Summer is a time for exploration and growth—for the residents at The Elephant Sanctuary, that means traveling long distances to the lakes and ponds of their habitats for a summertime swim; grazing alongside habitat mates and forming more dynamic social bonds; using newly developed muscle strength and confidence to traverse wooded valleys; and learning that age may bring on a slower pace, but not a decreased appetite for discovery.

Sukari—one of The Sanctuary’s newest residents, and Tange—a long-time resident, recently shared space together for the first time. This “introduction” was a great milestone for the Africans, as fostering robust social bonds creates more opportunities for the elephants to share and explore larger areas of their habitats together. The preparation that goes into such introductions may also serve as a model for future socialization efforts as more elephants find retirement at The Sanctuary.

Our Mission
Founded in 1995, The Elephant Sanctuary in Tennessee is the nation’s largest natural-habitat refuge developed specifically around the needs of endangered Asian and African elephants. It operates on 2700 acres in Hohenwald, Tenn – 85 miles southwest of Nashville.

With Your Support, The Elephant Sanctuary:

- Provides captive elephants with individualized care, the companionship of a herd, and the opportunity to live out their lives in a safe haven dedicated to their wellbeing;

- Raises public awareness of the complex needs of elephants in captivity, and the crisis facing elephants in the wild.

As an accredited sanctuary, the habitat where the elephants live is not open to the public.

DEAR FRIENDS,

In this summer issue of Trunklines, we pay special tribute to Misty. Misty’s passing in April left a big space in the hearts of those who cared for her and those who loved her from afar. We honor Misty’s determination to make the most of each day of her 12 years spent at The Sanctuary. As a long-time circus elephant, Misty came to The Elephant Sanctuary at the age of 40 with a reputation as a dangerous elephant and suffering from many chronic health issues including exposure to tuberculosis. Like many elephants that have been trained and managed by domination, Misty was often fearful and unsure of people and new situations. Over the years, we all watched as she formed close bonds with other elephants, we noted her progress in participating in health and husbandry care, and we celebrated her independence with supporters and EleCam viewers as she bravely expanded her explorations throughout the habitats.

As we said our goodbyes to Misty, staff began preparing for the warmer days ahead. In July, we celebrated Shirley’s 68th birthday with her many fans and supporters. Shirley’s story as a well-traveled circus performer, much loved zoo elephant, and current resident of Tennessee has been well-documented. She is the oldest elephant at The Sanctuary and one of the oldest Asian elephants in North America. As a symbol of aging elephants in captivity, Shirley demonstrates the positive impact of safe haven, access to expansive natural habitats, companionship of other elephants, and individualized health care. Shirley continues to be an inspiration to so many as she travels daily throughout the Asia habitats, secure in her role as matriarch.

The Elephant Sanctuary exists to provide captive elephants like Misty and Shirley a safe place to age with dignity and excellent care. Their stories help to educate others of the complex needs of all elephants and the challenges they face in captivity and in the wild. We invite you to be a part of the work, become a member, adopt an elephant, share their stories with others, and add your voice to speak out for those who cannot speak for themselves.

Thank you for partnering with us on this mission!

Summer is a time for growth—and for the elephants in the Quarantine Habitat, that means exploration and ever-evolving relationships. This year marks ten years since Billie, Minnie, Debbie, and Ronnie were retired to The Elephant Sanctuary from the Hawthorn Corporation, a company that trained and leased elephants to circuses—and five years since Billie allowed her last chain to be removed.

Minnie, Ronnie, and Debbie are still spending much of their time together as a trio, taking advantage of the warmer weather and their habitat’s lush greenery by grazing in the fields, finding mud wallows, and showering themselves with pond water. They have also been observed interacting with the local wildlife—grazing alongside turkeys and chasing flocks of birds. Debbie seems to be asserting her dominance over Minnie, a role reversal from years previous, with Ronnie almost acting as a mediator between the two. To ensure their wellbeing, Caregivers continue to monitor interactions between all the elephants.

