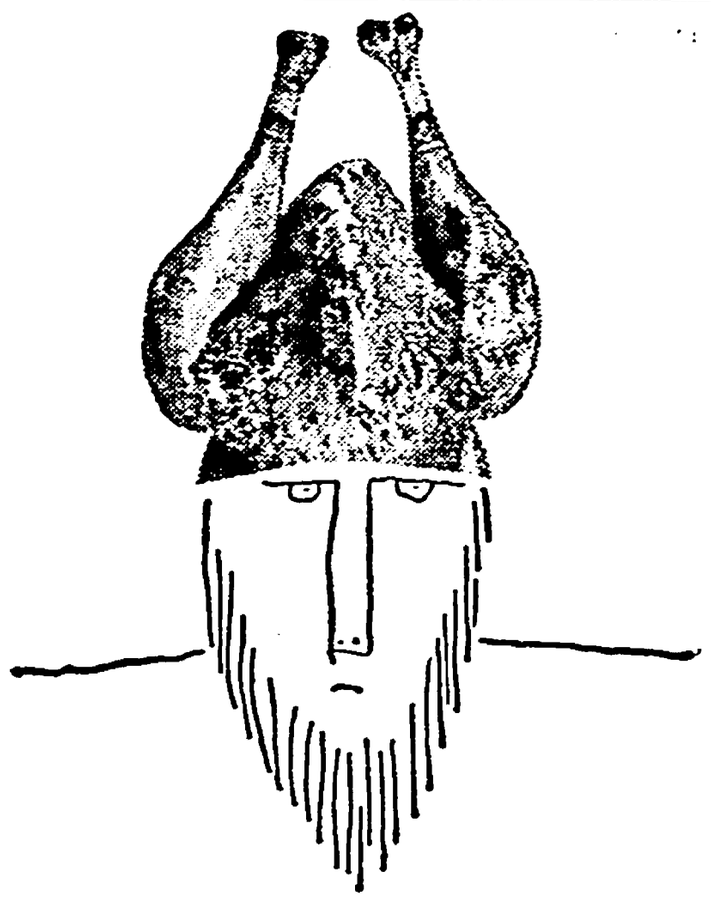
New Manager Named For '62 by 2 AL Clubs

BOSTON (AP) — Already the managerial ax has been sharpened. Two American League managers have been removed, and a National League manager may be next in line.

The first to go was Kansas City manager Hank Bauer. President Finley of the Athletics fired the ex-Yankee and hired ex-Yankee Eddie Lopat to fill the gap. Lopat has had previous experience as pitching coach for New York and Kansas City.

The second manager to go was Mike Higgins of the Boston Red Sox. Higgins had lost favor in the front office as a field leader but has been named Vice-President of the team.

Johnny Pesky has been hired for the 1963 season. Pesky managed the Seattle club of the Pacific Coach League and sent up many players to the parent Red Sox.



Pesky's first action was to fire the entire coaching staff.

The word concerning Walter Alston has not yet come from LA owner Walter O'Malley. O'Malley is reputed to be impatient over failures to win the pennant. This year's Dodger collapse at season's end may have been more than O'Malley can bear. Pete Reiser, LA coach, is rumored to be next in line.

Know the Orange:

GENE STANCIN

Gene Stancin At Key Spot On Hill Line

By Vin Zukowski

One of the most pleasant surprises for the Orange football squad is the continued improvement of lineman Gene Stancin.

Gene's rise to the first unit began two years ago when he impressed the coaches with his constant hustle and quick pursuit.

Possessing the attributes of hustle and speed, he has been able to compensate for his one handicap—his lack of size. This is a handicap that nearly wrote him off the list of big time college football.

Gene hails from Campbell, Ohio where he starred for three years at the center post. The final high school tribute was paid to Gene by recognition as the All-Conference center. Gene then made the jump from Campbell Memorial to Syracuse University, in spite of his comparatively slight physique, and lettered in both his sophomore and junior years.

During these past two years, Gene has become known as a holler guy and combative competitor—sort of a Don Hoak of college football.

However, Gene's dedication does not take the place of physical ability. Gene has many a time thrilled the football aficionados with his open field tackles on punts and kick-offs.

Most recently in the Army game, Gene snapped the ball back to the punter, blocked the man over him, and sprinted downfield to nail the punt receiver.

As a lineback, Gene has become feared for his remarkable lateral pursuit across field and recovery after a block has been thrown at him.

As a senior this year, Coach Schwartzwalder expects Gene to be one of the "team leaders." He has all the qualities to inspire the Orange squad. His dedication and desire with physical ability is a tribute to himself and the team.

Wrap this all up, put on contact lens, and you have 185-pound Gene Stancin mixing it up with the "big fellers."

Rookies Featured In Nats Exhibition

The new Syracuse Nationals basketball squad goes on exhibition tonight at the War Memorial. The public is invited with no charge for admission.

This open house scrimmage is being held for the third consecutive year. Coach Alex Hannum plans to put his players through their paces for the benefit of the crowd. They will demonstrate several of their offensive patterns.

The team will follow with a 30 minute scrimmage under game conditions.

This will be the first chance for local fans to see three of the Nationals fine rookie candidates. The first-year performers are Chet Walker of Bradley, Len Chappell of Wake Forest, and Porter Meriwether of Tennessee State.

Walker and Chappell were All-American selections last year. Meriwether was picked as a Little All-American. These were the first three Nat selections in the college player draft last spring.

The entire 12-player squad will appear in tonight's scrimmage. Swede Halbrook, sidelined by the reoccurance of an old knee injury will be the only player on the roster not listed for action. (Note: Halbrook was placed on waivers Wednesday.)

A drawing for several season tickets will be held during the evening. The number of winners will be determined by the amount of tickets sold in advance sales.

The regular league season opens for the Nationals on Saturday.

Sorority Conference At Skytop on Sunday

By SUSAN WEINBERG

Mrs. Theodore Pierson, former president of Panhellenic Council will be keynote speaker at the Panhellenic conference Sunday at Skytop Lodge, announced Shelley Doctors (Alpha Epsilon Phi), Panhel vice president.

Her topic, Panhellenic goals, indicates the practical nature of the conference, Miss Doctors noted.

Panhel hopes to obtain workable ideas which will improve its organization and programs, she said. Consequently, the discussion topics will be of a specific nature thus keeping in line with the general theme.

Discussion leaders and secretaries for the nine "buzz" groups have been named. They are:

1. Inter - sorority Relations: Chairman, Ellen Werdegar (Alpha Epsilon Pi); secretary, Susan Rosenberg (Sigma Delta Tau).

2. IFC Relations: Chairman, Jaedene Roberts (Phi Sigma Sigma); secretary Patricia Jayne (Delta Gamma).

3. Rushing Theory: Chairman, Joan Doremus (Gamma Phi Beta); secretary Joanne Leiser (Sigma Kappa).

4. Panhellenic Organization: Chairman, Anne Gibson (Kappa Kappa Gamma); secretary, Judith Simons (Kappa Alpha Theta).

5. Rushing Problems: Chairman Carol Shire (Alpha Phi; secretary, Susan Yeager (Alpha Epsilon Phi).

6. Relations Within the Sorority: Chairman, Gail Weinberg (Alpha Epsilon Phi); secretary Jeannette Danielian (Zeta Tau Alpha).

7. Scholarship: Chairman, Cinda Buswell (Delta Delta Delta); secretary, Elizabeth Lazar (Alpho Lambda Phi).

8. Panhel-Campus Relations: Chairman Patricia Thompson (Sigma Tau Upsilon); secretary.

9. Promoting Panhel as a Whole: Chairman, Marilyn Tataryn (Phi Mu); secretary, Dianne Renzoni (Kappa Kappa Gamma).

In addition to the three delegates from each sorority attending, several local alumni will be there as guests. They are Mrs. Theodore Levine, Mrs. Lionel Grossman and Mrs. Forrest Witmeyer.

The conference will begin at 1:30 p.m. with a welcoming address from Panhel Pres. Virginia Frykman followed by the keynote address.

At 2 p.m. the group will split into discussion sections of about nine delegates each.

Cornell Alums Say New Code Too Liberal

By CLAY RICHARDS

ITHACA — Cornell University alumni Wednesday afternoon expressed concern over the increasingly liberal morality proposals in the new Cornell Code now under consideration by the faculty committee on student affairs.

Specifically mentioned by the alumni group were proposals to rescind the ban on freshmen women in apartments and to abolish curfews for Senior women.

K. Patricia Cross, Cornell dean of students, stated that many groups objected to the liberalized rules on the grounds that it is becoming increasingly difficult for secondary school committees to rationalize the realization of rules to parents and that admissions are being jeopardized.

Commenting on the apparent alumni movement, executive board president Harold S. Nathan commented "The movement is definitely not organized, but it is possible that it will become stronger."

'Student Union' Program Opens Tonight in WB

The year's student union program begins tonight with the movie "Male Animal" shown at 4, 6:30 and 9 p.m. in the Women's Building.

The film stars Henry Fonda and Olivia de Haviland. Open juke-box twisting in the Women's Building recreation lounge begins at 7:30 p.m.

Other activities will include checkers, chess, cards and volleyball in gyms A and B.

The student union activities, a program without its own building, began last year in the Women's Building. Weekly open houses are planned throughout this year.

At a meeting Tuesday, Ann Cooney, chairman of the Joint Student Government affiliated Student Union Committee, asked representatives of various campus groups to submit fund-raising suggestions.

The Student Union Fund Raising Committee plans to meet with administrators in about two weeks.

Campus Magazine Okayed; Editorial Positions Open

By HOWIE GINSBURG

The Hill Board of Publications has announced that there will be a "magazine of ideas" published on the Syracuse University campus. It remains undecided whether the magazine will be a continuation of Syracuse '10', last year's literary magazine.

The board, meeting for two hours Thursday, issued a statement asking for "applications for candidates for editor and business manager," to be turned in to the dean of the School of Journalism by 2 p.m. Monday, when the board will meet again. Applicants must have a 1.5 average and submit a one page letter of application.

A format for the magazine will be decided upon after the elections.

Terrence Hughes' application for campus sanctioning of a new student magazine was tabled until the status of Syracuse '10' is settled.

Hughes, 1961-62 editor of '10', was challenged as to his right of sitting with the board to discuss the issues of the temporarily defunct magazine.

Dean John S. Hafer suggested that Hughes and his two Syracuse '10' 1961 staffers, Jeffrey Radford and Maurice Forman, had no business at the board's meeting since their terms of editorship had expired.

After a lengthy discussion, at which Hughes, Radford and Forman were not present, it was decided that Hughes and Forman would retain their seats for Monday's meeting but that Radford would be replaced by Ellen Becker, 1961-62 circulation manager of '10'.

Hughes, representing a group of eight students wishing to publish a financially independent magazine, had no comment on the board's postponement.

Carol (Schultze) Lucha, Joint Student Government vice president, commented after the meeting, "the spirit of Pinebrook certainly was lacking".

A controversy over the function of Syracuse '10' arose last year when administration officials threatened the '10' subsidy if Hughes allowed an "expose" on food service to be printed. The article was called detrimental to the university and was never published in the magazine. The Daily Orange later printed it.

At the time, Hughes was told that the purpose of Syracuse '10' was to be an outlet for literary talent. Hughes, however, claimed he had accepted the editorship on a platform calling for a magazine of compus controversy.

Syracuse '10' did not have its scheduled third issue last year and was not given a definite budget until now. The budget called for by financial advisor Francis O'Brien late last spring was almost a 50 percent reduction.

If Hughes' plan does not receive campus sanctioning, sales of his publications in dormitories would be prohibited.

Ted and Schultze Lead JSG

Pearl Harbor was bombed, and Carol Lucha was born. The peppy coed who holds the post of Joint Student Government vice president, might be the nation's first war baby.

Most of the campus knows Miss Lucha as "Schultze," a tag stuck on her in her frosh year. "We had about 12 'Carols' on Flint 2C, and someone said I looked like Ann P. "Schultze" Davis." The name has remained since.

Schultze is a consistent early riser, up by 8 almost every morning. She attends classes until noon or 1 p.m. each day, and usually spends part of her free time in the Drama Building.

Drama Bug

Now working on publicity for "Little Mary Sunshnie," Schultze has a history of affiliation with the Drama department. A drama major herself, Schultze says she loves to direct, and she manages Ted Bayer is a man on the way up.

As president of Joint Student Government, he serves on seven university committees, spends about four hours a day in the government office and carries a full schedule of classes. Seldom does he get a chance to relax.

"You get so used to running around, it becomes a habit," Bayer says. "If you didn't go to school, you could have a good time with this." Yet Bayer admits he can't do everything. "I want to leave something for next year."

Government president is no meager post, Bayer has discovered. "It's all day. Everywhere you go the job comes up. It doesn't matter where I am. Every place I go I run into someone."

TED BAYER

Busy

Remembering all the various meetings and appointments isn't easy for Ted Bayer. He has to check eveyrthing, and then channel it off to the proper chairman. "I don't remember a thing without writing it down," he states.

A typical day in the life of Syracuse's best-known student begins at 8:15 a.m. when Teddy pulls himself out of his comfortable Watson Dormitory bed, washes, shaves and heads for campus. He picks up a cup of coffee, cream and sugar, in HBC, "if I'm lucky."

For the remainder of the morning, Bayer attends classes, mostly in his major field—political science. Once through, Teddy heads for Marshall street and lunch. Then to the office, where he attempts to "get organized."

"What we really need here are secretaries," Bayer says, "there's just so much to do." After an afternoon of meetings or phone calls, Bayer either returns to Marshall street or goes to his fraternity house for dinner..

Studying is another problem in the life of Ted Bayer. He studies in several places — his room, the office, the library. "Yet I never seem to be able to get too much done." He readily admits "I've been dating too much.

A Frosh

Bayer had a rather quiet begining at Syracuse. "I didn't do too much as a freshman. I guess I just did what all frosh do."

The following, according to the committee, are among questions frequently asked about giving blood:

1. Is support of the blood drive needed?——Yes, urgently. Every year medical science discovers new applications for blood in the fight against injury and disease. The blood program is a student responsibility and serves all who need it, regardless of race, creed or

The Case of the Student Magazine

If the statement issued by the Board of Publications Thursday means what we think it means, the campus will once again have a student magazine.

We envelope the above statement in doubt for a good reason. For, since the controversy that arose over last year's 'Syracuse 10', much hollow talk and suspended animation has been taking place in the various "higher" buildings on campus and only rumors could be discussed.

First we were faced with the embarrassing situation of printing a public dog-fight between two administrators over who did or did not call a Board meeting.

Thursday such a meeting was held and the statement coming forth from the meeting said that applications will be accepted for editorial positions on a campus magazine, supported by the university.

If this means another year of 'Syracuse 10' we would all have cause to shout hurrah. But what does it really mean?

It would seem to mean that the Board wants a magazine to represent the university. Last year, many of the administrators felt Terry Hughes' magazine didn't help the campus with its probing articles on university life.

The fact is Terry Hughes and his staff produced a fine magazine. A campus that preaches freedom of expression should have been proud of it.

But rather than being proud, the university heads seem to be going out of their way to prevent such a magazine from ever again being sanctioned by university funds. This became evident Thursday when the Board tabled Hughes' proposal for just such a magazine.

The Board will take up the question again but not until it has chosen an editor and staff for a campus magazine. Then Hughes will be out in the cold just because he is a thorough, unflinching journalist.

AMIDST THE CLAMOR

Unity and Apathy

By Win Whittaker

Unity and Apathy. Some students, and their leaders, toss these words around with little meaning. No one actually knows what to do about either—and, it is probably a good thing.

Unity—let's get everyone to join the Conformists' Club. Some crazy scientist tried that in Li'l Abner's Dog Patch and the whole place practically choked to death because of it. So, what if there are a few odd balls who do not care if one or ten groups (or not at all for that matter) work toward a Student Union? For reality's sake, the Student Union is not going to be built, no matter what the students do, until after the library's stones are cemented into place.

And, for some reason, no one has seen the new library or even a hole for it. Back in 1959, the plans were all ready to construct a new House of Literature.

Maybe a conspiracy exists between the student leaders and the university in this area—both trying to promote unity, although in diverse endeavors. While the student body herds itself to Big Brother, the University piles identical bricks up and calls it Watson. Window after window is spaced the same in HBC (Horribly Bad Characteristics). If this is unity, sterility promotes it.

Suppose some students do not give a hoot who wins an election—after all what difference does it make anyway. Why should a bunch of people try to push the guy into a voting booth?

Maybe a student would rather sleep than see the Orangemen muscle their way down the gridiron. Students have been known to go drinking and not parade up to the Women's Building for Friday Night Student Union time.

Are these SUers apathetic? Not necessarily. After enrolling, we are told what we may and may not do. And one of the requirements is not to be gung-ho Syracuse. A student's private life is just that—private and personal.

Sure students will work, undertake projects, and try to promote general campus interest. And, this is fine. Workers and followers for various programs manage to donate their services. Good. But, please quit hollering if there are those who do not particularly care. You student leaders, if you thought about it, do not want them to come forward anyway.

Responsibility represents an entirely different matter. For example, if a living center does not care to be represented at JSL that is their business. But, if a person, elected as a JSL rep, does not show then he—apathetic to be sure—is just plain irresponsible. This pseudo-senator should be the brunt of criticism, not from Ron Mittleman, but from his constituents.

The same principle applies to committee work, IFC, and all other organizations. If a student signs up to do something, then he should do it. If he does not want to, the person should never have volunteered in the first place.

For two reasons, student projects tend to bog down. One of these reasons is not apathy. Each undertaking usually lacks organization. The result comes out with half the campus population working for some undefined, unmapped goal. The workers come forth and get something to do—there it ends. Projects do not receive serious deliberation, but rather become launched after a whim of imagination.

The second reason. Some impossible-to-accomplish projects have drawn many diligent working people. After a while they become discouraged saying to heck with it all—nothing will ever be done. Good minds, able hands lost for the future.

If you want unity go after it. Give us some reason for not being apathetic. We are waiting.

Seniors Only

The ill-fated five sang a song too full of satire in the midst of a Spring Weekend skit not full enough of wit, and in spite of it all the Senior Class government for 1962 got its feet on the ground and its machinery in working order.

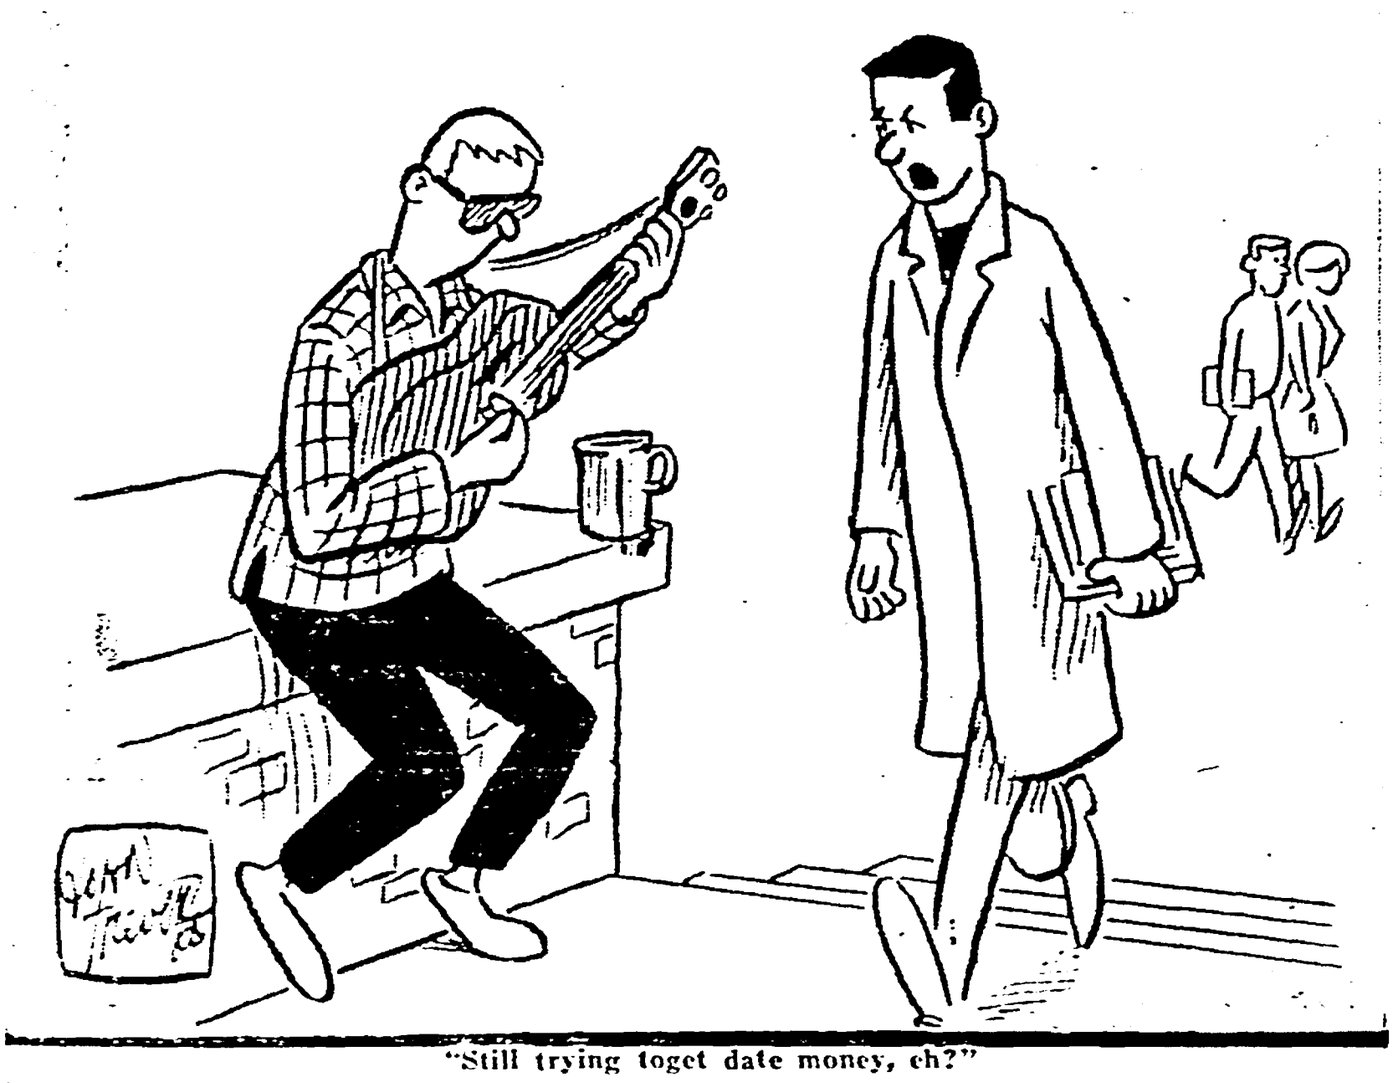
With an ear to the wall, enthusiastic plans could be heard last Spring as the Senior Class Executive Committee held its first session. Ted Bayer was there with hopes that class government could be incorporated into student government, even to include separate desks for each class in the JSG office complex.

Mums, buttons, buses, flew about as new finance schemes raised the ideal of a golden year. Senior Ball, senior class gift, senior class symbol, senior week, senior class marshals, commencement speaker, senior newsletter, senior welcoming letter, senior class schedule of events, were the projects that were discussed and administered in preparation for the coming senior year.

Summer recess brought valuable time to negotiate the administration's full support for a vanguard letter to be sent to all returning seniors in the fall. President Henry Lee kept the mails burning as "the 21" kept busy on projects.

With the turning of the leaves, gears were engaged as "the 4 and 21" found themselves taken to task. Army buttons were ordered, sold, and a profit made. Army bus tickets were advertised, then curtailed. A ballot poll of the senior class was taken to determine its wishes for a commencement speaker. A tabulation was made and the results forwarded to the commencement committee. Mums were ordered, sales planned, a profit earned.

Senior Ball plans were initiated and the Randolph House reserved for the last Friday in May. Outstanding faculty members have been contacted for speaking engagements sponsored by the Senior Class. A class newsletter staff has been appointed and is gathering material.



One month has passed, and your Senior Executive Council has met five times. Its meetings have improved, its unity disclaimed, and reclaimed. These your fellow students, known and unknown, are seeking to enhance your final year at Syracuse University. Your education and determined interests is their goal.

National Anthem

To the Editor

I was very unimpressed with the students of Syracuse University during the playing of the national anthem during the pre-game ceremonies Saturday.

This may sound corny to many students, but it is customary for Americans to stand with their hands at their sides while the anthem is being played.

When this isn't done by an individual in the stands, it usually goes unnoticed. But when I see the football team gathered on the field with hands in pockets and mouths full of popcorn, I can't help but wonder if those students realize they are Americans and that their national anthem is being played and that they are representing the student body while out on that field.

Footballers

To the Editor

It is very annoying to me to see certain "elements" on our campus act like they own SU's. I am referring to some of the freshman football players. They parade around with big enough chips on their shoulders to build a house.

Someday these men may be really great football players, but, so what? Does that give them the right to bellow and throw their 200 odd pounds around whenever anyone speaks, and to put their noses into other peoples' business? These he-men need some lessons in manners and sportsmanship.

The rest of the Frosh pay to go to S. U. also, and deserve to be treated as human beings by everyone.

You guys may be big and strong, but why not grow up?

WEEKEND

RIVIERA-CINEMA—Run, fly if you can, to south South Salina and catch this truly exceptional double bill, the likes of which may not be seen again in Syracuse 'til a Democrat gets eleeted mayor. On the top of the bill in Truffaut's "Jules and Jim," a joyous, bubbly comedy with somber overtones. Jeanne Moreau stars. On the "bototm" of the bill is Bergman's introspective "Wild Strawberries." Some bottom, if you like Bergman. "J&J" at 6:45 and 10 p.m. "Berg's Berries" at 8:30 p.m.

PARAMOUNT — Hey, ancient history fans, let's go to the Paramount for some excitement, adventure, laughs. "The Mongols," those blood thirsty hordes of men, burst across the screen followed by Anita Ekberg, who really bursts across the screen. Jack Palance, who seems out of place, and Steve Reeves, who's right at home in this type of flick, are the blood-thirsty Mongols but one look at Anita and they forget about their thirst. And in this corner "The Trojan Horse" starring John Drew Barrymore. This is probably the most difficult role ever played by a Barrymore. He does very well as the Trojan Horse, however. "World's First Blood Bank" at 9:48 p.m. "Three Men In A Horse" at 7:35 p.m.

LOEW'S — The advertisement for "I Thank a Fool" defines schizo as "split personality . . . a psycho. . . ." For this definition "I Thank A Fool." Co-feature is "The Hellions." It's something like Greek scullions, we believe. No times available.

ECKEL—"What are you doing tonight, Jacob?" "I don't know. What's to do, Wilhelm?" "How about we write some fairy tales?" "OK, but we'll have to change our last names; how would it sound—The Brothers Aesop?" And so they changed their name to Grimm and so Hollywood let them tell a story in Cinerama. See it soon in the Eckel because Jacob and Wilhelm, the projectionists, are planning to go on strike. "Strike While The Film is Shot" at 8:30 p.m.

KEITH'S—Now, at last, sex in Technicolor! "The Chapman Report" is bringing the folks in from all over because they heard it is the picture you dare not miss. We dare you to miss it. But then you'll hate yourself later for missing the story of four women and Efrem Zimbalist Jr., which, by the way, is an assumed name. It used to be Efrem Zimbalist Sr. Sorry, if you're under 16 you won't be admitted unless accompanied by an adult. So all you kiddies under 16, run out and get an adult date, then see "The Chapman Report," then lotsa luck. The co-feature has some great names: Dorothy Dandridge, Trevor Howard, Edmund Purdom, Malaga. The last one is not such a great name but that's what they called the movie. "The Kinsey Kibitz" at 6:10 and 9:50 p.m. and "Name's the Same" at 8:20 p.m.

SHOPPINGTOWN—"She folded her napkin!" You'll be folding your handkerchief after watching "The Miracle Worker," an emotion packed, tear inspiring, "blockbuster" (careful Helen). As Time magazine said, "It's the most moving double performance on film." It must be very moving, how else can one get out to Dewitt. "Miracle" at 7:30 and 9:35 p.m.

OTHER FILMS OF INTEREST

WESCOT — Realism and spaghetti intertwine as we stop in for a look at the "Rose Tattoo," which really turns out to be the Marlboro Man disguised as Anna Magnani. This is a good flick from the days when Hollywood was in California rather than in television. "The Counterfeit Traitor" tells the story of a German counterfeiter who had a big fight with Hitler during the war and printed his moustache on his picture of the Nazi nickel. "Tattoos" at 7:30 p.m. "Rattattattoo" at 9:25 p.m.

HOLLYWOOD — "Advise and Consent" isn't really the tale of a hen-pecked husband. It's the story of the Senate and it smells of expose. Washington isn't Rome but you somehow get the feeling that yon Laughton has an obese and hungry look. So beware, modern day Caesar, the Ides of March approach. Speaking of marches, why not hike out to the Hollywood and see this tale of the Senate or better run out to Rome and see the ruins there before you see how they ruined the book here. "Water, Water Everywhere and Even in the Book" at 8:25 p.m.

PALACE and GENESEE — What do the Palce and Genesee have in common? They're both showing "El Cid," which we thought had left town for good. As a matter of fact when we saw that it left, we said "For good that it left town already." But it's back and we don't know what to say except "For good that he gets killed in the end." No times available.

