

representation in media

Across

2. An umbrella term for people whose gender identity differs from the gender they were assigned at birth.
6. A familiar stock character who has emerged as a result of many years of fables, fairy tales, etc.
8. An adjective used to describe a person who identifies with the gender they were assigned with at birth.
10. The institutional system that prioritizes men over non-men.
11. A surface level attempt to include people of different backgrounds in a production in order to appear progressive that centers whiteness.
13. The act of casting a white actor as a person/character who is historically/canonically a person of color.
14. A factual (not perceived) characteristic of a population that includes race, gender, sexuality, disability, class, etc.
15. A positive stereotype that is designed to debunk an existing offensive stereotype.

Down

1. The systematic discrimination against disabled individuals.
3. The problematic act of interchangeably casting actors of color in certain roles for which they lack the cultural background. Example: Casting South Asian actors as Egyptians.
4. Discrimination and antagonism directed at individuals of another race accompanied by the belief that this race is inferior to the race of the individuals in power.
5. A culturally fixed (and often offensive) image or portrayal of a specific demographic.
7. The meaningful act of 'including' marginalized people in institutions that they have historically been barred from.
9. Discrimination against individuals with darker skin tones within the same ethnic group as well as preferential treatment of individuals with lighter skin.
12. The practice of advertising a business, company, or other institution as LGBTQ+ affirming than it is in actuality.