Monthly news & updates

edHE*LTH

February 2020 | Issue 5

Dean College Improves Faculty and Staff Health Benefits to Attract and Retain Talent

Joins edHEALTH's Purchasing Collaborative

Attracting and retaining talented faculty and staff is a top concern of many colleges and universities. Dean College was looking to gain a competitive edge when it decided to improve its employee health benefits and join edHEALTH.

Learn more.

Sarah Lawrence College Tackles
Rising Faculty Healthcare Costs
Becomes First New York Institution to Join edHEALTH's Purchasing Collaborative

Sarah Lawrence College is taking a new and innovative approach to controlling rising faculty and staff healthcare costs: joining edHEALTH, a member-owned healthcare collaborative of 22 colleges, universities, and other educational institutions. Sarah Lawrence is the first member from the State of New York. Learn more.

Salve Regina University's edHEALTH Program Selected for March EACUBO Conference

The Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers (EACUBO) selected Salve Regina University's edHEALTH program for inclusion in their 2020 Workshop Conference. William Hall, Salve Regina's Vice President for Administration and Chief Financial Officer, and edHEALTH's President, Tracy Hassett, will provide an overview of how the University saved money on faculty and staff healthcare costs.

Learn More

Five Employer Healthcare Strategy
Trends to Consider

quality remains a challenge. One of the hottest trends over the last few years to address these needs – high-deductible plans and consumerism – is on the decline.

Here are the top five employer healthcare strategies that large employers are pursuing.

edHEALTH Share-it Employee Engagement Communications Customized by Health Plan

Access These Employee
Engagement
Communications

edHEALTH's new share-it employee engagement communications have been a huge hit with our member schools. Some of you have asked us for a format other than email. Others have asked for versions customized by health plan. You asked and we are happy to deliver!

Check out the share-it employee engagements in email and Adobe Acrobat formats. Download or share the version particular to your school's health plan. Please share with your employees our latest communication about why and when telehealth benefits provide convenience.

edHEALTH Newsletter Editor, Cindy McGrath | Website

Please add info@educatorshealth.org to your contacts so we're recognized as a safe sender.