Top Eastern Powers Clash

By ALLAN KORT
Sports Editor

Coach Rip Engle has instructed his forces to launch an all-out ground attack against the Orangemen of Syracuse in the top Eastern game of the week tomorrow afternoon at University Park, Pa.

Predictions are the Penn State mentor will concentrate his offense ground running halfback Roger Kochman in an attempt to regain valuable points in the Lambert Trophy race by badly beating the Orange.

Engle has lost faith in his highly rated passing attack which lost him the Army game last weekend, 9-6.

Orange Underdogs

On the other hand, Coach Ben Schwartzwalder is by no means conceeding to the staters, who are a 13-point favorite to take an edge in the Engle-Schwartzwalder series. The two Eastern powers have split 12 contests since Rip moved to University Park in 1949.

Ben will go with his new found hero Walley Mahle at the quarterback spot. "We hope to do a lot more passing in the Penn game. We'll have to go to the air if we are going to win." Schwartzwalder is expected to use second-string pilot Rich King sparsely throughout the game, primarily to stimulate a passing connection with ends Walt Swoeney and John Mackey, and halfbacks Bo Nance and Mike Koski. Jim Gaskins might do some hurling from his halfback spot.

Injuries

Syracuse suffered several injuries in the Boston College tussle, but only two will be evident when the Hill forces take the field. Tackle Henry Heuttner is sporting a "20-pound cast" on his right leg and Nance is still complaining of a charlehorse in his right thigh, but is expected to start the game. Gaskins will be wearing a nose protector for an injury received late in last week's game.

Penn State has got high national ranking through the efforts of Kochman and end Junior Powell. Powell is the tenth pass-catcher in the nation with 18 receptions for 188 yards, while Kochman has always sparkled against Syracuse.

Penn Stars

In his sophomore year, Kochman ran a 100-yard kickoff return against the Orange and added insult to injury with another touchdown later in the game. As a junior last year, he led the Penners to a 14-0 win over an injury-ridden SU team and scored a six-pointer.

Engle is expected to use a multiple - T offense with passing flankers from a balanced line. SU will continue with its unbalanced offense.

Another standout for the State club this year is Pete Raisig who is third in the nation in punting. The tall guard has kicked the pigskin 14 times for a 42.4 average.

Seager Captain

Ray Seager has been named Syracuse game captain and will assist Leon Cholakis. He will fill in for Heuttner at guard. Jim Masurek is also expected to see line action this week.

Looking forward to Penn State this week, Ben said, they're the most diversified club we'll meet this year and we've got to vary our defense."

Syracuse still ranks third in the nation in pass defense having allowed less than 50 yards in the air per game.

Penn State officials have announced the game is a sellout (46,000), but 3,000 standing room tickets will be put on sale at noon Saturday at $2. each.

Frosh Gridders Ready For Penn State Opener

By ART ROSSKY

Paced by a starting team averaging 209 pounds, the 32-man frosh football team is awaiting its opener with rugged Penn State at 11 a.m. Saturday at University Park, Pa.

The game is the first between the two schools' frosh teams.

The line, which averages 215 pounds, is slightly heavier than the line on last year's team, according to assistant frosh coach Al Gerlick.

Gerlick stated that this year's team, with an average height of 6'2", is much taller than last year's team.

The probable starting line includes: left end, Harris Elliot, 6-2, 200-pounds; left guard, Bob Mitchell, 6-2, 195; center, Pat Killorin, 6-2, 220; right guard, Joe Dzienkonski, 6-2 230; inside tackle, Tony Scibelli, 6-1, 225; and outside tackle, Steve Chomyszak, 6-4, 235.

Running and passing behind the blocking of this large line is a quartet of backs almost as heavy as the linemen.

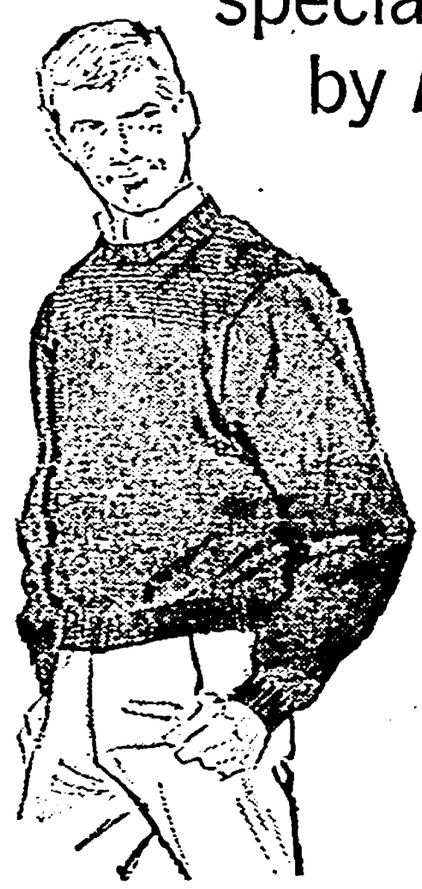
The probable starting backfield includes: quarterback, Hal Rooney, 6-2, 190; left halfback, Charlie Brown, 6-1, 190; right halfback, Ron Oyer, 5-10, 190; and fullback, Ted Allen, 6-1, 215.

The Tangerines will next see action on October 26 when they journey to West Point to battle the Army Plebes.

Other games are: November 2, Navy; November 9, Colgate; and November 16, Buffalo.

The Colgate contest, is the lone home game on the Tangerines' slate.

Last year's frosh squad posted a 3-1 mark.



The lone loss was an 8-0 loss to Navy on a rain-soaked field at Annapolis, Md.

Harriers Meet Army, Look For Second Win

After an impressive victory last weekend over Buffalo, Coach Bob Grieve's improving harriers hope to make it two in a row with a win over Army Saturday.

The runners got off to a slow start this year with a loss to Colgate, but then bounced back to rout Buffalo 15-43. They compiled a perfect score in the latter capturing the first five places.

The team ran well in its first victory with several individual standouts. Captain Mike Guzman finished first with a time of 26:19. Mouncey Ferguson was right on his heels, finishing second in 26:25.

Other Orangemen who finished the five mile course in the top ten were Mike Schuster, third; Tom Higgins, fourth; Jack Daley, fifth; and Steve Killorin, eighth.

All Syracuse runners showed vast improvement over their previous performances in the Colgate meet. Guzman improved 1:16 on his Colgate time; Ferguson improved by 1:20. In the light of this Coach Grieve is optimistic that the team will beat a strong Cadet squad.

Undefeated this year, Army has rolled over Providence, LeMoyne, Farleigh Dickinson, and the Air Force. The Orange are looking to even a score with the Cadets who beat them last year.

A real bright spot in the Syracuse sport picture has been the cross-country frosh. In a preliminary meet they racked up a perfect score against the Buffalo freshmen. Their 15-50 win was the squad's second consecutive victory. Bill Chiak finished first and shattered the freshman course record with a 16:19.5.

Nats Open Season Against Lakers

The Syracuse Nationals basketball team will begin its regular season play Saturday night against the Los Angeles Lakers at the War Memorial. Coach Alex Hannum's Nats seem to have been greatly strengthened during the off season by the acquisition of Len Chappell, Chet Walker, and Porter Merriwether from the college player draft, but 7'-3" Swede Halbrook, who has been placed on waivers, may not see action.

The Lakers' attack is centered around their high scoring twins, Jerry West and Elgin Baylor, who has returned from the U.S. Army.

It's now a fact: every Ford-built car in '63 has self-adjusting brakes

"Give us a brake," Ford Motor Company engineers were told, "that will automatically compensate for lining wear whenever an adjustment is needed—and make it work for the entire life of the lining."

Tough assignment—but not insurmountable. Today, not only does every Ford-built car boast self-adjusting brakes, but the design is so excellent that adjustments can be made more precisely than by hand.

This Ford-pioneered concept is not complex. Key to it is a simple mechanism which automatically maintains proper clearance between brake drum and lining.

Self-adjustment takes place when the brakes are applied while backing up. This adjustment normally occurs but once in several hundred miles of driving. The brake pedal stays up, providing full pedal reserve for braking.

Another assignment completed—and another example of how Ford Motor Company provides engineering leadership for the American Road.

The new code is now before the faculty committee for final approval. The revised standards have been the source of considerable controversy since a second year graduate psychology student was suspended for living with a Cortland coed during the summer.

The present Cornell code states that there "shall be no mixed company overnight in University dormitories, fraternities, associations or sororities." Specific rules regarding mixed company in private student apartments are not spelled out in the code except in general "gentlemanly and womanly conduct," clauses.

Two petitions asking for the reinstatement of the suspended graduate student are now being considered by the faculty committee but no action is expected to come from them.

JSG is the other facet of Schultze's campus activities. "I want to leave this university better than I found it, perhaps with a new government constitution and definite student union plans." The hard work this will take doesn't faze her. "I love to work."

2. How is blood used?——Whole blood is used in surgical operations, to combat shock in cases of severe burns and for injured persons. Open heart surgery is now being performed in Syracuse, is possible only because of the availability of blood. Blood derivatives are used as preventative medicine measles, infectious hepatitis, hemophilia victims and shock.

3. Can donors be sure their blood will be used?——Yes. No blood is ever wasted. If blood isn't used for transfusion in 21 days, it is made into blood derivatives which keep for long periods of time.

26 Greek Executives To Visit in Nov.

By ADAIR DUFINE

Acceptances have been received from 26 of 29 Hill fraternity national executive secretaries invited to a conference here Nov. 26-29, James P. McMurray, SU fraternity administrator has announced.

The conference is a move by the dean of men's office to "improve the existing Greek system on the Hill."

The conference will cover four areas: Dr. John F. Olson, vice president and executive assistant to the chancellor, will lead discussion on fraternity housing; Director of Financial Aid Jim G. Carleton will chair discussion of scholarship; alumni/national relations discussion will be headed by a member of the Inter-fraternity Council alumni group; McMurray hinted that the discussion on pledge training may be led by members of the Hill IFC.

A banquet Monday, Nov. 26, in Kimmel Dining Hall will kick off the conference. Headquarters for discussion will be in the Hotel Syracuse.

Also Monday, Hill fraternities will be visited by those attending the conference.

Suggestions for improvement of the Hill system will be made on the final day of the conference, McMurray said.

The dean of men's office has compiled reports from participating SU houses, McMurray also said. The reports cover scholarship, housing, pledging, extra-curricular activities and Greek-city of Syracuse relationships.

Statements of university policies on housing, board contracts, anti-discrimination, rushing and social rules will be added to the reports, which will go to the attending executive secretaries.

Kappa Phi Delta, local forestry fraternity, will not be represented at the conference since it lacks a national organization, McMurray said.

Miss Us Yesterday?

Those who like to criticize the Daily Orange could find only one thing wrong with Monday's paper: there wasn't any. Various students on campus were reported to have had campus notice and crossword puzzle fits, while others had to listen to their professors instead of reading the DO. Fish went unwrapped.

Due to a breakdown of our press early Monday morning only 200 papers were printed and distributed. Today's paper is a "double" issue, combining most of the news and features of Monday's paper with that for today.

We sincerely regret any inconvenience caused by our absence. You can wrap those fish now.

King Affirms January Start for Newhouse

By BEV LURIA and HOWIE GINSBURG

New Syracuse University School of Journalism headquarters will be established in the Samuel I. Newhouse Communications Center by September, 1964.

Russell L. King of King and King Architects has told the Daily Orange that the present sophomore journalism class will be the first to graduate from the new center.

Construction of the first of the three buildings in the Center will begin in January. Completion dates of the second and third buildings are tentatively set for 1966 and 1968, according to Wendell Hoone, associate architect with King and King.

I. N. Pei

I. N. Pei, New York City architects, designed the complex with King and King, university architects, acting in an advisory capacity.

The first building of the center, described by SU vice president John F. Olson as "an unequaled center for the training of persons in international mass media," contains many educational innovations.

Among these are closed circuit television in a photography laboratory, tele-lecture set-ups in large discussion rooms and special communication appara-

Huntington B. Crouse Dedication All Week; Ribbon Cut Monday

Ribbon-snipping and a plaque unveiling at 3:30 p.m. Monday opened a week of dedication ceremones for the Huntington Beard Crouse Classroom Building.

Completed last semester at a cost of $1,622,000. the three-story brick and limestone structure is named for the late Syracuse industrialist Huntington Crouse.

University dignitaries were on hand Monday for the dedication.

Chancellor William P. Tolley said "this is a happy occasion for all of us." He went on to praise the various contributers to the building and added, "we are grateful to the directors of the Crouse-Hinds Foundation for their contributions to the building of the Hall."

SU Vice President and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts Eric Faigle noted "this is a magnificant class building and the faculty of the Liberal Arts College is very happy to have it."

Present at the ribbon cutting ceremony were Mrs. Huntington Crouse, representatives of the Crouse-Hinds Foundation, members of the Rosamund Gifford Foundation, university officials and personnel from numerous civic organizations.

Crouse-Hinds Co. Pres. Robert J. Simon and Beard Chairman John Tuttle were also on hand.

JFK: Arms Blockage

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy proclaimed a U. S. naval blockade against Cuba Monday night, saying the Soviets have started to turn Cuba into an offensive military base capable of raining nuclear destruciton on all the Americas.

The U. S. Navy announced that 40 U. S. ships and 20,000 men were circling Cuba. The Guantanamo base is being reinforced and Florida air forces were alerted.

Though Moscow has not yet officially commented on the President's speech a slow up of traffic between East and West Germany has been reported.

Kennedy said the U. S. would wreak "a full retaliatory response upon the Soviet Union" if any nuclear missile is fired on any nation in this hemisphere.

He emphasized, both in his prepared text and in his delivery, that the steps he was ordering now were only "initial" ones.

U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson requested an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council to seek the withdrawal of offensive weapons from Cuba.

"Nobody is going to pretend the presidents action is not a dangerous course of action, but under the circumstances, it seems to be an absolutely imperative one," commented Maxwell School Dean Stephen K. Bailey following President Kennedy's address Monday night.

"My hope is that the Russians accept it," Bailey said, 'but my guess is that they will try to offer concessions on Berlin or the short range missle bases surrounding the Soviet Union."

'Beautiful Relationship Dirtied'

Cornell Grad Student's Girlfriend: Dean's Niece?

By CLAY RICHARDS

The suspended Cornell University graduate student claimed in an interview with the New York Post last week that he was asked to leave the university solely because the girl involved was a niece of a university dean.

Cornell officials denied accusations of "unfairness" in dealing with the student, but would make no comment on any relationship between the girl involved and any university dean.

In the original hearing on the student's suspension for living with the girl in his apartment over the summer, Prof. Robert Sweet, chairman of the faculty committee on student conduct, said he did not know the identity of the girl in question.

"After I was suspended," the student told the Post, "she went to the president to protest against the fact that the chairman of the faculty committee was a personal friend of her uncle. She told him that the administration was trying to make something dirty out of what had been a beautiful relationship," the student continued.

"We lived together at my apartment for most of the summer. Then the landlord came home. He didn't say anything to me until he saw the two of us together. He's a high school teacher and he recognized her as one of his former students and as a niece of the dean. He asked me to get her out of the apartment. Then he called the dean."

According to university officials, the university began investigating the case when the landlord of the student in questioned mentioned the student's activities to a friend on the Cornell faculty.

Sweet said, "The committee never knew of the details of any case before the hearing, or the names of the people involved. That is why the question of the girl's relatives would never be a factor."

The student's cause has been taken up by Max Lerner, Brandeis University professor and Post columnist.

In questioning Cornell's action, Lerner states: "I suggest only that when a student has gone through the college ordeal, knows what he wants to do with his life, and settles down seriously to do it, his moral ordering of his life belongs to himself and to his community — that is to say, to the community of his fellow students and the operative standards they are shaping. It does not belong to the formal disciplinary action of the professors and the deans.

"Let us stop being frightened by Europe's way and act as a grown up nation of our own," Lerner concludes.

Comenting on Lerner's column, Cornell Daily Sun Editor Robert Gabriner told the Daily Orange, "While we at Cornell regret the national attention given to the incident, we consider it important.

"The fact that a large publication has decided to sensationalize and clinically discuss the facts in this case is all the more reason why the university must reexmine its actions," Gabriner said.

"These stories do not reflect well upon the university, and do much to dispell the image of it as a liberal institution," he concluded.

Sun Business Manager Joel Sachs told theDaily Orange that while the university is very upset by the Post articles, the university generally is now much quieter than last week.

A student faculty committee has been formed to work this mater out, Sachs explained, and "from my own experience I think the faculty members of this committee are very liberal-minded."

Both Gabriner and Sachs said the issue must not be diverted from the important moral and policy questions, to what are "in essence, unimportant details of this particular case."

"This attention should point out that a large university in modern society cannot expect to act in a vacuum," Gabriner concluded.

Newhouse and Orwell: Story of a Building

Today's story on the Newhouse Communications Center makes the current Daily Orange staff quite envious of the unnamed journalists of the future who will be able to avail themselves of the electronic artistry which the Center will afford them.

The staff is even more envious when it considers that it was once told in those dark days of long ago that they would finish their school years in the new Center.

This, of course, will never be. But we can see that the Newhouse Center will indeed be a journalism center worthy of the finest university in the land.

The intricate systems of communication and teaching planned for the building makes one think that perhaps it is something from the pen of George Orwell. Upon further consideration, this opinion is even more accurate. For, if the Center's construction is delayed much longer, it will be 1984 before it is completed.

A Matter of Life

Students of Syracuse University, this is your week to do something for humanity. For on Thursday and Friday the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at Shaw Dorm in quest of that life-giving substance that is so easy to give and is so in demand throughout the world.

Syracuse made a horrible showing last year and only an outstanding turn-out this year will be able to blot out that black mark on the SU record.

We urge all students to plan now to give blood Thursday or Friday and in so doing, perform a service to humanity. Syracuse University and yourselves.

GARDEN OF EDEN

Eulogy

By Carol Schlageter

All Syracuse was divided into three clubs — Coke and Caper, Tecumseh and Clover. The Clover Club, noted tavern in the town, died October 11 when a kitchen grease fire raged through its interior.

With it, died several generations of university memories and an essence of the Syracuse seamy side.

The Club's death was not what would seem a fitting one Haphazard timbers, brazenly strewn and charred, do not mark its site. Rather the hulk, for it was not even totally gutted, remains — a garish green shell jutting upward. Its windows and doors are boarded. The club most resembles an aging harlot in an unbecoming night shirt, exposed to the harsh light of day.

The interior smells faintly of now-delicate smoke. The bar room is a blackened cave. The pinball machine is an ebony frame with the pins still hanging but resembling clumped icicles from a Christmas tree.

Handles on the cigarette machine look like charred marshmallows. A yellowed and curling paper tells vainly how to fill the machine. Bottles, blackened and broken, still line the back of the bar, as if some orgying knave had decapitated them with a heavy blow. The floor sponges under foot, covered with insulation and ceiling blocks made soggy by the firemen's hoses.

On entering, the back room appears ready to open for business. Tables are stacked on one another. The owner pointed to a new dance floor, installed for the opening of school. He shined a lantern beam on the ceiling which firemen had ripped to check for errant coals. The back room was intact except for smoke and water damage and debris hacked from the ceiling.

The Club was long a campus meeting place that fostered spiritual exchange. Perhaps it is indicative of a new era that the Club is gone. The campus politicos must find a new place to bury the hatchets and imbibe the brews.

Perhaps the demise of the Club is also simultaneous with a new look in student government. Rule One for D. O. column writing is apparently "Damn the administration but don't say anything bad about student groups except keep kicking tired ol' JSG." Unfortunately for the traditionalists, JSG seems to be picking up steam.

There are always other places to go. Yet they are not the same.

"There will always be a Clover Club," grinned the hopeful owner. Before planning to rebuild or build from scratch, he said, city officials must assess the cold remains.

A Clover Club there may be. But the beloved hole-in-four-walls, the essence of Joe College on the wrong side of the tracks, cannot be rebuilt. The Clover Club is like the victim of a slow disease. Its death was not suden and colorful. It was a death by degree. And the corpse may yet be exhumed for an attempt at a final rally.

Campus Clips

By SANDI EHRLICH AND MELANIE COHN

Editor's Notes Starting today, the Daily Orange will present periodically a capsule summary of pertinent news from other campuses. Written by Sandi Erhlich and Melanie Cohn, the column will attempt to relate these items to happenings at SU.

Fraternities here may have to worry about social pro, but the whole fraternal system is suffering at several schools. Williams College recently announced the school will take over all the housing, eating and social functions of its 15 fraternities by next year.

While fraternities are not barred from existence, their income will be removed and it will mean the virtual end of the 129 year old system.

At Brown University, also social fraternities are up for criticism. Last week, the 15 houses received notice that they must maintain higher academic standards and more reasonable sizes if they are to retain living and eating accommodations provided by the University.

Stirrings for silk: Panty raids have enlivened several campuses during the past two weeks. The University of Michigan reports close to 600 men rallied across the campus last Thursday. Coincidentally, a large-scale panty raid was held at University of Texas the same evening. Almost 1000 students participated in a raid which lasted 3 hours. Approximately 100 students may be subject to disciplinary measures by the deans because of the violence and damaged involved.

Utica College, a branch of SU, dedicated its new Ralph F. Strebel Student Center on Oct. 7. Chancellor Tolley spoke at the opening ceremony. The one-million dollar building houses a lounge, dining room, and recreation hall. The center was named for the late Dean Ralph F. Strebel, a well-loved administrator who died in 1959.

The editor of the Colorado Daily newspaper, Gary Althen, was fired by university president Quigg Newton last Wednesday. The paper prompted a political and academic controversy when it published a letter referring to General Dwight D. Eisenhower as an "old futzer" and a "nice lap-dog." Several staff members and editors have quit the paper in protest, and students have been picketing President Newton's house.

Mississippi is not the only spot with integration difficulties. A less-publicized situation on Nov. 14, exists at the University of Texas. Students will vote in a special referendum to decide: "should the University integrate its athletic program?" and "should University dormitory and eating facilities be open to all?" This is a big issue at the school, and feelings are running high.

Vincent MacDowell Barnett, chairman of the political science department at Williams College, has been elected the tenth president of Colgate University. Beginning February 1, he will succeed Everett Case, the new head of the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. Dr. Barnett has been a teacher and administrator at Williams College for over 20 years. In an intervew, he emphatically denied any relation to Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett!

Pigeon - Coop

To the Editor:

In M. H. Weinsteins column entitled Wanted: An Issue, he says: "What about that pigeon-coop and stilts called H.B.C. which now graces our quad? Student leaders might be consulted before such horrors are approved in the future." Who is M. H. Weinstein to judge architecture? Or for that matter what student leader is qualified to judge architecture?

H.B.C. is an up-to-date, well - designed, functional structure which does more than merely fulfill, a purpose, but fits in with the conglomeration of attractive, although varied, structures which make up our campus. H.B.C. is perhaps indicative of our forward thinking administration that is not content with more bricks and ivy, but will appropriate money for a contemporary building.

— Bill Johnston.

Footballers

To the Editor:

It seems to us that some people are either perpetual complainers or just like to have their names in print.

In reference to S/SGT Ray Voltz' letter of Oct. 19 which alleged "the football team gathered on the field with hands in pockets and mouths full of popcorn during the national anthem.

If Sgt. Voltz were more observant, he would have noticed the team was not on the field while the anthem was being played, but was in the entrance of the tunnel leading to the field.

Secondly, football pants do not come equipped with pockets. Furthermore, since there is no popcorn machine in the locker room and this substance is not included in the pre-game diet, we are convinced that the writer has a vivid imagination. Also, many of the players have been in the military service or are in various military programs.

Finally, as a military man, Sgt. Voltz must realize that during the national anthem he should have been paying his respects to the flag and not sightseeing.

New Drama Group

One of the dreams of the late Sawyer Falk, former head of the Syracuse University Drama Department, was for students of Syracuse to form their own professional production group with a distinct new style.

A new company has been formed to actualize his hope: "The Ensemble Theatre". Its object is to develop its own perfected style of production over a period of the three or four years.

"As soon as possible we're going to get a professional repertory theatre with its own staff to be used in all of our productions," David Hamilton, director of the group announced.

"The Ensemble Theatre" will open with Samuel Beckett's "Endgame," November 8th, 9th and 10th at the University Regent Theatre. This example of the theatre of the absurd is "the kind of play you listen to for whatever you can find in it," Hamilton said.

The cast will include Dick Folmer, Rick Miller, Randy Grotzinger and Ellen Dornbush. Hamilton will direct this and other plays in the new company's repertoire.

Also on the bill are two short plays by former Syracusan Richard Harris, who wrote "Sketchbook 61!" The plays are entitled "Trash Can" and "I am Beautiful."

"The Ensemble Theatre is under the guidance of Drama Department Chairman, G.F. Reidenburgh.

MUSIC

MJQ: Too Decorous?

There is something repulsive about a jazz group whose members wear toothy, smiling masks and constantly grunt affirmations of their own capabilities.

,The Negro musician in America has suffered from this kind of stereotype for many years. It may be that the members of the Modern Jazz Quartet, which played at Lincoln Auditorium last Thursday night, feel this too strongly, for they treat their music with a seriousness not becoming to true jazz.

Perhaps their music is not really true jazz, for too often it thwarts natural jazz progressions seemingly for no other purpose than to avoid cliche (a motivation which is noble).

Those who attended the concert were confronted with four talented but unsmiling musicians who wasted no energy that was not required to bring the appropriate sound out of their instruments.

There is no question that the group played well with a quiet precision that defies criticism. But even this effect was too often lost due to the muddled sound of the vibraharp on rapid solos and the lack of emphasis in the piano playing.

It was in the two or three standard selections they played that MJQ was at its best. Because it was only in these that the group had to face up to its obligations to stay within the more traditional harmonic structure of the songs. In these there was a more proper blend of imagination and tradition.

The quartet is a group, however, that one feels hard put to judge on a single performance, and it would be enlightening, perhaps, to hear them in Syracuse again next year.

Radio: Far From Dead

By RUANE HILL

The National Association of Broadcasters, some years ago, came upon the pubic relations-oriented phrase of my title, suggesting that radio is not only a necessity in modern American life, but one of the most important elements in the day-to-day communications process.

Despite the accepted view that radio has had its role negated by television's pervasive influence, the NAB phrase does apply, and ought to make us think twice before assuming radio's death.

In Syracuse, the radio audience at home, in the car, or wherever a portable may be carried, has at its command country and western, the stable "pops", the self-liquidating "top seventy," significant talks programs in profusion, public affairs discussions, up-to-the-instant news coverage, and, in increasing degree wide representation of the classical repretoires.

And there are two radio services available and the listener may choose between Amplitude Modulation and Frequency Modulation. The important word is "choice." for no one in Central New York can say that radio stations do not, at one time or another, program specifically to his interest.

As the faculty member responsible for the operation of the University's radio service WAER. you can rightfully expect the rest of this article to deal with FM, and with our uniquely student operated radio station.

In its brief history, FM broadcasting has had some catalyptic ups and downs, but the 60's augure nothing but success stories. The number of FM sets acquired by families in this and most communities has been phenomenal in the past five years. The number of FM stations has been steadily marching upward. The range of program services available through FM has been multiplied and qualitatively improved.

Begun as a classical background service by many stations (operated at a loss in the late forties by AM stations and by a surprising number of newspapers), FM stations can now claim to counter-program AM offerings with significant discussions and debates and deliberative backgrounding of the news, not to mention exictingly varied live coverage of widely varied musical events.

WAER, to those of us who work with the station, and to a pleasingly vocal minority of our audience, typifies the most exciting view of FM in the years to come. In a casually selected typical program week, WAER listeners can be exposed to a live flute concert from Crouse College, to a panel of university presidents discussing the future patterns of higher education, a tradition-tattering newscast direct with Margaret Mead live from from Boston, an interview Philadelphia, or that un-rigged tussle of wits called Syraquiz from HBC.. We will adamantly insist that for programming of the most significant range. WAER cannot be beat.

In the overall listening scheme, the future is bright for this community centerpiece wired for sound. We would only ask that you stop looking. . .and listen!

H. Huettner Has Injury

By IRA BAKST

Henry Huettner, one of the top Syracuse University linesmen, is again laid up with an injury similar to those that have plagued him throughout his career on the Hill. He is currently supporting a 20 pound cast on his right leg.

Huettner, who is a junior, had his chances ruined last year when he had a summer operation for the removal of a cyst at the base of his spleen. He reported to practice that fall 25 pounds over-weight and was unable to run at his regular speed.

This season, however, Hank had dropped his excess weight and was ready to prove his ability with his six foot, one inch, 230 pound frame. He had been moved from center, where he incurred much trouble last year, to right guard, and he plays inside on defense.

Hank came to Syracuse after graduation from Technical High School in Springfield, Mass. He earned nine letters there by starring in Football, Hockey and Baseball. He was All-City in his home town of Springfield in 1958-60 and received the same honor in Baseball in 1960. In that same year, he was voted to the All-Western Massachusetts Football and American Legion Basball teams.

Henry plans to be a Physical Education teacher and has dreams of an eventual coaching position.

Although he enjoys listening to popular music he had little time for such pleasures this summer as he was stationed in Quantico, Va., for six weeks in the Marine P. L. C. program.

