The forecast was for rain, but luckily that promise didn't deliver, so the 79 trucks that were parked up at the Tui Brewery for the punters to admire kept their chrome unblemished.

This was just as well for the likes of Andy Maynard who was up until 1.30am the night before to make sure his Mack was shown in its best light. It paid off, as Andy, who drives for Clive Taylor Ltd in Paraparaumu, won Best Mack in the show.

The M-drive 12-speed auto, tipper is a real sturdy workhorse and is currently carting volcanic rock out of Waiouru/Taihape for the new motorway going through Transmission Gully, near Wellington.

Several trucking fleets brought out multiple trucks for the show—Menefy Trucking of Palmerston North; heavy haulage specialists BR Satherley Transport from Christchurch, who won Best Fleet; McCarthy Transport and McAuleys Transport, both from Masterton; Central House Movers, Bulls; and PTS Logistics, Palmerston North.

There was plenty of truck talk, washed down by a few cheeky beers (Tui: what else?).

This year, funds raised from registrations will go towards improving the Mangatainoka Reserve's facilities, including paving, planting, water and rubbish removal. ■