Billie, who has shown signs of anxiety towards humans and elephants, has made incredible strides at The Sanctuary. This spring, Caregivers observed her lying down to sleep for the first time—a sign of contentment—even snoring and trumpeting. Billie has also surprised Caregivers with showing more confidence and bravery as she continues to venture farther and farther from the areas immediately surrounding the Quarantine Barn. Although Billie has had full access to Phase I Habitat since the passing of her companion, Liz, last August, it wasn’t until this spring that...
Billie was first observed grazing as far out as the area known as “Frieda’s Field” and taking walks down to “Minnie’s Pond” to swim. Billie spent an afternoon dipping her head under water, splashing, blowing bubbles, bobbing, rolling on her sides, and sitting in the pond. Caregivers were amazed that Billie appeared comfortable swimming in a pond she had never been to before. Sensing her interest in continued exploration, Caregivers gave Billie access to the “60,” a 60-acre section of the Quarantine Habitat. Without skipping a beat, Billie began assessing this previously uncharted territory. One morning, when Billie was nowhere in sight, she was discovered at South Pond, up a very steep hill and in one of the most remote parts of the Quarantine Habitat. Billie spent more than four days by the pond and in the woods, grazing and bathing.

“While Billie usually chooses to return to the barn at night, she chose to spend the night out in the habitat, grazing alongside the deer as night fell,” said Lead Caregiver Justina. “We arrived the next morning to see Billie still grazing in the 60, and found no signs of her returning to the barn overnight.”

While opportunities for Billie and Ronnie to socialize continue, Billie often appears more interested in solo exploration.

May marked six months since African elephants Rosie and Sukari retired to The Sanctuary from the Nashville Zoo, following their former zoo-mate Hadari who retired two months earlier. The three spent their first winter and spring at The Sanctuary getting to know long-time residents Tange and Flora, exploring their new habitat, and exercising freedom of choice. For the majority of their first six months at The Sanctuary, Sukari and Rosie shared an area of the Africa Habitat known as the "Annex," located between the North Yard where Tange and Flora spend most of their time, and the South Yard, where Hadari spends her days. At the zoo, Hadari did not share space with Rosie and Sukari, so The Sanctuary has allowed them to share a fenceline as they adjust to The Sanctuary and develop their social dynamic.

June brought many new socialization opportunities for the elephants in the Africa Habitat.

Caregivers began by introducing Sukari and Tange, first allowing Sukari access to the soon-to-be-shared South Yard to get familiar with the space. Staff also organized several cooperative feedings in the barn between their two adjacent stalls. After observing Tange's continued interest and positive interactions in these activities, Caregivers allowed the two access to the South Yard together for the first time. Lead Caregiver Kristy said, "Both Tange and Sukari are rather submissive by nature... the two ate quietly next to each other for about 15 minutes. Tange then walked out into the rest of the habitat and found all the hay, while Sukiari explored closer toward the barn."

Because Tange and Sukari's introduction went so smoothly, Caregivers felt it may also be the right time to introduce Tange and Rosie, and then Tange and Hadari, in a continual effort to foster more robust social relationships between the elephants. The intention is to create more opportunities for all five African elephants to share the larger areas of the newly expanded Africa Habitat.

Leading up to Rosie and Tange's introduction, the Caregivers' primary concern was that Rosie had the strength to traverse South Yard in light of her health issues, which include lameness in her front right leg, thought to be the result of progressive arthritis.
However, her physical limitations seemed not to get in the way of her ability to navigate the South Yard’s more strenuous environment, which includes hills and valleys. Caregivers moved forward with plans to introduce Rosie and Tange—with Sukari joining, too.

After a little while, all three elephants were observed foraging together, and Rosie and Tange touched trunks. “It was an awesome moment to watch, and very exciting to Africa Staff,” said Lead Caregiver Kristy.

Before the month was up, Caregivers introduced Hadari and Tange—completing first meetings between Tange and all three of Africa Habitat’s newest residents. Although at first, Tange seemed apprehensive of Hadari, the two were later observed grazing near to one another, without touching.

