Connecting and Supporting Your Instructors

Decide on your instructor population. Will you have adjuncts, full-time faculty, your entire department, or some other population?

What strengths and experiences does this population bring to the classroom?

How is this group similar to or different from your current instructors?

What questions and unexpected occurrences did you and your team uncover while teaching the corequisite courses? What other information would be valuable for new faculty to have before their first semester?

What opportunities exist for mentorship and collaboration?

In what ways can faculty's strengths and personalities be utilized in course personalization?

How will you connect with the larger group to solicit feedback on successes and challenges?

Enjoy the fruits of your labor!