After two games this year, both of which ended in losing margins for the Orange, Huettner has not perfomed up to his rugged potential But Huettner has been described as the best Syracuse lineman on the 1960 Freshman team, and if he can regain his form then his position at right guard will be more than taken care of. This season is a big one for Hank to prove himself.

Henry may be sidelined for the rest of the season with his leg injury suffered late in the Boston College game.

Syracuse Nationals Play Improved Type of Ball

By JOE MARCOE

This year's Syracuse Nationals basketball team is "perhaps the best we've ever had," stated "Red" Parton, Nats' publicity director, in an interview with the DO.

Speaking in the Nats' front offices at the War Memorial Stadium, Parton said that with all the established stars back and three fine rookies, the Nats can only improve.

Looking over the Eastern division of the N.B.A., Parton was only optimistic. He feels that the Cincinnati Royals will be easier for the nats to handle than the Philadelphia Warriors were last year. Philadelphia shifted its franchise to San Francisco, moving Cincinnati into the Eastern division. The Nats, playing some of their best ball split 12 games with Philly last year and were 4-5 with the Royals.

Although the New York Knicks are, in Parton's opinion, the most improved team in the league, he is not particularly worried about them. Kenny Sears is back this year after a season in the American League. In addition, the Knicks traded for Gene Shue and Gene Conley, and have Paul Hogue now, but as Syracuse ended up 12 games in front of last year's Knicks, Parton believes the Nats are still superior.

Boston looks as good as ever, especially with Clyde Lovellette backing up Bill Russell, but the Nats are optimistic and give themselves a chance to beat the Celtics.

Top new additions to Syracuse this year are rookies Chet Walker of Bradley and Len Chappell of Wake Forest. Parton sees them being used to bolster up rebounding, the Nats' main weakness last year.

Somewhat overlooked is the third National rookie, Porter Meriwether. The Tennesee State youngster started slow in exhibitions, but lately has been making key plays and shows confidence. Although he has speed and is a "tremendous shooter," Parton says he will have "a tough job" beating out the Nats' established backcourt players for a starting assignment.

Swede Halbrook has been placed on waivers. Although the 7' 1" center could rebound, he "didn't have the durability to play more than 20 or 22 minutes" and was let go to make way for youth.

Dolph Schayes will be ready for another season and will be a "tremendous influence" on the rest of the team. Parton was happy to see Dolph collect six assists in the Nats' last exhibition game.

With "excellent speed and shooting, a blend of youth and age, and the best attitude and coaching in the league," Parton feels Alex Hannum's charges can make a lot of noise and excite the crowds this year.

By JUDY ADAMS

It's been a little over two weeks now since the announcement was made that Ernie Davis was returning to the gridiron.

The first cry that went up was one of joy. At last the great Number 44 would get his chance to make his mark upon the professional football world.

But time has passed. Ernie has begun his workouts with the Browns. Everyone is waiting patiently, quietly.

And in the time that has passed occassional words of decension have arisen. Many men who make medicine their profession have questioned the wisdom of the decision to allow the former Syracuse great to return to football.

It seems that victims of the dreaded leukemia tend to have enlarged spleens. A rough contact sport, such as football, heightens the probability of a rupture. Hemmoraging also occurs to leukemia victims much more frequently with more critical effects,.

So to many, observers, it seems that the doctors may be endangering Ernie's life by allowing him to continue his football.

For the other side of the fence comes the reply from those who have given Ernie the OK.

They explain that for those leukemia victims who are in a similar "state of remission", it's quite common to allow them to return to their normal activity.

For Ernie Davis, football HAS been his normal activity. But, if an ordinary person in the same situation were to go through the strenuous workouts, the effects could be fatal.

The individual himself must be considered too.

Reports were that Ernie was "overjoyed" when he learned that he would be able to play again. He had been depressed since his hospitalization last winter when it was first discovered that something was wrong.

Today his spirits are soaring. He participates in the daily workout, though he won't be in playing condition for yet a couple of weeks.

He keeps plugging away, determined to make good in spite of the handicaps he's had to overcome.

This of course, is exactly like the Ernie Davis that we've had the privilege of following through high school and college.

We remember back when Ernie was a high school freshmen end on the football team. He scored three touchdowns in the first 20 minutes in the opening game and remember, he was only 15 years old.

Later that year he injured his wrist. He started the basketball season, injured wrist and all, by scoring 20 points in his first game.

Back in football, Ernie continued playing fine ball —as an end.

It wasn't until mid-way through his junior year, that an injury to one of the regular backs forced him into service in the backfield.

From then on it's history. He was the first player to make the Southern Tier Conference All-Star team three times. He went on to Syracuse to step into and then over the shoes of the fabulous Jimmy Brown.

As a basketballer he led his high school team to a record 52 straight wins over a two-year period. Again for the first time in history he was thrice-named All STC

Now we can't help thinking back to the night of the Heisman Trophy Dinner. We'll always remember Ernie standing there thanking everyone for enabling him to be where he is.

"Ever since I was a little boy," he said, "I dreamed of being an All-America. Now all I want to do is to play football. I only hope that I can live up to the faith that you have put in me."

You already have Ernie, you already have.

Orange Rally Fails; Penn State Wins, 20-19

By BILL CRONAUER

"We played a great football team Saturday." With these words, Syracuse University Coach Ben Schwartzwalder summed up one of the most thrilling games in the 40-year-old series between the Orangemen and Penn State.

A record crowd of 46,920 sat in awe at Beaver Stadium Saturday afternoon, watching an underdog Syracuse football squad stage a valiant comeback before losing 20-19.

Syracuse, jolted by two Nittany Lion touchdowns in the first five minutes of play, stormed back to a 19-14 lead before allowing State fullback Dave Hayes to buck over from the one with the winning touchdown.

Schwartzwalder was well-pleased with the aggressive Orange attack. "These kids of ours battled all the way against the best team we have faced thus far this season." Penn State Coach Rip Engle also praised the battling Hillmen: "This was a good Syracuse team with a fine quarterback."

Again sophomore signal-caller Walley Mahle was the key figure in the Orange attack. The star of SU-Boston College contest scored the first TD on an eight-yard run and pitched to Walt Sweeney in the end zone for the final Piety score.

Of Mahle's performance, Schwartzwalder said, "We've never had a quarterback with the kind of potential Walley has. He played a fine football game today."

The veteran Syracuse coach also had applause for halfback Don King. "When I saw the way he ran with the ball the first couple of times he carried," Ben offered, "I knew he was ready for a ball game."

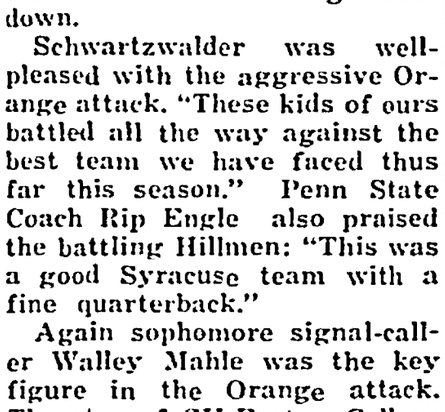
King scored the second Orange touchdown when he raced 35 yards to pay dirt in the third quarter.

As for the victorious Lions, Schwartzwalder commented, "They are a hard-hitting, tough ball club. I believe this is a better Penn State team than the unbeaten squad we faced in 1959."

Co-stars of the State win were Pete Liske and Roger Kochman. Liske connected with Kochman for the second State TD and set up the final touchdown with his great passing. He completed 14 of 28 for 150 yards in the air.

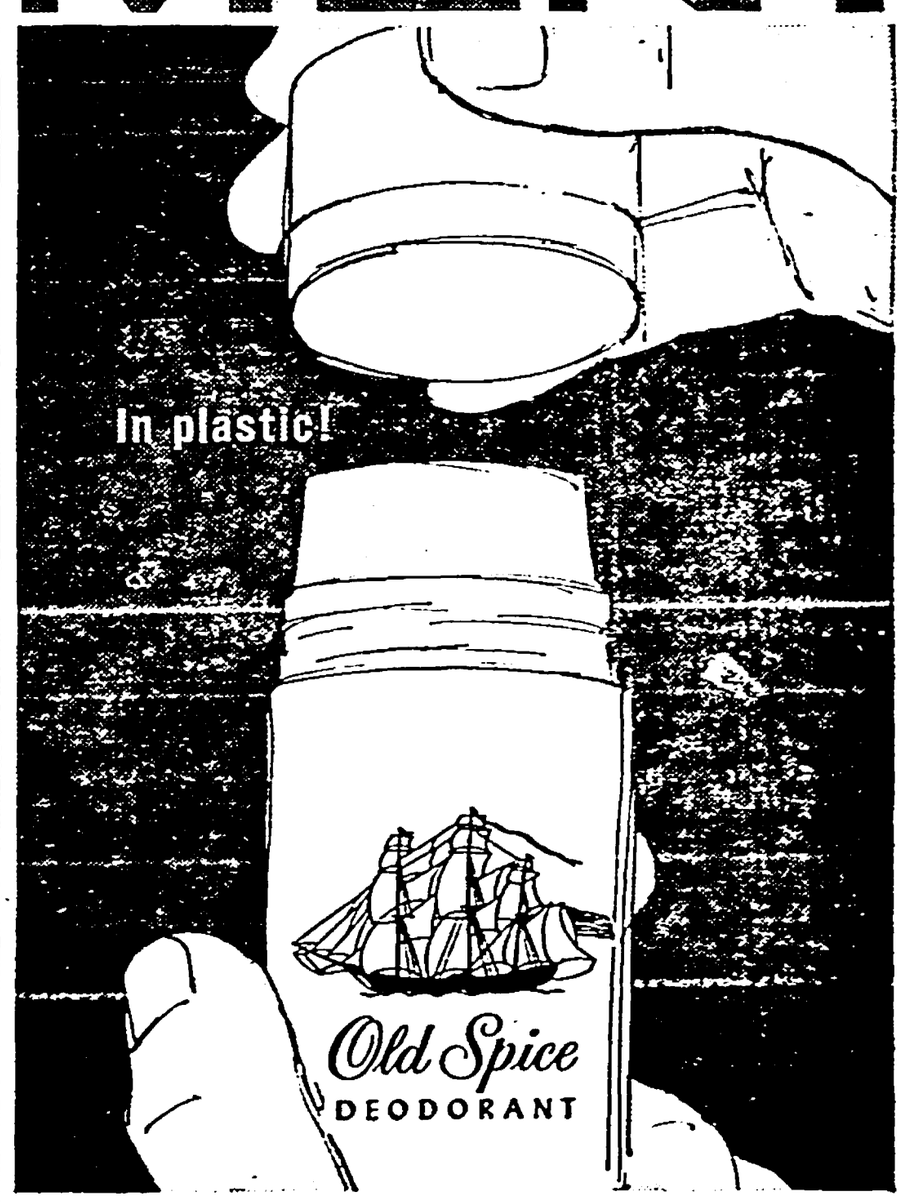
Halfback Kochman picked up 88 yards on 13 carries and scored twice. The senior speedster scored one of the Penn State TD's against SU last year and two tallies against the Orange national champions in 1959.

Injuries hampered Bill Orange in the second half. Punter John Snider suffered a broken arm in the second period. Bill Schoonover sat out the latter stages of the battle with a shoulder injury while Jim Nance was still slowed by a charley horse and saw limited action.



Statistically, the locals chalked up 18 first downs to 16 for Penn State. They outrushed the Lions by 99 yards, 230 to 131.

However, the touted Orange pass defense allowed the home team 150 yards by the airways. The Syracuse defense had given up an average of only 49.7 in the previous three contests, ranking third in the nation.



Schwartzwalder is already preparing for this weekend's encounter with Holy Cross. Although the Crusaders were blanked by Dartmouth Saturday, 10-0, they are still a basically sound ball club.

Ben said, "Holy Cross has a terrific backfield. With quarterback Pat McCarthy throwing to Tom Hennessey and Al Snyder, the Crusaders are always a threat."

Tangerines Edge Penn State, 14-6

By IRA BAKST

Coach Jim Shreve's freshman gridders opened up their 1962 season with a 14-6 victory over Penn State's yearlings at University Park, Pa. on Saturday.

Charley Brown scored both Orange tallies on short running bursts off-tackle from one and three yards out. Roger Smith followed each score with the extra points from placement.

The Orange displayed an impressive ray of talent before 2,000 fans at Old Beavers field. Players who attracted particular attention were quarterbacks Hal Rooney and Ted Holman, fullback Ed Allen and halfbacks Ron Oyer and George Kentrabecki. Up front, George Fair, Harris Elliot, Larry Virgilio, and Pat Killorin made key plays throughout the game.

Elliott, a 200 pound end from Rumford, Me., set up the first Orange scoring opportunity by falling on a State fumble on the Penn 16 early in the contest.

Roy Oyer swept left end for 12 yards and Brown took the ball over on two plays. The half ended with the Orange ahead, 7-0.

State came back in the third quarter with a 23 yard pass play from Dick Gringrich to Dave McNaughton which completely crossed up the Orange defense. The entire drive covered 36 yards following a fumble by Oyer. The kick failed and the Orange still led 7-6.

After Larry Virgilio partially blocked a State punt, Oyer, Brown [illegible]r, Rooney and co took [illegible] on the Penn State 31 and dug out the needed yardage for the final tally.

Jim Shreve has now compiled an impressive 11-1-1 record since coming to Syracuse four years ago. The Orange mentor is now preparing the squad for Friday's all important game against Dietzel's hand picked Army frosh at West Point.

Orange Harriers Nip Army; Cornell Next

By HOWIE SCHNEIDER

Mouncey Fergurson, with a first place finish, paced the Orange thinclads to a 28-30 victory over a strong Army squad Saturday at Drumlins.

Fergurson crossed the tape in a time of 26.10.9. Right behind him were Syracuse runners Mike Shuster and senior captain Mike Guzman. The Cadet's top performer, Carl Chickeantz, finished fourth. Army also captured the fifth through ninth positions. Steve Killorin finished tenth in the five mile course.

The key word in the harrier success story the past two meets has been improvement. Following last week's pattern, the team showed vast improvement in their running. Steve Killorin bested his last meet's showing by 52 seconds. Coach Bob Grieve said, "The whole squad improved as a whole."

Coach Grieve, who was pleased with the way his squad handled themselves against the Black Knights added, "Army's always a tough team to beat, we lost to them last year. It was a big win for us."

The Cadets, after winning three consecutive meets, lost their first meet last week. The Orange, with their victory, are now 2-1 on the season.

Coach Grieve's squad suffered a bad break when Jack Dailey, a leading runner, tripped on the course and failed to finish. Dailey was off to a good start and might have added to the Orange score.

The veteran track director is optimistic that the team will beat Cornell at Ithaca Saturday. The Big Red defeated the thinclads last year but the coach remarked, "We have a better chance to beat them now than we had last year. We have improved and they have remained about the same."

Cornell, however, will be at a disadvantage because of the loss of star Steve Machooka. The barefoot Nigerian runner, who has never lost a cross-country race, is out on academic probation.

The frosh runners, undefeated in their first two meets, will also meet Cornell Saturday. The team bolsters a well balanced squad with standouts Cihak, Spino, and Miller. Two weeks ago Cihak shattered a freshman record against Buffalo.

Powderpuff Grid Game On Sunday

Interest is growing in the Daily Orange-WAER challenge "powderpuff" football clash Sunday afternoon at 2 at the Women's Building Field.

The DO charges have been in secret workouts the past two days and have developed an effective passing game with a former fourth stringer taking over the quarterback spot.

Andrew "Legs" Porte has been named mentor of the All-Star DO squad and will hold secret sessions (only NFL and AFL scouts allowed) Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in an effort to get the winning combination by Sunday.

Standouts in the Orange camp have been fullback Jeanne Ranov, halfbacks Martha Johanek and Sandra Joy. Molding the DO's unbalanced line are tackles Judy Adams, Carol Rubright, and Sandy Ehrlich. Ends are Joyce "Hergie" Hergenhan and Rea Turet.

Heavy scrimmages the past weekend left the Daily Orangemen with several injuries among figured starters. On the injured list are backs Audrey Lippman, Sue Weinberg, and Melanie Cohn. Lineman Ann Cutler broke her left foot and will not see action the remainder of the season.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

Can education bring happiness?

This is a question that in recent years has caused much lively debate and several hundred stabbings among American college professors. Some contend that if a student's intellect is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically follow. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.

I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence the well-known case of Agathe Fusco.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than a straight "A", was awarded her B.T. (Bachelor of Trees) in only two years, her M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in only three, and her D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworms) in only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was she happy? The answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, so miserable, in fact, that one day while walking across campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that she flang herself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by a liberal arts major named R. Twinkle Plenty came by with his yoyo. He noted Agathe's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, hey?" said R. Twinkle.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Agathe peevishly.

"All right, I will," said R. Twinkle. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your intellect that you have gone and starved your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Smoked a Marlboro Cigarette?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Well, we'll fix that right now!" said R. Twinkle and gave her a Marlboro and struck a match.

She puffed, and then for the first time in twelve or fifteen years, she smiled. "Wow!" she cried. "Marlboros are a fun thing! What flavor! What filter! What pack or box! What a lot to like! From now on I will smoke Marlboros, and never have another unhappy day!"

"Hold!" said R. Twinkle. "Marlboros alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were two things making you unhappy?"

"Oh, yeah," said Agathe. "What's the other one?"

"How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said R. Twinkle.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Agathe. "I keep meaning to have it taken off."

"Allow me," said R. Twinkle and removed it.

"Land sakes, what a relief!" said Agathe, now totally happy, and took R. Twinkle's hand and led him to a Marlboro vendor's and then to a justice of the peace.

Today Agathe is a perfectly fulfilled woman, both intellectwise and personalitywise. She lives in a darling split-level house with R. Twinkle and their 17 children, and she still keeps busy in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, she became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, she was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and she published a best-selling book called I was a Slippery Elm for the FBI.

THE CUTTING ROOM

At Least it was Funny!

by John E. Greenwald

Sometimes we wonder if a cry can't be heard from a corner of Chancellor Tolley's or Dean Hafer's offices to the effect of 'Oh for the days of the Syracusan! It may have been embarrassing, but at least it was funny!"

The university administration is finding out that it is one thing to censor a college humor magazine, especially if you can claim it is in poor taste. It is something else again to make it tough for campus journalists investigating food service.

The former smacks of professorial fuddy-duddyism and academic bluenosery. But stepping on the toes of collegiate muckrakers smells of fascism and the police state.

We're not saying the administration is made up of prudes and militarists, but such actions usually convey to the public such images. And if the university staff must convey an image let it be one of blue noses rather than one of blue pencils.

Unfortunately, SU doesn't have a humor magazine. The Syracusan was folded some years back and a more literary effort, 'Syracuse 10,' was published instead.

Despite Terry Hughes' journey into yellow journalism last year it looks like 'Syracuse 10,' or some "magazine of ideas," will be printed.

We doubt if it will be read, though.

This year's '10' will probably have beautiful covers, esoteric poetry, sensitive prose, deep articles, expensive printing and little campus interest.

It will be published by members of Chancellor Tolley's "Top 5% Club" and will be read by its auxiliary the "Top 8% Club." The rest of us will have to be satisfied with the DO, smuggled copies of the Harvard Lampoon, and Playboy.

We have nothing against a literary magazine, so long as it is not the only campus magazine. For too long Syracuse has been saddled with a publication that represents and appeals to a tiny minority of SU students. Such a statement may be a sad commentary on the student body, but that's the Dean of Admissions department, not ours.

Terry Hughes, last year, tried to broaden the field of interest of the '10' while maintaining some standards of quality. All the administration gave him was a slap in the face. Chancellor Tolley's line "We insist on the right to inquire" really meant "We insist on the right to inquire so long as you don't ask the front office."

The administration did not object when fraternities and religion were the subjects of Investigator Hughes. But some seemed to cringe when food service was brought up, even though the worse Terry uncovered was that food service wasn't paying some of their help enough.

Terry realized, last semester, that none of his staff members would be allowed on 'Syracuse 10.' In an effort to give the magazine a wider base of operations he proposed a "constitution" for the '10' that allowed it to be whatever the editor wanted, whether it be a "Nation," or an "Evergreen Review."

The Board of Publications, no thanks to the administration and with a heavy debt of thanks to Dean Wesley C. Clark, accepted the proposals. But in its meeting last week the board simply forgot about those principles, deciding again on a literary, showcase type of publication written for and by the Chancellor's top 5%.

Hughes is not finished. He wants to start his own magazine, and all he asks from the university is to be allowed to sell his publication on campus. Terry wants no University subsidy as the magazine will be privately financed through advertisements and circulation receipts.

Despite the fact that Terry's new magazine will have a slight "underground" tinge to it, the chances are that it will represent more accurately, and appeal to more directly, a greater number of students than "Syracuse 5%." It will probably be more of a "campus magazine" then the university's magazine of "ideas."

SU may not have a humor magazine but it will be funny watching the administration put its foot in its mouth if it does not give Hughes the tiny privilege he asks for and therefore inhibits both freedom of the press and the "educational experience."

Crouse Concert

Jerrold Cox's first solo performance for a Hill audience was characterized by warmth and a genuine feeling for his material. If there were mistakes in his renditions, they should be certainly dismissed as nervous failures, for basically Mr. Cox offered a highly musical program.

The featured work on the first half of the program was the "Pathetique" Sonata by Beethoven. Errors in the first movement did much to spoil its effect, but the slow movement was played with tenderness and dignity.

The second half of the concert was devoted entirely to a Sonata by Samuel Barber in which Mr. Cox seemed to feel more at home.

More on Ted Bayer

Information on this week's blood drive slipped by mistake into a feature story in Friday's Daily Orange on Theodore Bayer, Joint Student Government president. While we hope the entire campus responds to the blood drive appeal, we're sure readers would like to finish the story on Bayer. Here it is.

A freshman tennis player, Bayer worked for his board, and took courses in the business school. He got his start in campus government as administrative assistant to the then JSL speaker, Kent Barwick. "I ran for speaker pro tem at the end of the year, but I was declared ineligible since I hadn't served enough time with JSG.."

In his junior year, Bayer was a member of the class executive council, and was chosen a member of Orange Key, junior men's honorary. He served on the student conduct and welfare committee, and was named chairman of the committee investigating food service.

"After that, everything just fell into place. Fate, if you want to call it that." Now in his senior year, Bayer, has been named to Tau Theta Upsilon, senior men's honorary.

Bayer says he owes his interest in government to Brian Fitzgerald, a past JSL speaker and a fraternity brother of Ted's.. "Brian helped me along. It was because of Brian that I got into government."

About his name, which bears a striking resmblance to that of a certain stuffed member of the animal kingdom, Bayer says, "It's cute, but it can be overdone. My parents told me they didn't realize what would happen. I guess it all fits in with the picture."

Bayer has some personal advice for freshmen and future college students. "There's a great deal more to college than courses. There's so much really available if you look for it.." College, Ted adds, is "people."

As for the future, Bayer hopes to attend law school. He says he doesn't know exactly what he wants to do after that, but it will be some place where law is necessary.

Dr. Wiley Urges Desegregation

By TERRENCE HUGHES

Dr. George Wiley, head of the Syracuse chapter of the Congress On Racial Equality, last week labled the Syracuse Board oi Education's refusal to take a definite stand in dealnig with "defacto segregation" in Syracuse schools" an unsatisfactory state of affairs.'

Wiley, associate professor of chemistry at Syracuse University, indicated that CORE might be forced to take "direct action" to deal with the problem.

Wiley was speaking at a meeting of the Catholic Inter-Racial Council.

The Board of Education last Monday night passed a resolution that it would take part in a study by the Educational Committee of the Area Council for the State Commission for Human Rights to determine if the problem exists.

Steps

Wiley said that CORE had hoped the Board would take more definite steps in recognizing and dealing with the segregation problem, which CORE claims is an obvious one.

"I'm not sure I'm interested in waiting a year to see if this committee can accomplish something," Wiley said. "We may very well take further action if others feel as I do."

Action was taken by CORE earlier this year when the organziation, in cooperation with the Syracuse chapter of the NAACP and the Civil Rights Council of the IUE, engineered a boycott of the Washington Irving school in the 15th Ward on the first day of classes this year. An estimated 20 percent of the normal enrollment showed up.

CORE continued picketing of the school until only a few weeks ago, when it ceased pending further action by the board.

Action

"Through direct action, "Wiley said, "we attempt to confront people with the problem in a way in which it cannot be ignored."

Wiley said that segregation in the city schools is caused by the fact that over 90 percent of the Negroes in Syracuse live within a mile and a half of the city center, 72 percent of them within four census tracts. Wiley termed this area" the most run down, depressed area in the city."

He said that because of the present school district arrangement, children in this area attend schools which are predominantly Negro. The Madison school, he said, is 90 percent Negro, Croton school 70 percent Negro, and the Washington Irving School 90 percent Negro.

Theory

"This leads to defacto support of the 'separate but equal' theory of education declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in 1954," Wiley said. "Such a situation does emotional and psychological harm to children which can last a lifetime."

Wiley said that while solution to the problem ultimately must lie in combating the discrimination on city housing which forces Negroes to live in such a ghetto, immediate steps could be taken to deal with the educational situation.

"School district boundaries are artificial," Wiley said, "and what we wonder is whether they could possibly drawn differently to permit inter-racial contact."

Wiley said that CORE had been criticized for not presenting an actual solution to the redistricting problem to the Board, but countered, "we feel that the responsibility for discovering precise means of solving this problem lies with these educators who are being paid to deal with such matters."

Wiley said that CORE had specifically asked the Board of Education to 1) recognize that defacto situation might exist 2) if such a condition does exist, to put itself on record as opposing it.. 3) to initiate a study commission to attempt to study the problem.

Wiley said that though this proposal was presented to the Board early this summer, none of the steps requested by CORE have been taken.

On August 20, the Board said it would study the problem only if it could act as part of a committee established by Mayor of Syracuse Walsh.

The mayor flatly stated that he had no intention of establishing such a committee," Wiley said.

Wiley scored Mayor Walsh's disinterest in the problem. He said that during picketing of a Republican dinner by CORE, Walsh refused to take literature handed out by the CORE picket line."

"Walsh said that if we had a complaint, we should take it to the State Commission in Human Rights," Wiley said..

cuse Ten, The statement follows:

"The Board of Publications accepted a statement signed by the first three editors of the Syracuse 10 magazine outlining the purposes of the magazine as follows:

"The Undersigned regard the following as a fair and accurate statement of the character and purposes of Syracuse 10 as understood by students and university administration at the time of its founding and the granting of a subsidy:

"A magazine in which the creative artist, in fiction and non-fiction, in poetry, drama, and criticism could present his work.

"A magazine in which painters, photographers, and commercial designers could exhibit their ways of organizing space and color and form.

"A magazine that could be a forum for ideas, in emphasis not local but looking toward the general intellectual community of which Syracuse University is a part.

"We further believe that the Board of Publication should present this statement, as a definition of the character of Syracuse 10, to each new editor upon his election.

"The Board of Publications also approved a resolution that the statement of purposes be placed on the application form to be filled out by future candidates for offices of the Syracuse 10 magazine.

"The Board of Publications also adopted a resolution that the editor under the normal procedure will show the copy to the editorial adviser before it is submitted to the printer, but will not be required to do so.

"The Board adopted a resolution which stated that the magazine will also be a vehicle for discussion of problems of direct concern to this campus."

"The Board also went on record as being in favor of appointing an advisor to the magazine who will provide a training course for staff members similar to the one recently instituted with the Onondagan; subject to the willingness of the new adviser.

Mr. Gorney submitted a statement of his concept of the purpose of Syracuse Ten: It follows:

"The only pre-determined standard of a campus magazine should be excellence. Any publication which services a student body as large and varied as that of Syracuse University, ought to mirror the many facets of intellectual and creative interest which are of primary concern to serious students. However, these concerns, whether literary, political, or philosophical, all demand one fulfillment; articulate expression in a thoughtful yet appealing format.

"Since the Syracuse 10 is the only campus publication which has a format commensurate with the more complex student concerns, it should be its purpose to explore these questions in a reasonable and intelligent way. The Syracuse student is exposed to constant questions of truth and value in his academic, social, and religious experience at college. Whatever the questions may be, from national politics to best sellers, each student feels the need at some time to explore ideas of high order. In the Syracuse 10, students of this University have a unique chance to investigate these areas of Ultimate concern, whatever they may be.

"Three main methods of meeting this need might be initiated. First, a greatly expanded yet refined selection of outstanding literary works which seem best to apply to immediate concerns of college youth might be included. Second, a shift in emphasis from: expose articles on the campus situation, to constructive inquiries of academic and social problems should be implemented. Third, an increased acknowledgment of national political problems, artistic criticism and sophisticated parody and humor would enlarge the scope of the magazine beyond its now essentially local orientation.

These reforms are stated vaguely because they defy codification. To be a magazine truly representative of this campus, Syracuse 10 can never be rigid in its formulation. Rather, it must respond to the immediate intellectual concerns of the student body. It should not be a magazine of the few; neither should it sacrifice its standards of excellence. But to speak truly and articulately of our primary concerns — this is indeed worth striving for."

The Board in a separate motion determined that the name of the Magazine would be Syracuse Ten.

Since the board had no applications for business manager of the magazine it called for candidates for the position to submit applications as soon as possible.

The Board postponed action on the proposal to establish another magazine on the campus until Wednesday, Oct. 24 at 3 p.m..

A College of Forestry student has been placed on court probation by Joint Student Court for selling some books he found in Marshall Auditorium.

