Dear Registrants, Faculty, Sponsors and Exhibitors,

Many of you have emailed us regarding the COVID-19 outbreak and the impact on our conference. Our faculty has notified us of travel bans mandated from their institutions. The NADNP and ACDNP Board Members agree that without our faculty, this conference would not be at the standard we have set for your dermatology education.

In addition, we hold your safety, the safety of your family and community in the highest regard. With uncertainties regarding people following quarantine protocols and visitors who will be traveling from all over the country, we have determined that the risk would be too great to continue with the plan to hold the meeting in April. We have been monitoring recommendations from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and World Health Organization (WHO), along with the numerous travel restrictions issued by companies and medical institutions. Many conferences are being cancelled and/or rescheduled.

While we cannot predict what will happen 30 days from now, it appears that the cases will continue to increase on a national level. The board members feel that it is prudent to give as much time as possible to allow for people to re-adjust their schedules. We are moving our conference date to October 13-17, 2020. The temperature will be 85 degrees and the Clearwater Jazz Festival will be going on that week.

We will keep the same agenda and you will have the following options from the hotel:

1. Move the reservation over to the dates listed in October. Your deposit will be transferred to the new reservation.
2. Use your existing reservation and utilize some or all the dates you reserved.
