About the McGraw-Hill Education 2019 English Learners Report

The findings included in this report are based on responses to a survey conducted by Morning Consult from December 7-15, 2018, among a national sample of 463 K-8 teachers and K-12 administrators. The survey was conducted online and the data were weighted to approximate a target sample of teachers and administrators based on age, race/ethnicity, gender, educational attainment and region. Results from the full survey have a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percentage points.

Most impactful approaches to EL instruction

Teachers and administrators cite interactive and collaborative group work and games as approaches that have the greatest most positive impact on EL student achievement.

What programs, solutions, or activities have had the MOST positive impact on EL student achievement/success in your school/district? [OPEN END]

Collaborative group work

- “Collaborative group work is a key element. Teachers should explore ways for students to produce/present a project in groups, or to create smaller activities (e.g., labs, team builders).”
- “Group projects & cooperative learning. Such activities provide opportunities for students to exchange, write, and present ideas.”
- “Project-based learning opens up opportunities for the student to practice vocabulary and to be supported by their peers during the process.”

Games

- “To improve instruction for English Language Learners and the rest of your students, make vocabulary active play charades where students act out the vocabulary words, or use a word wall (yes, even in upper grades).”
- “For example, Bingo is one of the most effective and versatile games used by ESL instructors for younger learners.”
- “Make sure that the students can understand, and prepare some interesting games on the premise that they can understand, so that they can better integrate the knowledge they have learned into it.”
Teachers and administrators are most inclined to use video and audio resources when teaching EL skills.

- Admin: 28% Strongly agree, 42% Somewhat agree, 20% Somewhat disagree, 10% Strongly disagree
Teachers most commonly report that family and community involvement practices would enhance their ability as an EL educator, while administrators believe second language acquisition and assessment practices for English Learners would be most helpful.

Which of the following focus areas of professional development, if any, would enhance your ability as an EL educator? Please select all that apply.
Compared to last year, teachers and administrators are more inclined to say the EL-specific professional development they are receiving is improving their ability to teach EL students.

Please indicate your level of agreement/disagreement with the following statements about your EL training/professional development:

- EL professional development provided by my School/District has improved my ability to teach English Learners
- 2017: 18%, 24%, 32%, 26%
  2018: 10%, 14%, 46%, 30%

- My School/District provides sufficient, ongoing professional development to support English Learners’ success
- 2017: 17%, 29%, 32%, 23%
  2018: 10%, 18%, 39%, 33%

The 2017 research final sample included 1,368 completed surveys conducted by Hanover Research.
However, teachers and administrators feel somewhat less confident applying the EL-specific professional training that they have received and are spending personal time and effort to learn EL skills.