The student, who said he originally intended to turn the books in to the College of Forestry office, sold them instead to the University Bookstore when he found there was no identification in them.

When the bookstore checked the books, the owner's name was found.

The College of Forestry confirmed the loss of the books when the bookstore called to report it.

The case was brought before JSC on the recommendtion of the Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford. The College of Forestry has an option of handling its own disciplinary affairs or turning them over to the jurisdiction of the court.

The case was presented by Dean Raymond F. Crossman of the School of Forestry and reviewed by the court in the light of both the facts and the extenuating circumstances of the student's record and financial situation.

(He is nearly self-supporting through student loans, scholarships and outside work, and he has a fine academic and clean disciplinary record.)

The court placed the student on court probation for two semesters, subject to review at the end of the year, and directed him to the proper university authority to seek financial aid.

On court probation the student will be responsible to JSC itself rather than to the dean of men, who has charge of disciplinary probations.

The student has repaid the bookstore.

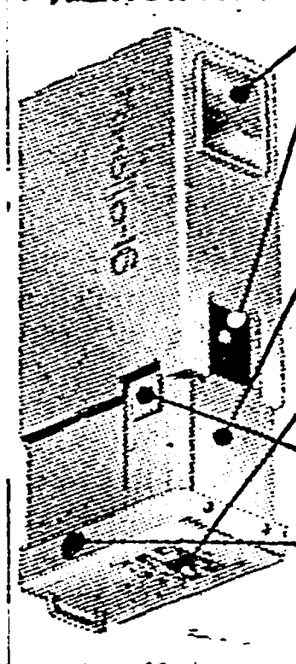
Student Court Riot Hearings

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—The Student Judicial Council has started closed hearings on charges against at least 11 University of Mississippi students growing out of campus riots Sept. 30.

Sources said Thursday at least three cases have already been heard. The council's recommendations will go to the students affairs dean, L. L. Love, who will inform the students what — if any — disciplinary action has been taken.

No public announcement is expected until after all cases have been heard and decided.

James H. Meredith, the Negro student whose appearance at Ole Miss set off the rioting, ends his third week as a student today.



While the Student Judicial Council considered possible discipline against students implicated in the riots, the university's Phi Beta Kappa associates called for drastic action.

Sororities: Conference, Convo

By SUSAN WEINBERG

Many good workable ideas resulted from the "brass tacks" discussions at Sunday's Panhellenic conference at Skytop, according to Shelley Doctors, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Panhel vice president.

One of the main ideas which Panhel hopes to put into effect this year is to organize an Inter-fraternity Council-Panhellenic committee to draw the two organizations closer together and thereby make them more efficient.

The IFC-Panhel discussion group suggested that the committee be composed of 15 members headed by the vice presidents of each organization.

It would be concerned with topics such as social service, scholarship, public relations and cultural activities.

Issues

The Panhel-Campus Relations group felt that the campus ought to know how Panhel stands on issues affecting the student body.

They urged that Panhel support both by word and deed campus activities. In addition, they emphasized that each sorority woman speaks for Panhel and its status, therefore, depends on the behavior of each individual member.

Organization of Panhel also came under close scrutiny. Charging that Panhel is not a closely knit group or very efficient, the Panhel Organization committee offered some specific ideas to improve the situation.

Policies

They urged that a list of Panhel policies be made as well as a list of duties of each officer. Officers should become familiar with their duties over the summer; each outgoing officer should leave a notebook containing duties, problems and suggestions for the incoming officers.

Most committees said Panhel is lax in informing the campus and the community about its many activities and projects.

The group discussing Promoting Panhel as a Whole, therefore, suggested that Panhel try to get coverage by the local newspapers in addition to coverage by the Daily Orange.

It was said such publicity would help disprove the local belief that the Greek system is a dying one.

Better relations among sororities was another area receiving attention. The Inter-sorority Relations group proposed that a committee be established to better relations among houses.

The committee would consist of two delegates from each house, preferably a sophomore and a senior.

It would be this committee's job to organize inter-sorority activities such as exchange dinners and athletic competition.

Many of the delegates were really excited about the ideas resulting from this "brain storming" session, noted Miss Doctors.

She expressed hope that these delegates would take this spirit back to campus and be instrumental in putting these ideas into practice.

The "question of belonging" was posed by Cleo McCracken, temporary Panhellenic advisor, at the Panhellenic freshman rushing convocation Saturday in Hendricks Chapel.

In her keynote address, Miss McCracken enumerated the qualities which make up "belongingness." Work is one such quality; giving of oneself for a cause makes for a common interest with others who are also working for that cause, she said.

Friendship, which consists of mutual admiration and respect, leads to loyalty to one another and, therefore, to a feeling of belonging.

From love, tolerance and pride in others also comes this close feeling of kinship, Miss McCracken continued.

Take a Look

Before deciding where one belongs, Miss McCracken suggested that each coed ought to take a look "at what she is and what she hopes to become."

She pointed out that the choice of sorority is a long term one, for graduation or withdrawal from school does not break the bonds. Each coed should be sure, then, she said, that the group she chooses fits her needs.

After Miss McCracken's general discussion of the sorority system, Carol Shire, Alpha Phi Panhel rushing chairman, gave some specific advice on rushing.

Open Mind

She urged coeds to keep an open mind in rushing because each one probably could be happy in any one of four or five houses.

She also asked rushees to think carefully when filing final preferences. A rushee must be willing to pledge each choice she puts down. If a match is made by a house bidding a girl and by the girl filing preference for that house, the girl is pledged to that house.

Should she decide not to pledge that house, she will have to wait a full calendar year before she can rush again, Miss Shire emphasized.

Registration for freshmen rush in February will be held Nov. 13 to Nov. 15. A three dollar rush fee must be paid at the time of registration. The exact time, place will be announced shortly, Miss Shire said.

Stepsinging...

Participants are required to sing one school song, chosen by the stepsinging committee, and one song chosen by the living center.

The competition is divided into two divisions, large house and small house. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of each division at the Crouse Concert sponsored by Sigma Alpha Iota, Sunday, Dec. 16.

At this time the winners will perform their winning songs.

Judges will be faculty member the School of Music and Sigma Alpha Iota alumnae.

Homecoming Coed Curfew Set for 2 A. M.

Curfews for both nights of Homecoming Weekend Nov. 9-10 have been extended to 2 a.m. for the first time, the Association of Women Students announced Friday.

According to AWS vice president Ula Wiltse, the curfews were extended "because we feel there hasn't been enough participation in university weekends and we think this is going to encourage participation."

The extended curfews, which will also apply to Winter and Spring Weekends, are being tried on a probationary status, Miss Wiltse explained, and "will probably be continued if the campus shows its appreciation through participation in weekends."

The curfews will affect all coeds, and not only those attending university functions. Miss Wiltse explained that coeds have been hesitant to attend university functions in the past because they would have to remain in a dinner dress all night and present the ticket stub upon returning to the dormitory.

Under the new plan, ticket stubs would not be required and coeds would be able to change into casual clothes.

Homecoming Weekend, sponsored by the sophomore class, is the first big weekends of the year. Winter Weekend is scheduled for Feb. 22-24, and Spring Weekend is set for May 3-5.

JSL to Hear New Budget Plan Tonight

Senate Committee Studying Combined Fund Setup

A proposal to increase student control of campus activity and organization finances will be presented at the Joint Student Legislature meeting at 7:15 p.m. today in Maxwell Auditorium.

Kathy Kapsol, ways and means committee chairman, said the proposal will include provisions for a Student Board of Estimate to compile all student budgets into a single activity budget. The compiled budget would be presented to the university administration.

At present, each activity secures its own budget appropriations from the administration's various departments.

The proposal calls for final JSL approval of the budget request before it is presented to the university. Precautions are included against misuse or misrepresentation of funds either by the Board of Estimate or by the organization involved.

"It is hoped that this proposal will give students a more direct and influential role in the allocation of their budgetary funds," Miss Kapsol said.

JSL Speaker Ronald Mittleman refused to identify the organizations which the bill will concern. However, he did state the bill does apply to numerous minor as well as major organizations. An investigation of all organizations is nearly completed, Mittleman said.

Deferment Signups Swell

Over 50 students signed up for deferred student draft status Tuesday in the dean of men's office, apparently motivated by the current Cuban crisis.

Average daily signups seldom exceed five students, the office told the Daily Orange.

Syracuse Morality: Part 1

'Student Treated As Adult'

By CLAY RICHARDS

Syracuse University has no desire to dictate to the student, and respects the student as an adult, commented Joint Student Legislature advisor Joseph V. Julian. He was discussing the role of student government in the formation of university policy.

"The university respects the student as adult. However, as an adult, the student has a responsibility to recognize certain standards," the Maxwell instructor commented.

Julian told the Daily Orange he is convinced the student recognizes this responsibility and as a result sees no reason why a specific lists should be attached to the university's policy statement concerning student conduct.

The present SU policy states that "the traditions and principles of the university, accepted by each student in his act of voluntary registration, requires conduct in harmony with the standards of good society."

Julian, appointed JSL advisor last year, said that no one in Joint Student Legislature has ever expressed dissatisfaction with the university's statement on policies governing student conduct.

"I think it's safe to assume that Joint Student Legislature finds itself in harmony with the present policy regarding student conduct," he said. "I see no present necessity for change."

The new JSL advisor has always stressed the role of the individual, stating "A free campsolely by representatives. The pus cannot have government electorate is more than campus organizations; it is made up of individuals.

During the past two weeks the Daily Orange has given extensive coverage to the story of a Cornell graduate student who was suspended for living with a coed in his apartment during the summer.

The case involves the question of the role of student government in determining the university's regulations, and the role of a university in determining the moral code of its students.

Today the Daily Orange starts a series of articles discussing these questions with faculty, administrators and students.

The Newest for Newhouse

By merely picking up a telephone any person in the world will be able to lecture to and speak with students at the Samuel I. Newhouse Communications Center.

Located in two large discussion rooms of the first building of the three structure complex, tele-lecture systems will amplify the telephone lecture. Students in any section of the room will be able to converse with the speaker.

The first building slated for completion in September, 1964, will have five stories, two underground. I.N. Pei, New York City architects, designed the complex with King and King, university architects, acting in an advisory capacity.

Lower Level

In addition to the tele-lecture system, the two discussion rooms on the building's lowest level will have many innovations, Russell King of King and King told the Daily Orange.

King explained that the rooms will have "responding systems" to enable student-instructor evaluation, automatic grading systems and screens with both front and rear projection.

Up to 95 persons can be seated in the discussion rooms, which will have unusual physical layouts. Tiers of semi-circular desks with swivel seats will permit students to face any section of the room.

Intimacy

The instructor will be seated in the center of the rooms which SU Chancellor William P. Tolley said were designed to have "a sense of intimacy."

Each desk will have a "responding system" to allow students to evaluate the instructor without personal embarrassment. SU Audio-Visual center has noted the responding system "will provide a link that has been missing the current teaching system.

Wendall Hoone, associate architect with King and King, explained that students will be able to anonymously tell the instructor "if he is speaking over their heads" or if they have any questions."

Panhel Ball Profits to Go To YOU Plan

Student Union Fund 3rd Choice; New Officers Elected

By SUSAN WEINBERG

Panhellenic Council voted Tuesday to give the proceeds from its annual charity ball to Youth Opportunities Unlimited.

YOU is the council's social service project this year. Its purpose is to acquaint underprivileged children with the various opportunities which are open to them.

Before this choice of charity is definite, the University Social Committee must approve it.

If YOU is not approved, the council's second choice is the Association for Retarded Children. Its third choice is the student union.

It was suggested at last month's Pinebrook Conference that Panhel be the first large organization to donate money to the student union fund.

In the first vote the student union fund tied with YOU. YOU won on the second ballot. Instead of making the student union its second choice, Panhel voted again and the student union became third on the list.

In other business Panhel elected three officers for the new positions of under-rush chairman, under-secretary and under-treasurer.

Barbara Epstein (Sigma Delta Tau), a sophomore in the College of Liberal Arts, was elected under-rush-chairman.

From Princeton, N.J., her main idea was to make all rushing open rush and thereby let every rushee see every house.

Joan Marshall (Chi Omego) from Tribes Hill, was elected under-secretary. A sophomore in the School of Nursing, she proposed that records of the sorority averages and costs should be made a vailable to all sorority women and freshman coeds.

New under-treasurer is Joan McCullough (Delta Delta Delta), a junior in the College of Business Administration from Kingston.

She suggested that the under-treasurer make out monthly reports for each officer of how much she has spent and how much remains in her budget.

Indian Students Support Nehru

The following statement was released to the Daily Orange late Tuesday night by Sreenivas Rao, in behalf of the SU Indian Students Assn., of which he is president:

"We, the Indian students studying at Syracuse, resolve to give our wholehearted support to the government of India in its efforts to meet the Chinese aggression on our soil. We agree with Prime Minister Nehru that this agression 'threatens the freedom of our people and the independence of our country,' and no stone should be left unturned to preserve them.

"If the preservation of India's freedom calls for the highest sacrifice from us, it shall be made. We assure our prime minister and parliament that we are prepared to do everything we can to save the country's freedom for which our parents fought so valiantly."

DR. N. BALABANIAN

By CHARLES M. STEINBERG

Electrical engineer, outspoken advocate of civil liberties, part-time Sunday school teacher, Hill Prof. Norman Balabanian is a man of many interests.

Turning down a possibly more lucrative career in industry for the academic life, because "it is more important to transmit knowledge to the younger generation," Dr. Balbanian takes an active interest in many facets of Syracuse University.

Coming to SU from Syria as an undergraduate student in 1947, Dr. Balabanian earned all three of his academic bachelor, master and doctorate degrees here: Then he joined the faculty and rose to the rank of full professor in electrical engineering.

Establishing an international reputation in electrical engineering in the meanwhile, Dr. Balabanian has been faced with many offers to leave his alma mater.

Soviet Union Warns U. S. On Blockage

The Soviet Union warned Tuesday night that the United States "has no right to quarantine the nation of Cuba."

Moscow Radio, in issuing this warning said, "The United States is playing with fire, impeding Cuba's right to make any defense arrangements necessary."

The Soviet Union also canceled all military leaves and alerted Warsaw Pact nations "to prepare for an emergency."

The Soviet threats, termed mild by U.S. officials, left the responsibility of peace "on the shoulders of the United States of America."

In other Cuban developments, U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson proposed to the United Nations that Russia be required to withdraw missiles from Cuba. The Soviet Union also filed charges, asserting the U.S. was an aggressor. The U.N. was

His Finest Hour

"Let no one doubt that this is a difficult and dangerous effort on which we have set out. No one can foresee precisely what course it will take or what costs or casualities will be incurred. Many months of sacrifice and self-discipline lie ahead — months in which both our will and our patience will be tested— months in which many threats and denunciations will keep us aware of our danger. But the greatest danger of all would be to do nothing."

Obviously, those words were among those spoken by President Kennedy Monday evening as he told the American people and citizens of the world that the United States would, at least, stand staunchly for its ideals and principles.

That these words were the best yet uttered by the President and that they were necessary, cannot be denied. The substantial threat of Soviet missiles in Cuba left him no other course, short of war itself.

". . . the greatest danger of all would be to do nothing." These words in particular haunted the listener because it seems to us that the United States had gone too long doing nothing. Thus the situation has grown to the grave proportions which it now takes.

But now the President has acted and the country must rally behind him or assuredly we will have no future as a respected leader among the free world's nations.

This is indeed a "difficult and dangerous effort" because now we must back up these moves under the pressures the Soviets will build. What will happen when we try to stop Soviet ships headed for Cuba and what will the Russian do in Berlin? These are just two of the many issues that now will be raised and surely "many months of sacrifice" lie ahead.

It is out of our hands. We must continue as we have gone before but remember that the President has spoken and we must rally behind him in the cause of freedom. "God willing that goal will be reached."

THE GADFLY

Paternalism

By T. Lee Hughes

The morality case rattling the foundations of that liberal neighbor south of Piety Hill is seeping in its implications to the very core of administrative - student relations everywhere.

Just a short two weeks ago Chancellor Tolley told a Saturday morning conclave of beaming moms and pops that "the administration acts as parents in your absence."

"I don't think students realize they are sheltered and protected here," the Chancellor cooed, as dad puffed reflectively on his post-meal cigar and mom looked askance at the personification of an institution which had just swallowed the better part of a thousand dollar bill in the name of junior's education.

It is precisely the thoughts of Chancellor Tolley which seem to serve as the basis for Cornell University's expulsion of a graduate student caught spending the summer with a coed in his apartment.

The wide acceptance of paternalism on the part of university administrators is what makes the Cornell situation so explosive to students on Piety Hill.

Is the university to maintain a hands off attitude towards the private lives of students as long as they are not disturbing the rights of others, as is the contention of a new morality code presented by Cornell students?

Or is the university, in fact, to be a parent away from home?

Frankly, the fact that some amorous male decides to sleep with a girl does not seem to me to be the business of any college administrator.

The administrator, it is true, cannot be concerned only with the problem of education. He must also act as a provost marshall in regards to conduct, but only as this applies to university life.

If the Cornell case had involved a sexual relationship within a university building, then the action of the Cornell faculty committee might be deemed justified.

But control in these cases, unfortunately, is almost entirely at the discretion of the administrator. Most university rules pertaining to sexual conduct are vague. The Syracuse University catalogue states for example, "the tradition and principles of the University prohibit any conduct in violation of law or out of harmony with the standards of good society."

This dictate is unclear almost to the point of being ridiculous. Certainly society has advanced to the stage where love is looked upon as something significantly more than the physical activity of reproduction. Established religious and social mores dictate that sexual fidelity be observed between two people for life.

But again, the mores are undeniably hypocritical. If we are to place any stock in what Kinsey has to say, extra-marital sex relations are, if not common, at least not extraordinary.

The girl involved in the Cornell case complained the university administration was trying "to make something dirty out of what had been a beautiful relationship."

Who is to say the weeks that these two people spent together may not have been the only beautiful part of what otherwise was a life of disappointment and pain.

What right does a university administrator, sitting apparently at the right hand of God, have to judge such a relationship immoral? What segment of the population does he use as his standard of morality?

Furthermore, assuming some illuminating insight provides him with the key to an absolute standard of morality, what right has he to persecute a university student for violation of the code in an affair which is completely unrelated to the university?

None, I would say.

For even the practice on the other side of the intellectual fence that separates the real world from the university never-never land, is somewhat more liberal on this point.

It is true that in most states, fornication, even if committed in absolute privacy, is a crime by statute. But in actual practice, such laws are very rarely enforced unless the act is accompanied by a scandalous public display, by violence (such as rape), or by the participation of children.

And the outside has the advantage over our never-never land in that its laws are at least explicit, even if rarely enforced. The opposite is true within the fence, where laws are apparently implicit, and always enforced.

But again administrators probably assume, like ma and pa, they can apply the whip at will.

I feel nothing but the utmost sympathy for the two students caught in the web of administrative paternalism at Cornell.

And may the day never come that I have to call the Dean of Men 'Dad', or the Dean of Women 'Mom'.

AMIDST THE CLAMOR

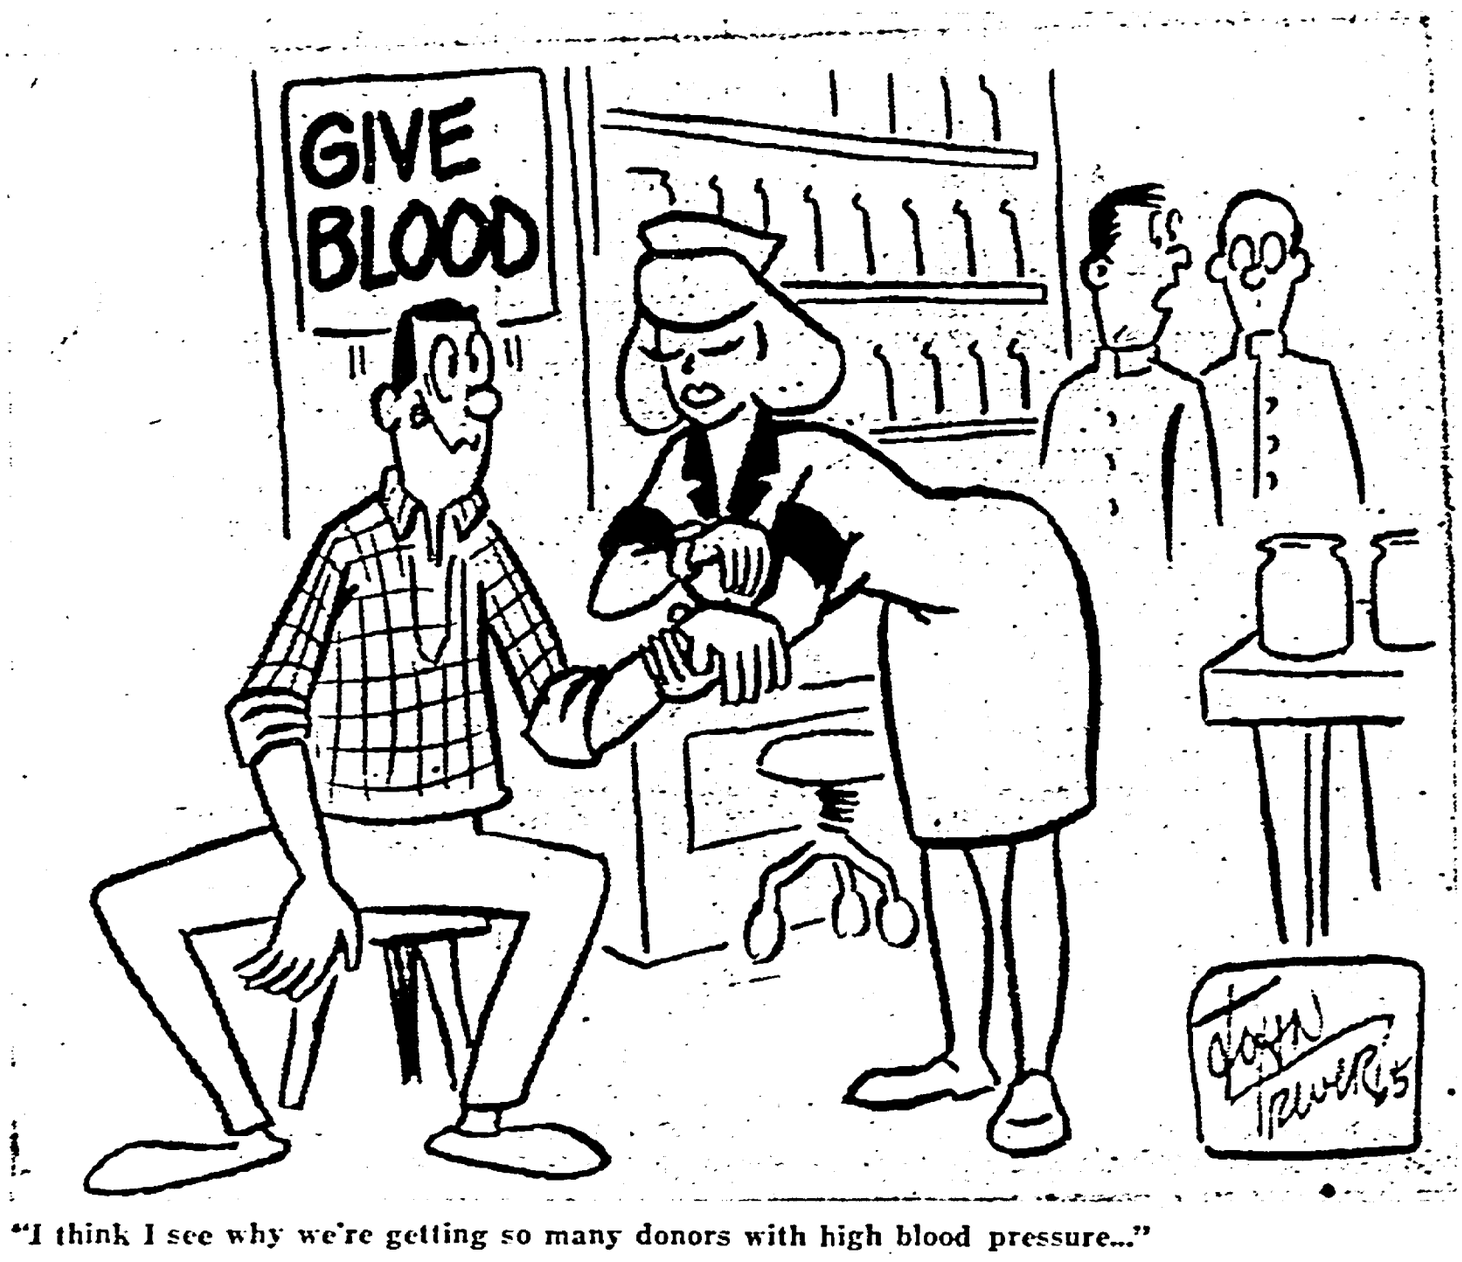
Havana

By Win Whittaker

"Do Americans know why they will die?" That was Radio Havana which bills Cuba as the "Free Territory of America." In a midnight broadcast Monday evening, Cuban spokesmen said history would not be kind to John Fitzgerald Kennedy — your and my President. They went on to say, "Warmongoring Kennedy, the Imperialist, will be credited with starting World War III."

That is their story. But, finally we are getting some concrete action against the continuous Soviet aggression. Contrary to Cuban spokesmen, the armament build up in Cuba is a grave concern to the United States. The very security of the Western Hemisphere, and thus the free world, has been threatened by Communist infiltration and arming on this island.

It took guts to do what President Kennedy did. And any American who does not support him either has no concept of the international conspiracy out to destroy our freedoms or is a coward, afraid to fight for the liberties our forefathers died to gain and died to preserve.



We cannot back down. If this is the ignition for World War III, then so be it. But, it is doubtful the Russians will "push the button" even if we do drown one of their ships.

The time was long over due for this sort of action. President Eisenhower let Cuba slip into the Red abyss and, until Monday, JFK had done nothing. We have gotten tough. And the hour has come when we should get a hell of a lot tougher. If we do not, then other parts of the world will fall into the doldrums of Moscow tyranny. Then the United States will sink into a yes-country to every Communist demand.

People say, "Don't wave the flag in front of me." Why not? We should be proud that the Stars and the Stripes still freely flap in the breeze. Patriotism seems to be a lesson of the past. And if it continues, the Star and Sickle will be the sign of the future.

The pangs of war are a horrible thought. But, more frightening and fearful is the idea of no liberty, no Constitution, only rule from, by, and for the Communists.

TREVER ON CAMPUS

"I think I see why we're getting so many donors with high blood pressure..."

LETTERS

Tick - Tock

To the Editor:

In this atomic age, scientists can measure micro-seconds with precision. On this campus, you would hardly know it.

As we walk from building to building, we can notice a discrepancy of from two to seven minutes in the university's clocks.

Since our atomic age is also one of appointments (classes, curfews, meetings), it becomes imperative to know the right time, or at least for everyone to know the same wrong time.

It is both a disgrace and a nuisance that, while our scientists are measuring these microseconds, our university can't keep its clocks synchronized within two minutes of each other.

NITE LIFE

Adam Wade

The only mistakes The 3 Rivers Inn has made in booking "The Adam Wade Show" are timing and billing. The show that opened last night lasts a little over one hour. The trouble lies in the fact that half the time is spent with two acts, tap dancer and singer Janice Jane and ventriloquist Johnnie Main. These two turns can best be described as amaturish and out of place at 3 Rivers.

But headliner Adam Wade is a strong showman who can sell a number. Why not give him more time out front?

While Adam was on he turned a noisy convention audience into a responsive house. He did a smash version of "The Writing on the Wall" and the audience became quickly alive. He really clicked with "Just in Time," "Guys and Dolls" and "Teach Me Tonight."

Wade has excellent stage poise. His voice is smooth as cashmere; his diction and phrasing are near perfect. He can belt and swing as well as any of 'em, and his approach to a ballad is unique and tender.

He keeps chatter to a minimum and keeps in mind that he is out there to sing. He squeezed many songs into his short half hour stay and all were extremely well handled and beautifully arranged.

Wade is a wow finish to a slow starter.