Tange and Flora are often seen in the larger North Yard area of her habitat. Many mornings, the two appear covered in tree sap, indicating they’ve been rubbing against the pine trees. The African elephants have enough strength to push whole trees over, and this has been a favorite pastime for Flora and Tange.

Hadari also continues to spend the majority of her time exploring the South Yard, recently discovering a creek bed at the farthest point in the habitat. She has begun spending her nights outside, taking advantage of the warm weather. Caregivers noted that although Hadari was apprehensive about rain when she first arrived at The Sanctuary last September, she appears to have gotten over that apprehension, now mudding and spraying herself during summer rain showers.
July marked Shirley’s 68th birthday and 17th year at The Sanctuary. The stories of Shirley’s past are more colorful than most elephants or humans. Shirley was captured from the wild in Sumatra in 1953, performed in numerous circuses, was held captive by Fidel Castro’s forces, survived a ship fire, and had an altercation with another elephant, which led to a broken and poorly healed hind leg. She then lived for 22 years at the Louisiana Purchase Gardens and Zoo in Monroe, Louisiana, before retiring to The Elephant Sanctuary in Tennessee in 1999. At The Sanctuary, Shirley is known to travel all over the Asia Habitat—walking slowly and stiffly due to chronic, progressive conditions brought on by years in captivity—but still capable of covering significant areas in the habitat.

This spring and summer, Shirley and Tarra have been spending most of their time grazing in the shade near The Sanctuary’s 25-acre lake—over a mile away from the Asia Barn—and have been seen enthusiastically eating the tall grass in both Left and Right Field areas of their habitat. Tarra surprised Caregivers recently by submerging her entire body in the lake during a swim, something she has never been observed doing before.

“Tarra was eating her treats and hay when all of the sudden, she turned around and headed straight to the lake and started spraying herself with water. Caregivers went back to what they were doing and heard a splash as Tarra fully submerged in the lake. She rolled around and did a flip or two before coming back to the Protected Contact training corral for more treats.” – Kaitlin, Caregiver

The Sanctuary Maintenance Staff worked hard to prepare the large area of the Asia Habitat for its residents this summer—completing new trails and adding mud wallows for the elephants. Shirley has created a few mud wallows herself in Right Field, and often is seen thoroughly coated in mud. On their first day with full access to the larger habitat area, Sissy and Winkie took advantage of the North Yard wallow. Caregivers reported that Winkie walked right into the water while Sissy stood on the edge splashing herself, making popping noises, and dusting with the freshly dug dirt. The two are rarely seen apart and have had a busy summer using the new trails. Rainy summer days have helped to keep the mud wallows full, which entices the elephants to take a mud bath when the weather is warm and sunny. Sissy and Winkie have also been the first to discover the warming hut, a new structure to allow elephants more time out in the habitat and away from the barn as the weather gets cooler this fall and winter. Although the warming hut is not yet open to the elephants, Caregivers are encouraged that having discovered it, the elephants will return this fall.
Each of The Sanctuary’s resident elephants consumes approximately 150 lbs. of food every day. The elephants forage naturally in the habitat, and The Sanctuary Staff also provides additional food and supplements to make sure nutritional needs are met. Every elephant has her favorite food—Shirley loves apples.

The Elephant Discovery Center expansion will soon be underway! By late fall of this year, visitors will be able to experience the next phase of our educational outreach—an outdoor classroom and interpretative corridor adjoining our facility in downtown Hohenwald! The exhibits there will focus on "wild" elephants: the difference in species, diets, habitats, and social structures.

Following the completion of the corridor, construction will shift inside for the installation of interactive exhibits and a 40-person theater. The indoor exhibit is planned to be completed in 2017 and the excitement is spreading!

"We love coming to The Elephant Discovery Center," says Ms. Calton, a local 2nd grade teacher. "It is so beneficial to the students. They love learning about the elephants and are fascinated that The Sanctuary is located in their hometown. This expansion is so exciting, and we cannot wait to come see it!"

