SHAREPOINT: YOUR BUSINESS DESERVES MORE

At its core SharePoint is a content management system. It doesn’t have the elements that are needed for an employee-centric company intranet. In addition, it is plagued by high costs, frustrated users and low engagement.

Broken into 5 categories:

- CONTENT-CENTRIC
  SharePoint has a rigid architecture designed for document storage and management, with company intranet features lagging as an after-thought.

- DECEPTIVELY EXPENSIVE
  While SharePoint may seem low-priced or free (with O365), making SharePoint work for your business requires serious time and money.

- LOW EMPLOYEE ADOPTION
  Because employees find it complicated, difficult to use, and lacking the engaging elements of a company intranet, SharePoint is known for extremely low adoption rates.

- POOR USER EXPERIENCE
  The frustration goes beyond setup and administration, users find it to be difficult to operate and navigate.

- INFORMATION SILOS
  Notorious for creating silos, SharePoint leads to content and related communications locked in various team sites.

Employee Adoption Rates
