Session 1 - May 21, 2014 3 pm eastern
The Value of the Clinical Nurse Specialist (CNS) in Care Coordination

The clinical nurse specialist (CNS) has a crucial role in successful care coordination and can gain reimbursement and avoid penalties for re-admissions. The session will address key issues in planning a care coordination program, recommendations and resources to improve your program.

Session 2 – June 18, 2014 3:00 pm eastern
The ABC's of PQRS

This webinar is important for all CNSs who work with Medicare and Medicaid patients, and those who are interested in learning more about independent practice and direct reimbursement for eligible CNS services. PQRS is a federal reimbursement system that will be discussed on this call.

Session 3 - September 24, 2014 3 pm eastern
CNS Competencies: Taking the Lead in Clinical Alarm Management

Alarm fatigue related to the many alarms and overabundance of information communicated by medical devices is creating an environment of risk for patients. The clinical nurse specialist (CNS) is the ideal health care provider to implement changes in the health care delivery system to address alarm fatigue.

Session 4 - November 12, 2014 3 pm eastern
The Cutting Edge of Diabetes Management - Pharmacology credit!

This session will provide the CNS and other advanced practice registered nurses (APRN) with updates on the current thinking in diabetes treatment. New research findings and pharmacologic clinical care strategies will be discussed.

Session 5 – December 10, 2014 3 pm eastern
CNS Competencies: Positioning Yourself to Close the Clinical Alarm Gap

This webinar will help the clinical nurse specialist assess if the steps they have taken in their clinical environment are sufficient to deal with the important issue of clinical alarm fatigue are sufficient.
