StoryIn the game, players will play as the invisible mayor of a simby. Here you get access to all the management options in your city, such as the buildings, landscape, roads, people and so on. Be a good mayor and pay attention to your Sims when they show you their opinions. Improve your mistake and get some surprising rewards for being a good mayor. Make smart decisions about the city's investments to benefit from these. Build your city into a massive metropolis with epic technologies and civilized citizens. Show your work to others as your city is known by others from all over the world. Here you will find all the exciting features that the game has to offer: Being mayor, you will have the chance to make all the decisions about the issues related to your city. Start by deciding what you want to build using your current resources. You can choose to build new inhabitants, production facilities, shops and so on. But make sure you take care of all your citizens' needs properly. Otherwise, they become less and less happy. And to attract more citizens to your city, you can upgrade your residential buildings for more to move in. The roads in your city will also play an important role in keeping traffic running. Each building must be connected to the city's road system so that they work properly. Otherwise, you won't get any resources, products or taxes (if it's a residential building) from it. But having too much building and small roads will also cause traffic to pile up relatively quickly. Therefore, being a wonderful mayor, it is your job to design and build the city in the most efficient ways possible. And if your city gets too crowded with no space to build new roads and buildings, you can always unlock new building plots next to your city. There are also two unique areas that are the snow mountains and the sunny beach for you to unlock. Have them available and access the new features of the game. You can hardly find any other city building games that have such interactive aspects of the game as SimCity BuildIt. That said, in this epic city builder and simulation title, will have their chances to observe people from a complete and close-up view. Watch little Sims walk on the street, drive to work or spend their time on the beaches, parks and so on. You can even look at their houses and gather their personal opinions on varied topics. Listen to your Sims as they talk about politics, city structures, politics, the quality of services, and even some housewife gossip. In this completely self-sufficient city, your citizens don't need to interact with the outside worlds to access all goods and services. That said, being a dutiful mayor, you need to build enough electrical factories, water purification systems, garbage factories and sewage collectors so that the people can live happily. They will also provide them with good security with the police stations, fire protection with the fire stations, and some medical facilities to cure their illnesses. And don't forget to make sure that traffic is still working properly. Fail to deliver one of these, and your citizen will begin to become less and less satisfying with their living conditions. Now, with all the buildings and services, you need to start producing raw materials to serve as materials for varied production facilities. The game currently has all sorts of different resources that you can collect from the factories, each has its own purposes and also requires certain amounts of time to produce. When the raw materials are ready, it's time for you to take it to the different stores to create more advanced products. Try your best to provide enough goods and services to people as you are going to need them to do varied upgrades and shipping activities. And you also need money to invest in many of the city's construction activities. The easiest way is to collect money from the inhabitants of your city, or it is also known as treasures. First, this should be your primary source of money, so make sure you collect it frequently. But as you progress further in the game, you need to expand your trading services.