SU Student Covers Sports

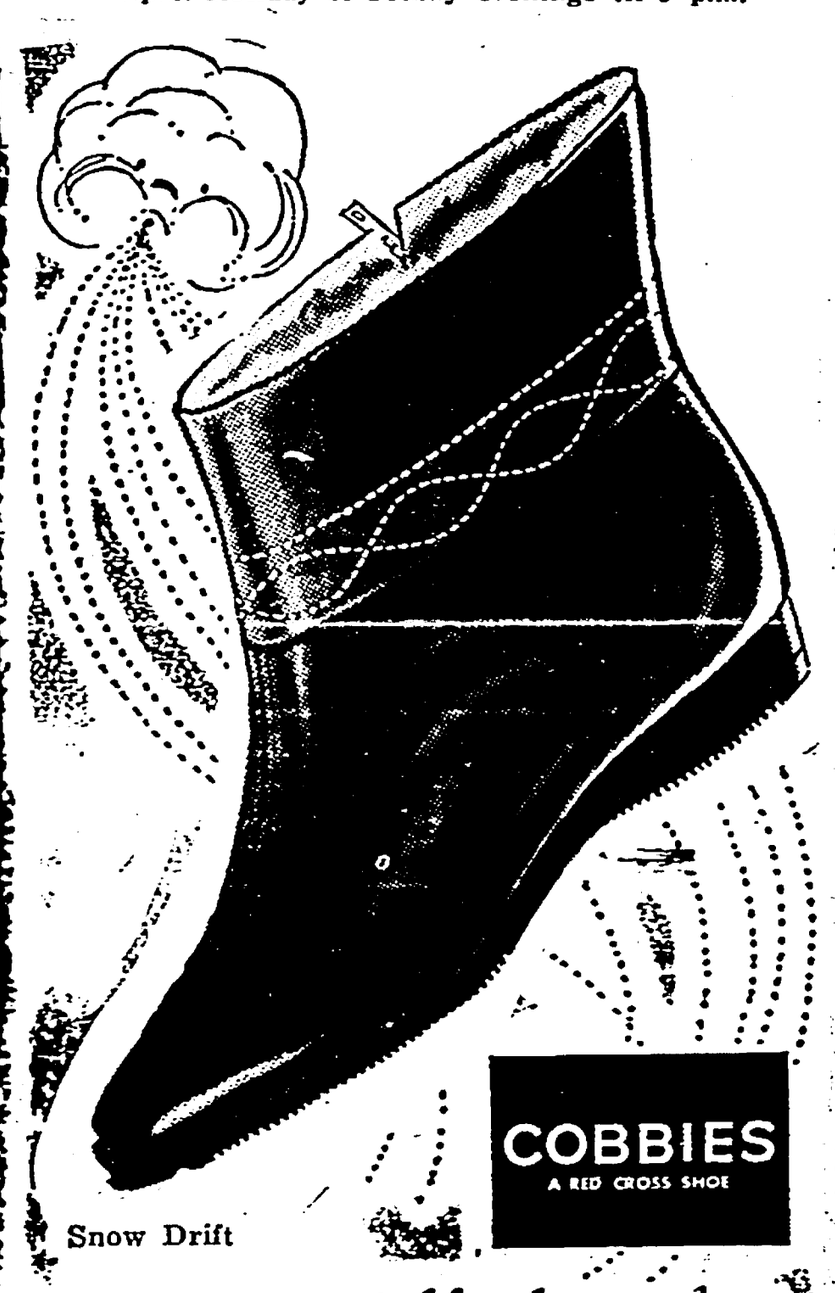
An SU student from 1959 to 1962, Marv Albert, is now host of a New York City high school sports radio program, a writer and producer of Marty Glickman's football scoreboard, and an associate producer of ABC's "High School Game of the Week."

"High School Sports Round-Up," part of Glickman's CBS radio football scoreboard, is the first high school sports radio show in New York. Albert also handles public relations for a record company and appears regularly on a national sports panel show, "All-League Club House," on WABC radio.

While at SU Albert was heard on local radio stations WNDR and WFBL. His "Dedications" show on WNDR received over 2,000 phone calls a night. He was also one of the nation's youngest sports casters when he, and WFBL's Peter Scott, broadcast the Syracuse Chiefs' baseball game.

Head Children's Threatre

The wife of Hill drama instructor and stage designer John Morton, has been named director of SU's children's theater.



Marjorie Morton, who holds a master's degree in children's theatre from UCLA, will guide the 150 youngsters enrolled in the program.

An actress since the age of four, she has worked with Ben Bards, present head of contract programming at 20th Century Fox and has appeared in summer and community theaters in the Los Angeles area.

For a year and a half Mrs. Morton served as director of children's theatre for the Los Angeles playgrounds system. Later she set up a children's theater program at Mt. St. Mary's College in Brentwood, Calif., where she was an instructor.

Army Leads Race For Lambert; Penn Second; Orangemen Fifth

With the grid season nearing the half-way mark, Army continues to lead the pack in the race for the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of the eastern major college football title.

Army received six of the eight first place votes cast by a committee of coaches, sports writers, and sports casters.

Penn State, one-point victors over the Orangemen last week, received one of the remaining first place votes. The other went to Pittsburg which upset the Bruins of UCLA.

Dartmouth, the lone major unbeaten, untied team in the East, finished fourth.

A surprising fifth-place nod was given to Syracuse who owns the fewest victories of any other team in the race. The Orange finished one-tenth of a point ahead of future opponent Navy and 1.9 points ahead of next Saturday's opposition, Holy Cross.

The following averages are based on 10 points for first, 9 for second, etc. Season records are in parentheses.

1. Army (4-1) 9.8; 2. Penn State (4-1) 9.0; 3. Pittsburgh (3-2) 8.1; 4.. Dartmouth (4-0) 6.4; 5. Syracuse (1-3) 5.4; 6. Navy (3-2) 5.3; 7. Holy Cross (3-1) 3.9; 8. Villanova (4-1) 3.0; 9. Princeton (3-1) 2.0; 10. Boston College (3-2) 1.9.

An unusual feature is that Army does not appear among the national top 20 teams while Penn State ranks 15th.

Orange Captain Leon Cholakis

"Back Team" Asks Cholakis

By RICHARD GOULD

Leading the Orangemen out of the huddle this year is the husky captain, Leon Cholakis.

Leon came to Syracuse from Far Rockaway High in New York City where he won several awards for High School football. He was a member of the 1959 Syracuse National Championship team but had to leave the campus for a two year hitch in the Marines.

Cholakis was offered a pro contract from a Canadian team after the 1959 season, but he turned it down. However, now if another offer were made, Leon would be sure to consider it. His future plans include work in the sales and public relations field.

Noting the poor start of the Orange this year, Leon stated that in the first two games the quarterback was not always at fault; some linemen would miss their assignments and our backs would be caught dead. However, it has been observed that in the Boston College and Penn State games the blocking has looked considerably better.

Leon is very concerned with school spirit. "The students may not realize it, but their cheering means a lot to the players. Their encouragement can give us the extra urge to victory."

There was one point which bothered Leon. "When we win an away game, everyone comes to greet us, but when we lose, there isn't anyone. It is more important for encouragement when we are down than at any other time."

"Ben Schwartzwalder is a good, sincere, hard - working coach," commented Leon. "He took the burden of the first two losses, even though the players were the only ones responsible." Leon stated that the coach is very conscientious and spends ten to twelve months a year with football.

Syracuse's future prospects look very good to Leon. The combination of the present sophomores and freshmen should make a great combination for the Orange the next two years.

When asked about his immediate plans, Leon had only one emphatic comment: "To win some football games!"

Orange Observation

By ALLAN KORT
Sports Editor

Everybody likes a favorite son—and I'm no different.

Saturday's match between the Orange and Holy Cross will find this writer's allegiance divided between his alma mater and his hometown hero.

The Fitton Field clash will be a tough one for the Orange and this writer, but it will be even tougher for the Crusaders who suffered their first loss to a Dartmouth squad in seven years.

But no matter the outcome, there will be something for this writer to talk about. If the Orange win, his alma mater has boosted its prestige (which is lower than usual); and if Holy Cross wins, he can attribute it to the brilliant play of his hometown hero and All-American quarterback candidate Lawrence Patrick McCarthy, the 195-pound blond-haired Irishman from Haverhill, Mass.

Pat McCarthy is truly a hometown hero and should be respected by Orange players and fans. Last year he was selected as the East's "Runnerup."

This year, he engineered his charges to three consecutive wins before last week's loses. In Boston, he is everybody's All-American and will carry that area's vote as the No. 1 quarterback.

But McCarthy is not the only threat that makes the Crusaders a formidable opponent for SU. This team could be a sleeper—with its fast pass-catching backfield of McCarthy, Hennessey, and Synder passing the Cross.

Furthermore, the receptiveness of this squad leaves little to be desired. Besides the quick backfield, HC has a good line which is small (187 pound average) but quick.

So with all these assets why doesn't Coach Eddie Anderson have the optimistic outlook expounded by New England papers such as the Boston Globe?

"Depth," Dr. Eddie said. "That's our main problem. But this is Holy Cross' year and depth or no depth, this same backfield that has lost to Syracuse twice, will be out for revenge."

McCarthy recently said "Syracuse is our toughest game of the year and we should be up for it."

The Haverhill, Mass. Gazette recently quoted McCarthy as saying, "I'll be trying for my best this game—It means a lot to us, in showing that we're a big time team."

If McCarthy, the Orange and Holy Cross live up to their potential, Saturday's clash could be a big-time game.

SU Hockey Association to Meet; Squad Faces Rebuilding Year

Dick Van Winkel, president and organizer of the Syracuse University Hockey Association, announced that a meeting will be held Thursday, October 25, in the basement of the Lowe Art Center. The meeting, which will begin at 9 p.m., is open to all interested freshmen and upperclassmen.

Besides Van Winkel, the speakers will be Dr. Richard Johnson, coach of the squad, and Fred Robinson, secretary-treasurer. The meeting has been called to explain the organization of the club, and to announce this season's schedule.

Last season, the club sported a highly successful record of seven wins and two losses. This year the Hockey Association has joined the Finger Lakes Collegiate Hockey League.

While actual league play does not start until January 12, preliminary contests will be held throughout November and December.

According to Van Winkel, this will be a rebuilding year for the squad with only six lettermen returning. Van Winkel further emphasied the opportunities for qualified players.

Those interested are urged to attend the meeting as well as the tryouts which will be held Monday night at 10 p.m. at the State Fair Coliseum.

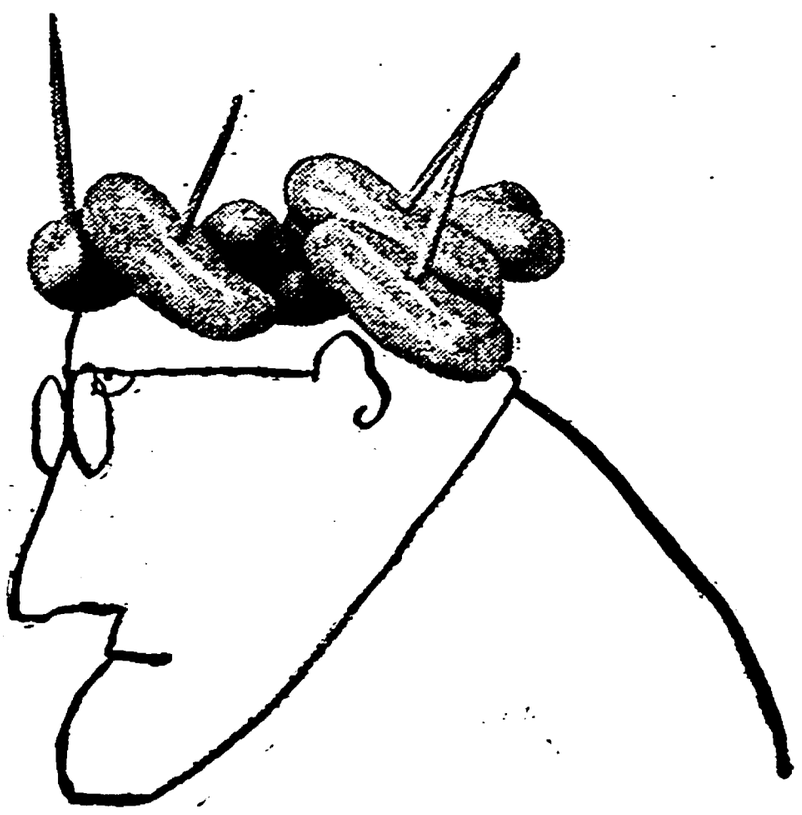
...for a life of pride and purpose

Among the young people being graduated from college in these times, there are some who think and feel—perhaps a little more deeply than the others—about the world we live in, the future we face. They ask, "How can I make my career really meaningful? More than just personally rewarding?"

And many of today's most successful young people are finding a fulfilling answer to these questions as officers on the Aerospace Team... the United States Air Force. They can tell you that no career could better combine the opportunity for achievement—and the deep inner satisfaction of knowing that they are helping preserve the very future of America.



How can you become an Air Force Officer?

If you are a college senior and not currently enrolled in ROTC, Air Force Officer Training School provides an opportunity to qualify for a wide variety of career fields. The graduate of this three-month course receives a commission as a second lieutenant. As the Air Force continues its technological advance, officers with college training will move into positions of increasing importance.

For full information—including the opportunity to earn graduate degrees at Air Force expense—see the Air Force Selection Team when it visits your college, visit your local Air Force Recruiting Office, or write: Air Force Officer Career Information, Dept. SC210, Box 805, New York 1, New York.

Balabanian...

This year he was offered the department chairmanship at Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute. But he chooses to remain. "We have a very good department of Electrical Engineering here," says Prof. Balabanian, "and it will get even better with forthcoming administration support."

Though coming to Syracuse via Syria, Dr. Balabanian is a native American citizen. He was born in Connecticut in 1922, but at the age of 13 returned with his parents to their native land. He continued his education at a European high school - junior college in Syria, eventually being called upon to do some teaching. This experience gave him his desire to be a teacher.

"I've never thought of doing anything else," Dr. Balabanian now says. In 1943 he joined the U.S. Army and was stationed in New Jersey in 1947.

Author

Dr. Balabanian has co-authored one and authored two electrical engineering textbooks. His "Fundamentals of Circuit Theory," an introductory text, is used in more than 30 engineering schools in the country. He is a senior member of the Institute of Radio Engineers, is listed in "American Men of Science" and was selected consulting editor for a publisher's electrical engineering text series.

But Dr. Balabanian's interests are not confined exclusively to engineering. He is among the campus' leading spokesmen for academic freedom and civil liberties. "The situation of academic freedom at Syracuse is good, though not perfect," he observes.

The Linus Pauling and "Tropic of Cancer" incidents last year prompted Balabanian to campaign for a Syracuse-area chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, a project in which he is still involved. He is a member of the faculty senate subcommittee on academic freedom.

Church, State

One of the issues Dr. Balabanian feels most strongly about is the separation of church and state. "I feel that separation is being eroded at the present time," he says. "People who get emotionally violent against the recent Supreme Court decision have no understanding of the democratic process and have no idea what freedom of religion means."

Dr. Balabanian led a successful campaign in Syracuse to defeat the controversial New York state constitutional amendment six permitting state aid to church related schools.

He is a member of the May Memorial Unitarian Church and taught first and third grade Sunday School there for several years.

Politics

Prof. Balabanian has also ventured into politics. He was a member of the Onondaga County Democratic Committee, but recently resigned "because, I'm not a good practical politician. I'm more of an idealist."

Education, however, is his primary interest, and this interest extends to all fields of knowledge. "American education must catch up with the twentieth century," he says, "especially in the biological sciences."

He advocates the teaching of evolution in secondary schools. "The basic fact of life is evolution and change. We can observe, for instance, the changing of moral systems. Nothing is static. Unless people really know this, we'll be applying the same solutions to old responses. We must adapt ourselves to change."

The only other interest Dr. Balabanian could possibly have time for is perhaps his most basic: his family. He and his wife, Jean, are raising four youngsters aged 14, 13, 10 and 5.

Newhouse...

"Before this," Hoone pointed out, surveys prove that "only about 7 persons out of 25 in large groups were willing to question the instructor" and take part in the discussion.

Another innovation will be an automatic grading system, King said. Questions will be projected on screens at the front of the room. Students being tested will fill out multiple choice answer cards and feed them into computor machines.

King explained that tests will be graded within minutes and grades will be returned at the end of the period.

Another novel device in the discussion rooms is "front projection." This would permit students seated in lighted rooms to take notes from material projected on a screen at the front of the room.

The rooms also will contain three chalk boards, built into the ground and staggered behind each other, that can be raised and lowered by the instructor.

Soviet...

scheduled to convene at 9 a.m. today.

The Organization of America States unanimously okayed the use of armed forces to prevent offensive materials from reaching Cuba.

Tuesday night President Kennedy announced his blockade proposal formally, and said 25 Russian ships on the way to Cuba were "being watched by U.S. planes."

Contact between the Russian ships and American destroyers was expected to take place today.

Sadler to Hold U. N. Debate

Dr. Byron Fox of the Maxwell School will moderate a U.N. Debate Forum at 8 p.m. today in the Sadler Hall Lounge.

Syracuse University students from all over the world will discuss topics of political and social significance. The program will be sponsored jointly by the Sadler Program Committee and the International Student's Organization.

Daily Orange Weather Watch

FORECASTERS
Stuart Soroka
Henry Adams

A second surge of cold air has pushed into the area and reinforced the already cold air over the state. Cold winds blowing across the relatively warm water of the Great Lakes are picking up moisture and depositing it in the Syracuse area in the form of showers and snow flurries.

Although the sun may occasionally break through the clouds, most of the day will be darkened by heavy clouds and frequent snow flurries or squalls, possibly mixed with rain at times. Temperatures will rise only into the upper 30's and strong WNW winds will make the cold more pronounced.

Cold and snow flurries will continue tonight and tomorrow. The low tonight will dip to near 30.

Frosh Council Picked

By ANDY PORTE

Plans for freshman class government and a list of executive members were released Tuesday by Dennis Green, class president.

The executive council, chosen over the weekend by Green and the three other elected class officers, will consist of 16 freshmen and the officers.

Named to the council were Robert Heins, Lund Cottage; Edmund Gelgud, WatsonWest 4; Richard Griffin, DellPlain 1; Richard Simon, DellPlain 8; Serge Jelenevsky, DellPlain 4; Jonathan Bernstein, Watson West 0; Hank Kahn, DellPlain 8; and Richard Turner, a commuter.

More

Also Barbara Kling, Flint 4C; Carol Chor, Day 8; Wendy Devlin, Lima Cottage; Bonnie Cifaratta, a commuter; Carol Speigle, Day 8; Carol Glickman, Flint 3C; Jackie Schor, Haven Hall; and Patricia Etken, Day 4.

Green also issued a statement concerning the operation of the freshman class government. He said:

"I do not advocate a complex bureaucracy, it is not needed and could only provide for confusion. On the other hand, too simple a structure of organization would, itself, lack organization, and at the same time would not allow diverse enough representation from the student body. Thus my problem has been to construct a system simple enough to function effectively, yet presumes a large degree of personal representation."

Head System

"As president, I will head this system. I would be failing to do my job were I to take anything less than the most vigorous leadership. Working directly under and with me will be the other class officers. Each of these officers will sit as chairman of a standing committee, in addition to sitting on the executive council. Representation on the executive council and on the secretary and treasurer's committees will be through appointment, and on the vice president's through election."

The executive council, according to Green, will be "purely an advisory and recommendatory body to me, to help me decide class policy." He added that he was greatly pleased at the large number of executive council applications he received, 160 from which 16 were chosen.

Forum

"The vice president's committee, the Freshman Forum, will consist of one student elected from each floor of the large freshman living centers and one from each cottage. The Forum, will sit as a legislative body, but will be used by me mostly as a source of information. I shall expect the class to make its wants and feelings known to me through their representatives in the Freshman Forum."

Pall Mall Presents~
GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

CAMPUS TYPE II

Don't let this girl's costume fool you. She's not really a mad scientist. She's a girl—a real, live girl. It's just that she has to prove something—to herself and to her family.

She has to prove that she has a brain and that, if she ever has to compete with men on their own terms, she can do it—and win. But she really doesn't want to compete with men. In her heart she wants to attract men and eventually, marry one. The girl watcher should not let this situation disturb him, however.

If the girl is watchable, she should be watched, no matter what her motives or ambitions may be. The same thing is true of a cigarette. If it's smokeable, it should be smoked—and Pall Mall is the most smokeable of all!

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

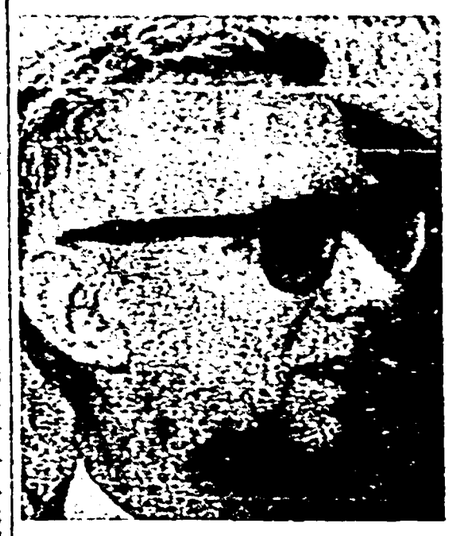
JSL Tables Revision Of Activity Finances

By ANDY PORTE

Joint Student Legislature Wednesday tabled a motion to increase student control of campus activity finances. The legislature also approved a new Anti-Noise Act.

The tabled motion, calling for approval of a Student Activities Finance Proposal was put off for two weeks after discussion showed a need for more information on the situation.



The proposal calls for budgets of student activities and organizations to be approved by a Joint Student Government Board of Estimate, which would be an all-student group. It includes precautions against the misuse or misrepresentation of funds.

A motion to prepare a list of all organizations which have annually received money from the university was approved.

The new Anti-Noise Act, approved by a hand vote, prohibits the use of "publicity devices, including loudspeakers, hornblowing and other noise-making devices" except from 3 p.m. to 8 p. m. Mondays through Thursdays; 3 p.m to 9 p.m. Fridays; and noon to 9 p.m. Saturdays.

Arts Against Technology

DR. AUGUST HECKSCHER

By AUDREY LIPPMANN

The great gift of machinery to art is its capacity to reproduce and transmit the arts to the people of our society.

With this theme, August Heckscher, special White House consultant on the arts, discussed the arts of American culture in a technological society, Wednesday night in Huntington B. Crouse classroom building.

People are missing facts today; life is filled with images and shadows, he said in the HBC dedication address.

To counteract the "meaningless diffusion and senseless dissemination" which machinery brings to our society, Heckscher advocates several ideas.

Culitivation of institutions to create a place for the artist to find expression is very important, he said. We must learn to recognize the value of reproductions created by these machines only as a reminder of the original.

We must cherish a sense of unique and objective experience, he emphasized. This is hard to do so in our society and goes against the grain of science and technology, he added.

As products of a consumer society, we tend to get rid of all we produce, including the artistic works of our time. To counteract this, he suggested the true art lover resist this consumption. "Appreciation and understanding of art may serve the soul of a technological society," he said.

To do this, art must "come out of domesticity and transform

Writer Visits Series to Open

Syracuse University's annual Visiting Writers' Program opens today with a public lecture by novelist Bernard Malamud.

Malamud, 48-year-old author of three full-length novels and numerous short stories, arrived on campus Wednesday to meet informally with several writing classes. His address is scheduled for 4 p.m. in the Gifford Auditorium in the Huntington B. Crouse Classroom Building.

Although Malamud is on the Hill as part of the writers' program, he also is participating in dedication week at the new classroom building. The $1.6 million structure opened officially Monday.

The Brooklyn-born novelist is the first of three authors to take part in the writers' series this fall. Paul Engle, director of the Iowa State School of Writing, will speak in mid-November. Novelist George P. Elliott will visit in December.

Syracuse Morality: Part 2

'We Don't Legislate Honor'

During the past two weeks the Daily Orange has given extensive coverage to the story of a Cornell University graduate student suspended for living with a coed in his apartment during the summer. This is the second of a series of articles dealing with the roles of academic institutions and students in determining moral conduct.

By CLAY RICHARDS

"We don't try to legislate honor, decency, or good judgment," stated Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford, commenting on the role of the dean of men's office in enforcing student conduct regulations.

Clifford said the student must have some "contract for honor" determined by the extent of his maturity.

This maturity is not a state, he said, but is a process like democracy that one has to proceed to.

"Fundamentally, in dealing with cases of this nature, we try to delegate responsibility to students and their organizations," Clifford explained.

The role of these student organizations is one of dual responsibility, Clifford said.

The first is a responsibility for action calling for student government organization to act within the limits of university policy.

Here, the student government, effectively represented within the university, should promote

Forty-five booths will attract spectators at the Campus Chest Carnival Friday night on the main quad, Sharon Locker and Norman Begun, booth co-chairmen, have announced.

Booth building will begin at 1 p.m. Friday. Representatives from all sororities fraternities and living centers should report to Miss Locker or Begun on the quad before they begin to set up anything.

All sponsors of booths must supply their own material. Any special equipment such as electricity or microphones must be approved by the co-chairman. Only a limited number of booths will be given a back drop.

Haven Hall, Schultze to Go

By BEV LURIA

Evacuation of Haven Hall and Schultze Cottage is set for February, Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith has told the Daily Orange.

Dean Smith said women presently living in these residences will not be disturbed this semester "until after exams."

The two living centers on the block bounded by University, Waverly and South Crouse avenues and University place will be demolished to make room for the Samuel I. Newhouse Communications Center.

Construction of the Center is slated to begin in January. Syr-

Dems to Hear Donovan

James B. Donovan, Democratic candidate for U.S. senator and negotiator in the Cuban prisoners' talks, will speak at the Young Democrats meeting at 4 p.m., today in Maxwell Auditorium. Just returned from Cuba, he will discuss the current crisis.

Donovan, a graduate of Fordham University, was an assistant prosecutor in charge of visual evidence at the Nurenburg trials, vice president of the New York City Board of Education, and general counsel for the Office of Strategic Services.

He defended Soviet spy Rudolf Abel in court and negotiated for the release of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

Donovan has received several major government awards, including the Distinguished Intelligence Medal.

The meeting is open to all students interested in hearing Donovan.

Sign of the Times

NO, IT'S NOT FOR REAL—the guys in Corneille Cottage on South Crouse avenue are just practicing in case they should hear from Uncle Sam. JEFF BAKER, DICK STANEK, LEE ALEXANDER, TOM BORG, JOHAN ZWEEDE and JIM DELANEY are seen here at "draft" headquarters on the cottage porch.

World News

"Search, seize, or sink" were the orders that were never followed in the Caribbean yesterday as the U.S. arms blockade of Cuba went into effect. Some of the 25 Soviet ships heading toward Cuba were reported to have changed course.

Also...Secretary Gen. U Thant of the UN asked for a two or three week cooling off period.. Poland said she would submit to searches but under protest...

War Baby Morality

It took the threat of world war, but at last the Syracuse students are excited about something. With persons throughout the world anxiously watching the blockaded Cuban waters, the students here are reflecting an expectancy of their own.

Perhaps the reactions expressed here are not typical of those in other parts of the country or in the world, but these reactions are certainly indicative of some frightening things.

Most of you have probably run across the different reactions prevalent on campus but let us study some of them and try to show how sad a state the world is in, if we here are an indication.

One group can be termed the anti-Kennedy faction. This group is opposed to the strong tactics announced by the President Monday. However, they reflect two different viewpoints.

One portion of this group feels that Kennedy made this move as a political tactic to take Cuba out of the campaign and to influence voters to favor a more Democratic Congress.

The other part of this group feels that Kennedy has placed the United States in a position of shame in the eyes of the world because of the "obviously aggressive nature" of his Cuban blockade.

These two attitudes reflect a warped and misguided thinking on the part of these people. They are reflecting personal beliefs but are cynical enough to stand in the way of Kennedy's policy.

Another large segment of the campus, possibly the largest, is showing definite signs of "war nerves." This phenomenon is characterized by acute depression and, in the case of some coeds, outbursts of crying. The fear is further increased by an inability to grasp the reality of the current situation and will probably subside as soon as something definite happens to let off the pressure.

A third group is the most frightening of them all. These are the students who, either out of intense fear or idiotic ignorance, have managed to find something funny in the Cuban crisis.

One segment of this category seems to be approaching a-morality. These young boys and girls talk of last thrills and "why study for that next exam" and are serious about it. They seem to be giving up.

The other part of the larger group makes joke after joke and just won't face the situation or even think about it in the least except to laugh it off.

What motivates this last group—the quitters and jokers? The answer probably has deep psychological implications. For we are the original "war babies," that unfortunate breed of man born during World War II, which has been raised in the shadow of war or threats of war and has become callous and hard to the realities of the world.

Those realities have now boiled down to this. Total war could mean the annhilation of mankind and the end of this civilization. This has always sounded so horrible and distant that we have scoffed and laughed it off as impossible.

Now we are approaching the moment of truth when we can only await the verdict. Will we continue with the sword of nuclear warfare hanging over our heads or will we lose our heads completely in a series of mushroom clouds?

No longer can we brush aside the impending danger. We must face peril that awaits and be prepared to fight for our survival. There is no room for cynics or quitters, worriers or jokers.

We must sit as the innocent victims and leave our fate to the judges in military robes. And while we wait we at Syracuse must continue on our academic path no matter how close the world staggers to the brink.

TREVER ON CAMPUS

"Wanna trade?"

LETTERS

Morality

To the Editor:

For the Good and Welfare of all interested in preserving civil liberties and liberal college education:

Last week a scandal broke at Cornell that really shocked me—not the means but the ends—this dismissal of the graduate student by a mature adult society known as the Board of Trustees.

However, in retrospect of my four undergraduate years at S.U., I should not be at all shocked — just "bored" of trustees.

From what those not directly connected with college life think and say, it appears that college is a place where one goes to more fully realize his emotional and intellectual capacities, and thus to better prepare him to establish his role in society and to cope with the everyday problems of his environment.

However, when one connected with college life stops to think, he can readily realize that his parents have sent him to a "kennel club" for the winter months, since the country club is closed from October to May.

I used to think a kennel was a shelter for dogs to protect them from getting run over by society's drivers when the dog's owners were away on vacation. After four years at Syracuse, I have come to realize that not only are dogs housed in kennels, but college students are impounded for four years to keep them from being run-over by the cold, cruel vices of society.

Instead of being taught to cope with the problems of their environment, the youths ranging in age between 17 and 22, are protected behind a "guard-all shield," known to the outside world as college.

