DR. CHRISTOPHER THOMAS

FAMILY MEDICINE

Medical School: University of the West Indies, Jamaica

Associations: American Board of Family Medicine

At Bloom Medical Group, patients not only feel like family – they feel the love.

As a primary care practice devoted to outstanding patient care, the doctors and staff at Bloom not only provide unmatched, award-winning medical care, but they guide patients through the confusing processes of referrals, specialists and tests, all in one convenient place.

Dr. Christopher Thomas has called

Bloom Medical Group home for five years and enjoys practicing family medicine.

"I genuinely like people," he says. "I like interacting with people, and practicing medicine allows you to help people. It's a good fit for me."

He also likes the idea of providing a medical home care model, Dr. Thomas says: "Especially for senior care, this is a good model because I am more involved in the decision-making process, and it allows me to stay up-to-date on my patients."

Having it all come together under one roof means better comprehensive care.

"With seniors, they tend to see several specialists," he says. "We have all of their records here in one place, so we can see the patient's whole history and therefore manage their care more strategically."

Dr. Thomas says that the practice was designed and set up as a medical home.

"Our aim is to change the way people view medicine," he says. "From how the exam rooms are designed – it's not your typical cookie-cutter facility. It really has a feeling of elegance – very welcoming and comforting."

The designer office feels more like a serene spa, and the friendly service is extended through the staffers, who greet patients by name, Dr. Thomas says.

"We pride ourselves on making people feel as comfortable as possible, by assisting our patients in making the right decisions and doing our best to keep them healthy," he says. "We do a good job, our patients love us a lot here and we're proud of that."
