MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

- Virginia Tech, BS Biochemistry
- University of Texas at Austin, MSN
Pediatric Nurse Practitioner (Primary Care)
- University of Texas at Arlington,
Post-Masters Certification Pediatric Nurse Practitioner (Acute Care)
- University of Texas at Austin, DNP Student (in progress)

I have been a pediatric nurse practitioner at St. David's in the Pediatric Emergency Department since 2015 after completing the University of Texas at Austin alternate-entry program. I continued on to obtain a post-master's certificate as an acute care pediatric nurse practitioner from the University of Texas at Arlington in 2017. My clinical experience has been in pediatric acute care and emergency medicine. Additionally, I have been faculty at UT Austin since Fall 2019 teaching in the alternate entry pediatric practicum.

Prior to my career in nursing, I volunteered as an emergency medical technician at my local rescue department and worked as a patient safety assistant within the Virginia Commonwealth University health system. I completed my Bachelor of Science in Biochemistry from Virginia Tech and worked in vaccine development prior to enrolling at UT Austin in the alternate entry program.

I am currently completing my doctorate in nursing practice at UT Austin and my clinical interests lie specifically in the development of post-graduate education programs specifically for nurse practitioners as well as pediatric nursing clinical education and APRN policy development. As my educational background might suggest, my path to where I am is meandering. Much of my success has been from being open to new opportunities, educators who believed in me, and having a wonderful husband who supports my growth.

FUN FACT: During quarantine, I endeavored to become a horticulturist—but failed terribly. My house is now filled with plants in various stages of wilting and withering.

NP TIP: Child Life On Call is a great resource for pediatric NPs in settings without in-person child life specialists. The creator, Katie Taylor, CCLS, is an Austin-based child life specialist who has helpful tips on her Instagram, podcast, and website for both parents and pediatric providers AND she offers virtual services as well!

Why are you a TANC member?: I am a NAPNAP: TANC member because I see the importance of pediatric nurse practitioners having a voice for our profession, both locally and nationally.