Usually, if they manage to avoid contamination by society's evils—gambling, drinking, fast women—they are given a certificate of clean living known as a college degree.

However, after being graduated, how many are prepared to cope with the problems of everyday living? Any human hidden from the necessity of communication will never learn to speak!

When a student reaches an age at which he is mature enough to attend college, he should not be shielded from evils but be taught to face them. He should not be told what to consider morally right and what to consider morally wrong, what he may morally do and what he may morally not do.

The role of the college should not be that of a stamp of approval or disapproval; but its role should be to educate the student that he may chose for himself that moral way of life and those moral standards which he feels would best enable him to live with society and with himself.

"The job of shaping the moral ordering of his life belongs to himself and to his community . . . It does not belong to the formal disciplinary action of professors and the deans."

At Cornell a graduate student was asked to leave because he supposedly broke a more of society—living with a woman to whom he was not wed. Is this against the "unwritten code of society" as I was proudly informed by a Cornell staff member!

Actually, there is no law prohibiting one from living with the member of the opposite sex (if both are not minors).

If there is such an unwritten law, then is it not contradictory that when two members of the opposite sex reside together for a period of seven years that they are considered married by common law in many states!

Since society condones marriage as good, it appears that society not only recognizes, but condones, such living. These students would be considered 2.5 per cent on their way to marriage had this occurred somewhere else.

It appears that the colleges can not indoctrinate the student with what society considers "morally operative" since society itself is undecided about this question and is forever changing its attitude.

Thus the action at Cornell campus appears to be a usurpment of civil liberties on the part of an administration of a school which teaches civil liberties. The use of formal disciplinary action on the part of an administration to prevent a student from choosing the "moral ordering" of his life as long as this does not conflict with his society appears to be a usurpment of civil liberties.

The role of the college is to foster the maturing student to better enable him to live with society and his environment. The role of the college is to educate one to think for himself—to decide what is best for him and his community. And the quarantining of the student from viewing all sides of an issue seems to be a direct contradiction to the role of the college. College must not be a thorn in the flowering maturity of the young adult.

Syracuse 10

To the Editor:

As the new Editor-in-Chief of the Syracuse 10, I feel it is my duty to reply to the unfounded charges and implications contained in Mr. Greenwald's column of the 23rd.

First, Mr. Greenwald stated that none of last year's staff members would be allowed on this year's 10". This is clearly false, as Jeffery Radford, last year's associate editor, has been appointed the new managing editor. He has been a key contributor to the "10" in the past, and is now second in command.

Second, even before our staff has formulated a definite new format for the magazine, Mr. Greenwald has taken it upon himself to tell us what we will "probably" do. It is indeed true that we may have "beautiful covers," and "deep articles," but the primary purpose of this year's "10" will be to arouse student interest. I would point out to Mr. Greenwald that creativity and intellectual honesty do not necessarily mean dullness.

Moreover, it is poor journalism to judge results before the fact.

Third, our unpublished and uncompiled magazine is already accused of being published "by members of Chancellor Tolley's 'top five per cent club' for the 'top eight per cent club.'"

If Mr. Greenwald means that the new "10" will be edited and written by the most capable people we can find, he is right. But if he is implying that we intend to publish a snobbish magazine for a small clique, then he is dead wrong.

We will, however, never sacrifice our standards of excellence just to sell copies. Mr. Greenwald seems to think that excellence is something that students scorn. We believe it is what a student thirsts after, and is here at Syracuse to acquire.

ONE NIGHT STAND

'Nothing Happens, Twice'

By Dave Hamilton

THE AUTHOR of this column is currently directing the Drama Department's Esemble Theatre production of Samuel Beckett's "Endgame," to be produced at the University Regent Theatre November S, 9, and 10.

Eric Dolphy is one of the most important and controversial of all the avant-garde jazz musicians -Dolphy, who plays alto sax, clarinet, bass clarinet, and flute, is represented by four albums on Prestige's "New Jazz" label. In addition, he has recorded with such people as Charlie Mingus, John Coltrane, Gunther Schuller, Max Roach, Mal Waldron, the late Booker Little, and Ornette Coleman.

Dolphy, who is 34 years old, came east from California about two and a half years ago with the Chico Hamilton group. He did not fit into this restrictive setting, and soon joined Charlie Mingus. It was with Mingus that Dolphy came to public attention.

His fiery playing fit perfectly into Mingus' plans, and the Mingus quartet made history as one of the best groups of 1960. When Dolphy left Mingus, he worked with several of the other groups mentioned above, and co-led an excellent quintet with Booker Little, who died a year ago at the age of 23.

Dolphy became the center of controversy during his stay with Coltrane. Some critics called Dolphy a "musical anarchist" and a creator of innovation for innovation's sake.

The controversy stems from the "freedom" with which Dolphy plays. On clarinet and flute, Dolphy is free, but he is also lyrical and easy to understand. On the other two instruments, he employs a highly vocalized, often disconcerting, approach.

This is particularly true on fast numbers where musical ideas spill out so fast that Dolphy sounds like some sort of compulsive talker. Of course, the use of speech cadences and vocalized breaks is not new to jazz, but the ferocity with which Dolphy plays is enough to frighten the unaware.

I happen to consider Dolphy one of the major stylistic innovators of the present period in jazz. He is very much part of the "new thing" in jazz and his way of handling the alto sax has already become an influence on the younger musicians.

His work on bass clarinet, along with the work of several other musicians on other instruments, has sparked an interest in "miscellaneous" instruments. I look for Dolphy to be at the top of the heap very soon, as he is gaining public acceptance very rapidly.

If you feel like giving Dolphy a try, here are some of his albums: "Outward Bound," New Jazz 8236; "Out There," New Jazz 8252; "Eric Dolphy at the Five Spot," New Jazz 8260; and "Far Cry," New Jazz 8270. Also look at Mingus' two albums on the Candid label.

THEATER

2 Farces

Red faced, red haired, sometime bug-eyed Pete Maloney, long a popular and excellent actor, is currently being revealed as a talented director of two farces appearing tonight and Friday, and next Thursday and Friday nights at the Lively Arts.

Maloney stars in the title role and directs Richard Harris "The Fisherman" which was seen a while ago in "Sketchbook 61!" He has staged this wackey little play about a man who fishes in the sewers of Albany in a "tight," not overly broad manner allowing both the actors and the lines to amuse the audience.

Dick Folmer and Monfred Bormann are good as the two policemen.

Maloney and Marion Present star in the second farce on the tiny Lively Arts stage, "The Lunatics." The two play visitors to an insane asylum who think each other to be an inmate.

Both try to act "insane" so as to not offend or annoy the other, resulting in a myriad of classical, scientific, romantic, Shakespearian and nonsensical references.

Miss Present and Maloney turn in magnificant performances, balanced almost to a decimal point.

At Crouse Organ, Saturday

In Crouse College Auditorium stands one of America's great organs. On Saturday night, the organist of one of Germany's greatest instruments will play it.

Heinz Wunderlich, organist of the church of St. Jacobi, Hamburg, will appear under the sponsorship of the Syracuse Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. The program will include works by Buxtehude, Bach and Reger, and features a Sonata written by Mr. Wunderlich.

Wunderlich shares with SU's Arthur Poister the distinction of having studied under Karl Straube who was one of the prime movers in the German "organ reform movement." In America the movement was led by Walter Holtkamp who built the Crouse organ.

Also featured in the Sunday Hillel supper program will be a panel discussion by Prof. Donald C. Waterman, of the School of Art, Rev. Norman O. Keim, United Christian Campus Fellowship Chaplain, and Rabbi Louis Neimand.

FM. WAER 88.1 PROGRAM SCHEDULE

Alpha Gamma Delta sorority will play Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity tonight on WAER's "Syra-quiz." The program will be broadcast live at 8 p.m. from Gifford Auditorium HB Crouse Hall.

Mike Styer, program director of WAER, announced that "Syra-quiz" would be cancelled if the United Nations Security Council meets at that time. The station will carry, via the Education Radio Network, all UN proceedings related to the current world crisis.

Can Orange Crack Cross Air Attack?

Daily Orange Sports

By BILL CRONQUER
By BOB ROGERS

The Syracuse defense will have its hands full Saturday when the passing combination of Pat McCarthy and Al Snyder invades Archbold.

The two Holy Cross backs rank among the nation's aerial leaders. McCarthy, an All-America candidate, stands 11th in major-college total offense. The "Riverboat Gambler" from Haverhill, Mass., has passed and run for 696 yards in four games this season.

Senior halfback Snyder has snared the majority of McCarthy's pitches. The 6'10", 192-pounder owns 19 receptions for 326 yards and one touchdown. Snyder is No. 11 in national pass receiving circles.

The previously formidable Orange pass defense fell victim to a deadly Penn State air attack last weekend. As a result, the Hillmen dropped from the top 10 in forward pass defense. Orange opponent Oklahoma currently ranks second in that category.

Nittany Lion quarterback Pete Liske jumped to 13th in major-college forward passing on the strength of his performance against Syracuse. The pinpoint passer has completed 46 of 86 attempts for 500 yards and five touchdowns.

Saturday, Liske connected on 14 of 28 tosses against the Orangemen. He passed for one TD and set up a second with his accurate arm.

Penn State punter Charlie Raisig also rose in NCAA statistics. Raisig kicked four times against the Piety to up his average to 42.9 yards per boot. The senior guard ranks second in the country.

Joe Don Looney, whom Orange followers will long remember for his TD gallop at Norman, holds the third spot in punting with a 42.8 average.

Among the rushing leaders are halfback Dick Drummond of George Washington and fullback Harry Crump of Boston College. In six contests, Drummond has gone for 476 yards on 105 carries. Crump owns 376 yards over a five game span.

Know the Orange:

WALT SOFSIAN

Walt Moved To Defense

By TOM MULLER

A little over two years ago Walt Sofsian donned a Syracuse University football uniform for the first time. To be given a chance to wear the orange and white is an honor, and an honor which the young man from Ozone Park, New York, had justly deserved.

Forty-five booths will attract spectators at the Campus Chest Carnival Friday night on the main quad, Sharon Locker and Norman Begun, booth co-chairmen, have announced.

The previous year Walt had distinguished himself as one of the finest athletes in the New York area. As a senior at John Adams High School he had earned his third varsity letters in football, basketball, and baseball. But this was by no means the extent of his achievements.

As captain of the football team he had been named to the all-metropolitan, all-city, and all-scholastic elevens, not to mention being cited as most valuable player. He also received honorable mention in basketball, and was given berths on the all-Queens and all - city baseball teams as a centerfielder. There's no getting around it. Walt Sofsian is an athlete in every sense of the word, and he had every right to hope for many years of success as a part of the Schwartzwalder grid machine.

After a year on the Freshman squad, Walt was elevated to the position of third string quarterback last year. It was in this role that he completed 7 of 16 passes for 56 yards and a 43.8% completion average, but he did see considerable action in the 14-0 loss to Lambert Trophy winner Penn State, because of injuries to Dave Sarette and Bob Lelli.

So far this year Walt hasn't lived up to his billing; he has completed only two of the nine passes he has thrown. His two big problems seem to be inexperience and a lack of any real speed. It will take a while to gain experience if Wally Mahle continues his heroics, but Walt can gain the necessary speed through hard work in practice, and there is little doubt that he will. A quarterback of Walt's size, 6' 3", 205 lb., has many advantages over the average signal caller.

Walt has now confined his work to defensive assignments and has impressed Schwartzwalder with his pass defense, especially in the Penn State game.

Orange Observation

By ALLAN KORT
Sports Editor

Football at Syracuse University is a highly publicized and highly criticized operation.

We, in the past have been very critical of certain moves made by the "Field House Faculty," but recent attempts by outside media to distort the football situation at SU leaves us on the defensive.

It is easy to sit back and criticize the wrongs of any program, but it is even harder to disseminate the advantages of the situation.

After a week of researching we have come to the conclusion that the "football machine" has knocked down a lot of economic barriers for the school administration and is of of a benefit than a detriment to the individual student.

The easier way to defend the situation is to point out the absurdity of the compliments of the program critics.

Many persons at SU feel the football program costs the student money and drains funds from academic schools. This is not so. The athletic department is self-sufficient and doesn't require a contribution from the university fund. In a good football year, according to Athletic Director Lew Andreas much of the profits from the sport wind up in the general university fund and are used for academic purposes.

Furthermore, the student doesn't yield a red cent for the program. The profits from the football absord the cost not only the student's football tickets but tickets for other activities in the sporting realm.

It has been reported to us that the Athletic Department loses $.50 every time a student enters the field. This money goes to the opposing team.

So where does the $100 student fee go? We are convinced none of it goes to the athletic department.

Another advantage of the "football money," is that it provides recreational facilities for the student body. The complete Physical Education program as well as intramural receives a boost from the athletic prestige and money.

Another common beef is that extra money has been poured into athletics recently. We don't see this. Scholarships in football haven't increased since the 1959 championship; no new buildings (with the exception of the student-alumni constructed field house) have drawn revenue from the school. The athletic department, until recently, didn't even have full use of all of its facilities. ROTC as well as the industrial engineering department occupied a good part of the "gymnasium."

Too many say there is too much football emphasis. It has brought the University prestige; found many lost contributing alumni, and given all concerned a This sport has paid for itself where others haven't. general pride in Syracuse University.

The abovementioned activities, which are generally criticized do not do harm to Syracuse.

There are also goods associated with SU athletics. a few, for instance, might be the use of the fieldhouse by many university groups; the more selection offered admission officials by the surge of Syracuse football; and the general prestige lift to the university as well as the pride felt by you—the student and the teacher.

Syracuse Defense Statistics Drop; Ground Attack Up

After four games Bill Orange begins an upswing. The biggest mar on Piety Hill's record is its fumbles. In four games Syracuse has fumbled 12 times compared to three by their opponents. Out of the 12 fumbles Syracuse has only managed to regain three of them.

In total offense Syracuse had only 720 yards for three games. However, in the Penn State game Bill Orange gained almost half of the previous three game total offense. In Rushing S.U. gained 789 yards to only 228 yards through the air.

Syracuse has had only 30 completions with four interceptions. The Orange's opponents have completed six more passes for 81 extra yards.

Another ground gainer for Syracuse has been penalties. Syracuse has lost only 165 yards as compared to 230 yards lost by their opponents.

In the individual rushing, Walley Mahle is a the head with 162 yards in 32 carries for a 5.1 average. However, Don King has the best average per carry, 83 yards in nine tries for a 9.2 average. Other carriers with over a 100 yards to their credit are Bill Schoonover 118; Mike Koski, 113; and Jim Nance, 111.

Schoonover heads the pass receiving department with 51 yards in three snags for an average of 17.0. Dick Bowman follows with 42 yards in four completions for a 10.5 yard average. Walt Sweeney and John Mackey follow with 35 and 32 yards respectively.

In the points department Walley Mahle leads with 18 points. Walt Sweeney and Don King each have six with Tom Mingo having booted a field goal and a point after.

Punting has been the main job of John Snider with assistance from Schoonover and Jim Cripps. Snider has booted 14 times for 482 yards. Since John Snider was injured in the Penn State game, the punting assignments will be up to Bill Schoonover and Jim Cripps.

Bob Lelli leads all passers with 152 yards 11 completions. Walley Mahle has completed seven for 69 yards and one T.D. The air statistics are not overly impressive but seem to be looking better.

Syracuse University's national championship football team of 1959 holds or shares no less than 47 all-time Orange team records.

student interest in academic excellence, sponsor, develop, approve, and evaluate student organizations, and support all university social and cultural programs.

The second, a responsibility for communication, assists the university community two-fold, Clifford continued.

First it serves the university as the official channel of communication with the student body in all matters involving statements of policy regarding rules, regulations, and privileges of students.

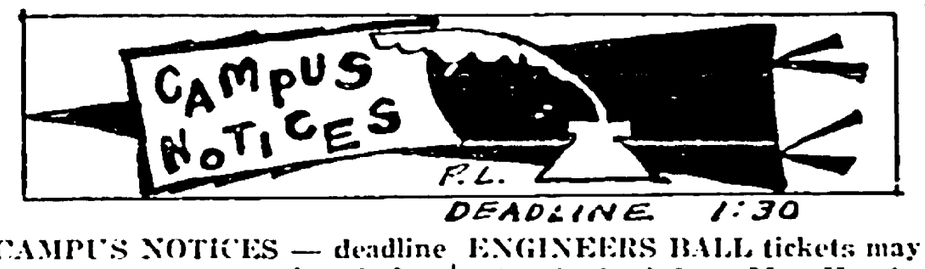
Secondly it serves the student body as its communication link in the expression of student opinion.

"As a student government meets its responsibility for action, it is involved in 'student government'," Clifford said. "To the extent that the organization meets its responsibility for communications, it thereby participates in university government and has its proper influence in the university decision-making process."

In the question of student morality, these responsibilities are carried out directly by two student groups. Clifford explained: the student conduct and welfare committee of Joint Student Legislature and Joint Student Court.

Such groups do not legislate action, but focus attention on the subject, Clifford explained. For example, the Association of Women Students does not legislate the rules for coed dress but merely focuses attention on the correct standards.

Any case involving disciplinary action on the undergraduate level is referred to the student court, Clifford commented. The only exception is when a definite psychological case is involved. The court has the right not to accept the case, but this has happened only once in the past two years Clifford said.



Not For Grads

Discussing graduate student regulations, Clifford said that undergraduate codes are not applicable to such cases.

"We expect more of a graduate student," Clifford commented, "it is rare at Syracuse University to have any disciplinary case involving graduate students."

"Not only do we expect more, but the graduate student will invariably deliver in terms of these expectations," he said.

When asked that if a case similar to the Cornell morality case has occurred at SU, Clifford said that no case has ever come close on the graduate level and that "you would have to go an awful long way to interpret any undergraduate problem in this light," since he came to the Hill.

Dean Noble: 'Donate Now'!

Dean Charles C. Noble, Hendricks Chapel, extended this message to the students of SU concerning the blood drive, beginning today:

"The Red Cross Blood Drive this Thursday and Friday has both selfish and unselfish implications. The entire community will judge the University by our response to human need.

We can project a favorable 'Image' in the town-gown relationship. But unselfishly we must think of the hundreds whom we shall never know, whose lives may be saved by our generosity.

Our student leaders have done a great job so far. Will you help them to complete it successfully? Make your donation at Shaw Dormitory Recreation Room Thursday and Friday."

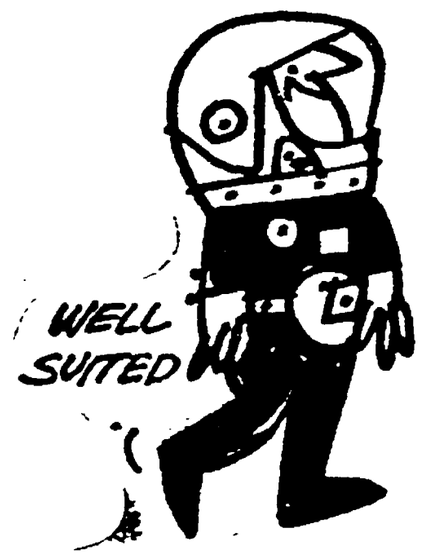
rope walking attraction. Day 7 will have a pinning booth, while Day 5 will send telegrams. Alpha Xi Delta will have a photo booth. Sigma Phi Epsilon and Delta Delta Delta will co-sponsor arm wrestling.

Sigma Kappa and Alpha Chi Rho call their booth "Sundowns," and Sigma Alpha Epsilon will have a variety show. Watson West 1 will offer car wrecking for those of a destructive nature.



Patricia Birnbaum and Allan Brutten, co-chairmen of the carnival, predict a financially successful carnival. The response to the Queen contest and the resumes of booths show the enthusiasm towards this year's Campus Chest Carnival, they said.

FORECASTERS

A winterlike weather pattern has established itself over much of the country. It now seems likely to bring cold, unstable weather through the weekend at least.

Once again there will be times today when sunshine and a bright blue sky predominate. But for the most part skies will be darkened by heavy clouds and periods of heavy wet snow. This will occur when the wind sweeps in off Lake Ontario from the WNW.

Greek Blood Drive Rules

Rules governing fraternity competition in the Oct. blood drive today and Friday award one point for each one percent of membership of a house which gives blood, James P. McMurray, fraternity administrator has announced.

One-half point will be given to each non-donor within a house who has a legal excuse, medical or athletic.

Any fraternity using an ineligible donnor will be automatically eliminated, he said.

ID cards are required for all donors and excused donors as well. Excused donors must be present to be credited. Excuses will be collected at the blood center at Shaw Dormitory and will not be given back.

JSG Training Makeup Today

A makeup session for the Student government training program will be held at 7 p.m. today in H.B. Crouse Hall. This will be the only time for those who missed any of the three previous meetings to make up their absence.

The final exam for all participants in the program will be given next week. The day will be announced. A booklet of government information will also be given out.

Committee sign-ups will be posted in the HBC lobby tonight, and students may sign up then.

Those who cannot attend the meeting should contact Kenneth Harfenist, ext. 2984.

JSL...

Organizations violating the act are also liable to prohibition from extra-curricular activities and also may be denied permission to use university facilities for organization functions. They also may be fined $50.

The bill will now go before the university Personnel Committee for approval.

A new JSL attendance policy, as presented by JSL Speaker Ronald Mittleman, states that each senator will be permitted three unexcused absences a year. Senators-at-large and committee chairmen will be permitted two absences.

The penalty for exceeding the allotted number of absences, Mittleman stated, will be the prohibition of the individual delegate from participation in any student activity coordinated by JSG for the remainder of the school year.

The organization the individual represents in the legislature will lose its JSG status for the remainder of the year, barring them from participating in any JSG functions, such as poster contests and float parades.

Welcome Peace Corps!

"Nyasaland I", Syracuse University's second Peace Corps Training program starts this morning with a day jammed with briefings, orientation, tours and a dinner.

The group—49 secondary and primary school teachers—range in age from their early twenties to the middlle fifties.

Nineteen are women and 30 are men. There are five married couples.

This is the second Peace Corps Training project to be conducted at Syracuse University. Last summer, 27 nurses and medical technicians were trained for srevice in Tanganyikan hospitals.

Today, the trainees will spend most of the day being briefed and orientated by Peace Corps and university officials.

They will take a walking tour from the Hotel Onondaga, where they are going to be housed and fed, to University College, where the major portion of their classes will be held.

Following the walking tour, they will take a bus tour of the campus on the Hill and then return to the Hotel for a 6:30 orientation dinner.

The average training day will be ten hours long during which the trainees will take courses such as American history, government and culture, Nyanja—the language of Nyasaland, economics and personal hygiene.

They will be in training until Dec. 22, followed with a ten day leave home.

The training program is administered by University College and is under the direction of Dr. Clifford Winters and his associate Dr. William Rhode.

Haven...

acuse University Vice President John F. Olson said that excavation for the Center will begin in the middle of the lot and will not require immediate demolition of the two residences.

Director of women's housing Jean Crawford disclaimed rumors that women displaced from Haven and Schultze will be housed in the new Flick site dormitory.

Miss Crawford said she knew of no such conversion plans for the as yet-uncompleted dorm which is set as a men's residence hall.

Women currently in the two dorms will be placed in residence spaces vacated in January, according to Miss Crawford.

In addition to the dorms, Dr. Olson stated that the SU Faculty Club and Building and Grounds will also be moved from their present locations on the lot. He explained that Building and Grounds will be moved by Christmas to new headquarters on Ainsley dr. near the university warehouse.

In 1951 the faculty club was moved to the basement of Haven from its location on the lot now occupied by Shaw Dorm, Dr. Olson said.

the public scene, guiding the bulldozers," that destroy the public sharing of art.

The machine gives an object a purity of form which is close to Plato's idea of ideal forms. The artist takes the work of the machine and humanizes it," he said.

Since the individual develops boredom and lack of attention in his defense to the arts surrounding him, he annihilates much of what the machines have reproduced, Heckscher said.

If this tendency is carried to the fullest, he said, people would soon lack appreciation and understanding, ignoring the arts in their environment.

The lecture was part of a series delivered this week during the dedication of HBC. Novelist and short story writer Bernard Malamud will speak 4 p.m. today. Edouard Morot - Sir, cultural counselor of the French Embassy, will speak Friday afternoon. He will be conferred with an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

'10' Editor Names Staff

Only two issues of Syracuse '10' will be published this year, according to James E. Gorney, new editor-in-chief of the magazine.

"Because of the delay in choosing an editor and format for the magazine, the editorial board has decided upon two issues of high quality rather than three of mediocre quality," he said.

Gorney told the Daily Orange that his editorial board will be composed of: Jeffrey Radford, managing editor; Judith Rosenbaum, literary editor; Phillip Skehan, feature editor; Richard Van Winkle, graphic editor; Walter Jansen, art editor; Peter Maloney, critic; Michael Kogan, political editor.

Gorney, elected editor of '10' earlier this week, added, "we feel this magazine will set a standard of excellence for future '10' publications."

He referred to the magazine as a "pioneer in its field."

Morgenthau Comes To Campus Saturday

Robert M. Morgenthau, Democratic candidate for governor of New York State in the Nov. 6 elections, will be on the Hill campus Saturday.

He will speak at a rally on the steps of Hendricks Chapel at 4 p.m. Saturday. At that time he will be presented with a certificate naming him an honorary member of the Syracuse Class of 1966.

Morgenthau's appearance on campus is being sponsored by the senior class and the Hill Young Democrats Club.

Topic of the gubernatorial hopeful's speech will be "Education."

At about 2:30 the candidate will meet with local candidates for office at Fayette and Salina in downtown Syracuse. A 3 p.m. reception is scheduled in the Citizens for Morgenthau Headquarters on S. Warren St.

Maxwell School Dean Stephen K. Bailey is chairman of the Citizens for Morgenthau group.

Presenting Morgenthau the honorary certificate will be Young Democrats Pres. Vincent Monterosso and Henry Lee, senior class president.

Donovan Asks For Backing On Cuba

By PETE KOSSEFF

Democratic senatorial candidate James B. Donovan Thursday urged "unqualified support" of President Kennedy by the American people in the current Cuban crisis.

Donovan, in a short speech to the Hill Young Democrats Club in Maxwell Auditorium, said Kennedy exhibited "courage and statesman-like restraint" in the Cuban blockade move. He saw the same characteristics in the president's handling of the University of Mississippi incident.

Campus Carnival Scheduled Tonight On Main Quad

By SANDI EHRLICH

The Campus Chest Carnival will transform the main quad into a midway tonight. Beginning at 7:30 p.m., the carnival will feature over forty-five booths.

Coed curfews will be extended thirty minutes if a penny is paid to Campus Chest for each minute. The money must be paid before coeds leave living centers for the evening.

Only tickets, not money, will be accepted for each attraction at the booths. The tickets may be purchased at special ticket booths around the quad.

Booth construction will begin at 1 p.m. today. Co-chairmen Sharon Locker and Norman Begun remind all booth representatives to report to them before beginning any work on booths.

There will be no slave sale at the Carnival. The queen contest will replace this usual attraction. Be sure to vote by ten o'clock at the booth for this purpose, as it will close early to count votes. The Queen of the Carnival will be announced about 10 p.m., with voting through 10 p.m. at the queen booth.

Six finalists for queen were chosen Wednesday night at Sigma Nu. They are Edie Passanger, a freshman from Newburgh, who is Miss Dell Plain 6; Gretchen Ehle, a sophomore from Massena, Miss Day 2; and Monica Polozie, senior from Vestal, Miss Phi Delta Theta.

Renee Keegan, a senior from Smithtown, is Miss Sigma Nu. Letty Halpern, Miss Sigma Tau, is a sophomore from Brooklyn. Sandra Sutphen, a junior from Loudenville, represents Kappa Kappa Gamma as a finalist.

A large crowd is expected at the Carnival, according to co-chairmen Patricia Birnbaum and Allan Bretten.

Ceremonies At HBC End With Talk

The French Embassy's Cultural counselor will be awarded an honorary degree by Syracuse University this afternoon.

Edouard Morot-Sir will be presented an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree in special ceremonies in the Huntington B. Crouse Gifford Auditorium at 4 p.m. The awarding of the degree will be made by Chancellor William P. Tolley.

During the ceremony, university Board of Trustee Chairman Dr. Gordon Hoople will formally turn the building over to Liberal Arts Dean Eric Faigle. Many of the Liberal Arts offices are in the new building, which was dedicated last Monday.

Morot-Sir holds a degree in philosophy and has written a large number of philosophical books and articles.

Following the awarding of the degrees, Morot-Sir will deliver an address on "The Modern Novel and the Technological World."

Blood Drive Still on; 375 Pints Thurs.

Campus residents donated 375 pints of blood Thursday in the first day of the annual Hill blood drive. It continues from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today in the Shaw Dormitory recreation lounge, 775 Comstock Ave.

Independents donated 176 pints, fraternity men,, 149, and sorority women, 50.

Goal for the two-day drive is 600 pints.

Drive co-chairmen Barbara Currie and Richard Kuzmack urge donations from Hill faculty and staff as well as students.

BLOOD DRIVE

All fraternity men who have legal excuses—medical or athletic—for not donating blood must present them at the Shaw recreation room, James P. MacMurray, fraternity administrator.

Syracuse Morality: Part 3

'Fraternity Pin - Sex Key?'

During the past two weeks the Daily Orange has given extensive coverage to the story of a Cornell University graduate student suspended for living with a coed in his apartment during the summer. This is the third of a series of articles dealing with the roles of academic institutions and students in determining moral conduct.

