

Photographs

Photograph 01. Aerial photograph captures approximately half of Cacao del Peru Norte's plantation in Tamshiyacu, Peru. This subsidiary of United Cacao began operating in this area during mid-2013 (Annex 24) (Photo: EIA March 2015).

Photograph 02. United Cacao's related company, Plantaciones de Ucayali, has been operating in Nueva Requena since July 2012, allowing the company ample time to create its own infrastructure and plantations (Annex 25) (Photo: EIA March 2015).

Photograph 03. Illegal saw mill on United Cacao's property cuts timber near Tamshiyacu, Peru (Photo: EIA March 2015).

Photograph 04. Wide aerial photograph of operations in Plantaciones de Pucallpa shows the stark contrast between the cultivated oil palm and intact rainforest (Photo: EIA March 2015).

Photograph 05. Aerial photograph of land operated by related company, Plantaciones de Ucayali, shows numerous streams, one of which appears to have been diverted. (See stream diversion in upper right quadrant of the image) (Photo: EIA March 2015).