BEFORE THE SANCTUARY

Misty was captured from the wild in India in 1965. Little information is available about the first decade of her life, but records indicate she traveled with several circuses. In the early 1970s, she was purchased by the founder of a company that trained and leased animals for use in television, movies, amusement parks, and other attractions—Misty appeared in an episode of the popular American sitcom “Sanford and Son.” In 1988, the Hawthorn Corporation purchased Misty and she spent the next 16 years traveling with different circuses as part of the Hawthorn herd. When not performing or traveling, Misty and her companions were chained together inside a barn for as many as 22 hours a day.

Between 2003 and 2006, the USDA cited Hawthorn Corporation with multiple violations of the Animal Welfare Act and as a result, Misty and her barn companion, Lota, were both retired to The Sanctuary on November 17, 2004. Lota passed away two months later as a result of tuberculosis and Misty was treated for exposure to the disease. In 2006, Misty moved with the founding herd to the Asian Habitat where she lived out the rest of her life.

AT THE SANCTUARY

At The Elephant Sanctuary, Misty formed social bonds with several elephants in the Asian Habitat, including Delhi, a former herd-mate from the Hawthorn Corporation who was retired to The Sanctuary in 2003 and Dulary, who was retired from the Philadelphia Zoo in 2007. Following both of their passings, Misty began to socialize with Shirley and Tarra and explore more of the 2,000-acre Asia Habitat that was available to her. Caregivers noted that Misty didn’t stick to the trails like many of the other Asian elephants, but rather she found new places to nap and graze in the habitat, often traveling to ponds and lakes for a muddy wallow or a swim. In June, 2014, staff celebrated when they found Misty had walked over a mile to the 25-acre lake to swim there for the first time. Misty was seen splashing, dunking, and even taking a nap on the muddy bank. Misty’s explorations continued the following spring when she returned to the lake area, frequenting areas now known as “Misty’s Hideout,” and “Misty’s Mud-Wallow.”

“Despite the challenges of chronic conditions and aging, Misty demonstrated to all that life could be full of new adventures. She was often seen on the EleCams discovering new areas of the habitat and making full use of the lakes and ponds. She will be missed by all who loved and cared for her.”

REMEMBERING MISTY

SAVING GOODBYE

Misty began showing signs of discomfort and decreased appetite in late winter. The Sanctuary Veterinary and Husbandry Staff made changes to her diet, including offering her more of her favorite foods—banana leaves and sugar cane. They also closely monitored her symptoms, and developed treatment plans for her pain. In the first week of April, the progression of her chronic, incurable kidney and bladder disease and associated pain worsened, and Misty was humanely euthanized on April 13, 2016 at the age of 52. She passed away peacefully on a sunny afternoon in the company of those who cared for and loved her. Tarra and Shirley were given the opportunity to visit Misty’s body, and Misty was buried next to her two companions, Delhi and Dulary. A large boulder with a small plaque with Misty’s name and dates in residence was placed on her grave. The Sanctuary Staff spent time sharing their experiences in caring for Misty, and many of their special memories.

“Thank you for all of the joy you gave to your herd mates, your human Caregivers, me and my fellow EleCam viewers. I am so glad The Sanctuary exists. You are missed.”

“Misty was an exceptional lady. She was a loyal friend to sweet Dehlí and Dulay. She never hesitated to begin her next adventure in the habitat, whether it be finding a new napping place, swimming in the lake, or blazing a new trail. She brought a sense of warmth, love and peace to everyone. Not only did she impact the people that cared for her daily, but also thousands of people around the world.”

Kelly
Elephant Care Manager
Each and every day, Sissy, Winkie, Debbie, Ronnie, Minnie, Billie and all the other elephants at The Sanctuary engage in daily activities that are an essential part of their ongoing care. The 2016 Summer Appeal will have an immediate impact on their lives by providing resources to meet essential mission-critical needs, such as...