By CLAY RICHARDS

"The fraternity pin is in some cases used as a sex key" said IFC Judicial Board Chief Justice Alfred Winchell Whittaker commenting on the role of fraternities in the students' moral life.

While this is not true in a majority of the cases, the fraternity pin is often used as an excuse to further sexual activity, Whittaker explained.

Whittaker classified the SU male into three general dating categories: those who date steadily for sexual motives; those who date mainly for company and fun; and the non-dater who goes out only because of social pressures.

Largest Group

The largest group, those who date for company and fun, consider sex only as a secondary motive, Whittaker explained. The other two groups are in the minority.

Whittaker said he believes a "substantial minority" of coeds come to college to find a husband while a "slim majority" come for an education.

It is not a question of the college girl changing when she comes to school, Whittaker said; their actions would be the same at home as they are away from home.

The Greek is naturally more socially-minded and thus has more social contacts; this accounting for the "immorality" label put on the fraternity man, Whittaker said.

(See Fraternity, Page 12)

New Women's Dormitory Bids to Open

By BEV LURIA
Junior Editor

Bidding for the construction of the new Crouse site dormitory for women is scheduled to start November 20, Syracuse University Vice President for administration and research Clark D. Ahlberg has announced.

"Actual construction is expected to begin immediately after the first of the year," according to James V. Latorre, assistant to Dr. Ahlberg.

Located on the 400 block of Comstock avenue between East Adams and Marshall streets, the new residence hall will contain many special features.

Among these are many single rooms, split doubles, facilities for adding telephones and closed circuit television in all rooms, a penthouse and perhaps wall to wall carpeting.

If the budget permits there will be wall to wall carpeting in all rooms, Latorre said. He added that carpeting is definitely planned for the lounges, study rooms and corridors.

The first three floors on the Comstock side will mainly be underground. Latorre explained that a large drop of about 35

War and - or Peace

Khrushchev wants a summit conference and a Soviet tanker has been permitted through the United States Cuban quarantine since it was only carrying oil. These two events seem to be the first break in the tension-ridden crisis just to our south.

The move of Khrushchev is seen to mean that he is backing down from the threat of war. His motives, though, can never be known for sure. It is strange that the last try for a summit conference was initiated by the United States and broke down because the Soviets found us against "the cause of peace." This was the well-publicized U-2 case.

Now the Premier wants to talk in the face of an American threat. The Russians, it appears, understand this kind of action and are not willing to fight.

And while our orders are still "Stop, search or sink," we showed that we are not going to blockade the Cubans from receiving non-military goods.

So perhaps the tension will let up and we can step back from the brink. The firmness of the American position is not in question. Only the motives of Khrushchev, that mysterious man in Moscow, are veiled with doubt.

If he wants to avoid fighting, as it appears on the surface, there may indeed be hope for the avoidance of nuclear destruction. If his words are opposite to his intentions, we must remain prepared to fight if a fight is needed.

Charity Unlimited

Ask not what the campus can do for you but rather what you can do for the campus. This thought is far from original but today at least it is true.

In case you missed your chance yesterday, please make a trip to Shaw to give blood. Without being repetitious we just remind you of the ease of the effort and the worthiness of the cause.

And in the evening the Campus Chest Carnival, the group campus charity, will afford some fun and games while benefiting a worthy cause.

AMIDST THE CLAMOR

Minnie Moscow

By Win Whittaker

The Voice of Moscow beams loud and clear into Syracuse. And do not think it has not been blasting everyone and everything. Do you know why we hate the Cubans? Well, Minnie Moscow knows, "The reason the United States leaders (Kennedy, etc.) hate Cuba is because the Cubans have given respect and equality to the Negro people. The Democrats in the United States are using the Negroes in the South as beasts of burden. And, when the Negro has lost his usefulness they tar and feather him or just plain hang the poor Negro.

Hammer at imperialistic United States. Hammer. Hammer. Hammer. Those must be the orders from the Kremlin. For within one 15 minute "Hate Session" the word 'imperialist' was used 39 times.

The Soviet rationale dripped in hilarity after a while. With dead earnest of a mortician, which they might well be, Minnie stated, "The Soviet Union has no bases abroad like (you guessed it) Imperialistic America. The Soviet Union (in all sweetness) has simply sold arms to the Cuban people (heh?) for Cuba's defense. The Soviet Union left it up to the Cuban leaders to pick the necessary arms for Cuba's defense against (yep) the imperialistic United States."

Later on Moscow Radio flatly declared (honest injun), "The Castro government has picked Cuba out of a nonproductive satellite under the United States and made the People's Republic of Cuba a nation of prosperity."

Let us recall for a second the USSR's voting in the Security Council alone. They have cast one hundred vetoes over the majority wishes of the General Assembly. In the field they have attempted to subvert and counter United Nations' projects, e.g. supplying arms to the North Koreans and the Communist Chinese in the Korean Police Action.

Now listen to the righteous little Commies. You can just bet, while listening to Minnie, who wholeheartedly supports the interests of all downtrodden nations of the world. And, who backs the United Nations 100 per, that is, of course when all "America's satellites" do not railroad bills through. Why, the Soviet Union. Who else?

"The United States should be censured in the United Nations for their expansionistic policy toward Cuba. The U.S. blatantly violated the sovereign United Nations Charter. The U.S. is the aggressor, and the Soviet Union and her free states will do all. . . . It seems to be the philosophy of imperialistic America that laws are made for other countries to follow, and not the United States.

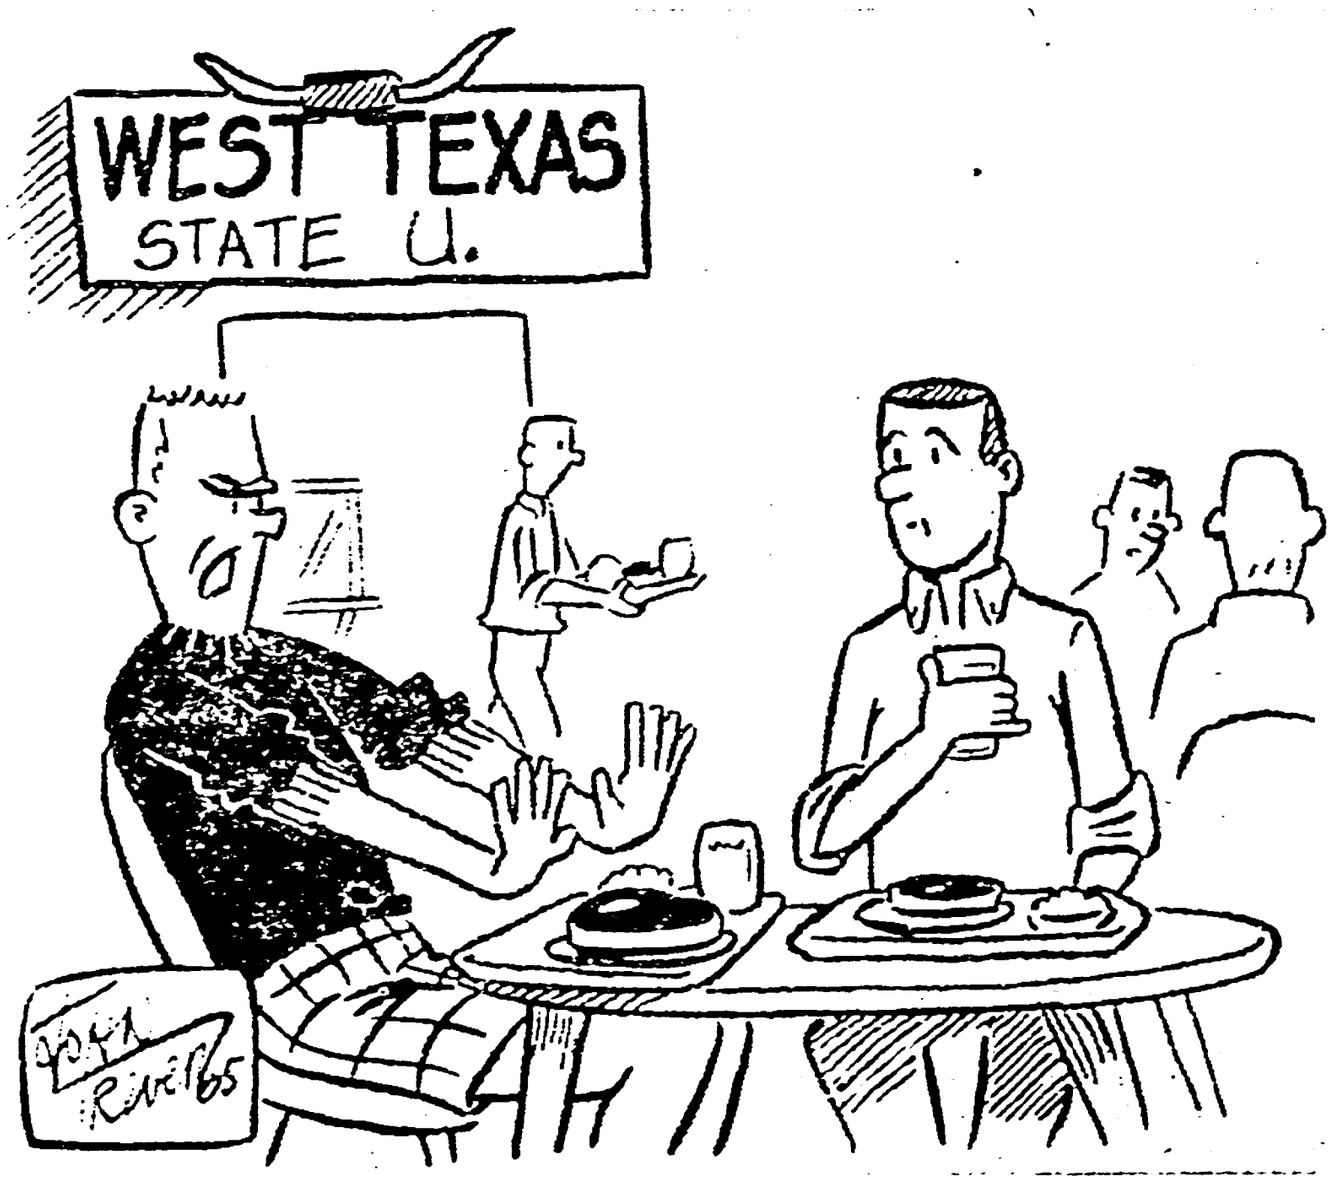
"The United States is just using its muscle strength to bend and subvert international law. THE UNITED STATES HAS ADOPTED A UNILATERAL DECLARATION OF WAR! They moved behind the back of the United Nations, the Organization of American States, and every world law to regain Cuba for its very own."

On and on it goes. But no one seems to question, even in the UN, the Soviet's tyrannical police state actions over her satellites. Who censured the USSR for supplying arms for fighting UN troops in Korea? More important who did anything about it?

Why does not some one force the USSR to pay her UN debts; the United Nations the Russians so wholeheartedly endorse when a nation dares say "boo" to them and, what is more, means it?

What philosophy has adopted the policy of taking over the world—by peace, by force, by whatever means possible? Is this constant with the UN Charter? Did not Chairman Khrushchev say, "Your grandchildren will live under the Communist flag?"

The Soviet Union has their countries mixed up. It is the Soviet Union who shoves international law aside. The Soviets are the aggressors on the peoples of the world. The Communist bloc starves while the West enjoys prosperity.



Many have stated that if the USSR violated the UN Charter by sending missiles to Cuba, then so did the United States by stationing missiles overseas in NATO countries. But there is a difference, a big one, that makes one (ours) legal, and the Communists a violation of international law.

The United States signed OPEN treaties and mantled NATO missile sights without secrets. These missile areas were built, in the first place, to counteract Soviet missiles pointed at Europe.

The Soviet Union secretly without provocation set-up missile bases in Cuba to intimidate the entire Western Hemisphere. The facts would still be hidden if it had not been for our observance planes and a tip given by a Cuban refugee.

Let's quit having doubts about ourselves. If the Russians through Radio Moscow can only come up with the ridiculous phrases they have sent out over the wire-waves the past few nights, is there any doubt the United States is wrong? Wrong about protecting freedom through NATO defense systems? Wrong about saving independent peoples from continued arms build up by the USSR? Not if we really cherish life, liberty, freedom, and the pursuit of happiness.

Freedom

To the Editor:

Equally as alarming as the grave implications of President Kennedy's Cuban policy is the sentiment expressed in Wednesday's DO editorial — "It is out of our hands . . . we must rally behind him."

This sounds too much like the senile bleatings uttered by so many "good" Germans at the end of WWII—"We are only little people. . . . What could we do about it. . . . We knew the facts? . . ."

Must we now anticipate such responses from a vigorous, free-thinking audience of American college students? Shall we continue to advocate the blessings of freedom to argue about trivia, but rule out of the area of debate the implications and logic (or illogic) of those policies which affect the life, death and liberties of each one of us?

On Tuesday, Ambassador Stevenson told the UN that a fundamental distinction between U.S. and Soviet policies was the American emphasis on the principle of pluralism.

Are the merits of the present American action to be judged by having as its first tangible product the suppression of the pluralism of political thought and action for its own citizens?

Robert H. Hardt

'Foresty'

To the Editor:

Why doesn't John Trever learn to spell? Forestry is spelled: F-O-R-E-S-T-R-Y, not F-O-R-E-S-T-Y as he seems to think. We at the College of Forestry read and appreciate the D.O. (When we can find a copy), but it seems to me that they who are in charge of this fine, unbiased (?) paper could be a bit more careful of their spelling.

More care in the future would be appreciated.

By the way, Smokey is not at this time a visiting professor, he is on extended leave at Washington, D. C., where he is presently engaged in Fire Prevention research.

Library Stacks

To the Editor:

As an undergraduate student here, I often wondered why it took the library pages so long to either find (or not find) the books I had requested from the stacks.

Now, as a graduate student, and after several trips into the stacks, I find the pages are not responsible for the delays. The problem is that there isn't enough light in parts of the stacks to tell one book from another.

In a recent survey, I discovered only 289 of the 580 light bulbs in the stacks are putting forth any light. Of the remaining 291, only three are adorned with repair slips. Thus, nearly 50% of the lights in the library stacks are unlit, for no apparent reason. In fact, one particularly unfavored floor boasts only 24 bulbs lit, while 68 remain dark, for a .261 average (which even a baseball player wouldn't have pride in).

Before my word is questioned on these statistics, I wish to add that I make no guarantees for their accuracy; in some parts of the stacks, it was too dark to tell how many lights should be on.

The solution to this problem is obvious.

Marching Band

Editor's note:

The following is an open letter to the Dean of Men from one of our readers. The writer says he has given a copy of the same letter directly to the Dean.

Dear Dean Clifford,

I write to you in relation to an incident which occured on Wednesday October 17. On this date I returned to my room in the hope of obtaining some sleep which I had missed that morning due to the R.O.T.C. drilling that takes place at eight o'clock.

Upon arriving at my room I prepared to retire for a short nap only to be jolted out of bed by the rather raucous sound of the Syracuse Marching Band. I did my best to discount their presence and to continue my siesta, but the decibles exuded by that noble group made this impossible.

Having been denied sleep twice in one day by various groups who choose to march and make noise under my window, I decided to gain retribution of a minor sort. Owning a stereo set with 20 watts of power, and having in a number of fine classical music, I felt that I might as well return musical greetings to that fine group that was trying so hard to entertain me and other unfortunate residents of Sadler Dormitory.

I decided that the most suitable record for the occasion would be a recording of Marcel Dupre (the great French organist and composer) playing some of his own compositions on the organ at Saint-Sulpice in Paris. I moved the record player to the window and opened up the volume full blast and proceeded to let the wrath of one of the largest organs in France fall upon the heads of those hardy souls who make up the marching band.

After a few minutes of this activity, Mr. Eldridge Roark made his presence known to me and threatened to confiscate my stereo set. Naturally, I would not sand for such goings on and vehemently defended my actions on the grounds that since the University chose to ignore the effect of the marching band on Sadler residents, it is quite fair that the marching band should have to ignore the effect of Sadler residents upon it.

Asinine as my defense is, it is no more asinine than the attitude of the university in refusing to allow the marching band to practice in a more suitable and less public location (such as Archbold Stadium or that flying saucer out in Collendale known as the Field House). . . .

I sincerely ask that you reconsider the advisability of having the rehearsals continue in their present location since it is interrupting the studies and the rest of the students. This is a University, and the primary purpose of a University is that of educating the students academically. I doubt that any honest educator could designate social skills to be more important than the academic education of the students.

Since the Marching Band is interfering with the studies of a number of people, it is the duty of the University to correct the situation immediately or else to accept whatever reaction takes place on the part of the people involved. . . .

I am planning on sending a copy of this letter to the Daily Orange as a general open letter. I feel that because of the number of people involved and the potential for further disturbances if the usage of the Sadler field continues for such extra-curricular activities, the situation should be brought more closely to the attention of the rest of the university through the widely read campus medium.

Who's Guilty?

To the Editor:

This letter is in frightened response to your editorial of October 25, War Baby Morality. You have stated your position; we the "warped and cynical" would like to state ours. First, allow us to examine the implications of Kennedy's position on Cuba.

What the President has done, in essence, has asserted the right of the United States to maintain missile bases in any country that will allow us to. And yet, he has denied this same right to Russia. In short, the United States can maintain both offensive and defensive weaponry in countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which ring Russia, but the same morality does not hold for countries of the Warsaw Pact —the Soviet countries counterpart to NATO.

In 1948 the Berlin Blockade was labeled as "aggressive" by the United States, yet our blockade of Cuba, the president asserts, is not aggressive. The opinion of the United Nations is apparently in disagreement with Mr. Kennedy. So if we are "misguided" in our reasoning, it is not quite clear why.

Further, we "war babies" do not feel that this position is maintained due to a "callousness" or lack of sensitivity to the threat of war—"a hard reality of the world." In fact, Mr. Editor, it is our sensitivity which relays the horror of war and the danger implicit in the present situation.

Beginning with your statement about sitting and waiting for the verdict your editorial becomes a pandemonium of contradictions, interrupted only by brief but vigorous inconsistencies.

You say that "There is no room for cynics or quitters, worriers or jokers." In a true democracy there is room for everyone. Such is the essence of freedom. In fact it is because certain people hold the opinion that there is no room for individuals or countries with differing views that we are now at the brink of war.

We are not "innocent victims." We are all guilty because we have left our fate in the hands of the military judges instead of maintaining the integrity of shaping our own destiny. In short we cannot stay in our academic towers—and still hope to survive.

Goon Squad

To the Editor:

In answer to the letter sent to the DO by Roy Seager, Jack Salerno, and Len Slaby, I want to say they missed the entire point of my letter pertaining to respect shown during the playing of the national anthem.

I'm sorry there was a misunderstanding when the wrong term was used to denote the students lined up at the goal post to greet the football team as they come on the field (after the playing of the national anthem). I referred to them as football team greeters instead of by their proper title, Goon Squad.

Somewhere in the process of editing or printing of my letter, the word "greeters" was dropped, completely changing the meaning of that particular sentence. I realize the team doesn't have access to a popcorn machine and that football uniforms don't have pockets as the letter printed in the DO implied.

One other point I'd like to make clear, it wasn't hard to see the Goon Squad with hands in pockets and others munching on popcorn on the field when they were directly in my line of sight; I didn't have to do any sightseeing to observe this disrespect.

WEEKEND

RIVIERA-CINEMA — See review below. "L'avventura" at 6 and 9:55 p.m. "The White Sheik" at 8:25 p.m.

LOEW'S—Calling at Mythology 155 students! Here's one for you. At last one of the thrilling tales of adventure bursts across the screen as Hollywood recreates the myth of "Damon and Pythias." If you've never taken mythology, sign up next semester and then you won't have to see this film. "The Savage Guns" is the co-feature. You'll never hear about this one in class but then who ever heard about you? "Field work" at 6:20 and 9:05 p.m. "Gunsmoke" at 8:15 p.m.

KEITH'S—"The Pigeon That Took Rome" is now in Syracuse. Sounds exciting, doesn't it? Charlton Heston stars in this comedy role. Of course, after "Ben Hur" and "The Ten Commandments" anything would be a comedy. Elsa Martinelli, that cute Italian actress, co-stars in this movie that is being boycotted by statues everywhere. Co-feature is "Payroll." No times available.

ECKEL—You may remember last week that Jacob and Wilhelm, the brothers Aesop, were planning to go on strike as projectionists at the Eckel. Well, unfortunately, they settled with the union and so the "Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm (their assumed names)" continues to wow them at that great big movie screen in the sky. "NIRB" at 8:30 p.m.

PARAMOUNT — "The Three Stooges in Orbit" is not the story of the Russians' next space shot. Rather it's the tale of the old stand by slap stickers in their latest adventure. It has an up-to-date theme since everyone is wondering who will be the next in orbit: Cuba, USA, USSR or Robert Morgenthau. Co - feature is "Zotz", from the book "Yech!" with an all-star cast of Tom Poston (Steve Allen Show), Julia Meade (Ed Sullivan Show), Jim Backus (Mr. Magoo), Fred Clark and Cecil Kellaway (Life of Riley). But "Zotz!"? "Come Fly With Me" at 7 and 10 p.m. "YECH" at 8:30 p.m.

FILMS

'L'avventura'

The best thing that can be said about "L'Avventura," which finally arrived at the Riviera-Cinema Wednesday night, is that director Michelangelo Antonioni has managed to make a two and a half hour film seem like a 90 minute film.

Beyond that, (and it's a lot), and a few superior performances. "L'Avventura" strikes us as a good, but not major effort. This is in direct conflict with any number of avant garde and main stem critics who have heaped more praise upon it than suits their usual judgment.

"L'Avventura" concerns a search for a girl (who is, incidently, never found) by her lover and best friend. They, too, eventually become lovers. The film has an aura of loneliness, separation, silence, and a general human disenfranchisement with life.

The story of the search is well done, with fine acting by Gabriele Ferzetti as the man who tries to overcome his natural sense of apartness by making love to women, and by Monica Vitti as the friend who reaches what Antonioni feels to be the highest human quality, pity.

The film is marred, though, by a collection of supporting characters who come off as weak and crudely conceived stereotypes. Acceptable in their own contexts, they appear out of place on the same screen with the major characters. This destroys our ultimate concept of the film.

Lastly, there is Antonioni's "intellectual" photographic and editing style with which we, while recognising its excelence, cannot empathize with.

ONE NIGHT STAND

'Nothing Happens, Twice'

By Dave Hamilton

DUE TO A MIXUP at the Daily Orange plant an article by DO jazz columnist Larry Ferleger appeared under a heading and explanatory paragraph for an article by Dave Hamilton, Thursday. We are running Mr. Hamilton's column today. Mr. Hamilton is currently directing the Drama Department's Ensemble Theatre production of Samuel Beckett's "Endgame," to be produced at the University Regent Theatre, November 8, 9, and 10.

"Criticism," said Oscar Wilde, "is the only civilized form of autobiography." And in essaying an article on Samuel Beckett, that magnificent, decadent, symbolist poet, I do run a great risk of making an entirely subjective judgment. For a Beckett play is like a piece of fine music—one must listen to it for what one can find in it.

Some critics, belonging to what may be called the elementary school of thought, claim there is little to find. But

Any nose
May ravage with impunity a rose and the ultimate test of a Beckett play is the same as that applied to classical music: would you listen to it if you didn't know who composed it?

The answer, for a play such as "Endgame," is a resounding yes. True, nothing happens in the play (Beckett's earlier, two-act "Waiting For Godot" was summarized by Vivian Mercier when she said "Nothing happens, twice.")

But plot can exist only on the assumption that events in time are significant, that man's actions have some ultimate meaning; and this, Beckett seems to say, is untrue.

What, then, is "Endgame" about? The stage is dominated by the figure of Hamm, a blind, loveless cripple who cannot stand. He engages in a strange sort of reciprocal tyranny with his servant, Clov, who cannot sit down. Hamm's legless parents, Nagg and Nell, live in two garbage cans off to the side of the stage. Yet none of these people are entirely real: they converse with the audience, and seem to remind us that they are, after all, only actors.

"Endgame," then, explores not real people and real events, but rather types of situation which will forever repeat themselves. The actors, like the rest of us, are merely waiting: waiting for night to fall, for death, or for Godot. They are, in fact, the embodiments of basic human attitudes.

Beckett is a dramatic decadent because he limits the world of his characters. In "Endgame" there are no bicycle wheels, no pain killer, no sun, no tide, no pap for Nagg. The universe slowly crumbles away from Hamm and leaves him with only a few props to discard before the final curtain.

He is a symbolist because his is, in the words of Arthur Symons, "a literature in which the visible world is no longer a reality, and the unseen world no longer a dream." And most of all, he is a poet.

A poet because he deals in the impassioned truth which poetry is; if language cannot convey meaning, perhaps passion can. His is a lyrical expression. Clov asks, pointing up the inaccuracy of language, how many grains may be said to make a heap:

"Grain upon grain, one by one, and one day suddenly, there's a heap, a little heap, the impossible heap."

and is later echoed by Hamm:

"Moment upon moment, pattering down, like the millet grains of that old Greek, and all life long you wait for that to mount up to a life."

Beckett is unquestionably an artist. He is an artist with a message for every one of us. What is that message? In directing The Ensemble Theatre's production of "Endgame," I have had one thought foremost in my mind, a passage from Joris-Karl Huysmans:

"Lord, have pity on the Christian who doubts, on the skeptic who would believe, on the prisoner of life who sets out alone, into the night, under a sky no longer lighted by the consoling lamps of the ancient hope."

Krasner Set for Crouse

Louis Krasner, violinist, will appear in a violin recital 4 p.m., Sunday in Crouse Auditorium. His wife, Adrienne Galimir Krasner, will appear in the dual role of pianist and as violinist in a double concerto.

Professor Krasner has given recitals and been soloist with major orchestras in the United States and Europe including the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony, the Philadelphia, Berlin, Paris, and Vienna orchestras. He has performed under such conductors as Mitropoulos, Stokowski, Klemperer, and Munch.

In the spring of 1960 he did a series of concerts and radio programs in Europe. He founded and is musical director of the Krasner Ensemble concerts in Syracuse. During the summer he is a member of the faculty of the Congress of Strings.

He was concertmaster of the Minneapolis Symphony under Mitropoulos, and is in his thirteenth year as Professor of Violin and Chamber Music at SU.

Prof. Krasner's program will include the Adagio in E major (K 261) by Mozart, the Sonata for Violin and Piano by Debussy, the Wieniawski Concerto in D minor, and the Concerto in D minor for two violins, strings and continuo by Bach.

In this final number he will be joined by Mrs. Krasner and string players Larraine Shapiro, violin; Zaida Booth, violin; Betty Gehring, viola, Frederick Miller, cello; Calvin Custer, string bass; and Vivien Krasner, continuo.

Varsity, Freshman Harriers at Cornell; Yearlings Unbeaten

By TOM MULLER

The Piety harriers take to the turf at Ithaca Saturday in what promises to be a nip and tuck race with Cornell. Both the varsity and the Frosh will be competing, with the Frosh trying to close out the season undefeated.

Coach Bob Grieve's varsity is made up of sophomores Tom Higgins and Mike Schuster, juniors Jack Dailey and Mouncey Ferguson, and seniors Mike Guzman and Steve Killorin.

Captain Guzman is from New York City and is considered "a good leader with a lot of potential." So far this year he has not disappointed anyone with his fabulous finishes. Ferguson, a Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania lad, was sixth in the IC4A mile last year with a 4:11 clocking, and is thought of as "the key man to the success of the season."

Dailey and Killorin were both New York State Champs in the mile during their high school careers and have been showing fine form this year for the Orange.

The varsity record stands at 2-1, with the wins coming against Buffalo and Army, and the lone loss at the hands of the Colgate team by a mere one point margin. In the Army meet last Saturday, Ferguson finished first with a 26:10.9 time, followed closely by Schuster and Guzman. The Buffalo meet was a 15-50 white wash.

The all-victorious Frosh have competed in only two meets this year, but they have really showed their stuff. They shut out Buffalo 15-50 after clobbering Colgate 22-36. The standout on the squad so far has been Bill Chihak.

"Buffalo Bill" is a short, powerful blond, who has been termed "a good athlete who is going to become a really fine distance runner," but any one of the boys on this well balanced squad could garner the honors against Cornell.

These two squads have looked very impressive so far this year, and there seems to be little doubt that they will continue their winning ways against Cornell tomorrow, rain or shine.

Pat McCarthy, Walley Mahle Ready Squads

By HOWIE SCHNEIDER

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder's Orangemen will be a one touchdown favorite when they meet a tough Holy Cross squad Saturday at Worcester.

