Top 10 Organic Clothing Brands for Children

For many parents, the prospect of purchasing children's items, like clothing, can be overwhelming. Since children's skin is so much more sensitive than adults, it is important to be careful about what children are wearing. Cotton seems safe enough, but if it is not organic, there is a major chance that the cotton was treated with pesticides. Chemicals can be absorbed into babies' and children's skin, creating all sorts of health concerns. Organic children's clothing manufacturers use untreated cotton, bamboo, wool, linen, and soy to create quality clothing. These items can be purchased at brick and mortar stores, specialty shops, and online retailers, like eBay. Under the Nile, Little Green Radicals, Ecoland, Frugi, Hanna Andersson, Green Babies, Bamboo Babies, American Apparel, Piccalilly, and Global Kids all produce lines of the best organic children's clothing.

Under the Nile

Under the Nile produces great basics for preemies, babies, children, and even adults. Their organic Egyptian cotton is fair trade. Though they do not have as large of a selection as many other children's clothing manufacturers, they do have the basics in classic designs and colours.

Little Green Radicals

Everything that Little Green Radicals sells is completely organic and fair trade. They have a large selection of children's and baby clothing that includes dungarees, dresses, leggings, hats, cardigans, and joggers, amongst other items. Their clothing is soft, and made most commonly from organic cotton, interlock, jersey, and fleece. Some of their most popular shirts boast phrases like "I recycle my tantrums" and "I only eat organic chips".

Ecoland

An environmentally-conscious company, Ecoland makes organic under clothes for men, women, and children. Since underclothes like socks, onesies, and camisoles are closest to the skin, they are the most important to buy organic. The clothing is very basic, in natural and white colours to limit the use of dyes. As a sweatshop free brand, Ecoland is a choice parents can feel good about.

Frugi

Translating to Fruits of the Earth in Latin, Frugi is a very popular organic children's clothing company. They first began when parents, Lucy and Kurt were not able to find cloth nappies. The company expanded to include children's clothing like babygrows, trousers, sleepwear, tights, and coats, to name a few. With a wide selection of classic and fun items, Frugi has made a major impact on the baby and children's clothing market.

Hanna Andersson

Unlike companies like Frugi and Under the Nile, Hanna Andersson clothing is not one hundred per cent organic. Certain items in their line of baby and children's clothing are organic. Hanna Andersson's clothing is a bit more expensive than other children's clothing; however, they do carry certain lines that cater to a more budget-minded client.

Green Babies

With a smaller selection of clothing choices, Green Babies may not be the first organic children's clothing company people would think of. However, their clothing is made from one hundred per cent organic cotton, in great styles. There is even a gender neutral section for parents to browse. Their items are quality knit materials. With cute illustrations, their snappies are an excellent pick for new mums and dads.

Bamboo Baby

Reflecting its name, Bamboo Baby, uses bamboo fabrics that are completely organic, sustainable, and eco-friendly. Not only that, but bamboo fabric is very soft, which is great for keeping children's skin from irritation. Their styles of cardigans, dresses, and trousers are classic, yet fashion forward. This sophisticated line features vibrant patterns, and solid colours with accents. However, with a higher price point, Bamboo Baby may not be for everyone.

American Apparel

While their selection of children's clothing using organic fibres is more limited, American Apparel does have many items made from organic materials. Organic items are clearly labelled and available for both babies and children. Since the company is sweatshop free, the quality of their garments is much better than department store clothing that is most commonly outsourced to Asia.

Piccalilly

Home of the popular muslin swaddles, Piccalilly is one of the top manufacturers of organic clothing for children. Fair trade, completely organic, and eco friendly, Piccalilly has a great selection of items that children need. With fun patterns and appliques, this is a brand that appeals to many customers. They have been featured in many publications like Yorkshire Life and The Green Parent.

Global Kids

Global Kids commitment to organic and fairtrade clothing is evident in that they produce not just garments, but also shoes, skin care, toys, and books advocating their plight. With reasonable pricing for their products, it is no wonder that Global Kids have become a popular brand. They maintain that their naturally grown cotton is much softer than non-organic cotton.

How to Buy Organic Clothing for Children

You can feel good about purchasing organic children's clothes because you are buying garments that will keep the child in your life safe. eBay is a fantastic place for purchasing such goods because you are able to compare items from many sellers without leaving the comfort of your home. Not only that, but oftentimes, you can find a better deal on eBay than at a local retailer. Be sure to include shipping costs when determining if you would like to purchase the item. Seller feedback, delivery estimates, and product details are all instrumental in determining if this is the right item for you.