AN APPLE A DAY! After years of traveling in the circus, Minnie struggles with painful arthritis. For comfort and relief, our team of veterinarians and caregivers provides Minnie — and every elephant at The Sanctuary — with supplements and vitamins. Elephants get a daily apple (sometimes two!) which is cored, filled with supplements and vitamins, packed with peanut butter, covered with molasses and rolled in oats for an irresistible treat that supports optimal health and pain management.

A gift of $45 = one supplement-enriched apple for one elephant

A WHOLE LOTTA HAY! Like all of The Sanctuary’s elephants, Tange has access to acres and acres of fresh browse in her habitat, but still needs nutrient-dense Timothy hay every single day as a dietary supplement. The cost of providing hay for all 13 elephants every day for a year — including transportation — is high.

A gift of $20 = 2 bales of hay for one elephant

DIGITAL DISPLAY! Live-streaming images are essential to our mission of educating the public. Nearly 3 million viewers per year watch the elephants’ daily activities on our website absolutely free! EleCams and live interaction with staff are the basis of our Distance Learning. Participants in 2015 included 2,133 students in 17 states and 3 countries last year. Teachers describe the programs as “Awesome! ...the best Distance Learning our students have experienced!”

A gift of $1,906 = one week of streaming EleCams

Please help The Elephant Sanctuary continue to serve as a forever, natural-habitat home for retired captive elephants in North America by making a gift to the 2016 Summer Appeal. Your support will ensure best care of the elephants already at The Sanctuary, and help us educate the public about the complex needs of elephants everywhere.

Thank you for joining with us in this important work.

STARLIGHT SAVES THE ELEPHANTS FUNDRAISER

Starlight Studio and Art Gallery, an open art studio for adults with learning and developmental disabilities in Buffalo, NY held an art show in support of The Elephant Sanctuary. The show, which featured artwork and poems by Starlight artists, raised more than $200 for The Elephant Sanctuary. Mediums of expression spanned the gamut from painting, sculpture, and mixed media to origami, crochet, and even a decorated cake—all featuring images of elephants.

EleAmbassador Lori Duvall was in attendance and on hand to answer questions about The Elephant Sanctuary.

The Elephant Sanctuary thanks the artists, Lori, and all involved for your support!

STEPS FOR SHIRLEY

When EleAmbassador Gigi Glendenning spoke to 1st graders at Springside Chestnut Hill Academy in Philadelphia, PA earlier this year, she told the students about Shirley’s journey to The Sanctuary and the unexpected reunion with Asian elephant Jenny that followed.

"How do you feel when you see a friend you haven't seen all summer?" asked Gigi. "How do you react when you see them again?"

The students immediately related to the emotional lives of elephants, and they were quick to understand the largest land mammal’s need for space; they decided to have a walk-a-thon to raise awareness about The Sanctuary’s efforts to provide captive elephants more room to move. "Steps for Shirley" was held on a beautiful spring day. The students wore elephant ears, displaying hand-written facts about elephants and The Sanctuary. They recruited older students and faculty members to walk with them and when the steps were counted, the school community had walked 150 miles in all! They successfully raised awareness for The Sanctuary and its oldest and maybe most well-travelled resident, Shirley.

The Sanctuary is thankful to SCH Academy and EleAmbassadors like Gigi for their help in telling Shirley’s story!

For more information on becoming an EleAmbassador, contact todd@elephants.com.

The Elephant Sanctuary remembers volunteer Rich Hendele, who passed away earlier this year. Rich and his wife, Barbara Bayley, made numerous trips to Tennessee over the years, bringing a van load of fresh produce each time for the elephants. They also traveled to Chile to help Ramba, a retired circus elephant. Rich and Barbara were profiled in a 2013 issue of Trunklines, describing how their experiences volunteering at The Elephant Sanctuary and elephant facilities in Asia and South America had changed their lives. We offer our deepest sympathies to all those close to Rich Hendele, a true friend to elephants.