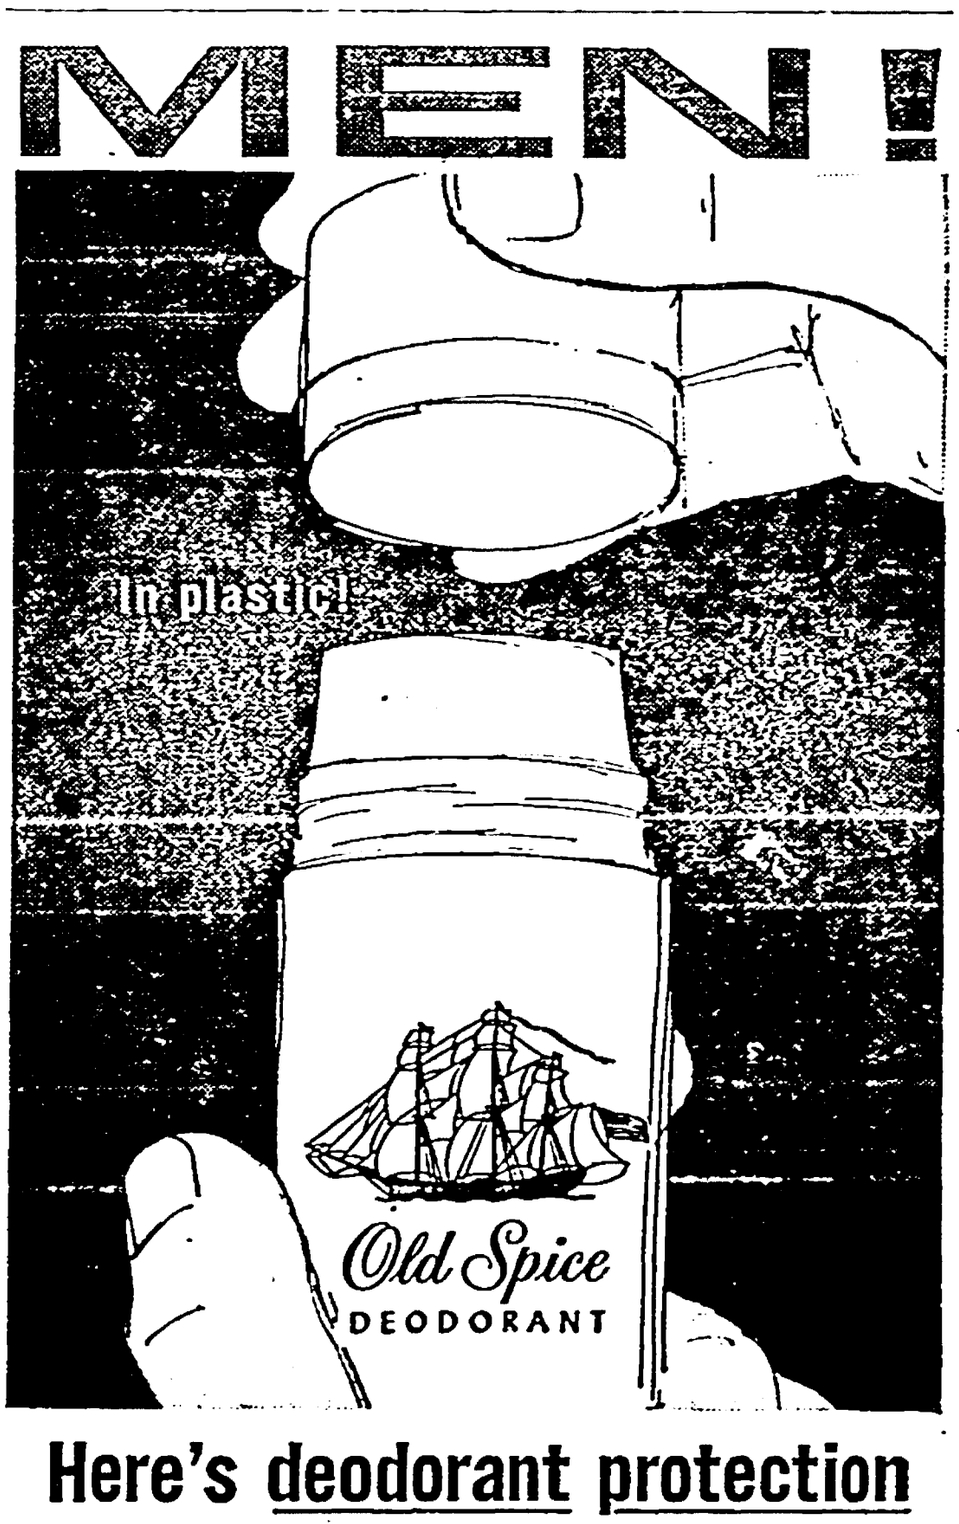
Today the Hillmen polished both offensive and defensive maneuvers in a last effort to prepare for Pat McCarthy and Co.

McCarthy, an All American candidate stands 11th in major-college total offense. The daring "Riverboat Gambler" from Haverhill, Mass., has passed and run for 696 yards in four games this season.

Teaming up with the quarterback is leading halfback Al Snyder. The 6-0, 195 pound crusader has been on the other end of the majority of McCarthy's passes. The senior owns 19 receptions for 326 yards and one touchdown. He is No. 11 in national pass receiving circles. Together Snyder and McCarthy will provide a stout aerial combination to challenge SU's highly publicized pass defense.

A key man in the Orange attack will be big end Walt Sweeney. A 6-3, 225 pounder, Sweeney was named to the ECAC's weekly all-star team for his fine all-around play against Penn State. Walt, playing before a home town crowd, has been named the game captain.

The senior from Cohasset, Mass. caught an 11-yard pass for Syracuse's fourth quarter, go ahead touchdown, and played a solid defensive game against the Nittany Lions.



The Hill starting lineup will remain intact except for the right guard and defensive safety positions. Jim Mazurek, a 225 pound junior letterman will replace Henry Heuttner at guard. John Humphreys will replace John Snider in the defensive secondary. Snider is out with a broken arm.

Once again directing the Syracuse backfield will be the team's leading rusher and sparkplug Walley Mahle. Coupling with Mahle will be halfbacks Don King and Mike Koski and fullback Bill Schoonover. King's outstanding performance against Penn State was a big boost to the Orange attack.

Both Mahle and rookie Rich King have been working on passing all week in an attempt to give the Syracuse offense more balance and depth.

Unbeaten Frosh at Army Today; 3 Quarterbacks Pace SU Attack

The latest herd of freshman Syracuse football muscle plays its second game of the season today journeying to West Point to take on the Army Plebes.

The contest looms as a battle of the unbeaten in the newly initiated season. Syracuse goes into battle with a record of 1-0. Army currently sports a 2-0 mark.

The first-year soldiers have dumped Buffalo, 7-0, and Colgate, 26-18, in their first two starts.. The Orange cubs tripped the Penn State frosh last Saturday, 14-6.

Coach Jim Shreve, has a lot of respect for the Army Plebes. "They followed Dietzel's pattern perfectly. They're three good teams with real good personel."

Schreve will send his best into battle in an attempt to gain the second victory of the year and his 13th victory is his four years as SU Frosh coach. In that time he has lost but one game.

Calling the signals will be current No. 1 quarterback, Hal Rooney, 6-2, 185-pounder from Patchogue, L.I. But the second string quarterback, Ted Holman is expected to see plenty of action.

Holman could be a possible quarterback sleeper comparable to Walley Mahle. His is an unusual recruiting background. From Newport News, R., which is beyond the usual Syracuse recruiting territory, Ted started a one-man post telephone assault on coach Ben Schwartzwalder. Last year.

It continued, despite "don't call us, we'll call you," replies; right on up until the current season. Then when one of the 26 football scholarships failed to be filled, Ted, wax picked up.

The 6-2, 169 lefty has impressed one and all with his fine passing.

"He throws beautifully," says coach Schreve, "he runs fair."

In last Saturday's, Nittany contest, the No. 2 quarterback showed his skill when he completed two of five tosses tried for 12 yards. He killed Penn States' final chance, when he intercepted a State pass to hault their final drive into SU, territory late in the fourth quarter.

At right half will be the team's leading and only scorer in Charley Brown. The 6-1, 190-pounder from Masilon, Ohio scored both touchdowns in the seasons opener. He has carried a total of nine times for 34 yards for a 3.8 average.

On the right side is 190-pound Ron Oyer, the high school All-American who finshed up in Schenectady, after playing most of his ball in California. Oyer has toted six times for 33 yards and an 5.5 average.

The fullback is scheduled to be 215-pound Ed Allen of Newton Square, the son of former, Penn and Chicago Bear fullback Eddie Allen has been called on nine times and has obliged with 30 yards, an average of 33 yards a carry.

The first state of Maine recruit in several years, 6-2, 200-pounder Harris Elliott, will be posted at left end. The 200-pounder is one of the finest lnie prospects.

Larry Virgillo, 6-2, 210 from Johnson City, N.Y., lines up at left guard. Center Pat Killoren, 220-pounder from Watertown falls in beside him.

On the strong side 225-pound Joe Dziekonski will be at right guard. The inside tackle is Tony Seibelli, 230-pound brother of Joe, the Los Angeles Ram regular.

Charlie Scott, 230 - pounder from Muncy, Pa., is at the outside position. And Pete Kilinov 5-11, 185-pound rounds out the line at tight end.

British Laborite on Cuba, Market

By JOYCE HERGENHAN
Editorial Director

The British Conservative Party's recent pro-Common Market stand significantly altered the country's political situation, says prominent Labor Party member C. A. R. Crosland.

Speaking Wednesday before a large group of Hill students, the House of Commons member said the Conservatives "could very well lose the next elections if they were fought on purely domestic issues." The addition of the market question practically assures a Conservative victory, he said.

A member of the Labor's "Radical Right," that part of the party favoring membership in the Market, Crosland knocked party head Hugh Gaitskell for his "practically irrevocable" anti-Market stand.

Battleground

"He's playing straight into the Conservatives' hands by accepting their chosen battleground," he stated. Approximately two-thirds of the Labor Party sides with Gaitskell, Crosland lamented.

He noted Gallup Polls show Britain's younger and more educated voters favor the market and said the Labor Party will have to change its image if it expects to win the support of this segment. He described the party's strong link with the blue-collar laboring class as "a fatal weakness" in view of Britain's changing socio-economic conditions.

Kills Revival

Besides distracting attention from domestic economic unrest, Crosland indicated the Conservative stand on the market also "temporarily killed" the recent liberal revival which threatened to reduce the voting strength of the two major parties.

In response to a question, Crosland bared three personal reservations concerning President Kennedy's Cuban decision.

Tactically, he said, the U.S. might have done better by taking the question to the United Nations. Unilateral action would have been appropriate if the UN proved unable to deal with Castro, he explained.

Bases

Secondly, said Crosland, "It's difficult to justify the U.S.'s past policy of bases all around Russia." He indicated he was unimpressed with the arguments offered during Wednesday's U.N. session by U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson.

Crosland's third reservation was based on "What will it lead to in the end?"

"Suppose the existing armaments are not witdhrawn?" he asked. "If the U.S. invades Cuba to remove the missiles, how can one object to a Soviet invasion of Turkey?"

Also, if the U.S. invades Cuba to get rid of Castro, how would this be compared to the Russian action in Hungary in 1956?, he continued.

Crosland said the president's action "clearly could produce a terrible reaction in Berlin."

Be Realistic

"Let's be realistic," he asked. "World War III will not start in Cuba. It could start in Berlin."

Discussing another aspect, Crosland noted "it's very dangerous to put Khrushchev where his only alternatives are humiliation or a strong and reckless reaction."

Putting him in a position of humiliation would only lead to an internal Soviet shakeup that would produce "infinitely worse leadership," he predicted.

Ranger School 50 Years Old

Today, in a pine-spruce scented forest in the western Adirondack Mountains, where 50 years ago there were only charred stumps, stands the New York State Ranger School-part of the State University College of Syracuse University.

On this spot, the school's founder, J. Otto Hamele of Wanakena, conceived an experiment to make this logged-over, burned-out area live again.

That experiment blossomed into the 2,330-acre Ranger School—the oldest of its kind in the Western Hemisphere. It celebrated its golden anniversary recently by dedicating a new building wing.

The new wing will allow enrollment to increase 50 per cent—up to 100 students annually.

P. T. Coolidge, the school's first director, and his students, built the first housing, hauling the needed materials by boat from Wanakena up the Oswegatchie River to the school's site on an arm of Cranberry Lake. It was next to impossible to transport anything by land.

But the school no longer is isolated in the wilderness. State Highway Route 3 runs through the hamlet of Wanakena, some 60 miles northeast from Watertown.

Students average 50 to 60 hours of work a week during the 44-week course, which starts in March and ends with graduation for those who withstand the rugged pace in mid-February.

But all is not work, despite the tight time schedule. In the vicinity are opportunities for fishing, boating, canoeing, camping, hiking, snow-shoeing and skiing—sports that are all part of any ranger's life.

Through a succession of gifts of land, the school continually grew and helped return life to the once desolated forest area.

The school's present director, Lucian P. Plumley of Buffalo, N. Y., estimates that today about 1,500 graduates are working as forest technicians across the country and in many for-

The Democrat also said his opponent in the Senate race Nov. 6, incumbent Sen. Jacob K. Javits, "is trying to be all things to all men," with poor results.

Donovan charged Republican Javits has a frequently Democratic voting record. "In trying to satisfy everybody, he works for nobody," the Democrat stated.

Donovan has just returned from Cuba where he is involved in plans for release of Cuban prisoners.

FRATERNITY

"I don't think girls are very often found on the second or third floors of fraternity houses," Whittaker commented. "I think there are many other opportunities for such action—places where there is less chance of being found."

"To my knowledge we (on the Judicial Board) have handled only one or two cases involving coeds illegally in fraternity houses," he said.

The Judicial Board receives all cases involving infraction of university policy where a particular house is involved, Whittaker explained. In cases involving individuals, the dean of men's office decides whether to refer the case to the Judicial Board or Joint Student Court.

"Chancellor Tolley was right when he said the university has responsibility to parents," Whittaker said. When the student is on university property, the university has the right to determine the student's morality; when he is off campus it is his own business, as long as he meets university housing requirements, said Whittaker.

Malamud: Writers' Concern Art

By ANN CUTLER

Writers should be artists first rather than philosophers, as many modern critics imply, said Bernard Malamud, well-known modern novelist in a lecture Thursday in H.B. Crouse Hall.

"I disagree with the critics who say that modern novels are too concerned with the personal and not enough concerned with ideas and the problems of modern society," he continued.

It is only by discovering what is human, asserted Malamud, that one can solve the problems of humanity.

It is the duty of writers to create drama, not discussions of ideas, said Malamud.

Ideas, he stated, are the result of the meeting of two opposing minds which are forced into a relationship. Portraying society and its problems, explained Malamud, is useful only as a background and setting for the characters, not, as many critics assert, the main concern of the novelist.

The exploration of human personalities, not human society, has always been the main concern of western literature. In fact, he continued, it has become almost a religion.

Critics today have become obsessed with the idea of realism as the only valid form of writing. This is wrong, stated Malamud.

The only use for any form at all in writing, explained Malamud, is to reveal and clarify the meaning of the artists' work.

If this purpose is better served by surrealism, the absurd or even non-reality, then it would be bad form to use realism, he stated.

If a novel releases emotion anddrama,then its form is perfect and it has fulfilled its purpose, stated Malamud.

Brooklyn born Malamud is the first of three writers brought to campus by the English depts. Visiting Writers Series.

He is the author of several short stories as well as three novels "The Magic Barrel", "The Assistant" and "The New Life".

His speech yesterday was one of four convocations to be presented as part of the dedication of Huntington B. Crouse Building.

Queen Entry Blanks Due

Applications for Homecoming Weekend Queen are being accepted until noon Monday at the reception desk of the Woman's Building or at Delta Gamma sorority, 901 Walnut Ave. The weekend, sponsored by the sophomore class, is scheduled for Nov. 9-10.

Any living center, floor, fraternity, sorority or campus organization may enter a candidate. Applications should include name, campus address, phone number and sponsor. A $2 entry fee must accompany each application.

According to contest chairman Susan McGreivey, candidates will be judged on poise, personality and appearance at a series of three elimination coffees.

Among the judges for the contest are Robert Grieve, SU track and cross-country coach and Fred Lewis, new Hill basketball mentor.

The weekend queen will be crowned and her court will be presented during halftime ceremonies at the SU-Navy football game, Nov. 10. The queen will then reign over the university dance, "Beyond the Sea," that evening.

Miss McGreivey said she hopes the proceedings, in particular the crowning of the queen at halftime, will "become important traditions for future Homecoming Weekends at SU."

No Student Union Today

A student union activities night will not be held this Friday, according to Joan Siegal, co-chairman of the Student Union Programming Committee. The next activities night will be Nov. 2, she said.

Student Union programs have been scheduled so they will not conflict with major campus social events, she said. Miss Siegal estimated that about 500 people attended last week's function.

At a meeting of the Student Union Board Tuesday, Ann Cooney, chairman of the board and fund raising committee, announced appointment of co-chairmen of the programming committee. They are Miss Siegal and Clyde Cawley, both sophomores.

Lillich Calls Blockade Legal

By DANIEL RITEY

The United States naval blockade of Cuba is legal under the United Nations charter, Prof. Richard B. Lillich of the College of Law said Friday.

Lillich explained that the U. S. blockade is sanctioned by the Organization of American States, and since the UN charter sanctions the operation of the OAS, the blockade is legal.

He continued to trace the origins of the U. S. action and presented the interpretation of a blockade under international law.

International law recognizes the blockade as the legal action of a nation at war or a nation that recognizes war as

Press Must 'Take Stand'

By JOHN E. GREENWALD
Executive Editor

Newspapers should not only report the passing scene, but "they should do something about it," Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat told the journalism 1 lecture Friday in Maxwell Auditorium.

The press, the former publisher of the Syracuse Post-Standard declared, "can do one thing no one else can — lead the community."

Amberg said his own paper tries to carry out "five or six major campaigns a year. We are giving a darn good college try to get the people thinking."

Television, Amberg explained, cannot take sides, and usually it steers clear of controversy. It doesn't have the press' "leadership quotient."

Amberg decried newspapers that do not take advantage of their "one exclusive reason for being." He was especially critical of papers that do not have editorials or whose editorials do not take stands on issues.

Amberg, publisher of the Globe-Democrat for seven years, desbribed how he stengthened his paper by getting a wide range of syndicated columnists and by choosing a "center field" editorial position.

Leisure Key to Existence

EDOUARD MOROT-SIR

"Leisure enables man to participate in civilization from his armchair," the French Embassy's cultural counselor said Friday in Gifford Auditorium of Huntington B. Crouse classroom building.

Counselor Edouard Morot-Sir addressed closing HBC dedication ceremonies at which the building was formally turned over to College of Liberal Arts Dean Eric H. Faigle.

Dr. Morot-Sir said leisure gives a man access to a new form of existence.

Both the modern novelist and the scientist strive to create leisure for the universe: The novelist by controling words, the scientist by controling atomic particles, said Dr. Morot-Sir.

The modern novelist has left the domain of drama, he said. Like William Faulkner and Franz Kafka, he seeks the abyss of tragedy and the fate existing between man and environment.

Modern novels hold "a more personal feeling for man, a feeling at the very heart of man," Morot-Sir said.

Following his address, the Frenchman was presented an honorary doctorate of humane letters by SU Chancellor William P. Tolley.

Morot-Sir's appearance capped a week of ceremonies in HBC. Theme for the dedication week was "Humanities and a Technological World."

Other speakers were special presidential consultant on the arts, August Heckscher, and 1959 National Book Award Winner Bernard Malamud.

The classroom building was completed last semseter at a cost of $1,622,000.

Morgenthau Attacks Rocky; Cites State's Educational Needs

CANDIDATES for office in the Nov. 6 elections have been knocking on Syracuse University's front door frequenty the past two weeks. Republican incumbent Sen. Jacob K. Javits was the first speaker in the citizenship lecture series. His opponent, Democratic James E. Donovan, spoke last week to the Hill Young Democrats Club, as has Lee Alexander, Onondaga County congressional candidate. Saturday Robert M. Morgenthau stopped by. Tonight many Hill students will attend the dinner downtown for former President Eisenhower at which Governor Nelson Rockefeller will also speak.

By JOYCE HERGENHAN
Editorial Director

"The state's present facilities for higher education are woefully inadequate," charged Robert Morgenthau, Democratic candidate for governor, during a speech in Maxwell auditorium on Saturday.

"In no other area is the need more pressing, the Republican record more irresponsible and the difference between the Republican and the Democrats more apparent," stated the gubernatorial hopeful.

Projections indicate a 70,000 student space shortage by 1965, said Morgenthau. Rockefeller's "unwillingness to invest in the

Frosh Coeds Caught Drinking

Four freshman girls who were drinking in their cottage have been placed on disciplinary probation for two semesters and assigned two hours of work a week at a local hospital.

Joint Student Court, in announcing the ruling Friday, said it has notified the sponsors of scholarships held by three of the girls. Chief Justice Robert Dick said it is not up to the court to determine scholarship status, only to notify the proper authorities.

The head resident discovered the girls were drinking and reported the incident.

It was learned by the court that only one of the girls is 18 — the legal New York State drinking age — and she had bought the liquor for her friends with the intention of illegally drinking it in the cottage.

A fourth girl, who had left just before the head resident discovered the other three, later notified university officials that she had participated in the drinking.

In another case, JSC took action against a freshman who had been caught stealnig 79 cents worth of skin conditioner from the University Bookstore.

The student explained he had run up a large charge account

Another Pint Of Life

A GRAND TOTAL of 557 pints of blood were donated during the annual campus blood drive Thursday and Friday. Sophomore BENTON HUBBARD, Delta Upsilon brother, gave blood for the first time Friday, assisted by volunteer MRS. BARBARA DUFFY, wife of a Hill English instructor.

Syracuse Morality: Part 4

'The Parents' Right to Know'

By CLAY RICHARDS

When parents are paying for a college education, they have a right to know if the future of their son or daughter is being endangered.

This belief was aired by Joint Student Court Chief Justice Robert Dick in commenting on the role of the court in determining student conduct.

If a student pays his own way through college, the situation may be viewed differently, Dick qualified.

(Joint Student Court has a policy of informing parents when their son or daughter is brought before the court.)

Legally it is the univresity's right to set up a code of student conduct if it wishes, Dick continued. It is in the student's registration contract that he will abide by the university's regulations.

In certain areas, however, the student must be offered a certain degree of latitude to make his own decisions, Dick said. The university can only require that student to act in a responsible manner where the university welfare is involved, even in a limited sense.

This limited sense even includes being a member of the university community as a student, Dick explained.

"The university would be foolish to allow completely free thougth and standards for students," Dick said.

In general, the college student is not immoral, he only has more opportunity to be so, Dick asserted. The social pressurse of a university naturally lead a student toward more extreme conduct, he said.

The status and prestige become the driving force, making the college student do things he would not do in his native environment, he said.

The move can be toward either extreme, Dick explained. The "campus leader's" position forces him to be more concerned with the public image he displays than is the average student.

Housing

Discussing the question of off campus housing for undergraduates, Dick said the university must maintain a yard stick for maturity as the only basis for exceptions to the undergraduate housing requirement.

The student's past record, whom he plans to live with, and financial situation must be considered before the "exception to the privilege" of undergraduate private housing is made.

"Ignorance of the law is no excuse for violating university policy," Dick continued, but regulations must be printed" as specifically as is good for the student and the university."

It is the job of Joint Student Court to judge rule breakers under the delegated powers of the dean of men and dean of

Gubernatorial Campaign Not Over Yet

Robert Morgenthau returned to Syracuse this weekend, and the city of his somewhat tainted convention triumph received him more kindly the second time around.

Morgenthau's supporters claim his campaign is gathering momentum. The candidate himself laughs at his slow start and compares it to the early season record of the Syracuse football team. Things are steadily improving, he says.

Perhaps the Morgenthau camp is correct. The more than 200 students who attended his campus address late Saturday afternoon surprised skeptical onlookers. Were the hour more convenient and the weather less foreboding, this crowd undoubtedly would have been larger.

Although some of those present were motivated by curiosity, the majority appeared sincerely interested in the Morgenthau campaign. Perhaps these students are typical of the grass roots support nobody believes Morgenthau really has.

Robert Morgenthau is no silver-tongued orator; he is more comfortable speaking informally than he is reading a prepared speech. Because of this, it is probably fortunate for the Democrats that Governor Rockefeller has refused to debate with him.

The governor's dynamic campaign image early established him as an overwhelming favorite in the race to fill the governor's mansion. Observers questioned Morgnthau's ability to keep up with the gregarious governor.

Morgenthau's campus reception proved voters are willing to consider more than a glamorus image. They were more interested in what he had to say than in the manner in which he delivered it. Perhaps this is part of a state-wide trend.

Rockefeller recently admonished his supporters for taking his election for granted and told them victory was not assured. Very few people took the governor seriously; perhaps Rockefeller doesn't take the thought seriously himself.

Although the incumbent does seem well on the way to re-election, the campaign is not over until the last vote is counted. The last Republican governor of New York learned this the hard way.

GARDEN OF EDEN

A Forgotten Issue

By Carol Schlageter

Campus issues tend to burn for a day or two—for an issue or two of the Daily Orange—and fall forgotten to the background.

Some of these issues are veritable trivia. Others reflect courage and idealism, courage and idealism which should be heralded rather than forgotten.

Theta Phi Alpha is an issue past. Theta Phi Alpha is an issue that blazed, turned to embers and cooled. Theta Phi Alpha is an instance of ccurage and idealism which must not be forgotten.

And lest we forget, a review of the issue is pertinent.

Last April the sisters of Theta Phi Alpha at Syracuse submitted a petition to their national sorority. Only Roman Catholics were eligible for membership in Theta Phi national. In their petition the local groups informed the national that in this fall's rush they would not discriminate according to religion. The Syracuse girls said they would leave membership to the discretion of girls in the house.

As one sister explained, the Theta Phi national is striving for an outdated purpose—establishing Catholic sororities on non-Catholic campuses. There has been, she noted, no expansion onto non-Catholic campuses since 1931.

On April 9 the national revoked the Syracuse chapter's charter.

The Syracusans formed a local sorority, called it Lambda Psi.But they were without a house—the Theta Phi house is owned by the local alumnae, who refused to sell it to the university for possible use this year by Lambda Psi.

For the national, meanwhile, the whole Syracuse affair was like a great nightmare. They did not want the religious issue brought up at their national convention in August, for fear the idea would snowball. There had been and still are murmurings of discontent in other chapters throughout the nation.

And at the national convention the chairwoman quickly skuttled over the religion issue when it became apparent that a majority of the delegates supported the Syracuse stand.

As far as alumnae financial support, the Lambda Psi's have none. As far as a house, the Lambda Psi's have a temporary one. They are living in the Former Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house at 521 Comstock Ave.. A scrapbook of before and after photographs shows their vast improvements in interior decorating. With limited funds they have purchased virtually every stick of furniture in their house.

If anything, the present house is more gracious and warm than the old Theta Phi Alpha house. The girls are considering setting up a kitchen to serve meals in the house. Presently, some eat at Zeta Psi fratenrity and some eat at Watson dining hall.

Indeed, they have made a house a home — a home in which they can welcome sisters who are not of exact preordained specifications.

The chief problems which faces the group now is the threat of being ousted from their present house. Their housing contract with the university expires in June. They might well be moved again, but it takes more than shuffling to dampen a spirit such as they have shown.

And now the Lambda Psi issue has become a so-called dead one. But the issue is far from dead. It is smoked over but still white hot. Lest we forget, Lambda Psi has surmounted a great barrier, that of religion.

LETTERS

Favortism

To the Editor:

Would it be fair to assume that an undemocratic state would exist if the President of the United States picked the Congress man by man? President Green picked his Freshman Executive Council man by man. Would it then be just as fair to assume that the choosing of that council was any more democratic?

President Dennis Green was granted the power to select the council members any way he saw fit. Prejudice and favoritisms are bound to enter into the decision of four individuals when selecting representatives for twenty - seven-hundred. What is more democratic than election? Do these yet unproven officers have the right or ability to select the students who will represent our interests?

We were very disappointed with Mr. Green's first official act as our president. Is this the best he can do?

Hungary

To the Editor:

On October 22, 1956, six years ago, students at the University of Technical Sciences in Budapest adopted a sixteen-point program whose repercussions were destined to be heard around the world. The program included demands for "general elections, universal suffrage, secret ballot, and the participation of several Parties for the purpose of electing a new National Assembly, freedom of opinion and expression, freedom of the Press and a free Radio."

The students also supported the right to strike and a reorganization of the country's economic and political life so as to encompass the participation of the mass of the Hungarian people. Leading off the students' proclamation was the demand for "the immediate withdrawal of all Soviet troops in accordance with the provisions of the Peace Treaty."

The students presented a document containing these demands to the Budapest Radio, with the request that it be read as part of a news program. The radio directors refused to accept this suggestion, and offered instead to read only five of the more noncommittal points. The censor absolutely refused permission for the broadcasters to read the sections dealing with the withdrawal of Soviet troops, and the demands for free press and free elections.

Unwilling to accept this limitation, the students began the distribution of their proclamation through their own publication. Within hours, thousands of copies flooded Budapest, and by the next morning the city was discussing nothing else.

On the afternoon of October 23, following a mass meeting to honor the memory of a Hungarian patriot, the student representatives again requested the radio authorities to broadcast the sixteen-point program. There was another refusal.

While the student delegation waited for further negotiations, huge unarmed crowds around the Radio Building continued to shout the slogans contained in the student manifesto. Secret Service police then began to shoot into the demonstrators. The Hungarian Revolution had begun.

There were two significant aspects to the preparation of this sixteen - point program. It was a student group, as representative of the altruistic conscience of the nation, which undertook to summarize the aspirations of a people under Soviet control.

Second, it was a student group which undertook to disseminate the program, and thereby sparked the most widespread revolt against Soviet totalitarianism since its inception forty-four years ago.
